Perhaps too much worry has gotten on your nerves, perhaps you have overworked yourself, or have been excessive in your use of tobacco, but whatever the cause, the nervous system must be built up again before restful sleep can be assured.

Those whose rest is broken into by frightful dreams, nightmares, sinking and smothering sensations, who wake up in the morning as tired as they went to bed can have their old, peaceful, undisturbed, refreshing sleep back again by using Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills.

Mrs. John Sloan, Haley Station, Ont., writes: "Over a year ago I was very nervous. I could not sleep at night, and I would faint at the slightest fright. Canadians Take More Ground Near Arleux

America's New Troops Should Be Trained Near The Front In Small Units, Marshal Believes

The Victories Sure to Be Won by Soldiers of the Two Republics Fighting Shoulder to Shoulder Will Hasten the End of the War, Hero of the Marne Declares

FRENCH MISSION DEEPLY MOVED BY THE RECEPTION GIVEN BY UNITED STATES

WASHINGTON, D.C., May 1.—"France, which has long recognised the valour of the American soldier, cherishes the confident hope that the flag of the United States will soon be unfurled on our fighting line. This is what Germany dreads."

Marshal Joseph Joffre, hero of the Marne, sent that message to-day to the American people during an interview he granted to the newspaper correspondents of Washington. With his own words Marshal Joffre settled for once and all the controversy and speculation that have taken place since his arrival in the United States with regard to his views on the subject of sending American troops to France.

"France and America will welcome with pride and joy," continued Marshal Joffre, "the day when their sons are once more fighting shoulder to shoulder in the defence of liberty. The victories which they will certainly win will hasten the end of the war and will tighten the links of affection and esteem which have ever united France and the United States."

Would Train Army at Front.

Marshal Joffre made it clear that he did not believe it would be the best policy to await the training and development of an entire army in the United States, and then send it as a single unit to France. He suggested in preference the sending of smaller units, the force to be increased steadily, as the British have done.

If a large army, completely equipped, had to be transported at one time, the transportation would be a tremendous problem, he said. He therefore would consider it better to send it over unit by unit.

"It is of the greatest importance," said the Marshal, "that the American flag should be seen in France; every one should then feel that you were there."

The Marshal was asked regarding the advisability of withdrawing Americans now on the field of battle and forming an independent American corps.

He replied that he did not think it a good method to withdraw Americans who are at the front, but that does not apply to certain specialists who might be especially wanted here; they would be useful in devloping the training of American soldiers; but in his opinion Americans already there should stay there. He thinks that now that the battle is raging every energy must be added to forces already fighting on the French front, and that is why Americans already in France are needed to help the fighters there.

No Definite Time for Training.

Marshal Joffre was asked how long a period of training was necessary to form a new army.

"No definite answer to such a question is possible," the Marshal replied. "First, the War Office alone really knows the exact conditions. Second, the example of England may throw some light on the probable time it would take. Staff officers necessarily are only slowly prepared. But subordinate officers can be trained with considerable speed when such fine material as the English is concerned. The American army probably would develop even faster, as it would profit by the experiences of the British and French.

The Marshal was optimistic regarding the ability of the United States quickly to develop additional officers necessary to train and lead their soldiers.

"In spite of their distance from the field of action," said Marshal Joffre, "there is no reason to doubt the capacity of the officers of the American army to fully train their men. It does not take so very long a time to train subordinate officers to lead their men into battle. Taking for example, the British army. They have a considerable number of divisions on the front, and in many of these divisions some of the best officers before the war were lawyers, merchants, etc. The same men in America would certainly show themselves as capable and as adaptable."

Commends American Fighters.

Marshal Joffre was then asked to tell of experiences he had with the Americans who are fighting at the front.

He said it would be invidious to single out any one particular instance of valour where valour was so general. In a general way he said he has had to congratulate all Americans in France and notably the whole corps of aviators, who had been most successful.

"One instance that might interest America is this," he continued. "President Wilson's message caused a thrill that passed through all who read it. The German government did not give its people the full and correct text of the message. The message was translated into German, and the aviators threw it into the German lines and thereby gave the German soldiers an opportunity to read the true text of the speech. This was of importance, as the German officials take particular pains to keep all important war news from the soldiers in the trenches."

In Accord with Officials Here.

On the day of the arrival of the French mission in the United States the Herald obtained information which enabled it to state that Marshal Joffre and the military members of the mission were prepared to give their reasons for favouring the sending of American expeditionary forces to France. At that time, however, the French mission had not seen President Wilson, and Mr. Viviani, head of the mission, felt obliged to state that no member of the mission could comment upon that or any other subject publicly until after they had been received by President Wilson and had met the heads of the government here.

To-day, however, Marshal Joffre was free to speak his mind. He has conferred with American military authorities and it is said a thorough accord and complete harmony has been established. In consequence he gave his message to the American people that "France cherishes the confident hope that the flag of the United States will soon be unfurled on our fighting line."

He said he accepted the very cordial reception given him in the United States as homage paid to the French army, which he represents upon the war mission. He would not hesitate to declare, he said, that the French army was deserving of that.

Germans Dread British.

The Germans, declared Marshal Joffre, are every day making a more open avowal of their dread of the British army, whose growth and development will ever remain the admiration of the world.

"I have been deeply moved," said Marshal Joffre, "by the very cordial welcome given me by the city of Washington, and the expressions of sympathy which reached me from States and cities throughout the United States, since they are a homage paid to the whole French army which I represent here.

The heroism and resolution of the soldiers of France indeed deserve all the affection the United States has shown them. After having in a supreme effort defeated and thrown back a barbarous enemy, the French army has untiringly laboured to increase and perfect its efficiency. And now, in the third year of the war, it is attacking the enemy with greater vigour and material force than ever before.

Side by side with it and animated by no less heroic spirit stands the British army, whose formation and development will ever remain the admiration of the world. The Germans have realized its wonderful growth. Every encounter has made them feel the increasing menace of its strength. The contempt they pretended to feel for it in the early days of the war has gradually become a dread more openly avowed each day.

For Ideals of Mankind.

"Led by its illustrious President, the United States has entered into this war. By the side of France in the defence of the ideals of mankind the place of America is marked."

The interview was given just before Marshal Joffre left Washington for the visit to Mount Vernon, where the members of the French mission laid a bronze palm upon the tomb of Washington. The Marshal appeared dressed in uniform, the stars of a marshal of France in the blue sleeve of his coat, and the decoration of the Legion of Honour on his breast. He wore the red breeches of the old style and thick yellow woollen stockings.

It was requested by the Marshal that he be introduced individually to each person present, and for each one he had some remark of welcome. By his side stood his military aid, Lieutenant de Tessan, and another member of the mission. Colonel Fabry, dressed in the picturesque uniform of the chasseurs. Mr. Hovelaque, Minister of Education of France and member of the mission, welcomed the representatives of the press, and introduced Marshal Joffre.

Must Make People United.

Mr. Hovelaque, a man of magnetic personality, spoke of the transcendental moral and political influence which the war must have upon the world for so many generations. He suggested the import of every word written concerning the forces of the struggle of principle. It is not enough to interest, he said. It is not enough to picture. You must make people think, think, think.

Marshal Joffre then entered the room. At the applause which greeted him he stood at the salute and bowed very slightly. A kindly smile spread over his rather heavy features and the gray eyes beneath the shaggy white brows kindled with a light that gave at once the key to the nickname "Papa" Joffre.

It was only as he spoke of the hope of France soon to see the Stars and Stripes unfurled on the battle line that he strongly emphasized his words. Then he stood tightly doubling his hands into fists, striking them together and often laying his hand over his heart in a quick gesture.

The smile left his face then and his eye searched the faces before him as though to satisfy himself that he had driven his point home.

After making a preliminary statement the Marshal asked for question, and those were fired at him in rapid succession in an effort to gain his opinion upon all phases of the issue of sending American soldiers to France.

Crew of the Aztec Met Disaster With Bravery Several Sailors Missing

Stood By Their Posts to the Last as Mine or Torpedo Sank the American Vessel, Declares Lieutenant William Fuller Gresham

WATER STRIKES HOT BOILERS

WASHINGTON, D.C., May 1.—Men of the American steamship Aztec, which was sunk in French waters April 1, stood by the vessel with all the heroism and fortitude that have marked the annals of American naval history, Lieutenant William Fuller Gresham, commander of the gun crew declared here to-day.

Lieutenant Gresham pictured the equally voyage of the Aztec, starting from New York, March 18; the forebodings of himself and others on the fateful night; the lightning-like flash of a mine or torpedo that wrecked the vessel; the courageous conduct of all aboard and the struggle in lifeboats against bitter weather.

No word has come of J. O. Epolucci, boatswain's mate, nor of the twenty-seven sailors who were on board the sinking ship that night.

Lieutenant Gresham paid particular tribute to the third engineer, Herbert Collins; Epolucci and the boatswain. Lieutenant Gresham himself, with the third mate, were the last to leave, and that was only after all chance of sighting a submarine and shooting at her had vanished.

Commenting on Lieutenant Gresham's story, Josephus Daniels, Secretary of the Navy, declared:—"Every great tradition of the navy has been upheld."

SLEPT LITTLE IN DANGER ZONE

"From the day that we left New York the weather was very rough, gales blowing almost continuously," Lieutenant Gresham said. "We had gun drills twice a day and target practice several times, using as targets barrels which we threw overboard. As we came into the danger zone the tension increased to a point where few of us took any large amount of time for sleep.

"As we neared the French coast on April 1, I had not had my clothes off for days. Every bluejacket in my crew had slept in his clothes and had his peajacket, pistol and lifebelt where he could get at them quickly. That night about half-past nine I was standing on the waist deck, starboard side. There was a heavy sea running, the wind was blowing a moderate gale. The moon was up, but the sky was overcast with dark rain clouds, with frequent squalls. We were running with no lights at all. Every port was covered. The chief engineer came by behind me. As he passed he said:—

"Mr. Gresham, this is a pretty ticklish night, isn't it?" I answered: "I consider that the most dangerous night we have had, and if we get by to-night I feel we will be pretty safe.

SHIP STARTS TO SINK.

"I had barely gotten these words out of my mouth when there was a flash like a sheet of lightning, with a mass of water thrown up in the air. The flash was followed by a report below and a terrific jolt. The ship was lifted upward and to starboard, and then immediately settled down with a starboard list. She began to go down by the head so fast that between the forecastle and the bridge her well deck was awash in a couple of minutes. The explosion had put the electric plant and the wireless out of commission, making it impossible to send out an "S.O.S." The ship was in utter darkness and there was a hailsquall at the time.

"By this time the ship's crew had lowered all three of the boats, and the men were already in them, all except the third mate and myself. The boat on the weather side had been smashed on being lowered, but I did not know this at the time. The third engineer had stuck by his post in the engine room till the very last. His name was Herbert Collins and he had his nerve right with him. He stopped the engines and shut off the oil pump, which at once put the fires out and kept the ship from catching fire. He also saw that every man was safely out of the engine room. Not until then did he come on deck.

"The boatswain of the ship should also be mentioned. Up in the forecastle, which already was filling fast, he saw that the men all were out of their quarters before he left. It should also be said of poor Epolucci that he was busy till the last helping the crew of the ship, who were having trouble with their boat. It cost him his life, for he went with them and their boat must have gone down.

WATER STRIKES HOT BOILERS

"Meanwhile the third mate and I were still on the ship. I could now feel she was sinking fast. I could hear the water coming into the fire room and sizzling on the hot boilers. It splashed up through the fire room hatches. By this time No. 3 boat had shoved off and No. 1 boat was waiting. The third mate kept calling to me to leave the ship. I went to the rail and asked if all of my men were in the boat. I was told they were. The third mate and I then slid down the boat falls. In the boat I found that Epolucci was missing, but they told me he had gone in No. 3 boat. So I gave the word to shove off. This was not easy, for the sea was running high, but at last we managed to get clear.

"We stood away and for a while we could just make out the black shape of the vessel against the sky and could see the men in No. 3 boat, which was not far distant. Then another squall blew up with a heavy rain and everything was blotted out. When the rain stopped the Aztec was no longer in sight nor could we see anything of the other boat.

"We were drenched to the skin and the wind was cold and cut into us, with frequent squalls of hail and rain. The captain was still suffering from the violent nausea caused by the gases he had inhaled at the time of the explosion. The messman was in his underclothes and the third engineer wore only the thin overalls which he had worn in the hot engine room.

"MEN BAIL CONSTANTLY"

"For about three hours we fought out there in the darkness and cold, but we were making no headway at all. We shipped a lot of water and it took constant bailing to keep us afloat. Every man of the lot was as steady as a rock, and in all those hours not one of them so much as let out a whimper or failed to put all he had in him into the execution of every command.

"After hours that seemed long to us I saw a little white light in the distance. It changed to red and then to green. The men were tremendously excited and wanted to let out a yell. But for a while I kept them quiet. We were not in shape for a submarine then.

"But there was a lighthouse nine or ten miles away with a bright flashing light, and when the strange boat came between us and the light I saw it was not a submarine. We fired our pistols and burned one of our red

MANY MICE IN TRENCHES

A young officer, son of General Spingardi, former minister of war, writes that, in his part of the front, the trenches are overrun with mice.

"We have devised," he writes, "a splendid system for catching these little pests. We cut the corner off a sack and prop it open, putting inside cheese. We hide ourselves and watch the mice entering through the hole. At the opportune moment we pull a string which suddenly closes the hole. We rush to see what bag we have made and sometimes we have found as many as 200 tiny prisoners.

A MOROCCAN TRAGEDY

A PICTURESQUE STORY FROM AN ANCIENT LAND.

A Spanish Lady Provides Some Excitement for a Toy Sultan, Who Had Ordered the Special Performance of a Circus Although He Would Not Allow the Proprietress to Attend.

DAWN has not entirely blotted out the Arabian Nights. The East still has its little romances, its comedies, and its tragedies. Take Morocco, for instance, which not so very long ago was an independent kingdom, guileless of being nearly the cause of a European war in 1911.

When Mulai Abdul Aziz first issued from the seclusion of his palace, where, on account of his extreme youth, he had passed the first four or five years of his reign, it was everybody's purpose to keep him amused. The powerful grand vizier, Bu Ahmed, held absolute sway and had no intention of surrendering his position even in favor of the gentle, quiet youth who had inherited the throne. So the only statecraft they allowed their young lord and master to learn was the letting off of fireworks, the pressing of the buttons of kodak cameras, and trick bicycle riding, at all three of which, under apt tutelage, his Majesty soon became an adept.

It was at this moment that a strong and good adviser might have prolonged the life of an independent Morocco, for although possessed of no great attainments or will power, Mulai Abdul Aziz was thoughtful, intelligent, and desirous of doing well. It was no easy matter, however, at Marakesh, the southern capital, where the court at this time was in residence, to keep the young sultan amused. Situated one hundred miles from the nearest port, which itself was three hundred miles down the Atlantic coast, communication with Europe was necessarily very slow, and the sultan's ever-increasing orders of European goods took long to carry out. Often, too, the heavy Atlantic swell rendered impossible communication between the ships and the shore for weeks together.

The Sultan's amusers were at their last resources. Fireworks were played out, bicycle tricks had led to bruises and sprains; and even photography had lost its pristine interest. At this critical moment came word of a belated circus at one of the coast towns. It must naturally have been a very poor circus ever to have found itself at that dreary little port, but its advent was welcomed as enthusiastically as if it had been Barnum's entire show. Imperial letters were directed to the local kaids and governors, agents rushed wildly to and fro, and eventually the circus, bag and baggage, consisting of a dozen people and three or four horses, started out across the weary plains of Morocco to obey the royal command. It all took time, and meanwhile in court circles the absorbing topic of conversation was the circus. One or two serious rebellions among the tribes, and an acute crisis with the government of Spain upon power passed into temporary oblivion.

Now the chief stress of the circus was an enormous stout Spanish lady of uncertain age, upon whose corpulent body the rough jogging on a mule for more than a hundred miles had left almost as painful an impression as the discomfort, heat, and worry of the journey had upon her temper. She herself took no active part in the performance, and it was on this account, to her intense indignation and wrath, that she was refused admittance to the court of the palace in which the Sultan was to witness the show. His Majesty's orders were that none but the actual performers should be allowed to enter.

So the fat lady and one or two of the employees of the circus remained in an outer courtyard adjoining the enclosure in which the Sultan, seated under a gorgeous tent, was witnessing the performance. A wall some twenty feet in height separated these two courts, and in the outer one, where the fat lady found herself, the Sultan had been building some additions to the palace, and a pile of stone, mortar, and other material reached almost to the top of the wall. The lady was both angry and bored, nor were a flock of gazelles and a few fine specimens of mouflon—Barbary wild sheep—that roamed about the enclosure sufficient to keep her amused.

To have received a royal command to come all the way to the Moorish capital, and then to be deprived of the glory of seeing her own circus performing before a real Sultan was more than she could bear, and she straightway began to climb the great heap of building material that lay piled against the wall. It was hard work, nor was her figure suited for such mountain climbing, but she was to receive assistance from a source undreamed of. Affected, no doubt, by her slow progress in a sport of which he himself was so proficient, the old ram mouflon lightly bounded after her. Balancing himself for a moment on his hind legs he lunged forward and butted the fat lady so successfully from below that her ascent was materially assisted. In a series of repeated bounds, owing to no voluntary action on her own part, she found herself pantingly grasping the top of the thick wall.

Meanwhile the performance of the circus was progressing to the Sultan's satisfaction. Suddenly, however, an expression of wrathful consternation became visible in his face, and speechless, he pointed at the wall. There, far above, was the agonized and purple visage of the fat lady, peering down at the Sultan and his court. In a moment the officers of the suite were shouting and gesticulating to her to retire. But the only reply they received was the sudden vision of a considerable portion of her immense body, as the playful mouflon, himself invisible, gave her another hoist up. At last all her body was on the wall, to which she clung for dear life with arms and legs, as she lay extended on its summit. It was at this moment that the mouflon appeared. With a majestic bound he leaped on the summit, stood for a moment poised on his hind legs, then suddenly dropped and with a terrific prod from his wide horns butted the fat lady at least a yard along the wall. He was evidently intent upon taking her round the entire circuit of the courtyard.

For a few moments there was turmoil. The Sultan sat silent and amazed, while the cabinet ministers all shouted to the lady to disappear—which she was certainly most anxious to do. The slaves, more wise, pelted the mouflon with stones and drove him from his point of vantage. Then slowly the lady disappeared—the fat legs first, then the heaving mass of body, and finally even the purple face was seen no more.—Boston Transcript.

A DIZZY JOURNEY.

Australia Has Most Zig-Zag Railway in the World.

"In looking back over the history of the original settlement at Sydney, Australia, at first it seems strange that the base of the Blue Mountains, a plateau 3,000 feet in height and a day's ride from the coast, should mark the edge of known land for twenty-five years after civilization.

There are, however, good reasons for this seeming lack of enterprise, says the National Geographic Magazine. The Blue Mountains, though not lofty, are broad and constitute a formidable barrier. There are no long valleys leading in practicable passes and furnishing access from the east and west; the stream heads are boxes inclosed by walls, and it was only when the narrow divides were chosen for causeways that the passage of the mountain was successfully accomplished.

The famous "zigzags" of the first railroad, now replaced by a dozen expensive tunnels required for the steep descent of 2,000 feet give even the casual tourist an impression of the ruggedness of the plateau, and when one is led out on one of a hundred flat-topped promontories and gazes down into canyons whose walls may be scaled only by an experienced mountaineer, and looks out over a tangle of canyons and cliffs and tables at lower levels, he realizes that "magnificent scenery" for the present generation must have been "disheartening obstacles" to the scout in search of tillable land.

The Vossische Zeitung recently announced that it had learned from a parliamentary source that the Prussian Government has already worked out a scheme for the reform of the franchise which it will submit to the Diet immediately upon the conclusion of peace. The authorities are maintaining silence as to the details of the scheme, the Berlin organ added, but it may be already assumed, it observed, that the system employed with regard to elections to the Reichstag will not be adopted in Prussia, but that a secret, direct ballot may be looked for, probably in conjunction with a plurality vote.

This announcement, commented the Vorwarts on the foregoing, also accords with our information. It means a challenge to both sides, to that of the defenders of the three-class suffrage, as well to that of the advocates of equal suffrage for Prussia. The decision will be made by the men who return from the front, who will have to say whether those who have fought for Empire and State are to have political rights inferior to those of other citizens. The situation will then look considerably different from what it now appears to be to the authors of the new franchise scheme.

Critical Ignorance.

"I attribute these criticisms to ignorance," he said. "These critics are like the chap who was asked by his little son what hexameters were.

"'Why,' the man said reproachfully, 'surely you're old enough, Willie, to know that a hexameter is a public automobile.'"

Slave Drivers.

Cardinal Mercier has stated to the world his opinion of an act which an African slave runner would find it hard to justify.

"Why do you repine?" says the Arab slave trader to the weeping slave. "Aren't you better off here in Tunis, with cunning chains on your ankles, the slave to a severe but moral master, than you would be back in the forest where you could get enough to eat without working? Think of the effect upon your soul of association with us! Happy but ungrateful wretch, stop blubbering." And he lays the whip on the naked shoulders. — From an editorial in Collier's.

Wasps After the U-Boats.

If, as reported, the British have four thousand motor boats in service, it is reasonable to believe that a good many German submarines have been sunk by this branch of the service. The policy at London forbids the giving out of any detailed figures as to the destruction or capture of the Kaiser's undersea boats, but it may be set down as certain that the agile small craft that are being so extensively used in safeguarding the British coast have been successful in other than a merely defensive way. They have the obvious advantage of speed and ability to dodge, and their small size affords a difficult target for an attacking submarine.

Volume and Prices in Trade.

The London Economist has calculated the United Kingdom's import and export trade for 1916, in terms of the prices prevailing in foreign trade in 1913. While total imports in 1915 were $4,459,000,000 and in 1916 $4,746,000,000, yet the imports of 1916, if valued in 1915 prices, were only $3,715,000,000—indicating an actual falling off in volume from the preceding year. Exports and re-exports increased in value from $2,420,000,000 in 1915 to $3,030,000,000 in 1916, but last year's exports in 1915 prices were only $2,507,000,000.

READING HISTORY.

The One Way to Acquire a Real Knowledge of the World.

Henry James once told me that the only reading of which he never tired was history. "The least significant footnote of history," he said, "stirs me more than the most thrilling and passionate fiction. Nothing that has ever happened to the world finds me indifferent."

I used to think that ignorance of history meant only a lack of cultivation and a loss of pleasure. Now I am sure that such ignorance impairs our judgment by impairing our understanding, by depriving us of standards, of the power to contrast and the right to estimate. We can know nothing of any nation unless we know its history, and we can know nothing of the history of any nation unless we know something of the history of all nations.

The book of the world is full of knowledge we need to acquire, of lessons we need to learn, of wisdom we need to assimilate. Consider only this brief sentence of Polybius, quoted by Plutarch, "In Carthage no one is blamed however he may have gained his wealth." A pleasant place, no doubt, for business enterprise, a place where young men were taught how to get on and extravagance kept pace with shrewd finance; a self satisfied, self confident, money getting, money loving people, honoring success and hugging its fancied security, while in faroff Rome Cato pronounced its doom.—Agnes Repplier in Atlantic Monthly.

THE SCARLET TANAGER.

He Wears His Gaudy Fireman's Suit Only in the Summer.

The country folk call the scarlet tanager the firebird. His feathers set the woods on fire. Reversing the figure, the firebird puts out the torch of the sumac and pales the plumage of the oriole that has come to fly "in tropic splendor through our northern sky."

This tanager of ours is not much of a songster. He does not have to be. All he has to do is "stand on" in the show in order to share applause with the gold tongued wood thrush and the mellow noted meadow lark. Seemingly the tanager thinks that his call is to be preferred to his song, for he calls forty times where he sings once. The tip of a tree gives him the best stage setting for his beauty, and there he perches, looks the sun in the eye and chipchurs by the hour. His mate is a modestly garbed female, who is willing to attend to home duties while Beau Brummel gallivants abroad.

It is only for a season that the tanager wears his fireman suit. Nature's rule that he must change his clothes when September is spent may seem foolish to him, but he obeys to the feather. In dun and drab he goes south, where he tells an unbelieving and brilliantly plumaged company of tropic birds of the wonder of his summer dress.

The Day of the Carver.

Carving was once a serious thing. The sixteenth century carver was a professional. He had to make the joint fit the guest. The size of his slices was the thing. Then he had to know his guests, and cut accordingly. A lord, for instance, at the table, and a pike was dished up whole. Smaller fry, and the pike came on in slices. The same procedure with pig. The rank of the diners decided whether it should appear at table in gold leaf or naked, whole or sliced. With bread, too, there was a difference. New or three days old baked was at the discretion of the carver as he sized up the visitors. And as for the apportioning of the titbits according to precedence there was no end. The old time carver, in fact, was born and then made.—London Standard.

Two boys stood in front of the entrance gate of a football field. They had no money, but they were determined to outwit the gatekeeper somehow and get in and see the game. They suggested scheme after scheme to one another, and finally the older boy said:

WONDERFUL STUFF!
GEE! YOU'LL LIKE IT

Apply a few drops then lift corns or calluses off with fingers—no pain.

No humbug! Any corn, whether hard, soft or between the toes, will loosen right up and lift out, without a particle of pain or soreness.

Ask at any drug store for a quarter ounce of freezone which will cost but a trifle, but is sufficient to rid one's feet of every corn or callus.

Put a few drops directly upon any tender, aching corn or callus. Instantly the soreness disappears and shortly the corn or callus will loosen and can be lifted off with the fingers.

This drug freezone doesn't eat out the corns or calluses but shrivels them without even irritating the surrounding skin.

Just think! No pain at all; no soreness or smarting when applying it or afterwards. Try a little and see for yourself.

LEAGUE FOR WORLD PEACE.

Suggested by Jap to Include United States and Five Other Nations.

TOKIO, April 28.—That a league including Great Britain, the United States, France, Russia, Italy and Japan should be formed to guarantee the peace of the world is the opinion of Baron Yoshiro Sakatani, who recently returned from the United States after an official mission to Europe. The statesman develops his ideas in the official organ of the Japan Peace society and the American Peace society of Japan.

The powers named, he declares, should combine their armies and navies and declare to the world that all conflicts arising between nations which cannot be settled by diplomatic means, should be submitted for judicial settlement to the international court at The Hague or to some other tribunal. Any nation disobeying this declaration should be considered as unjust and be punished by the combined powers.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A SHABBY NOBLEMAN

By ALAN HINSDALE

A gentleman dressed very plainly—indeed, shabbily—stepped into a jeweler's store in New York and asked with a British accent to see some pearl necklaces.

The clerk went to a safe, took out several trays and placed them on the counter.

"These necklaces are very expensive," he said. "Of course so large a number of real pearls cost money. But this one," handing out a single string of very small jewels, "is cheaper. The price is $2,500."

The man did not seem shocked at the enormous price named by the clerk, but after a close inspection of the articles, holding them within a few inches of his eyes, on which he wore glasses (evidently to correct nearsight), he handed them back to the clerk, saying: "I can do better in London. Let me see some earrings."

The clerk put away the trays and brought forth others containing earrings. The customer, as in the case before, examined the more expensive articles and asked the price of a pair, each having a single pendant of a diamond as large as a good sized pea. The price was $4,500.

"You are nearer a reasonable price on these," said the customer. "They are very pretty."

The clerk had shown the man jewels far beyond the price he supposed from his appearance he could pay. Indeed, he fancied the party simply desired to feast his eyes upon them. The diamond earrings were apparently nearer his caliber. Perhaps a sale could be effected. After holding them near and far and catching the light on the diamonds he asked the clerk if he could send them to his hotel. He would like his wife to see them. The clerk agreed. The gentleman gave his name, George Throckmerton, and his hotel, at the same time taking out a cambric handkerchief and wiping his glasses. With the handkerchief came a letter which dropped on the floor.

The clerk's back was turned at the time, for he was putting away the jewel trays, and when he again faced the counter a fashionably dressed man was there holding out the letter the other had dropped.

The clerk took the letter and naturally looked at the address. It was the Earl of Boyingstone, —— hotel, New York, U. S. A., and bore a London postmark.

"That's singular," said the clerk to the man who picked up the letter.

"What's singular?"

"Why, that the fellow should be a nobleman! His clothes are worn shiny."

"Don't you know," replied the other, examining the address, "that those English lords wear seedy clothes? It's an affectation. But you should see their lackeys, all velvet and gold, with powdered wigs and silk stockings. Sometimes their shoe buckles are set with real jewels."

"You don't mean it!" said the clerk.

"I've heard it said that the members of the house of lords are the worst dressed men to be found in any legislative assembly. I happen to know that the Earl of Boyingstone is one of the richest men in England."

The clerk put the letter in his pocket, and when he sent the earrings and the letter to the earl's hotel sent also a message that there was 15 per cent discount on the necklaces, which he had not mentioned. The Countess of Baylngstone admired the earrings, and the earl asked the man who brought them if a draft on London for the price would be accepted in payment. The bearer telephoned the firm, and since the clerk had reported that George Throckmorton was also Earl of Boyingstope the partners consulted as to whether they should do so unusual a thing as be requested. The clerk was called in and told that the customer had refrained from buying the pearl necklaces not because they were expensive, but because he said he could do better in London. "If there was anything wrong with him," added the clerk, "it would seem that he would have chosen the jewels involving the greater amount."

The junior member of the firm said that if he could have a look at the purchaser he could rate him correctly; he would know a gentleman by instinct. It was agreed among the partners that this man should go to the hotel and give the answer.

The junior member of the jewelry firm, in order to excuse the visit, said that he had come to say that if Mr. Throckmorton fancied any of their necklaces it could be had for less money than the clerk had named. But the earl said that his wife would not need jewels in America, and he would not purchase anything more than the earrings at present. This statement removed all doubt as to the genuineness of the transaction, the earl's draft on his London bankers was accepted, and the earrings passed into his possession.

Then it appeared to the jewelry firm that they had been neatly tricked. The earl was a confidence man, and the person who had picked up the letter was his confederate. It is a well known fact that many lords affect shabby clothes. The swindlers took advantage of the fact to inspire confidence and by it made a successful haul.

He Was Just Thinking.

"Mary," said a man to his spouse, who was gifted with a rapidly moving tongue, "did you ever hear the story of the precious gems?"

"No," she replied. "What is it?"

"It's a fairy legend that my grandmother told me when I was a boy," the husband continued. "It was about a woman from whose lips fell a diamond or a ruby at every word she spoke."

"Well?" said his wife as he paused.

"That's all there is of it, my dear," he replied. "But I was just thinking if such things happened nowadays I could make my fortune as a jeweler."

A Curiosity of Sound.

If when riding in a balloon at a height, say, of 2,000 feet a charge of guncotton be fired electrically 100 feet below the car, the report, though really as loud as a cannon, sounds no more than a pistol shot, possibly partly owing to the greater rarity of the air, but chiefly because the sound, having no background to reflect it, simply spends itself in the air. Then, always and under all conditions of atmosphere, there ensues absolute silence until the time for the echo back from earth has fully elapsed, when a deafening outburst of thunder rises from below, rolling on often for more than half a minute.

She Meant Well.

The late Sir Wilfrid Lawson, the rigid apostle of temperance, while on a week end visit made the acquaintance of a sharp young lady of seven, to whom on leaving he said: "Now, my dear, we have been talking some time. I am sure you have no idea who I am."

"Oh, yes, I have," the little miss replied. "You are the celebrated drunkard."—London Graphic.

Skibbereen.

An Englishman was once traveling in the south of Ireland when he came to a village called Skibbereen. The name struck him as very peculiar and odd, and he asked a villager why the town was so called. "Sure," the villager replied, "I thought even an Englishman could have seen the reason for that. It's called Skibbereen to distinguish it from other places of the same name."—Christian Register.

Mars and Its Moons.

One of its moons circles Mars every seven hours. In consequence of this rapid revolution it appears to the inhabitants of Mars (if there be any) to rise in the west and set in the east.

Line and Staff Officers.

Broadly speaking, the distinction between a line officer and a staff officer is that between the fighter and the nonfighter. The staff officer has non military duties. He may, for example be a member of the medical corps, an instructor at a military institute or have charge of some administrative department of the army or navy. The word is also used for those men attached to the staff of the commander in chief. A line officer is literally that: he is the man in the field or on a battleship to do the actual fighting.—New York Sun.

Where Eating Is a Trade.

"Maccheroni" eating is a trade with the street beggar of Italy and apparently a satisfying one to men and boys gifted with copper interiors immune to heat. One of the most familiar cries of the beggar is, "Signore, dame cinque soldi, mangia maccheroni!" ("Mister, gimme a nickel for macaroni!") And usually the plea ends with a lugubrious whine, "Oh, muori di fame!" ("Oh, I am dying of hunger!") — National Geographic Magazine.

Cold Calculation.

"Quality is more to be desired than quantity," said the man of artistic inclinations.

"Not always," replied the practical person. "A diamond is pure carbon, but you can't get the action from it that you can from a ton of coal."—Washington Star.

Made a Home Run.

Willis—I played golf yesterday for the first time. Gillis—How did you make out? Willis—Fine. Made a home run right at the start. I hit the first ball into the tall grass in left field and ran around the whole eighteen holes before they found it.—Puck.

Had Severe Cold
PAIN IN CHEST SPASMODIC COUGHING

Many people when they contract a cold do not pay any attention to it, thinking perhaps it will pass away in a day or two. This is a mistake for before they know it, it has settled on the lungs.

Too much stress cannot be laid on the fact that on the first sign of a cough or cold it must be gotten rid of immediately, otherwise it may cause years of suffering from some serious lung trouble.

Mr. A. George, 30 Blevin's Place, Toronto, Ont., writes: "Having greatly benefitted from your remedy, Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, I take the liberty to write you a few words about the effect of that wonderful syrup. Two years ago I caught a severe cold followed by a spasmodic cough and pain in my chest. I was treated by many doctors but without any benefit, and also took many proprietory medicines which all failed to cure. One of my friends recommended Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and after using three bottles I was completely cured. I recommend it to anyone as a God-sent remedy."

THE OLD GARDENER.

Swiss chard is one of the best vegetables for small gardens, because one planting will last all season. Only the outside leaves should be removed, for then new leaves will be constantly developed from the heart of the plant. The leaves may be cooked like spinach, or the midribs may be cut out and served in the same way as asparagus, for which it is an excellent substitute. It is wise for the poultryman to grow a row of Swiss chard exclusively for his hens.

CABBAGE AND OTHER THINGS

(By S. C. JOHNSTON, Vegetable Specialist, Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

Besides growing many vegetables for immediate use the backyard garden should produce some vegetables which can be stored for consumption during winter months. Some, of course, do not need to be planted as early as the plants which were described last week. Possibly a week should elapse from the time the lettuce is planted before these should be sown.

BEETS, CARROTS, PARSNIPS, AND SALSIFY. These include the most important members of the root vegetables. They are usually grown for winter purposes, though beets and carrots are relished by many in their earlier stages of growth. All these demand practically the same attention. The seeds should be sown in straight rows at a depth of about three-quarters of an inch. When the plants have reached a height of two inches they should be carefully thinned out so that they stand, beets and parsnips three to four inches apart, carrots and salsify two or three inches apart. It will be found that the parsnips are very slow growers, and for this reason it is sometimes advisable to plant a few seeds of lettuce with the parsnip seeds so that they will serve as a marker. The young beet plants may be used as spring greens. It is necessary that the soil be cultivated at intervals during the summer months so that the crops may grow. They do not as a general rule require as heavy watering as some of the othe. vegetable crops. In the fall the beets should be pulled up and the tops twisted off close to the head, not cut off with a knife as in the case of carrots, parsnips, or salsify, which should have the tops cut about one-half inch from the roots preparatory to storing for winter use.

CORN. In planting corn holes about two or three inches deep should be made with a hoe. Five or six kernels of corn should be dropped in this and covered with soil, which should be gently firmed by tramping on it. When the shoots are about three inches high all excepting the three sturdiest should be pulled out. The soil should be drawn up around the stalks as they grow, to give them support. When the kernels on the cob appear full of milk they are ready to use. It is also a good practice to cultivate the soil often around the corn, for expert growers claim that the crops corn and cabbage faster and better when plenty of cultivation is given.

CABBAGE. Cabbage is one of the most widely grown vegetables. The cabbage plant requires a supply of moisture, and yet if the cabbage soil is too wet the plant will be injured. Cabbage does particularly well on new land, and some growers claim that the cabbage grows without an abundant supply of manure in the soil better than many other vegetables. It is considered a good practice for backyard gardeners to purchase plants which have been grown in hot-beds or hot-houses and transplant them directly into the permanent bed. This saves considerable trouble. It is necessary when setting cabbage plants to set them fairly deep so that they will not be whipped about by the wind. They may be set eighteen inches apart, and there should be quite a good deal of soil around the roots. When they are ready to be set out a hole may be made with a dibber or a sharpened stick. The roots may be watered after they have been set. One of the most important features of growing cabbage consists in the attention given to cultivation of the soil. There may be some occasions when the head will split, this may be stopped or prevented if the head is taken in the hands and turned forcibly from one side to another.

CAULIFLOWER. The cauliflower is treated in much the same way as cabbage, the plants being grown and set out in the same manner outside. They are treated practically the same as cabbage until it is noticed that a little white flower has commenced to grow. The dry leaves of the plant should be brought together at the top and tied with a piece of string so that these little white flowers are protected from the rays of the sun and the rain. All cauliflower heads should be treated in this manner when they are about two inches in diameter.

BRUSSELS SPROUTS. Brussels sprouts are perhaps the most hardy of the cabbage family. If it is impossible to secure brussels sprouts plants a few seeds may be planted about May 15 at a depth of about one inch. These should be transplanted to the permanent bed about the 15th of June. They should be set eighteen inches in the row and two feet between the rows. It is well to keep the patch clean, and the surface soil should be stirred frequently. It is unnecessary to trim off the leaves as the plants grown in the garden.

SWISS CHARD. Swiss chard can be grown easily from seed, in rows twelve inches apart, the young plants being thinned to six or eight inches apart. The advantage of this plant is that the leaves may be pulled off close to the root and new leaves shoot up, which may be consumed during the season. The roots are used for greens and the stem of the leaf as asparagus. A few plants should be sufficient for a small family.

FIERY DRAGONS.

They Spew Out Fury From Tongues Barbed With Flame.

Dragons were important animals in ancient and medieval natural history. Until comparatively recent time no scientist ever thought of questioning the existence of this most formidable of beasts. The annals of Winchester for 1177 gravely state that "in this year dragons were seen of many in England." Gesner, professor of natural history at Zurich, gave a detailed description of the dragon, while Aldrovandus in his "History of Serpents and Dragons," published in 1640, devoted fifty pages to the monster.

A good specimen of a dragon would seem to have been a beast about the size of a sheep, inclosed in a coat of scales which shone like silver. Its back was serrated like a saw. It possessed a long tail, a pair of batlike wings, four heavily clawed feet and a wolfish head, the jaws of which were armed with very formidable teeth. The tongue was barbed with fire, and fury issued from the monster's mouth, and the head bore a crest. Dragons were the most wicked and vindictive of creatures. They seem always to have been in a towering rage and spent the greater portion of their time in rushing up and down the earth destroying everything that came in their path.

The origin of dragons was a disputed point among medieval naturalists. Some maintained that these animals were generated by the heat of India. Others were of opinion that the volcanoes of Ethiopia used to belch forth the monsters. One scientist, John Leo by name, declared the dragon to be a hybrid, a cross between an eagle and a wolf.

Curious Forms of Tea.

There are some score or more different forms of compressed teas available, from button sized tablets in vest pocket containers to bars of delectable fragrance and from granite-like slabs of two or five kilograms (still in use as money in the interior of China) to the more lightly compressed disks and oblongs in split rattan baskets. The method of preparation of these last is curious. The leaves, in a state of wilt, are compacted by the bare feet of Chinese girls. These teas are esteemed by the orientals for their earthy flavors.—L. Lodian in Scientific American.

Veteran Soldier Honored

THIRTY-FIVE years work with the Canadian Pacific Railway Company and sixty-two years service in the military forces of the British Empire have brought recognition and honour to Fred. L. Lydon, for the well-known veteran has been advanced by the big transportation system, and he has been made a Lieutenant-Colonel by the military authorities.

Born at Bermuda, West Indies, in 1838, the son of a father who came of a Galway, Ireland, family, Lieutenan. Colonel Lydon has had an interesting career. It is no wonder that his special outlet for activities lies in the military field; his father was a soldier, and on the paternal side also his grandfather fought as a private under the Duke of Wellington when Napoleon was defeated at Waterloo in 1815; on the maternal side his grandfather was soldier military secretary to the "Iron Duke," and also took his part in the overthrow of Napoleon. Both grandfathers fought through the Peninsula War.

"We Irish are shy to talk about our experiences," said Lieutenant-Colonel Lydon in an interview, "but I may say that it was in my blood to be a soldier. In 1854, when I was only fifteen years of age, I began service in England with the Dorset Militia. At the time of the Indian Mutiny I volunteered for service in the King's Royal Rifles, remaining in this regiment from 1857 until 1866. I had not an opportunity of doing duty at the Indian Mutiny. When the King's Own Rifles were coming to Canada in 1861 I came with them, arriving on the 12th July. Afterwards I spent two years in Quebec, two in Montreal, and a little while in London, Ontario."

Having spoken of the wonderful development of the Dominion during the last half century Lieutenant-Colonel Lydon went on to say that in 1866, when the Fenians raided Canada he was amongst those who went to meet them. "I remember the time well," he said, "for the hardest march of my life was that which brought us into touch with the invaders. We marched thirty-four miles in a day. At Ridgeway and Fort Erie we captured quite a number of the Fenians, who were badly organized and did not offer a vigorous resist."

In December, 1866, he left the regular army and became adjutant-instructor of the 28th Perth Battalion, serving two years with this unit. In those days the employees of military age on the railway to which he was attached, were volunteers under military control. He was an energetic organizer amongst them. Later he came to Montreal and re-organized the "5th Royals," and was their adjutant-instructor for many years. The "5th Royals" was the parent of the present 5th Royal Highlanders. In 1889 Lieutenant-Colonel Lydon broke new territory and organized two companies of Scotch Highland Cadets. This undertaking was most successful for the companies gradually increased until there are now eight of them formed into one unit known as the Highland Cadet battalion. "These are my children," proceeded the veteran. "We gave eighty to the South African War, and to the present conflict we gave between four hundred and five hundred. I am still commander of the cadets."

"I did not seek any promotion," said Lieutenant-Colonel Lydon. "I was content to work as I had been working, but I had a letter from Major-General E. W. Wilson, dated March 26 of this year, telling me that I have been made a Lieutenant-Colonel on the retired list." He then produced a letter from Major-General W. E. Hodgins, of the Adjutant-General's Office, Ottawa, which stated that the promotion was: "A recognition of your long, faithful and valuable services to the militia, and which are much appreciated by us older men, who know what you have done."

Besides having such a distinguished military career Lieutenant-Colonel Lydon has a good railway record. He has been in the General Ticket Department of the Canadian Pacific Railway for thirty-five years, and he has watched the company develop and spread its branches all over the world. The veteran railroad man under review was at the opening of the first general office at Place d'Armes, and during his connection with the C. P. R. has become widely known and deservedly popular with the public.

It was a surprise to Lieutenant-Colonel Lydon when, on the morning of March 31st, he was summoned to the office of Lord Shaughnessy, President of the Canadian Pacific Railway, and was appointed to assist on the re-organizing staff of the First Aid Branch of the company, with office in the department of Mr. George Bury, Vice-President. This means considerable advancement. It is a happy coincidence that two splendid recognitions came at the same time to crown a long life's worthy labour.

to try Zam-Buk for that skin disease of yours. If you have tried numerous other ointments without success—that is a case for Zam-Buk! This wonderful herbal balm has cured many cases of skin diseases after other treatments had failed.

Mrs. Minnie Carmichael, of 72 5th Ave., Montreal, writes: "For a long time I suffered with wet eczema. I tried ointment after ointment without any benefit. Finally I went to a hospital for treatment, but even this had no effect. The disease continued as bad as ever.

"Then a friend recommended Zam-Buk, and I commenced using it. It was really marvellous how soon the healing powers of this balm became apparent. The inflammation and soreness were soon drawn out, the irritation was ended, and before long the sores showed signs of healing. Needless to say, I persevered, and I am thankful to be able to tell you that I am now completely cured. I should like you to publish my letter for the benefit of other sufferers, as everyone should know of Zam-Buk."

Zam-Buk is equally good for old wounds, ringworm, ulcers, blood-poisoning, salt rheum, boils, scalp sores, piles, burns, scalds, cuts and all skin injuries. All druggists and stores, or Zam-Buk Co., Toronto. 50c. box, 3 for $1.25.

TO OPEN CHINWANGTAO.

Port to Be Used for Commercial Purposes—Coaling Station.

CHINWANGTAO, China, April 28.—Plans are under consideration by the government for the formal opening of this port for commercial purposes to replace the port of Lienshanwan, which has been acquired by the ministry of the navy as a naval base. During the winter months Chinwangtao is constantly used by steamers which are unable to approach Tientsin because of the ice in the river. This port is never closed by ice, but cannot afford a safe harbour for shipping until a large breakwater is constructed.

Chinwangtao is one hundred miles north of Tien-tsin, and is used quite generally as a coaling station by ships of all nations. For many years the American transports between San Francisco and Manila have made this a port of call, coaling here.

CANADIAN LUMBERMEN DOING THEIR BIT IN THE FORESTS OF ENGLAND

Scenes Reminiscent of Northern Ontario Now to Be Encountered in the Historic Glades of the Old Land—Famous "Foghorn" MacDonald is Among the Officers There.

LONDON, April 30.—A country clubhouse forsooth! The fireplace and mantel of white brick and the comfortable furniture suggest it, as do the little windows through whose yellow silk curtains the spring sunlight flitters in. Outside stretches a vast expanse of withered grass dotted with trees. Well might it be a golf headquarters near Toronto. Then the visitor glances at the roof and rafters of unpainted lumber, odorous of resin, fresh from the woods. How "lumbercampy" that smell! And just that is this habitation—nothing more nor less than a boss logger's shanty, set down, of all places in the midst of royal Windsor Park.

Those mighty oaks among which the road winds stood there when Bluff King Hal hunted the deer in the long ago. Indeed several of those ancient beeches, twisted and distorted by age into weird witches of trees were lusty saplings when England's chivalry was faring forth on the Crusades.

COULD A TALE UNFOLD

What scenes those trees have witnessed, of archers and cross-bowmen and of merry huntsmen riding through the glades! And now—a khakied host has appeared to fell the timber, an army of axemen, sawyers, saw-filers, and timber-cruisers, no river-drivers being needed for the lordly Thames, which shows darkly through its wooded banks beneath the white minaret which commemorates tragic Culloden.

"Ah, Culloden!" exclaimed a stalwart man from Glengarry, a veteran of the Ottawa Valley, through whose veins courses Highland blood. "Yes there's the monument erected by Cumberland glorying in his defeat of the clans. And here we are, the descendants of those Highlanders, getting even with the mean old scoundrel by chooping down the trees he and his folks planted."

But fear not that these historic woods are being destroyed. Not against the boles of mighty oak and massive beach are the axes of the Canadians swinging. Hardly a forest monarch has been touched. Windsor Park is a huge place. Far away from the hardwood stands the green bush. Prior to visiting the scenes of these operations, your correspondent met the "head-push" of the Canadian Forestry Battalions here—to wit, genial Colonel Charlie Macdougall, of the firm of Latchford, Macdouzall, and Daly, late of Ottawa, lawyer, lumberman—and soldier.

Far from the slab-pile and the hum of the buzz saw, up in noisy Victoria street of this old town, Col. Macdougall has his office. Many charts adorn the walls—charts drawn to fine scale, showing all the camps in Great Britain, right from Devonshire to the bleak north of Scotland, wherever there is a patch of timber. These charts chronicle the contents of each bush, the capacity of every camp, and the output to a "T"—kept right up to date in regard to planks for the trenches, railway ties for the lines the British engineers are rushing up in pursuit of the Germans, mine props, etc.

IN THE CAMP.

But back again to the country-club-lumber-shanty, where Lieut.-Col. S. L. Penharwood of the "Soo" presides as first in command, with Lieut.-Col. de Salaberry, grandson of the hero of Chateauguay, Major Swinburn, second in command; Capt Augar, of Calgary, quartermaster; and Major McNeil, Ottawa, to assist in looking after the peavies and axes, and incidentally several thousand men. Here, close to headquarters, whose walls are clothed rustic-fashion, with the bark left on, are many comfortable huts for the men. Baths and kitchens with concrete floors are near completion. Princess Victoria has just written saying she would like to open the new Y. M. C. A. adjunct to the canteen where English ladies work.

The boys like Windsor Park. I didn't see a discontented looking man among hundreds. And be it said in repudiation of some of the unjust aspersions cast upon Canadians that a certain royalty who has long lived near them, and should know, declared that he considered them as well-behaved a lot of chaps as ever wore khaki. A fine band, among whose musicians is an Indian—there are a number of Indians in the Foresters—fills the air with "The Maple Leaf" and other stirring melodies.

REMINISCENT OF ONTARIO.

Passing a statue of the late Prince Consort placed in an out-of-the-way spot in the park, passing three Canadian boys practising bugle calls in a neck-o'-the-woods where only the deer and pheasants would be annoyed, passing the deep black depths of Virginia Water, that famous artificial trout pond made by George IV., and out of which Canadian Isaac Waltons would mightily enjoy to pull some fish, the visitor is suddenly confronted with a scene which might well have dropped out of Northern Ontario. A real live saw-mill stands there in a waste of slabs and sawdust, while Canadian lads in cowboy hats, overalls and sweaters drive Canadian waggons about. The screech of the saws, the thump of the lumber sliding down from the mill, the black cloud from the iron chimney, and the blue-white smoke of burning brush-piles hard by—how like home!

And those peavies! Say, the Englishmen can't get over them. Cant-hooks and cantdogs are a continual source of wonder to the islanders. "Why!" exclaimed one sightseer to a friend, "I saw one of those Canadians poke a little stick under a log and roll it along for about twelve feet. They're a wonder, them chaps."

Stacks of birch logs lie piled alongside the road near here. Presently they will be charcoal in the filters of our soldiers' smoke helmets. And quite close to this first camp they were felling sixty-year-old Scotch pines. These trees run to about 24 inches at the base, and there isn't a rotten spot in them—clear right to the roots, and very little gum. Attired in a tail-coat of black velveteen one of the Royal Park keepers was measuring up logs, assisted by a Canadian soldier.

Lord Derby, Secretary for War, owns an estate here which is to be cut over. The late Lord Roberts also held property close to the King's. In fact, though there is much cutting on the King's estate, this particular patch of pine we saw was not on the Royal demesne. But king, peer, or commoner, a careful tally of the stumpage is kept for future payment.

"Foghorn" Macdonald lives near here, bosses a big gang just outside the lodge gates of the Duke of Connaught on the latter's estate of Bagshot. Everyone in the Canadian army knows this Major Macdonald, of the trumpet voice. He did his bit as a private with the Pats, got his commission, and was sent here because "Foghorn" knows the lumber game from the roots up. His is the camp of instruction for the whole British Isles. Officers come over from headquarters, stay a couple of weeks, and pick up much useful information from their energetic preceptor. The Duke frequently drops in to see the lumbermen, not forgetful of the fact that Canada's historic lumber town was his home for five years.

Firewood is a precious thing in England. In times of peace the felling of a tree in My Lord's park is a weighty matter. The right to gather faggots in such woods is, too, a great privilege. But now, thanks to the war, all the old housewives may have their fill for the asking.

Lumbermen of all ages are represented in the camps here. Grizzled veterans who have been "packing their turkeys" into the bush every fall for forty years, stand shoulder to shoulder with uky youths who have just done their first river drive. They are a sturdy, soldierly-looking crowd as they stand there being inspected. So far we have nearly 7,000 men in the forestry battalions here and in France. But more are needed, and more will respond when they hear from their chums what a good job it is.

In Which Dr. Chase's Nerve Food Has Made Complete Cure of Nervousness and Sleeplessness

PETERBORO', Ont., March 10.—There is much talk these days about Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and what it is doing for people who are nervous, sleepless and run down in health. Almost every issue of the Examiner contains reports of cures effected by this great restorative treatment.

If you are in need of something to enrich the blood and invigorate tired, exhausted nerves, you will be interested in these letters, because they tell exactly what was accomplished by this food cure in two cases, which you investigate, because these people live right here, and may even be your neighbors.

Mrs. Elizabeth Collins, 555 Romaine St., Peterborough, Ont., writes:

"About ten years ago I suffered from nervousness, I could not sleep well, had frequent headaches and pains in my back—in fact my system was in a generally run down condition. I tried different preparations and also doctors' medicines and finally resorted to Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. This gave splendid results. I have found them the best restorative for a run down condition; they built up my nervous system, and made me eat and sleep well. I would recommend the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to all suffering from nervousness or run down system."

Mrs. W. Middleton, 635 Water St. Peterborough, Ont., writes:

"About a year ago I was troubled with nervousness, sleeplessness, and loss of appetite. At night when I would lie down my heart would throb heavily. Through reading of the good it had done others, I decided to try Dr. Chase's Nerve Food; so I purchased some and commenced using them. I soon found my heart action improved; I could sleep well and my appetite returned. I have recommended Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to many who have obtained good results from its use."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food cures sleeplessness, nervousness and other symptoms of nervous exhaustion by building up the system. For this reason the benefits are lasting. 50 cents a box, a full treatment of 6 boxes for $2.50, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Ltd., Toronto. Do not be talked into accepting a substitute. Imitations disappoint.

LADY'S SHIRT WAIST.

By Anabel Worthington.

Of all garments in her wardrobe, the practical housekeeper or business woman considers the shirt waist or separate blouse the most useful possession. The newest models are cut quite full, but there is no bulkiness; indeed, the lines are very graceful and becoming in their decided simplicity. So easy is it to make a shirt waist that an amateur dressmaker need not hesitate to attempt its construction.

In the illustration you see an advance model for spring, and one that will please any woman. The frill of lace along the handsome deep collar and down the front of the blouse helped it to win its reputation for being a genuine beauty. The back is plain, with a stay belt at normal line to hold the gathers and shape the garment. The sleeve, when made full length, has a prominent cuff, with a frill to match the collar. If short sleeve is desired it is cut in bell shape.

Foulard silk, plain, striped or figured taffeta satin, linen or a cotton weave may be chosen for the development. With the paper pattern illustrated, any one can make this dainty blouse in one hour.

FAMINE AND FEVER THREATEN TURKEY; PEOPLE ASK PEACE

LONDON, April 28.—Famine, cholera and typhus are working havoc in Turkey, according to reports to official quarters here and in Paris. With the approach of hot weather it is feared that, owing to the complete breakdown in Turkey of everything approaching a measure of sanitation, pestilence menaces all Eastern Europe.

The Turkish army, it is reliably reported, is greatly weakened by typhus, which contributed to its disastrous defeat in the Mesopotamia campaign.

Americans reaching Paris from Constantinople, including the crew of the interned U. S. S. Scorpion, say popular discontent there owing to the famine has reached dangerous proportions. The cry for breaking off relations with Germany and making peace with the Entente Allies, they report, has become so strong that the German officials have moved the battle-cruiser Sultan Selim, once the German warship Goeben, to a position in the harbor.

Sugar in Constantinople costs $5 a pound in gold, coffee, $9 a pound, and tea $6 a pound; 35,000 people are reported on the verge of starvation, and already nearly a hundred are said to have died of no other cause.

GERMAN LABOUR PROBLEMS.

Complaint That Exemption of too Many Skilled Workers is Claimed.

Efforts by many German employers of labour to retain their skilled workers by asking their exemption from both military service and work in the ranks of the "Home Army" provided for by the Auxiliary Service law, now being put into effect in all parts of the empire, are seriously handicapping the complete mobilization of Germany's man power. In an article in a copy of the official publication of General Groener's War Supply Bureau recently received in London it is stated, on the strength of an official report from Munster, an important industrial city in Westphalia, that various firms are claiming the exemption of altogether too many skilled workmen. Then the article says:

"The only possible explanation is that these firms are determined to provide themselves with none but first-class labour, and to reject less valuable personnel, especially women. Such procedure is entirely contrary to the present interests of the Fatherland, because all labour resources, great or small, trained or untrained, must be used to the full, and it is impossible to approve the behaviour of any firm which for sake of its own commercial advantage tries to provide itself with none but first-class workmen—for the most part, that is to say, with men in the prime of life and liable to service in the army.

"Apart, moreover, from the fact that such action must be condemned as a violation of duty toward the Fatherland, the supposed advantage may well turn into an economic disaster for the firms concerned when these workmen are suddenly and urgently required for military service. They will then be called up ruthlessly."

All firms are urged to make themselves as independent as possible of "military workmen," and especially of men fit for general service, and to take every opportunity to accept and train substitutes, especially women. The article then proceed to criticise the opposition among skilled workmen to the organized employment of men not liable for military service and of women. It is argued that the fear that "after the victorious conclusion of the war" there will be extensive unemployment is unfounded. On the contrary, it is only by straining every effort that victory can be won, and then Germany will be prosperous for many years to come, and there will be abundant work for everybody.

German housewives who can afford servants are finding their troubles increased through the steady luring of young women into munition plants and other factories where they can earn much larger wages than in domestic service and enjoy more freedom. Berlin newspapers say that only 10 per cent. of the women who want servants succeed now adays in getting them. Girls who accept employment make stiff demands, especially in respect of food. Many of them being fresh from the country, where food is comparatively plentiful, insist before "signing on" that they will work only for "families which eat first class."

Certain mistresses, for their part, are also exacting. The Berliner Tageblatt reports cases of women who before engaging a servant want to know if she has "connections in the country, i.e., facilities for smuggling food supplies into town from the rural districts. Servants with such "facilities" are said to be able to command high wages, innumerable days and evenings "out," and other privileges.

A new Water Transport Department has been established by the Prussian military authorities. Its duties are to deal with all water transport at present controlled by the field railway administration, to co-operate with the naval authorities as regards sea transport for the army and the military factories, to increase the usefulness of the waterways, especially for the relief of the railways, to arrange transports of coal for the northeast and southeast, and to organize the supply of labour for the inland waterways and the carious port and transport services connected with them.

MEMORIAL PLAQUES FOR BRITISH DEAD.

LONDON—A Government committee has just decided that suitable official memorials are to be awarded to the family or nearest relative of every man killed in the war. The memorial will consist of a bronze plaque and a parchment scroll, inscribed with the name of the man and a brief record of his military activity.

FEMININE FASHIONS.

Men Are Always Helpless In Their Efforts to Control Them.

It is interesting to note that, while men have always railed, and railed in vain, against the excesses of fashion, they take swift alarm when women show any disposition to appropriate a portion of their own sensible and sanitary clothing.

The spreading hoops of our sainted grandmothers were to our unregenerate grandfathers a source of measureless annoyance. The general effect produced by a crinoline was an absence of space for anything but itself and an absence of concern for anybody but its wearer.

Engulfed by their wives' tempestuous petticoats, men lost their last vestige of supereminence. They remonstrated in fear and wrath. They exhausted themselves in ridicule, not understanding that women can never be laughed out of a folly. They appealed to art, they appealed to economics, they appealed to reason. They would gladly have appealed to religion had it been of any use.

The hoopskirt, having reached the greatest possible magnitude compatible with human intercourse, went slowly out of fashion. It died literally by inches, growing smaller and smaller every season and refusing to be hurried in its decline by the importunities of men.

But the bloomer, the comfortable economical, symbolic bloomer, lived its brief life in vain, blighted—not by the uneasy prejudices of men, but by the contemptuous disregard of women, who in the supreme matter of dress have never permitted any appeal from their own court. The failure of sumptuary laws in all countries and in all ages proves the perpetual impotence of men.—Agnes Repplier in Harper's Magazine.

Undigested food delayed in the stomach decays, or rather, ferments the same as food left in the open air, says a noted authority. He also tells us that Indigestion is caused by Hyper-acidity, meaning, there is an excess of hydro-chloric acid in the stomach which prevents complete digestion and starts food fermentation. Thus everything eaten sours in the stomach much like garbage sours in a can, forming acrid fluids and gases which inflate the stomach like a toy balloon. Then we feel a heavy, lumpy misery in the chest, we belch up gas, we eructate sour food or have heart-burn, flatulence, water-brash or nausea.

He tells us to lay aside all digestive aids and instead, get from any pharmacy four ounces of Jad Salts, and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast and drink while it is effervescing and furthermore, to continue this for a week. While relief follows the first dose, it is important to neutralize the acidity, remove the gas-making mass, start the liver, stimulate the kidneys and thus promote a free flow of pure digestive juices.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and sodium phosphate. This harmless salts is used by thousands of people for stomach trouble with excellent results.

GERMANY SHORT OF LABOUR

Also of Metals, the Government Explains to Switzerland.

In the course of a controversy in the columns of the Berner Bund a few weeks ago between representatives of Swiss manufacturers and agents of the German Government over the failure of Germany to send as much iron and steel to Switzerland as was expected under the terms of the commercial agreement between the two countries, the defenders of Germany laid stress upon the increasing shortage of skilled labour in the German munition and allied industries in the following words:

"Germany expressly reserved the right to release certain kinds of materials that are used in the manufacture of arms and ammunition only in proportion as her own needs were satisfied. Now, as is known, these needs have increased in an extraordinary manner, while at the same time the number of skilled workers has diminished."

GERMANY TO MAKE A NEW PEACE OFFER

TEMPORARY LULL ON BRITISH FRONT

MOMENTARY DEADLOCK IS REPORTED ON THE BRITISH FRONT TO-DAY

Field Marshall Haig's Report Shows No Special Activity With the Exception of a Night Raid North of Ypres--French Consolidating Their Gains---Von Bethman Hollweg to Make a New Peace Offer in the Reichstag.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, May 1.—A deadlock was apparent along the British front to-day. Field Marshal Haig's only report of fighting was of a night raid successfully carried out by his forces north of Ypres, where a few Germans were taken prisoner. Elsewhere he reported nothing special. The raid was in the same sector where yesterday the British Commander-in-Chief reported a similar minor action. This is the second day of apparent immovability in the British advance from Arleux south to Monchy. Both sides are locked along this sector. The tremendous fighting of Saturday and Sunday has seemingly brought on a period of temporary abatement during which both sides are hurrying up fresh troops and fresh materials for renewal at a later time.

PARIS (French Official Communique), May 1.—South of the Oise we repulsed a German attack on one of our small posts in the region of Barisis. Along the Chemin des Dames (Ladies' Road) the artillery fighting was rather violent. In the Champagne the night passed in relative quiet in the sector of our attack, where our troops are organizing the captured positions. The number of prisoners captured by us in the fighting yesterday and actually enumerated is more than four hundred. There is nothing to report from the remainder of the front.

AMSTERDAM, May 1.—The Dutch Village of Zierikzee, near the Belgian frontier, was laid in utter waste Sunday night by bombs dropped from an unidentified aeroplane.

THE HAGUE, May 1. — Imperial Chancellor Von Bethmann-Hollweg will make a peace offer in the German Reichstag on Thursday, the Berliner Tageblatt announces to-day. For more than a month rumours of another peace "feeler" by the Imperial German Chancellor have been circulating in Europe. A conference which the Austrian Emperor held with the Kaiser about that time was the basis for reports that Austria was pressing for new peace offers by the Central Powers. Germany is believed to-day to be torn with strikes of more or less magnitude, facing considerable discontent over steadily diminishing rations, and with her people aroused to a desire for greater participation in governmental affairs.

WASHINGTON, May 1.—The State Department officials learned of the reported forthcoming Hollweg peace offer without comment other than they had not received official word of it.

The United States has let it be known that she is in the war to a finish, and if Germany is merely making a political strategic move, or passing propaganda intended to influence neutrals, her efforts will fail so far as this country and its Government is concerned.

Arleux Was Hotter That Vimy Ridge

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

(By William Philip Simms.)

LONDON, May 1.—The taking of "Arleux by the Canadians was a hotter piece of work than the storming of Vimy Ridge while it lasted, according to veterans of the fighting with whom I talked to-day.

There was hand-to-hand fighting in the streets and by-ways of the town for two hours. The "Boches" held the so-called Arleux "Switch trenches" and the town, supported by many machine guns.

The very first rush of the Canadians by its irresistible force swept the Germans back, despite their rain of machine gun fire. The enemy scattered into Arleux by two roads. One of these was prolonged into the main street of the village. It was here that the hardest fighting centred.

German machine guns and German snipers planted with ingenuity on both sides in the houses and on roofs impeded the advance until the Canadians potted them.

Then, with bayonets and revolver butts the Maple Leafers smashed the Prussians and drove them from the town. A good many prisoners were later rounded up in houses and side streets.

PETROGRAD, May 1.—"Extensive operations may be expected shortly," was the significant phrase in a semi-official statement describing a sudden resumption of intense cannonading on the Riga front. The fire covered the region south of Riga to Ikskull, and was particularly intense in the region of Kalncem.

TRACTOR AND PLOW HAVE ARRIVED IN CITY FOR FARMERS

Will Be at Work To-morrow on Mr. Allan Wilson's Farm in Otonabee Below the City—Unloaded This Afternoon

TURNS THREE FURROWS

The War Production Committee's tractor arrived in the city this morning with a triple disker and plow attachment. Mr. G. A. Gillespie, who has been acting as an intermediary for the Deputy Minister of Agriculture, immediately telephoned the District Representative at Norwood, Mr. F. C. McRae, who motored to Peterborough, and assumed charge of the machine. The plow was unloaded at noon, and the motor tractor will likely be out of its car this afternoon. It was expected that the first operations would be commenced to-day, but in any case it will be working to-morrow on Mr. Allan Wilson's farm below the locks. Four of the five tractors purchased by the committee and six by the Provincial Government, according to a Toronto report went astray in transit from Minneapolis. They were traced to Mimico. Mr. Trimble, secretary of the Committee, stated that the tractors seem to have struck a popular chord with the farmers. "At present," he said, "we have sufficient applications to keep a dozen or more tractors in constant operation for the next six months. At present the club inspectors have arranged for the plowing of about four thousand acres."

It is believed that the tractor which has been provided for the Peterborough district will be successful to the extent of its capacity. Mr. Gillespie's regret was that only one could be obtained as he has applications for over three hundred acres. The work performed here will in a measure test the capabilities of the tractor with its three-furrow plow.

PLANS TO ENTERTAIN THE GOVERNOR-GENERAL

The Reception committee of the City Council and the Greater Peterborough Association met last evening and considered plans for the entertainment of the Duke of Devonshire and his party, who will visit Peterborough on May 24th. A draft of the proposed programme will be submitted to the Governor-General for approval.

Lieut.-Col. Walker will be consulted about the prospects of furnishing a guard of honour.

WAR PROHIBITION TO SOLVE FOOD PROBLEM

WASHINGTON, May 1.—"War prohibition will solve America's food problem better than feverish gardening in park and yard and dismantled lawn," is the belief of former-Governor Foss of Massachusetts. Governor Foss declared that "War prohibition is the only path that will bring civilization out of the woods." He asserted national prohibition is the biggest issue before the United States and the Allies. "England's capital mistake has been the feeble, temporizing, nerveless way in which she has side-stepped the drink menace," said Foss. "A dry England could have snapped her fingers at the submarines. The question is up to us whether we shall follow England's folly or Russia's wisdom.

"American grain has been shipped for brewing or distilling in English, French, Scandinavian, even Belgian malt cellars. We should in this particular place an unyielding embargo on Europe," declared Foss.

Once again the Examiner wishes to remind the public that the source from which the news of local casualties was received is no longer available, and that from now on the Examiner will have to depend upon the kindness of the public to supply this information. The people of Peterborough, with so many of their relatives and friends overseas, are vitally interested in the news of casualties, and the Examiner therefore urges the friends of any soldiers who may be reported as casualties, to let this office know as soon as possible. Telephone or call at the Examiner.

PTE. CHAS. HUGH McCUSKER.

Mr. Hugh McCusker, 466 Bolivar street, received word yesterday morning that his son, Pte. Chas. Hugh McCusker, Canadian Infantry, is officially reported as having been killed in action on April 9th. Pte. McCusker enlisted with the Millbrook detachment of the 136th Battalion last year and on going overseas was transferred to another Canadian battalion at the front. His parents had received a card from him dated April 6th, which stated that he was in the best of health at that time. Three days after he was killed.

DRIVER ARCHIE SHOOK.

Word has been received that Driver Archie Shook of Peterborough, who enlisted here last summer with an artillery unit and went overseas with a draft has been severely wounded. Driver Shook is a son of Mr. J. C. Shook, McDonnel street, and before enlisting was employed at the Wm. Hamilton Co. He is very well known in the city and his friends will hope to hear better news of him. Driver Shook is married and his wife resides here.

PTE. B. H. JONES.

Pte. Benjamin Hugh Jones, one of the gallant little band of Apsley boys, who enlisted in the 93rd Battalion, is officially reported killed in action, his name appearing in the list issued from Ottawa yesterday. Pte. Jones enlisted in the Apsley platoon in December, 1915 and was a fine specimen of Canadian manhood. He took a great pride in being an efficient soldier and in the progress made by the platoon of which he was a member and which traked from Apsley to Peterborough a year ago. "Just watch us," he wrote to his sister in Peterborough in telling her of the coming of the boys from the north. Pte. Jones went overseas as a member of C company of the 93rd and was transferred to another Canadian infantry battalion at the front. After his first turn in the trenches he wrote home to his sister: "Well, we've been in the trenches and have done our turn. We've seen Frits and we're not afraid of him." Pte. Jones' father died about sixteen months ago, and his brother, who enlisted with the 247th Battalion, is on his way overseas with the 235th. A sister resided in Peterborough until a short time ago, but she is now in Apsley helping her mother and sisters to work the farm, from which her two brave brothers left to fight the Empire's battles overseas.

LANCE CORP. F. COLLETT.

Mrs. Florence Collett, 224 Hunter street, received the tragic news in an official message from Ottawa to-day that her husband, Lance Corp. Fred Collett, who went overseas with the 93rd Battalion, was killed in action on April 9th. Lance Corp. Collett originally enlisted here in B squadron, 8th Canadian Mounted Rifles and went to England with that unit. Early in 1916 he was given furlough to Canada on account of the serious illness of his wife, and while here was transferred to the 93rd Battalion, returning overseas with the Peterborough battalion. He was transferred to another Canadian battalion at the front. Before enlisting he was employed as a moulder at the Canadian General Electric Works. An invalid wife and two children are left to mourn his death. They will have the sympathy of the community in their bereavement.

PTE. CHARLES HARRIS.

Pte. Charles Harris, of Peterborough, who enlisted in the 93rd Battalion here in the autumn of 1915 and went overseas with Lt.-Col. Johnston's unit, is officially reported wounded in the fighting at Vimy Ridge. Pte. Harris left for France in one of the first drafts sent by the 93rd Battalion, going to the Canadian Mounted Rifles at the front.

SERGT. GEO. A. GRAY.

Sergt. Geo. A. Gray, a well known Peterborough boy who enlisted here in August, 1915 with the 33rd Battery, is officially reported wounded. Sergt. Gray, who is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Gray, Wolsley street, went overseas with the 33rd as a bombardier and was transferred to the 83rd Canadian Howitzer Battery. His brother also went overseas with the 33rd.

The official message stated that Sergt. Gray was admitted to No. 24 General Hospital, Etaples, on April 20, with a severe gunshot wound in his right thigh.

PTE. R. O. COWAN.

Pte. Richard Oliver Cowan, who went overseas as a member of D company of the 93rd Battalion and was transferred to another Canadian infantry battalion at the front, is officially reported killed in action. Pte. Cowan, whose home was at Trent Bridge, enlisted in the Havelock platoon of the 93rd Battalion. He was well known in that district.

Another Crease in the Front Has Been Ironed Out—Western Canadian Battalions Do Great Work With the Bayonet.

MORE HUN TREACHERY

(By Stewart Lyon, Special Correspondent of the Canadian Press.)

Canadian Headquarters in France, April 30.—Another crease in the front was ironed out to-day. Enemy trench elements were captured to the north and east of Arleux, bringing our troops in this sector close up to the wire defences before the village of Fresnoy.

MORE HUN TREACHERY.

Further details now available of Saturday's struggle on the Canadian front for the village of Arleux indicate the most sanguinary nature of the fighting, especially in the case of two Western Canada battalions, which, seriously engaged by machine gun fire, evened up the score with the bayonet.

The enemy appears to be incurably treacherous. An instance of this character has been officially reported by the Colonel of one of the battalions which took part in the capture of Arleux. It is that of a group of the enemy who threw down their arms and drew up their hands when the first wave of our assaulting troops came along. Afterwards the enemy picked up their rifles and began shooting our men in the back. Ahead of the second wave of Canadians came a scout, who saw this "dirty trick," as he described it himself, from a shell hole. He sniped ten of the treacherous group, and then, going forward, bayoneted the remaining two.

FINE CANADIAN SPIRIT.

Sharing honour for cool bravery with this avenger of treachery is a soldier who had been crippled by having to wear boots which did not fit him. He limped forward with his battalion to its first objective. There, as if waiting for him, he found a pair of new Bosche boots. Sitting down on the battlefield, with shells exploding in every direction and machine gun bullets flying around him, the soldier tried on the German boots, found them to be a good fit, and went on, rejoicing, to the final objective.

The spirit of the Canadian troops in all the recent advances has been admirable, our officers declare. The officers praise the men unstintedly for the way in which they go forward unwaveringly under fire. One of the battalions has a football, which was kicked forward by the men of the unit through shell holes and across shell and mine craters to the summit of Vimy Ridge on the first day of that battle. The contrast between this spirit is our troops and that of the enemy is very marked. Prisoners no longer talk of the certainty of German victory. Some taken recently say that continued losses for a few months at the rate suffered recently on the Western front will destroy completely the morale of the German troops.

STRICT GERMAN CENSORSHIP OVER MAY DAY EVENTS

Many Rumours as to Happenings in Germany But the Huns Are Doing Their Best to Keep the News of Trouble From Leaking Out

A 24 HOUR STRIKE

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, May 1.—A drama of internal strife may be in progress in Germany to-day, but a thick curtain of Teutonic censorship intervened to hide the denouncements from the world at large. May day, the date of the Socialist labour and international celebrations was to be marked by a twenty-four hour general strike in all industries, according to plans laid by certain groups in Germany several weeks ago. In the face of these elaborate precautions to guard against the seepage of news of Germany's internal situation, all sorts of sensational rumours gained circulation here to-day. It appeared certain that the twenty-four hour general strike had been successful in tying up, in part at least, of a number of Germany's great steel plants, and possibly likewise, some munition works. Britain experienced no May day demonstrations. On the contrary, fifteen hundred striking ing clerks of Woolwich Arsenal and three thousand dock workers at Tilbury returned to work this morning after a promise of adjustment of wage disputes.

Have You Thought Of This Phase of Gardening Work?

The man who refuses to become a producer of food stuffs this season because he has the money to purchase his requirements is in that respect a destructive and not a constructive agent. The man who produces sufficient potatoes for his family during the coming year leaves exactly that supply on the market for those who haven't the land or the opportunity to be producers in this crisis. This should be the guiding and impelling thought of men who haven't yet engaged in this movement. This is the first of May, and there remains plenty of time to secure land and seed. The larger the number of producers, the less will the market be tapped for next winter's vegetables.

Fewer Deaths In April This Year Than Last

The vital statistics for April compare pretty evenly with April of last year, the death roll, however, being smaller.

21 building permits, amounting to $18,910 have been issued this month.

The premier of all photo plays, "The Whip," is at the Grand on Friday and Saturday next. Nothing like this wonderful melodrama has ever been seen in local boards, and it will be given here exactly as presented in New York, where it is predicted to break all records. It covers a wide range of thrilling events and seems to work injury to the crack horse "The Whip," which are frustrated in time for "The Whip" to win the most coveted of all races, the Saratoga handicap.

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, May 1.—The British troop ship Ballarat, eleven thousand tons, carrying two thousand Australian soldiers from Australia to England, was sunk recently by a German submarine, it was announced to-day. Not a life was lost, all being rescued by British patrol boats and other ships. The Australians, is is reported, behaved in an exceedingly steady and heroic manner when their vessel was going down.

THE SHADOW OF THE BYE-ELECTIONS.

"Coming events" we are told, "cast their shadow before them." Campbell's line in these terms is the closing line of a gloomy prophecy — "Lochiel, Lochiel, beware of the day." The warning comes to point in past events that, to use an Hibernicism, cast their shadows before and constitute a warning to the Ontario government—the past events being the record of the by-elections in Ontario since 1914. Since 1914 there have been seven bye-elections, for the Ontario Legislature, some in rural and others in city constituencies, and in different parts of the province. Basing calculations upon the results of these elections, we get results that are disheartening or cheering, according to the party point of view.

If in a general election the Liberals in the constituencies now represented by government members reduce the government majorities by not more than the smallest reduction they have made in any bye-election, the government will be defeated.

If the Liberals reduce the government majorities by the average reduction secured by them in all the seven bye-elections the result approximately will be as follows: Conservatives 77, Liberals 64.

If the Liberals reduce the government majorities by only one-half of the average reduction in the bye-elections the Liberals would have a majority of about 30.

If the Liberals reduce the government majorities by no more than one-third the average reduction secured in the bye-elections, the government will be defeated and the Liberals will have a working majority of seven.

If in a general election the punch of the bye-elections is generally maintained, the Liberals will win. And reasoning from the normal results of bye-elections, with a fairly decent government in power, which is that the government candidate always wins, seven bye-elections going, in effect, "again the government," does not present a very encouraging outlook for the Hearst government, when it has to be arraigned for popular judgment in a general election. However, as the late J. Israel Tarte said, "elections are not won by prayers," or by deductions from the results of bye-elections, usually condemnatory of the government. They will be won by the presentation of Liberal policies and leaders as to the best interests of the country. The people want advanced legislation and administration, and it is not likely that they will be content with travestied reforms, advocated by the Liberals and assumed or stolen by the government in an effort "to save its face." The people, when they size up the situation and digest all the facts, will not be satisfied with a government that is forced to adopt the policy of its opponents and base legislation on it—not from conviction, but for fear of conviction, by the electorate.

COME, LET US REASON TOGETHER.

If the people of Peterborough can get the City Council to accept this invitation, and the matter is reasoned out dispassionately and cooly, it is certain that the City Fathers will take a new view of their responsibility, which would, of course, involve a new view of their duty.

Last week the city engineer, acting under the instruction of the Council, removed five or six thrifty, sound, well-growing shade trees—in a bunch—on the north side of Gilmour street. This was considered necessary owing to the action of a previous city council.

In placing the sidewalk opposite these trees, owing to the conformation of the ground, the walk was placed in a trench, below the level of the trees, which stood a considerable distance above the level of the driving surface of the street. It was necessary, therefore, to remove the earth between the trees to give surface drainage to the walk. This, of course, left the trees perched on the hillocks, and created a most unsightly condition. In spite, however, of this outrage, the trees grew and maintained robust tree health.

The removal of the trees was a necessary evil if one keeps his eyes only on the earth and looks no higher—to the soaring tops and graceful and grateful shade from healthy, vigorous trees, some of them with trunks a foot in diameter. It was no doubt a cruel thing for the city engineer to lay low these trees; but the technality of the terms of his engagement compel him, as an act of duty, to carry out the orders of his elected employers, no matter how much his action was, in principle, contrary to the interests of his real employers—the people of the city.

Here we reach the point where we should do a little reasoning together. Judging from the past, the attitude of the city councils toward street trees is founded upon destructive, rather than constructive, statesmanship.

The councils have, from time to time, destroyed, in the aggregate, hundreds of street trees, and haven't planted one. Now, in reason, is this right? The streets belong to the public and are, by law, subject to the council. Any improvement upon the streets is not for the benefit of individuals, but for the benefit of the generti public.

No obligation rests upon the individual property owner to improve a street for the benefit of the public—by constructing a pavement or sidewalk, or building and keeping beautiful a boulevard or planting trees. All these are the duty of the city. The property owner plants trees because he is a public-spirited citizen. He benefits himself in a retail way by so doing, but he, also, at the same time, benefits the public in a wholesale way.

The city hasn't planted, or won't plant, a single street tree. But with —when one comes to think of it— colossal impudence, it assumes the right, which it has by law, but not in justice, over the trees planted by private citizens, and sends its butchers to periodically mutilate, them, without consulting the wishes or taste of the owners, who planted them.

[illegible]d when the city, with more [illegible]ght of a little engineering con[illegible]nce than of the life or appear[illegible] of a line of stately trees, puts [illegible] up in the air, it cuts them [illegible] remorsely, and hasn't one [illegible]t of repairing the damage from the destruction of forty years of growth and grateful shade. It leaves a hundred feet of boulevard here as a farmer's ploughed field, and resolves not to replace a single tree. The city, however, graciously permits the owner of the abutting property to plant trees at his own expense in the denuded boulevard.

Come, now, let us reason together. Is that reasonable, is it fair, is it justice? In this thing we are not as good as Germany, whose name has become a synonym for infamous injustice, unfairness, and outrage. It's worse than Germany, for, with all her faults and crimes, Germany provides in her forestry policy for planting a tree for every one cut down.

Is it not reasonable that the city should do the same. It is conceded that it is necessary to cut down trees—trees have been planted too close, and in awkawrd lines, because of no system or oversight; but is it not reasonable to demand that when a public-spirited citizen plants a tree in a public place, for the public good, and watches over it for a generation, and the city, for any cause, removes it—in the public interest, perhaps—is it not fair and reasonable to insist that it should replace the growth and shade and beauty of twenty or thirty years, with another tree?

A tree costs little to plant. It is a good investment; it doubles in value and grows in grace and beauty every year. Trees planted by aldermen would be the chief monument to their memory, that their posterity could be proud of. The trees of Peterborough, planted all by private citizens—many now camping under the Tree of Life in a better world—have added to the value of the city, as expressed in terms of money, hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Who would be proud of Peterborough—what visitor would dilate upon its beauty in summer—how would its summer charm as a home for citizens vanish—how would the value of residential property drop—if all the thousands of stately street trees, which the city didn't plant, were swept away to-night in the wake of a barbaric Hindenburg strategic retreemnt?

Come, now, let us reason together. Would it not be fair and just and German, and un-German at the same time—for the city, if it feels justified in removing a street tree, to replace it by planting another?

We want to make this city so attractive that people can't stay out of it. The cheapest way to do it is with trees and clean, tidy boulevards. We want to attract new industries. These want not only good sites and cheap power, but the important element, the human element, wants a pleasant place to live in; clean, tidy streets glorified by trim, tidy, velvet-sward boulevards.

Is it not reasonable to ask the city to help in giving effect to the spirit of fair play to the people?

HOW TO CARE FOR DEMOUNTABLE RIMS

By William H. Stewart, Jr.

The demountable rim is demountable in name only unless it is properly taken care of. If mud and dirt are allowed to collect in between the rim and the wheel they will cause rust, which will grip the rim so tightly that it may take hours to remove it instead of seconds. A few suggestions along this line will be particularly valuable just at this time, as this is the muddy season, and matters will get worse until the Spring rains are over.

Do not wait until a puncture obliges you to remove the rim, but seize the first opportunity to remove it and break up any adhesion which has already formed. Of course, if you have a spare rim or two you will go over those first. Clean off any rust with sandpaper or emery cloth. Kerosene will soften rust, but it will also cause it. If you use it at all remove it carefully afterward, using gasoline. When the rim is clean and dry, it should be painted with special rim paint obtainable at any auto supply store. This is unaffected by rust and will not flake off. It will wear off, however, and so should be renewed in places whenever the rim is removed.

Aluminium paint may be used if you prefer the finish of aluminium. It is nothing but powdered aluminium held together with banana oil. It protects the surface very effectually, and being a powder, does not flake off. It looks very well at the sides, but is not thick enough to protect the part where the tire touches the rim or the rim rests on the wheel. For this reason a mixture of graphite and shellac is to be preferred. Mix enough graphite with the shellac to give it a good colour, thinning it a little with alcohol to make it flow readily. Apply this carefully, letting it dry, and giving it two coats if thought necessary. Give it plenty of time to dry or it will stick and pull away where anything touches it.

Even where no demountable rim is used the rim should have this treatment so as to prevent the shoe from sticking to it. While it may seem irksome, the tires should be removed and the rims painted even before a puncture calls for a change. The welding process is going on all the time, each day adding something to its holding power, so that some day when you are required to change tires in a hurry you will find the tire so tightly fastened that you will lose many times the short time required to remove the tire originally and paint the rim.

Another point of immense importance is to put grease on the bolts and nuts. If the threads are filled with grease the water cannot work in and rust the two together. Some rims have bolts going through the fellos of the wheel. This hole should be filled with grease to keep out water. Another place where grease is of primary importance is in the hub of a detachable wheel. After removing it look carefully and you will see where it is beveled to make a tight fit on the axle. This should have grease smeared over it every time it is removed. To provide for this fill the space between the ends with grease, and there will always be some within reach.

If you should prefer grease to paint on the rims or other parts which secure the quick-detachable tires it may be used, but it is advisable to work a good deal of graphite into it. This is especially advised if the grease is to be used where the tire can touch it. Have it mostly graphite, with only enough grease to hold it on. If these directions are followed you will have reason to be thankful if ever you have to change tires in a hurry.

Nearly All in Personal Property — State Inheritance Tax, $1,489,370.

ST. PAUL, Minn., April 28.—James J. Hill, who died about a year ago, left an estate of $51,179,889, according to a report of the appraisers, Theodore A. Schulze and Major Thomas P. Wilson, filed in Probate Court here this week. Of this $1,378,779.53 is in real estate, the remainder in personal property.

The inheritance taxe, which was paid Thursday or Friday, will total $1,489,370, the largest ever levied in Minnesota. Of the tax Ramsey County will get one-tenth and the State nine-tenths.

Editor of the Examiner.

Dear Sir,—It gives one great pleasure to read the letter under the heading "The Unfortunate Child," in last night's issue.

We need many reforms and this problem concerning "illegitimate children" seems to require immediate attention. The "scorning" attitude of mind toward both mother and child, I'm sorry to state, is too prevalent in Christian communities. Excusing or encouraging these conditions is not my motive, but this vital question has to be faced (as in Europe), and these practical suggestions by J. J. Kelso would certainly help to alleviate matters, until some of the underlying causes have been efficiently solved.

Yours truly,
K. M. C.

To the Editor:

In every post-office in France the Government has had the following poster exhibited:

"To French women and to young French men, Drink is as much your enemy as Germany.

"Since 1870 it has cost France in men and money much more than the present war.

"Drinkers age quickly. They lose half their normal life and fall early victims to many infirmities and illnesses.

"The seductive drinks of parents reappear in their offspring as great hereditary evils. France owes to alcohol a great many mad men and women and consumptives and most of her criminals.

"Drink decreases by two-thirds our national production. It raises the cost of living and increases poverty.

"In imitation of the criminal Kaiser, drink decimates and ruins France to the great delight of Germany.

"Mothers, Young Men, Young Girls, Wives! Up and act against drink in memory of those who have gloriously died or suffered wounds for the Fatherland! You will thus accomplish a mission as great as that of our heroic soldiers."

As timely as true! Strong drink is every man's enemy. Alcohol is a racial poison. A child weakly in mind or body is born of an alcoholic mother, and he in turn may become the parent of degenerate offspring. Thus Society suffers.

"We are members one of another." That is life's logic. Drink, in striking my neighbour strikes me and all my other neighbours, for we are all "bound up in the bundle of life." Drink causes social loss and wrong, therefore drink is not only the French man's enemy, but every man's enemy.

"CENSORSHIP" OF ALLIED MISSIONS SMOOTH AND SURE

WASHINGTON, April 30.—Newspaper men in Washington see little or nothing of the British and French Commissioners except at the formal interviews, arranged daily. At other times the Commissioners are rushing about, making official calls, or receiving visits of distinguished Americans.

Ther time thus far, at least, has been completely taken up. And they are carefully fenced off with buffers, who meet representatives of the Press twice daily, tell all that is to be told, arrange for the formal interviews, and generally act as intermediaries between the Commissioners and the public.

Geoffrey Butler, of the British Foreign Office, performs this work for the British Commission well and to the satisfaction of the Washington newspaper correspondents. And apparently M. Hovelacque is to do the same for the French.

The utmost care is being taken that no ill-considered utterances may disastrously affect a delicate situation. Interviews are recorded in shorthand, revised by the commissioner who does the talking, sent to the American State Department for further revision, and then given to the Press. No indiscretion is going to mar this occasion if the careful selection of commissioners and the hedging of them about with machinery for judicious publicity can prevent it.

LINEMAN ELECTROCUTED

Another Was Seriously Hurt in Accident at Trenton.

BELLEVILLE, May 1.—Mr. John Osborne, a middle-aged man of this city, who was engaged as a lineman for the Hyko-Electric Power Commission of Ontario, was electrocuted at Trenton. He with other linemen was making some repairs on what was supposed to be a dead line, when the current came on. Osborne's head touched the wire and he was thrown to the ground, expiring in a few minutes. His head was terribly burned. A widow and large family survive. Wesley Todd, a fellow-employee, was terribly burned about the hands and right arm and his condition is serious. An inquest will be held in Osborne's case.

NEURALGIA AND SCIATICA

There is no mistaking neuralgia, with its sharp, stabbing almost unbearable pains. In a large number of cases poor blood and a run-down condition of the system is responsible for neuralgia. The nerves are actually starving. To cure neuralgia it is necessary to build up the blood and improve the general health, and for this purpose there is nothing better than Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

Sciatica is nothing more than neuralgia of the sciatic nerve, and those who suffer from it undergo excruciating torture. If you are afflicted with neuralgia or sciatic pains do not waste time or go to great expense for treatment until you have tried building up the blood. The chances are very strong that the treatment with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is all that you will require. Hot applications and liniments may be used at the same time to give temporary relief, but that is all you can expect from them. The trouble can only be cured by enriching the blood, thus feeding and strengthening the nerves. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills give the blood the elements that the nerves need. In this way they remove the cause of the pain.

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills from any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

FLYER ROBINSON ALIVE.

PARIS, May 1. — The Matin says that news has been received at the British headquarters that Lieutenant William Leefe Robinson, the aviator who destroyed a Zeppelin is not dead, but a prisoner in Germany. Lieut. Robinson's gasoline ran out and he was obliged to land within the German lines.

Robinson won the Victoria Cross by bringing down a Zeppelin during a raid on London last fall. It was one of the first feats of the kind to be performed during the war.

Vice President—Ralph Turner.

Secretary—Fred Ash.

Committee—Stewart Fleming, Edward Ostram, Roland Doughty, Walter Howden, Garden Judges, Mr. C. E. Smith, Mr. F. E. Ellis of the Farm and Dairy.

A special meeting of the club will be held Wednesday evening, May 2nd at 7.30, when Mr. C. E. Smith, of the Farm and Dairy will address the boys on the subject of garden plots and outline the rules for the backyard garden competition.

All boys who are contemplating in the Oke Potato competition are requested to attend this meeting as the rules for the competition will be explained.

Parents are reminded that the boys' swimming campaign will commence to-day, and now is the time for the boys to learn the art of swimming.

There is always the danger of boys who cannot swim going to the river or lakes and meeting with an accident, and that is the reason that the Y.M.C.A. has set an early date for their swimming campaign. The physical director will be glad to receive the names of boys who wish to learn to swim.

The following school boys have received a prize of a Y.M.C.A. button for regular attendance at Gymnasium classes. Stewart Flemming, Robert Breckenridge, Arthur McFarlane, Bruce Copping, Jack Turner.

Germany Sees A Way of Handling Its Ex-Convicts

At Lease 100,000 Able-Bodied Men of Military Age Offer Problem for Heads to Solve.

BERLIN—What to do with the ex-convicts who, when sentenced, lose their rights to citizenship and therefore may not belong to the army and fight for the fatherland is a problem that is occupying public attention to an increasing degree.

It is estimated that there are in the empire at least 100,000 able-bodied men of military age, now at liberty after having served prison sentences, whose work for the government in the aggregate would be of tremendous value if a way could be found to utilize them.

Yet they cannot be sent to the front in regiments composed of men who have never been guilty of criminal acts, because the soldiers would not tolerate their presence. Nor is it feasible to form special companies, as has occasionally been suggested, for particularly hazardous duty. Such duty is regarded by the average soldier as a special honour which he would be loath to surrender to man branded by imprisonment. Nor is it felt that it would be safe to entrust important posts to men in whom implicit confidence cannot be placed.

The latest and apparently most welcome suggestion is that the ex-convicts, and even convicts now serving terms, should be formed into special working bodies, and put at some kind of labour for the military authorities, whether at the front or at home.

NEW LABEL FOR EGGS.

To be Marked in London "for Boiling" or "Not for Boiling."

LONDON, April 28.—According to a new classification of eggs just adopted by the wholesale trade here eggs will henceforth be sold with directions "These eggs not to be boiled" or "These eggs guaranteed to boil."

The usual label is due to the importation of eggs from distant parts, some of the consignments being dipped in a chemical solution to preserve them, which makes them air-tight and causes them to explode if put into hot water.

Where The Canadian Heroes Are Buried

How the Remains of All Maple Leaf Soldiers Are Being Cared For and Plans For Future Memorials—Not One Man Forgotten.

LONDON, April 5.—A blessed and a glorious thing it is to die for one's country. So quoth the ancient Romans. Every true Canadian heart echoes this noble sentiment, thinking on that gallant army of Canada's sons who have laid down their lives in the greatest of causes. Never forgotten will be the graves of these heroes. Even now, in the chaos of war, the Canadian military authorities are— have been since the very beginning — carefully registering every grave, locating it for future honour.

Not even those brave men killed in furious action in the front line, buried, perforce, by dead of night, mayhap in the very parapets themselves, or roughly sepulchred in No Man's Land, not even those whose graves are deep dugouts, are omitted from his careful chronicle, mapped out in almost surveyed lines.

No One Man Forgotten.

"But what of those reported 'missing' and later 'killed,' you ask. 'Surely many gallant fellows have been quite obliterated by shells, engulfed in mines, and lost to all human ken!' True enough. It is estimated that quite thirty per cent. of fatalities come under the head of those for which burial reports have not yet been received, though it may reasonably be hoped that a further number of these graves will ultimately be reported. Nevertheless, the approximate location is carefully noted, and when the permanent war movements go up each one of these soldiers will have in close proximity to the place where he fell a separate, personal memorial. No man is forgotten.

Moreover, the Grave Registration Department of the Canadian Expeditionary Force, who devote a full ledger leaf to record the location of each man's burial place, have obtained photographs of a number of graves and cemeteries. Even in the Near East some have been taken a few in Cairo, and those of several Canadian nursing sisters who died on the Island of Lemnos.

The Wooden Cross.

To-day, right in among the trenches, one sees the little, temporary brown-stained wooden crosses supplied by the Government. Each bears the name, rank and battalion and the day of the death of the man who sleeps beneath it. These are the foremost graves. Farther back, but still quite close to the lines, up in the desolate Ypres salient and at other places, I have seen the little graveyards with their rows of white head boards.

Scant scope as yet for the gardener's care in these shell-swept regions. That must come later, though in a dozen weeks kindly nature will have clothed these hallowed plots with the scarlet and orange poppies, the corn-flower and other wild blossoms, which in this battle-scarred land run riot, especially over old trenches and shell holes.

Regimental Designs.

To these cemeteries, wherever humanly possible, the dead are borne back from the trenches, wrapped in the soldier's blanket, and laid to rest. Though be the graves in the trenches and under fire, the padre comes, nevertheless, to read the service over them, while their comrades stand by with bowed heads. Even in those God's Acres which cling so close to the firing line is displayed the little touch of human sympathy. Here, for the most part, regimental crosses of distinct pattern, some of them, an ancient Celtic cross design, for instance, marking graves of the 15th Battalion, Toronto Highlanders, adorn the burial ground, a silent tribute from the men's own comrades.

8,000 Canadian Graves.

Farther back of the lines the cemeteries are more carefully tended than those within the shell area. Deputed by the British Red Cross, the chief gardener from Kew Gardens has been superintending the laying out and planting with flowers and shrubbery of these places. Of the thousands of Canadians who have died in France and Flanders, some eight thousand graves have already been registered. Many of these are in groups, but some in isolated villages. In consideration of the wide area covered though every established grave will be marked by a cross, the establishment of a series of great memorial cemeteries after the war, is being thoughtfully considered, one say at Ypres, another at Festubert, another at the Somme, one at every place where Canadians had fought, and larger ones at each great battleground of Canadian troops. This was the practice adopted by the Americans after the Civil War. Thus, each on its separate tablet of granite or marble, would appear the name of every man. Splendid monuments would in addition commemorate the deeds of these heroes at these places of future pilgrimage for so many Canadians.

Deaths in United Kingdom.

But, if Canadians who have died in France have been so carefully remembered, their comrades who succombed in these islands in nowise have been overlooked. Those nine hundred and fifty graves of Canadian soldiers scattered over Britain and Ireland, be they on the edge of this great city or in some peaceful country churchyard, whose gnarled yews and ancient Norman church recall the beautiful lines of Gray's Elegy, and where our soldiers lie near to crusading knight and scavelier, each resting place is faithfully set down.

Hearing that Canada was about to purchase ground in cemeteries at her own expense the War Office promised that all graves of overseas men who laid down their lives for the Empire should be the especial care of the Mother Country. It was the least she could do and she would be glad and proud to do it. So, wherever Canadians lie beneath the soil of Britain, whether in groups or singly, their kinsmen of the Old Land will plant flowers and keep their memory fresh and green.

SUNDAY HOPES PETER — GAVE DIAMOND JIM THE GLAD HAND

When Billy Sunday was told at his New York Tabernacle of the death of "Diamond Jim" Brady, he was visibly grieved. He said:

"I hope St. Peter gave 'Diamond Jim' the glad hand when he knocked at the gate of Heaven. I know him. He was a good scout, but good scouts as well as bad ones must face the Lord sooner or later. It must be a thoughtful times for 'Diamond Jim's' legion of friends. It calls to their minds the fact that they must die, and now is the time to prepare."

"It might well happen that the whole issue of this year's campaign might depend on our being able to drive home one success we are fortunate enough to achieve."

RIGHT HON. ANDREW BONAR LAW. Chancellor of the Exchequer.

"In order that 50,000 troops of the Canadian Expeditionary Force at present serving in Canada may be released for active warfare an appeal is now made to the manhood of Canada to volunteer for home defence".

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

RICH HOARDING FOOD AS AUSTRIA HUNGERS

VIENNA.—The recent appointment by Emperor Charles of a Minister of Public Subsistence, in the person of Major Gen. Anton Hoefer, formerly a member of the General Staff, and known as an expert in army subsistence matters, is believed here to be the best measure yet adopted to meet the constantly increasing food problems. Though already in the care of a central food bureau, and subject of many Government regulations, public subsistence in Austria threatened to become a hopeless chaos because the men charged with its administration lacked the necessary ability.

The new powers charged with public subsistence matters have set up, and in part already enforced, a new programme, most of whose aspects are decidedly military, as was suggested by the training and experience of Major Gen. Hoefer. It is felt that the food problems will be near final solution on the day on which it will be possible to suppress all private sales to consumers, transactions carried on in defiance of the law and total disregard of maximum price regulations. Persons willing to buy at a rate far above the maximum price have been able to get food in unlimited quantities, at the expense of the small consumer, who must look upon maximum prices as the sole means of getting food at reasonable cost under present conditions.

The effect of this has been that the consumer willing to pay the price has been able to get all the food he wanted while the poor man, often after standing in line for hours, has been turned away empty-handed, because private sales on the "speak-easy" plan had depleted the stores on hand, the private purchaser buying more than the law allows at a price far above the maximum set by the Government.

OFFENDERS HEAVILY PUNISHED.

It is the plan of the new food administration to proceed against this practice with all the severity the law permits. In the past this has not been possible. The Vienna public is extremely good-natured and averse to the role of informer of police spy, a fact which has been exploited by those with means and the storekeepers. But even the patience of the small consumer in Austria has a limit it seems, and court records of recent weeks show that a greater number of food law transgressions are being reported. In disposing of these cases the courts have shown no mercy, and an appeal has generally had the surprising result of punishment being increased. Thus a dealer in foodstuffs, sentenced to imprisonment for three weeks and a fine of 200 crowns, augmented his punishment to imprisonment for three months and a fine of 2,000 crowns by having his case reviewed by the Appeal Senate, which found that the lower court had been altogether too lenient.

Despite this, usury in food prices continues, evidence of the fact that defying food regulations is highly profitable. So great seems to be the lure of making money of a general misfortune that nothing suffices to check it, as was shown more than a century ago when the French revolutionary government made usury in food sales a capital crime and was obliged to execute a goodly number of shopkeepers.

Much of the food bought at private sales and delivered clandestinely is not intended for immediate consumption. It is stored. There are thousands of families in Vienna who have on hand, stores in cellar and garret, lockers and chests, food staples for two years. For the sake of appearance, and in order not to use up their hoard, the same families meet their present daily need in the open market, increasing in this manner the daily general consumption to the extent in which they buy for hoarding. Only those with means enough can afford this, so that the shortage due to the practice falls altogether upon the poorer classes.

Rapacious storekeepers favour this course, because it nets them prices often 200 per cent. above the maximum price set by the Government. Whether the store be large or small makes no difference. Each has its private buyers, to whom food is sold at any price and in any quantity, regardless of regulations. While thousands are unable to get butter and fat in the quantities prescribed by the Government cards, other thousands buy as much as they want and when they want. The households which as yet have been without meat on a meatless day are few indeed, provided the family treasury can bear the strain.

MONEY BUYS ANYTHING.

While the bulk of the population eats a very poor sort of black bread, many enjoy full wheat bread, as before the war, because they have the price, and money still buys anything in Austria. The storekeeper recognises in the present situation a fine opportunity to make money, and is not letting the chance go by.

In the end the retailer is little more than the agent of the wholesaler in this mulcting of a war-worn public. Not so long ago a shipment of more than a million eggs spoiled in a Vienna railroad yard because the prevailing price did not suit the owners. To-day it is impossible to get eggs at even 60 hellers a piece. But this is merely one instance of illicit price promotion, as the practice is called here.

There are a number of excuses to delay shipments and keep food out of the larger centres. Always the war is blamed. It is the excuse for every tactical move to cause artificial shortage—situations which do not affect maximum prices, but force up food at the private sales. The immediate result of such a shortage is that the cost of living, which in reality moves beyond the sphere of maximum prices altogether, goes up another 10 or 20 per cent. The Austrian living in a large population centre either meets his household's food demands at a private sale or stocks to maximum prices and goes hungry. While maximum prices allow an increase in the cost of living of about 40 per cent., living is about 200 per cent. more expensive than before the war.

It is known that the large Vienna banks are not uninterested in this practice. Much of the capital needed to make the cornering and holding of food possible is supplied by them, at a suitable rate, of course. During the war these banks have become almost omnipotent for the reason that the Government needs them. It is said Major Gen. Hoefer will meet in them an antagonist worthy of his best efforts.

On the whole, food in Austria is not scarce. Most of the rural districts do not know as yet what Government regulation of one's bill of fare is. White bread, butter, and fat cards have been introduced everywhere, the country populace, on the whole little attention to them.

The farmer who is averse to selling at maximum prices, will hold his products for an opportunity to make a private sale. He can afford to do this, because if ultimately part of his foodstuffs are requisitioned by the Government he will get the maximum price any way. In certain districts in Bohemia and the Salzburg country food conditions are nearly normal, though in adjacent mountainous parts, which must import some of their food, the situation resembles that in the cities and larger towns.

HUNGARY DIETING AUSTRIA

Austria's food problems have been aggravated by the attitude of the Hungarian Government. Austria is largely industrial, while Hungary is essentially an agriculture State. In the past the two have exchanged manufactured for soil products. Anxious, however, that its own stomach might suffer, Hungary has enforced a number of export inhibitions which have not bettered the situation in Austria. While the Hungarian Government has given as its excuse that the recent crops have not been good, it is understood that pure selfishness is the actual reason for this somewhat unbrotherly conduct. Hungary at any rate has more food than her population needs, though Budapest is suffering from the same hardships as is Vienna. The food merchants of both capitals have made up their mind to make all the money they can, and so far neither Government has been able to frighten them into a more reasonable attitude.

Meanwhile the situation in Vienna cannot become much worse than it is, without the Government being obliged to adopt the drastic measure of confiscation. Sanction for this already exists and, unless dealers in foodstuffs decide to be reasonable, Paragraph 14 of the Austrian Constitution may find application here.

With certain classes the war and its appeal to patriotism have lost all novelty. They have decided to become rich while they have the opportunity under a set of conditions which has eliminated competition and reduce the entire country to a state of commercial vassalage. Some of the examples of this are shocking. In a certain Vienna cafe, appendage of a well-known hotel, the management had the courage to charge 70 hellers for a piece of rice cake worth one American cent. The protest of the customers has since then caused the cake to be sold at 40 hellers—after the portion had been cut nearly in half. For a pair of shoes, 80 crowns is asked to-day, on the plea that there is no leather—a fictitious plea, which is all the more absurd since the uppers of such a pair of shoes are made of a textile fabric.

THE PROMISE OF VICTORY

(By Rev. Thomas Hannan, C.F.)

Strength in war is not absolute, but relative to opposing forces, and when Germany burst into Belgium and France, in 1914, she was at the height of her power, however much her supplies, human and material, have since increased. For then the Allies were at their weakest. Yet Germany was stopped and failed to obtain that decision which was essential to her.

As the war has gone on circumstances have become progressively more and more unfavourable to the Central Powers. The allied countries have correspondingly strengthened their position and in particular the emergence of Great Britain as a first-class military power has been a disastrous and probably unforseen blow to German policy. The heroic defence of the early armies on Western and Eastern fronts gave a breathing space in which the Allies were able to build up their present preponderence in men and munitions, creating new armies and new industries. All this time the Central Powers were forced by a mixture of political and strategical motives to attack incessantly, and, in the decisive theatres, to attack unsuccessfully. They have wasted their strength the while the Allies have been increasing it. These are great material developments; but they would have been impossible without equally great spiritual and moral developments.

We can see the rise of the spiritual element. In 1914 the cry was "business as usual," a very material cry; but at the same time the finest elements in the country were rushing to avoid compulsion; it was the time of recruiting meetings, with fervid enthusiasm. In 1916 every man became a soldier; in 1917 there is a miraculous spiritual force inspiring men and women to any sacrifice and to every effort. Britain is facing the fact of becoming materially poor, and is thereby becoming spiritually rich. She will emerge from this war, with a position among the nations, and especially among the smaller nations, for whom she is making herself materially poor, enhanced beyond all possible expectation. We are not yet at the apex of our effort. We are only making towards a realization of universal national service after two and a half years of war. In spite of the German claims to what they call "geist," their national inspiration is sordid and material, while universal service in Great Brtain is based on moral and spiritual force. Germany could not win against us when we were unprepared, and now all the signs are that we are on the rising tide, while the Germanic confederation is on a falling tide.

Some have supposed that a revolution in Germany would end the war. I do not believe it. The military machine has Germany in its grip. The revolution will come afterwards. There can be no revolution in Germany while the army is in the field; there can be no revolution unless the army mutiny; it cannot mutiny until defeat has broken its discipline. We shall defeat it soon, and then the machine which created Kaiserdom will probably kill it. When we break the western line the end will come rapidly. Batteries and battalions will fall back on top of each other; Frenchman and Briton will have the hand-to-hand grapple which they love, and which the German fears.

Here are a few of the signs of the times; The Vienna Reichspost says that the recent peace offer was compelled by the Austro-Hungarian government. The frontier correspondent of the Amsterdam Telegraaf reports a strike of 17,000 men at Krupp's. Herr von Loebell's proclamation as described in the Vorwarts, indicates great food shortage. Marshal von Hindenburg's order, admitting failure at Verdun, and deploring the loss of moral in his army, is strong evidence of German decay. The German colonies are gone. The only assets of Germany at present are the U-boat campaign and the occupied territories. Their last loan was a failure; look at ours.

We are not yet at top strength; but we are nearing it. We are all falling into line. We have provided the money, and there is more behind. On the western front men and munitions are accumulated in overwhelming quantities; and yet Britain is full of soldiers, while her civilian population is only asking to be shown what to do. Our Prime Minister is frank and is assuming nothing but that we cannot be too strong. We are alive to our dangers, our needs, and our possibilities. Concentration on our object is all that is wanted now—"a long pull, a strong pull, and a pull all together," it used to be said. We may now say "a long push, a strong push, and a push all together." And that is why I say "Victory is coming, complete and final."

SHACKLETON BACK, WILL ENLIST TO FIGHT GERMANS

EXPLORER'S PARTY THOUGHT WAR WAS OVER WHEN THEY REACHED CIVILIZATION.

NEW YORK. — Lieutenant Sir Ernest H. Shackleton, the Antarctic explorer, has arrived in this city and will stay for a few days before going to England to enter the war.

Relating his adventures in the Antarctic during more than two years of exploration Sir Ernest, who left England on his last expedition to the South Polar regions on October 28, 1914, said:

"The war had just begun, of course, and I offered my services to the King, volunteering to abandon the expedition, but the King told me that I would not be needed. So we sailed away—and were out of communication with civilization before anything unusual for war time had occurred. I did not hear from the world until May 20, 1916, when I landed at New South Georgia. I had heard nothing of the events of the war for about 20 months and the first question I asked the Norwegian agent who greeted me was, 'When was the war over?' He told me that the war was still going on, and then for the first time I heard of the sinking of the Lusitania, of poison gas, liquid fire and the extent of the fighting and killing in Europe and Asia. All that people in civilization had learned of gradually day by day, as the occurrences were reported, came to me with cumulative force — most of it in one conversation. The men with me and I felt as if we had been asleep for a long time, and had suddenly awakened to see the whole world changed."

"The Little Bees" Of Little Belgium

MONTREAL, April 30—Miss Charlotte Kellogg, an American lady recently returned from Belgium, states that practically all the children of Brussels are now cared for by an organization known as the "Little Bees."

"I visited one crowded cantine," she states, "where every day the women had to carry up and down a narrow ladder stairway all the plates and food for over 400 children. Each cantine has its own pantry or shop with its precious stores of rice, beans, sugar, macaroni, bacon and other foodstuffs brought in by the Commission for Relief in Belgium.

"The weekly menus are a triumph of ingenuity, they prove what variety can be had in apparent uniformity. Naturally they are all based on scientific analysis of food values, and strictly follow physicians' instructions. One day there are more grammes of potatoes, and other more grammes of macaroni, in the stew. One noon there is rice for dessert, the next phosphatine. This phosphatine (a mixture of rice, wheat, maize-flour, phosphate of lime, and cocoa,) was originated by the Little Bees. They have a factory for making it.

"These children of the cantine are all in need of special nourishment. One of the most striking effects of the war has been the rapid increase of tuberculosis. Many of the thousands in the cantines are the victims of 'glands' or some other form of this dread disease. To combat this menace, 125 physicians are contributing their services to the "Little Bees" in Brussels alone. Excluding the zone of military preparations 26,500 children from three to seventeen and over 53,000 babies under three months, are on their lists, besides a large number of adults."

But the backbone of the whole system of relief is the Belgian Relief Commission, and the Belgian Relief Commission is badly in need of money to carry on its beneficent work. With out the contributions gathered in by this Commission, and distributed in the form of food, the Belgian nation will be wiped out. The Central Belgian Relief Committee, 59 St. Peter Street, Montreal is making an earnest plea for subscriptions. These may be sent direct, or to any branch committee, where [illegible]

C Keepem Applies For Position Of Official Dog Catcher

The Applicant Claims to Have Speed, Endurance, Both Fore and Hind Sight, An Elastic Constitution, a Firm Purpose to Succeed—The Modus Operandi.

To the Editor:

Sir,—I am so constituted that I anticipate public wants. Indeed, I go further, when permitted, and forestall public needs.

That motive is my motive for intrusion at this critical time. I wish to apply for the position of official dog catcher. Not a catcher of official dogs, d'ye mind, or understand, but to officially corrall the canines of the general public.

I am advised that there is large need for such an official. I further hasten my application that the position may not be offered to others. I am so impressed with a desire to forestall such a proposition that I offer myself, holus bolus (if I may be permitted the expression) in this great and emergent public service.

I believe that I am possessed of the attributes to make a success of such a profession. I have speed, endurance, both fore and hind sight, an elastic constitution, much assurance and a firm purpose to succeed. In short, I am the man from Galway.

The function of overtaking recalcitrant dogs should not be thrust upon our police. Such duty would not, it seems to me, enhance the dignity of the Force. The spectacle of one of the very finest charging along the street, head up and tail over the dashboard, if I may be allowed the expression, would not be nice. Anyway, as is proverbial, the police would have no clue.

LISTEN TO THIS

I am sure, after careful study, that I see possibilities and perplexities in this crusade that are not apparent to others. For instance. My view is that I shall make speed, even hurry, after a dog, decorously of course, not in unseemly haste so as to alarm the neighbourhood. It strikes me that such course is a judicious one, lest the owner come out with a club or the matron with fervent water. I shall throw over a dog a species of net, quite a complicated affair, but efficient in my hands, and reason with him or her, as the case may be. I am pursuaded that gentleness will prove a surprising factor in success. You will perceive that I wish to retain the esteem of the dogs, with many of which I am personally acquainted. Having caught my dog, it will be for others to annihilate. I positively refuse to be either an executioner or an incinerator.

I shall require all motor traffic in proximity where I am carrying on the duties of my profession to be stopped instantly. If the people incarcerated in the cars will halt, sit tight and contemplate the scenery and things in the shop windows I shall have a very fair field for the practice ohtfe niceties of the art. Success and dogs must both follow.

I can promise that I shall be more than discreet. If a dog manifest strenuous objections—and there may be dogs lost to all sense of what is decent—that he be not caught, why I, in a gentlemanly way will not press my attentions on him further. To all owners of dogs destroyed or decapitated, I will send a note of personal regret, and in some very accentuated cases, accompany my regrets with flowers. I wish to set an example in this great public service that will reverberate from the Atlantic, roll across the Western provinces and make quite a splash in the Pacific, if it ever gets there.

Please assist me and I will at once take it up. If I cannot make it I will pass, turn it down or call for a new deal. I make use of the simile of the game in which I have no doubt, as any gentleman may, you are versed or possibly an expert.

With a profusion of thanks in advance,

Impulsively yours,

CATCHEM-&-KEEPEM

EVERY LITTLE HELPS A LITTLE BIT.

(Or the City Back Gardener.)

There's lately been some trouble in my house about the prices.
The missus has to pay for things we eat:
The onions and the cabbages, potatoes and the peas;
There's also been a row about the meat.
And so I have decided that I'll grow the things myself,
Though I haven't got much garden I'll admit,
But if I can only cultivate an onion and a pea,
Every little helps a little bit.

I'll go out in the morning and I'll hire a man and team;
I'll have him plow my little piece of lawn,
And after he has harrowed it I'll sow an onion seed;
I'll also plant a seed of early corn.
I was reading in a paper that my health would be improved
From the exercise I'm sure to benefit.
I shall save a nickel twice a year I spend on Epsom salts;
Every little helps a little bit.

I sent and got a catalogue; I've also bought a book,
To read about the things I'm going to grow;
And so, that I shall be exact, I bought a two-foot rule
For measuring the depth the seeds to sow.
And when the sun has gone to rest I'll use electric light
As helping them to grow; 'twill be a bit.
Although my seeds are early, if they gain a half an hour,
Every little helps a little bit.

I'm longing for the summer when the things are fit to eat;
The missus and the kids will be all smiles.
The neighbors all will envy me; they'll wonder how it's done;
I'm sure to be the talk around for miles.
And when the season's ended, if there's anything to spare,
I can store them through the winter in a bit;
If it's only just a cabbage, a potato and a bean,
Every little helps a little bit.

—C. Cutbush.

High Court Will Not Sit Until After Harvest

Arrangements Made So As Not to Conflict With Farmers' Work

PETERBOROUGH SITTINGS COMBINED

The jury and non-jury sittings of the High Court will sit in Peterborough on October 30th.

Most of the jury and non-jury sittings in the province have been arranged by the High Court of Ontario to take place after the harvest so that the work of the courts will not conflict with the all-important work of production.

This, it was announced at Osgoode Hall yesterday, has made it necessary to combine the jury and non-jury sittings in almost all cases. It is not intended that this arrangement will be permanent, and it has been devised only to meet the needs of the present situation. When a separate non-jury sitting is provided the profession is requested to enter all non-jury actions at this sitting as the jury cannot be extended beyond the week assigned. A speedy trial of any case entered at Toronto will be granted when the parties consent to what a case of urgency is shown at any time between Sept. 17 and October 26. Additional sittings will be arranged for such cases. Applications for a special sitting must be made before Mr. Justice Middleton. In the event of a day set apart for national thanksgiving, any court fixed for that day will be adjourned to the next following day.

EXPERIENCED FARMER WANTS WORK ON FARM

An experienced farmer residing in the city is willing to engage with a farmer near the city who is short of help. He will be able to give four or five days a week, but desires to return home every night.

Head Tax Only For Those Who Remain in U. S.

TORONTO, May 1.—Mr. W. B. Howard, District Passenger Agent of the C. P. R., stated yesterday that the head tax of $8 under the recent amendment to the United States immigration laws, places no restriction upon legitimate travelers between Canada and the United States, and that it is a case of the United States taxing what Canada does not want.

"The eight-dollar tax will be collected from a Canadian who is going to make his residence permanently in the United States and not from travellers of one year's residence in Canada who are going to the United States temporarily, he said.

No Head Tax on Tourists.

"If a traveller carries a thirty-day round ticket, it would be taken by the inspector that he intended to stay only this length of time, or a summer tourist ticket to California with a limit of ninety days would be accepted as a temporary residence of ninety days," said Mr. Howard, who explained that such an interpretation of the act was a matter for the immigration inspector at the port of entry.

The tax will be collected by ticket agents from persons they know to be taxable under the act or it can be paid to an agent by any person intending to make his or her residence permanently in the United States. Otherwise, it will be collected by the inspector.

Children under sixteen years of age, travelling with their parents, will not be taxed.

April 1916—$58,177.86.

TO-DAY'S MILITARY NEWS

has received word that his brother, Pte. F. W. Coon, of Belleville, who went overseas with the 59th Battalion, was wounded in the battle of Vimy Ridge.

Members of the Peterborough branch of the Great War Veterans Association are reminded that the regular weekly general meeting of the branch will be held to-night in the club rooms, Room 204, Barrie Building. It is hoped that there will be a large attendance at this meeting.

In connection with "The Khaki Call," the publication for which several returned soldiers from outside the city canvassed Peterborough several weeks ago, it should be thoroughly understood by the public that this periodical has no connection with the Great War Veterans of Peterborough, who receive no financial help in any way from the paper, and who are benefitted by the "Khaki Call" only inasmuch as the members may be assisted by the articles written in their behalf which appear in the paper in question. This explanation is given because there seems to be an impression in the minds of a number of local citizens that in subscribing to the "Khaki Call" they were helping the local veterans financially—a supposition that is far from the true facts in the matter.

MIXED.

A soldier of the C.E.F. was lying out in France,
And as he lay he cast around a wild and wondering glance,
And then, in great bewilderment, he scratched his muddy head
And softly muttered to himself, and this is what he said:

"When first I joined in Canada 'twas in Sam Hughes' Own,
Ten hundred gallant fighting men, a regiment full blown,
We had our brass and pipers' band and buglers twenty-three,
The finest bunch of fighting men that ever crossed the sea."

'Twas thus the general spoke to us and promised us the chance
"To go over as a unit" to the sunny land of France,
But scarcely had we heard his words, and at his humor laughed,
When came the word, "500 will go forward as a draft."

I came across the ocean on the great Olympian,
And hardly had I stepped ashore when other shifts began,
They sent me to the 40th, and then the 53rd,
And promised each to go to France "upon their sacred word."

But each in turn was broken up, amidst its colonel's tears,
And so I joined the 51st and then the Grenadiers,
My father was a Frenchman and my mother was a Mack,
So later when I donned the kilts they nearly made me sick.

I scarcely was a Highlander the matter of a day
When they took me and attached me to the blooming C.F.A.,
The Pioneers, the Engineers and the C.A.V.C.
"I'm darned if I know what I was, nor where I ought to be.

For the Hun to get my number he will sure be going some,
But if that thing should happen it will make the fellows laugh
To read upon my tombstone this poetic epitaph:

"Here lies at rest the body of our poor friend John Canuck,
A private, trooper, sapper, a poor devil out of luck,
Of the Pioneers, the Grenadiers, C.E., C.A.V.C.,
And a dozen other letters, but he doesn't give a 'D.'"

Capt. Birdsall Promoted.

It was announced at headquarters, Kingston, that Capt. E. Birdsall, 40th Regiment, has been granted the temporary rank of Major in the Canadian Expeditionary Force. Major Birdsall has been in command of "C" unit, Military Hospitals Commission command. He is in charge of the returning soldiers and received his promotion while serving in that command. He was at the front for many months with the 2nd Battalion, and his Peterborough friends will be glad to hear of his promotion.

If there is any influence that will affect the local price of milk this summer it is the prospective high price of cheese. In Belleville on Saturday the board price was 26 7-8 cents a pound, an unprecedented high price. This exceeds the best offer of last season. Mr. G. A. Gillespie stated this morning that it was impossible even to conjecture what the market would bring this season. The high opening price will undoubtedly be an inducement to farmers to take advantage of the offerings in the cheese market. A few years ago twelve cents a pound would have been a strong opening, but practically 27c must exceed their wildest hopes. The extent to which the milk supply will be diverted to the cheese factories will be a controlling factor in the price of local milk.

INTERESTING PAPER ON ALSACE-LORRAINE

The members of the Women Teachers' Guild were entertained at the Queen Mary school, on the evening of Friday, April 27th, the tea room being very prettily decorated for the occasion. During the evening the following excellent paper on Alsace-Lorraine was read by Miss Esme Thomlinson:

Alsace Lorraine is the borderland of France and Germany. Its utmost length from north to south is 123 miles. Its breadth varies from 22 to 105 miles. Its area is 5,580 square miles, of which the greater part belongs to Alsace.

From ancient times Alsace-Lorraine was a possession of the Holy Roman Empire. From the 10th century it formed part of the German Empire. In 1648 part of it was ceded to France and the rest fell a prey to the aggressions of Louis XIV, who seized Strasbourg in 1681 by surprise in time of peace. By the treaty of Ryswick in 1697 the cession of the whole was ratified. Thus—as the Germans used to complain—was this fine land alienated from the German people and the command of the German Rhine disgracefully surrendered to the enemy.

German never ceased to be the chief language of the people and all newspapers were during the whole period of the French possession, printed in both languages.

In 1871, after the Franco-Prussian war, Alsace and German Lorraine were, by the treaty of Frankfort, incorporated in the new German Empire. The great mass of the population strongly opposed the change. As a result 50,000 went into exile, refusing to become German subjects.

At this time Germany hoped to bring back the "long-lost brothers" to the common home. It was soon realized that the brothers had become attached to another family. Alsace-Lorraine believed in the supremacy of French civilization.

France signed the Treaty of Frankfort with a knee on her chest and a knife at her throat, for concerning Alsace it read:

Much has been written concerning the harsh methods always employed in Alsace during the German occupations. It is all true. They resulted from tens of thousands of pure-blooded Teutons being sent into Alsace after 1870 to take the places of those who left the country rather than live under German rule. All important positions in this country are filled by German officials. They exerted their best efforts to Germanize the inhabitants.

German became the language of the schools. The streets were given German names. The signs over buildings were printed in German, and even the water taps in bath tubs were compelled to change their French labels—hot and cold.

Many stories are told in Strasbourg concerning William II. On one occasion, when certain manoeuvres in Alsace had gone rather badly, the Kaiser manifested his displeasure by saying to the Mayor of Strasbourg: "Up to now the Alsatians have seen only my good side. I shall show them the other side." That same day in a private gathering, an Alsatian noticed on the chimney-piece of the room a bust of the Emperor. He took it down, turned it round and remarked, "I am anxious to see what the other side is like." He was condemned to four months' imprisonment.

In "the lost provinces," the only thing that makes life endurable is the eternal hope that to their children and their children's children will be given once more the privilege of living under the flag of the Republic.

One writer has said, "No one who has not stayed in Alsace again and again can realize the intense clinging to France among the people, nor the sacrifices made to retain their nationality.

Apparently Alsace-Lorraine is Germanized. It may be asked why these people who are so passionately devoted to France have not emigrated from under the hated German flag. Some have, but in "the lost provinces," as in the Mother country itself, the soil belongs to the peasantry, so that home and livelihood and everything depends upon their staying upon the land.

Apparently Alsace-Lorraine is Germanized. The Germans have not done much to endear themselves, with their striving at Germanization and their compulsory service in the German army.

Previous to the present war, although German was the prevailing language, still, many of the people spoke French. As a rule the peasant in Alsace speaks his own dialect, but he will send his son to the next town to learn French, for the knowledge of the French language is in Alsace the first stage of a true education.

In the University of Strasbourg, Alsatian students do not mix with German students. The Alsatians have rooms of their own, which are transmitted from generation to generation. They have their own beer shops, their own friends and their own associations. Their ways of thinking and feeling, even their whims and fancies, remain truly French.

The great patriotic song of liberty, the Marseillaise, was written and composed in Strasbourg, the capital of Lower Alsace. Its first strains were heard there. For many a long and weary year it has not sounded in the place of its birth. Red and white are the colours of their flag.

The people of the towns and cities adopt the French mode of dress. The peasants have a costume all their own.

The Alsatian peasants wear bright shirts, red or green usually, with two rows of black velvet near the bottom of the skirt. A white waist with a fancy corsage completes the dress. A shirred black silk apron is worn over this gay skirt. The head is adorned by a huge black silk bow called the "Alsatian bow."

In Lorraine the peasants wear the red or green skirt, the black silk apron, a shawl over the shoulders and a dainty little cap, closely related to our boudoir caps.

The youths and maidens of Alsace-Lorraine usually have a two years' acquaintance before marriage. The majority of girls are married between the ages of twenty and twenty-six.

For the three weeks before a wedding, a framed announcement is hung out on the front of the city hall and another is hung at the back of the church. If the contracting parties live in different towns or attend different churches a similar document must hang in each. Every town in which either party has lived for the six months previous to marriage, is likewise favoured.

This announcement includes the date of birth, place of birth, occupation and present abode of bride, of groom and also of their parents.

Needless to say runaway marriages are rare.

The evening before the religious ceremony the young people in company with two witnesses, visit the Mayor and answer numerous questions. The Mayor signs and seals the agreement.

The marriage is celebrated for two days. On the morning of the first day the ceremony is performed and the happy couple leave that evening. The bride wears either a black silk dress or a white silk with a white veil and orange blossoms.

An Alsatian bride supplies the linen and all the household furniture. The wedding dinner, however, is provided by the parents of both bride and groom.

The women are provided with such quantities of linen and clothes that washing is reduced to two or three operations a year. This event occupies three days, one for soaping the clothes, another for washing and a third for rinsing and hanging up.

The smallest transactions of life are seasoned with German authority. On deciding to take a roomer, the fact and the day of his arrival must be made known to the police, also his occupation. The second day might incur a fine. The day of his departure and his destination are also reported immediately. Visitors to the home are of like interest to the police.

The population in 1914 was about 1,900,000, three-fourths being Catholic and one-fourth Protestant.

The German system of compulsory education of every child above the age of six was introduced directly after the annexation in 1871.

About half the land is devoted to agriculture and about one-third to forest. Part of the people are busily and prosperously occupied in the manufacture of cotton and woolen goods chemicals, dyes, machinery, etc. The famous D.M.C. embroidery cotton is manufactured in Alsace.

Alsace-Lorraine produces much wine, grain and tobacco. It is rich in mines of iron and coal.

It contains the important cities of Strasbourg, capital of Lower Alsace, Colmar, capital of Upper Alsace, and Metz, the capital of Lorraine.

To the Frenchman and to the French woman, Lorraine will ever be particularly holy ground because of its having been the birthplace of Joan of Arc.

In 1871 Alsace-Lorraine became an Imperial land, not a self-governing state like other states of Germany, but a territory subject directly to the Empire and to the Emperor.

The Lieutenant-Governor representing the Imperial Government resides at Strasbourg and is assisted by a ministry of five departments and a Council of State.

Since the Present War

This beautiful and fruitful land is once more a vast battlefield.

After hostilities had begun, thousands of Alsatians, living before the war in Alsace and Lorraine, arrived in France to offer their services. As was to be expected, many of those who tried to escape were shot by the German sentinels on the frontier. Others less fortunate were compelled to fight with the Germans.

At present the use of the French language is forbidden in this territory. No uniform, or other dress is to be worn, and no decoration or ornament displayed in public or private which is recognised as French. Hotel and lodging house servants are to communicate with the guests only in German. The penalty prescribed for disobedience to any of these injunctions is twelve months' imprisonment. A barber was fined for using a French sign instead of a German term. Certain athletic societies were dissolved because their bugles were accused of having a French sound. The hatred of the Germans for the language of France follows it even to the grave; not even inscriptions on tombstones may be written in French.

The subject of "the lost provinces" is the one nearest to every French heart. In Feb., 1917, we remember reading that the tri-colour again waves over all that portion of Alsace known as the Higher Rhine. The prevailing feeling among the population of the reconquered territory is fear. That fear is entirely a fear that Germans will come back. Until the title of ownership is settled all Alsatians, tame and wild, have rather a feeling, with artillery booming over their heads, that they are between the deep sea and the devil, the latter being Germany.

When the war is over, and the provinces are once more restored to the bosom from which they were torn so ruthlessly, then the hopes and dreams of the freedom-loving people of Alsace-Lorraine will have come gloriously true.

Sub. Menace Very Serious

Overshadows Question of U. S. Soldiers For Front at War Conference

Special to the Examiner:

WASHINGTON, May 1.— The German submarine menace overshadowed even the question of sending American soldiers to the front at the war conference of the Allies here to-day.

The British expert, Lord Eustace Percy, informed the American government that the shipping problem takes precedence over every other war problem at the moment.

"The situation is very serious," he said.

Britain's standardization plans, it was made known, were placed at the disposal of all the allies at the war parley.

"Germany is sinking ships faster than the allies are building them," said Lord Percy.

"I cannot give you the figures, but they are appalling."

The United States has submitted an estimate of the tonnage it can build, and Canada has informed the allies that it is preparing to build small tonnage wooden ships.

In the meantime the biggest inventive brains of three continents are at work scheming to beat submarines at their own game.

City Will Buy Seed To Sell at Cost

STRATFORD, May 1—As a means to further promote production in home gardens, the City Council will procure a car of seed potatoes from New Brunswick, and place them at the disposal of the citizens at cost price. The question was introduced by Mayor Monteith, who referred to the seed potato question as most serious. The price of the potatoes delivered would range from $4.22 to $4.30 a bag, only one bag being secured by one party. The price heretofore in the city was from $5.50 to $6 per bag.

McLAUGHLIN SALES

McLaughlin motor car sales have taken quite a jump in this city during the past week. Mr. Andrew Brown, of the firm of Messrs. A. Brown & Co., the local dealers for the McLaughlin, reports that he has sold seven new McLaughlin cars within the past seven days. The field of motordom has been pretty well worked over by prospective buyers, recently, and many eyes have been making careful surveys of the new spring 1917 models, with the result that the McLaughlin "valve-in-the-head" has scored quite a success. Mr. Brown also added that he has quite a few excellent prospects ahead in addition to the sales reported, and that he only wishes there were two motor shows in the year instead of only one.

Symptoms of Rabies In Port Hope Dogs

Council Decrees that all must be Chained or Muzzled.

PORT HOPE, May 1.—The town has been experiencing a rabies scare and the police have shot several suspected dogs. The heads of two of these were forwarded by Dr. S. Dickinson to the Veterinary-General at Ottawa and were pronounced as having symptoms of rabies of the most virulent type. The Government sent an inspector to make further investigations and in consequence Mayor Mulholland summoned an emergency meeting of the Town Council, which passed a by-law requiring all dogs to be chained up at home or muzzled. An employee of Mrs. Barlow, Cumberland, who was bitten by a dog, has been sent to the Pasteur Institute, Toronto.

St. James' Church Has Debt of Only $1445 Remaining

In a statement of the Congregational meeting at St. James' church last night the Pastor, Rev. B. Greatrix, stated that the Church represented an outlay of $26,627, which was made up as follows: Actual cost of the building, $20,000; gifts from the Charlotte Street Church, $4,727, free labour $1,500, and furnishings by three ladies of the city $500. Including the property and Sunday School it was not an over estimation to place the entire value at $50,000.

Referring to the subscriptions, Rev. Mr. Greatrix stated that the first list amounted to $7,755. Three gentlemen of Trinity and George Street churches had contributed $7,500, making a total of $15,255, leaving an indebtedness of $4,745. Added to this was $2,500 indebtedness on the Sunday School, making a total of $7,245.

At last night's meeting members of the congregation made pledges for a total of $5,800, of sums from $220 all the way down to $10, the money to be paid within five years in half-yearly installments. This leaves a visible indebtedness of only $1,445 on the entire church property.

Rev. Dr. Parker of Belleville conducted that part of the proceedings with a success that was strikingly demonstrated in its results. Among the contributors was Rev. M. E. Sexsmith, President of the Conference, who gave $50. Among the clergymen present were Rev. R. G. Peever, Rev. J. P. Wilson, Rev. R. A. Whattam, Rev. Robert Pogue, Rev. Dougald Brown and others.

The supper, served by the Ladies' Aid, of which Mrs. A. E. Wilson is President, was largely attended, and was in a class by itself among Church affairs. The quality and quantity of the food with the many extras left everyone in the best of humour, testified by the $5,800 given at the subsequent meeting.

No Trouble Over Head Tax

Special to The Examiner:

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., May 1. — Little trouble was experienced to-day when the United States' head tax went into force along the frontier here, most travellers being provided beforehand for the emergency. Fifty foreigners living on this side of the river and working on the New York side were turned back at this point, but were eventually identified satisfactorily to the U. S. authorities.

BYERSVILLE CORPS OF SALVATION ARMY UNDER NEW OFFICERS

The final of the series of meetings at the new Byersville Corps of the Salvation Army was carried out successfully last night under the leadership of Adjutant Burton. The new officers, Captain Hargraves and Lieut. Kent, have now got the reins, and a very full programme has been arranged for the balance of the week and next Sunday.

The new officers had tea at 7 o'clock with their newly transferred soldiers, and now for a forward drive.

KILAUEA SHOWS GREAT ACTIVITY

HONOLULU, April 27.—Intense activity, greater than known heretofore to any Hawaiians now living, was manifest recently in Kilauea volcano, according to reports received here. Kilauea is the largest active crater in the world, eight miles in circumference, and is situated in the southeasterly part of the island of Hawaii, the largest island of the group.

The volcano, enclosed by a circular wall from 200 to 700 feet in height, is a black plain of some four square miles in area, within which is the pit of Halemaumau, about 2,000 feet in diameter, recently empty to a depth of a thousand feet, but now nearly level to its mouth with boiling lava.

A few months ago the life of the volcano could hardly be discerned but to-day the pit is a roaring, boiling, swirling lake of fire of many acres in extent and at night the glow from the red hot lava can be seen all over the island and far out at sea. The fiery lake is filled with spouting fountains that shoot the liquid rock hundreds of feet into the air. The rim of the pit is constantly crumbling eaten away at its base by the surging tide of fire, and tumbling with deafening crashes into the molten mass.

Perilous Feat Reported.

Reports from Hilo record the perilous feat of Professor T. A. Jaggar, jr., director of the volcano observatory, in venturing out on the hot, barely solidified edge of the lava for more than 100 yards to plunge his instruments into the lake of fire for the purpose of ascertaining its temperature. He was successful, and he and his assistants escaped in safety only a short time before the spot on which they had stood was engulfed and became itself a part of the boiling flood.

The temperature of the lake is more than 2,000 degrees Fahrenheit, according to the results obtained by Professor Jaggar. The temperature was found by thrusting into the molten lava lengths of pipe screwed together, into the end of which had been fitted six Seeger cones, conical plugs of fusible clay designed to melt at varying temperatures.

To reach the living lava, Professor Jaggar and his assistants had to scramble down sixty feet over the rim of the pit, holding on to the knife edged crags that had been thrown up by the volcano's activity. One of the party fell when near the bottom, but fortunately regained his feet in time to prevent rolling into a fissure where he would have been consumed in an instant.

Hourly Observations Taken.

Professor Jaggar, who is connected with the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, has spent five years at Kilauea, observing the phenomena of the volcano for scientific purposes. He takes daily, almost hourly observations, makes chemical analysis of the lava, the gases arising from the pit and is endeavouring to deduct from his studies general rules from which to predict volcanic activity and its influences.

The city of Honolulu, the capital of the group, on the island of Oahu, is about 180 miles distant from Kilauea volcano, but there is a population of nearly 50,000 persons on the island of Hawaii, where the volcano is situated. Kilauea is only one of five volcanic mountains on the island, and though not as high as Mauna Loa (Great mountain) on the south, which rises to a height of 13,675 feet, making it the highest volcano in the world, it is far more active than the higher mountain. According to an account of the natives, a violent eruption of Kilauea occurred in 1789, and lesser eruptions as recently as 1907, but confined to the pit of Helemaumau.

REIGN OF TERROR IN BELGIUM

A Belgian business man temporarily established in Canada has just received from Belgium a letter, the following extracts from which have been communicated to us by the Consul-General for Belgium at Ottawa:

My Dear Friend,—

You complain about not receiving any news from me, but that may be easily explained, as we are not able to write. When we do write we run the risk of various penalties (fines or imprisonment) unless we can draw up a letter in such a prudent, clever way that its author cannot be found out and that would take up much time; or again one might send a letter quite meaningless and uninteresting.

I will attempt to give you an idea of the kind of life we are leading in Belgium under the rule of German occupation. I will endeavour not to exaggerate in any way, for even the best cause may be spoiled if the adversary is given a change for a single refutation.

INTELLECTUAL LIFE.

There is no intercourse with the exterior, except through the Dutch newspapers. The Belgian newspapers, with any self-respect, are not published any more, the occupations having laid their hands upon the press. There is a periodical paper published and circulated and read, La Libre Belgique, which stands for the people against German oppression and greatly helps to brace up every heart. The whole frontier is lined with barbed-wire fencing, parts of which are leaded by a powerful electric current (at highest tension and extensive force) so that no one can get out of Belgium without risking his very life. I forgot to say, to be better understood, that this frontier is under military occupation and closely guarded, also that every kind of vegetation has been destroyed for hundreds of metres all along the line. Passports can be obtained only under the most aggravating difficulties. Our streets are everywhere covered by spies, so every one of us must always be prudent and wise. Lots are being arrested, just to show the others what they cannot do. Oftentimes the lights are put out in various streets and many residents have to enter their own house in the dark.

This system has sometimes been imposed as a collective punishment, or in order to save coal waste, or rather to prevent the people from seeing what is actually going on during the night, troops on the march, artillery going by, etc.

You must have heard of the death sentences so brutally executed from the very start. "They" do not boast of them now, but they are still going on under any pretext whatever. Belgians are being shot as spies or for any other offence. They are put out of the way, that's all.

MATERIAL LIFE.

"They" are stripping, if they have not already done so, our stores, our workships, coal and every other thing. They are levying, by means of purchase or requisition, more or less regular, all the country's foodstuffs, and The Hague's conventions are deliberately trodden down. And it is the soldiers who are the purchasing agents — hence the intimidation throughout every small town and every countryside. In short, they are a pack of bandits! "They" are seizing (first step in the requisition line) all copper goods from the inhabitants of the country. Here is a sample of their manner of proceeding: All the goods seized (copper, brass and bronze) may be willingly given up and delivered at the prices officially fixed and set (I really believe they might be paid in notes, redeemable after the war); those who wait until being requisitioned will not be paid now, and those who may resist and bring upon themselves legal costs for the forcible resistance must stand the said costs. And there you have it!

GREAT AMERICAN INVENTIONS, THE "BOXING GLOVE"

John L. Daniels, under the above head, wrote the following amusing definition for the N. Y. Morning Telegraph:

The boxing glove is a large, corpulent mitten stuffed with black eyes, swollen lips and scrap iron, which the fighter puts on his hand before investigating the sarcophagus of his enemy. The fighter does not know the difference between an oesophagus and a sarcophagus, but after colliding head on with an assiduous boxing glove he usually has more use for the latter than the former.

The glove is about the size and consistency of an infant sofa pillow, but is very deceitful, carrying in its graceful upholstering the backfiring kick of an excited and rebellious auto crank. When properly applied to an adversary's countenance it will make him see stars, losers' ends of purses, defeat, and other fireworks not down on his regular menu.

The boxing glove is tied to the wrist with neat buckskin thongs, so the wearer may still retain it after he has rammed his arm to the elbow in the throat of an opponent. This is fortunate for the recipient of the blow, preventing him from filling up with unretrieved gloves in addition to wrath, indignation and swallowed teeth.

Take Out Sting.

Primarily the glove was designed to take some of the surprise and sting out of the left jab and uppercut, but after it is attached to the fighter he placidly works the padding up under his armpits, so his knuckles will still protrude like the sudden and ferocious rockers of a chair encountered in the dark.

The boxing glove is divided into a major and minor section, the first being intended for the fingers, while the smaller stall is reserved for the thumb. With this reinforced thumb an expert boxer, when the referee is not looking can easily push an adversary's eye back into his brainpan and otherwise upset the regularity of his features until his own dog will bite him when he gets home. The palm of the finger portion is corrugated, making it possible, when applied to the other fellow's frontispiece to rake his forehead around into his right ear and disturb his nose until it playfully dangles from his chin.

The padded mit is mightier than the pen and sword together. It has frequently raised a youth with no literary or military attainments from driving a truck, to driving a sixty horsepower touring car. Many a struggling boy, through a judicious use of his glove, has distributed his opponent's anatomy over a twenty-four-foot ring and waked up next morning to find himself with as large an earning capacity as a four-track railroad. Also, many another mitt slinger has waked up next day to discover himself in a hospital with a long list of injuries, an automatic doctor's bill and an aversion for solid food.

Thought Stimulant.

The glove is a great thought stimulant. It will cause a man to think of more excuses than a poker playing husband confronted by his wife at 3 a.m. When assaulted by a glove a man may sit down with a shocked and startled air right in the midst of the ring and the festivities, but he will arise with a string of ready explanations running all the way from chilblains to lack of training and the chance wallop.

However, the boxing glove will stand for all time as the one reliable cure for insomnia. It will bring peaceful slumber quicker than one of the six best sellers, and has put more people to sleep than the plays of Shakespeare and Ibsen combined.

Very many new frocks have three-quarter sleeves.

"We Are One With the Allies."

COLLECTION OF WOUNDED.

The collection of wounded in this war is one of the most difficult, as it is the most dangerous, of the tasks. Where the field, as more often than not is the case, is exposed to the fire of the enemy it can only be done at night. The discovery of men lying hidden, the removal of cases huddled in inaccessible and bullet-swept positions, the disgorge out of men half buried by high explosives, the thorough search of shell-shattered ground—all this has been reduced to a fine art by the medical service.

When a wounded man has been discovered and his wound roughly dressed, he is carried back to a dressing station, a place moderately well sheltered from shell and rifle fire, where a medical officer attends to his wounds, and if an operation is immediately necessary, performs it. Antitetanus serum is injected and the man is given food and drink. The great problem then is the passing back of the wounded by the communication trenches, which is as important as the swift and scientific treatment of the wounds.—Exchange.

Fortune Teller On Elm Street Had Big Business

Chief Thompson has had under surveillance for some time a house on Elm street which has become peculiarly popular among many of the women of the city. Finally it was discovered that the occupant was building up a considerable trade in fortune telling. She claimed to be able to read the future of the young and the not so young women who came with their pieces of silver to discover what to[illegible] in store for them. The rates ranged from 50c. to $3.00, probably based on the class or lack of class to the visitors' clothes. Some of the "first" ladies of the city are said to have been among the fortune teller's clientele, and all of them should have known better.

It would make an interesting array to run the names of the frequenters, the fifty cent class as well as the three dollar contingent. But when other innocent amusements are under a cloud these days, this form of pastime may be excusable to every one but the authorities, who may hail the woman and some of the witnesses to the police court. It is understood that this Sybil is a soldier's wife who was eking out the Government allowance by the mystic business she was popularizing.

BIG INFANTRY ASSAULT IS EXPECTED TO-DAY ON THE FRENCH FRONT

France To-day is Waging Her Greatest Artillery Battle of the War to Blast Loose the German Hold on the Crest of Monoucilles, the Gibraltar of the Champagne Plains

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

(By Henry Wood.)

WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES IN CHAMPAGNE, May 2.—France is to-day waging her greatest artillery battle of the war to blast loose the German hold on the crest of Moronvilles, the Gibraltar of the Champagne plains. This greatest battle of the guns began Sunday. It extended over more than eight miles. No Sabbath calm reigned here. It was an inferno of noise and smoke and flame. For twenty-mour hours I watched its progress, standing on a height north of the Vesle Valley. When daylight failed and French observers could no longer make minute observations of the enemy's position, directing the fury of their artillery fire, the French offset the lack of eyes by increasing the intensity of the bombardment. They added two barrages of fire. One was a wall of projectile dropped in front of the German front line trenches. It was to stop all possibility of enemy attacks as well as to blast away German barbed wire defenses and clear entanglements away preparatory to a French advance. The second barrage was at the rear of the German lines. Its purpose was to cut off all supplies and communication. Together the barrages served to isolate the German trench defenders from all human aid. The French carried out this plan over more than eight miles of front, in a spot long previously chosen for their attack. They made this eight miles of German trench work a shell-rimmed furnace. The grand infantry assault is expected to-day.

A WEEKLY REPORT ON FARM CONDITIONS

A Summary of the Conditions During the Past Week—Acreage of Plowing Done is Well Up to the Average—Seeding is Fairly Well Advanced—Farm Labour Scarce.

In view of the great importance of the farm crops for the current year and the consequent interest in their progress, the Ontario Department of Agriculture has made arrangements to have a report from their District Representatives forwarded at the end of each week. This information is received promptly in this way from all sections of the Province and will serve as a reliable guide to conditions in the country.

FIELD CONDITIONS—

The acreage of ploughing already done is well up to the average. Seeding is fairly well advanced on light soils, but the work is backward on heavy land. Notwithstanding the shortage of labour a good deal of spring grain is being put in and will be, oats and barley especially.

Fall wheat, which was more or less set back by heaving, is picking up nicely in many quarters, but some of it is being ploughed up or is being reseeded with barley.

Clover was also injured by spring frosts on undrained land and old fields are looking far from well, while the newer crop is more promising. Pastures are already looking inviting and some cattle are now on the grass.

Vegetable growing is likely to boom this season, judging by the seeding and planting already reported. As an instance of the cost of seed, beans are selling at from $8.00 to $9.00 a bushel. Early potato planting is being rushed, but the seed is very scarce and dear. A heavy seeding is anticipated later on.

Fruit trees have survived the winter well, and are being pruned and given first spraying by progressive owners; but many orchards are being very much neglected.

LIVE STOCK—

Cattle are being sold off rapidly, beef animals fetching from $10.00 to $10.80 per cwt., but surplus horses are changing hands at moderate prices. Sheep are doing well with spring lambs, while hogs are still at a premium, selling at from $15.50 to $16.35 per cwt. Fodders and feeds of all kinds are scarce, and their cost is in keeping with the price of beef and pork. The milk supply is described as being about normal for the season, and dairymen are paying more attention to the care and quality of their herds. Cheese has just been sold to a local Board in Lennox and Addington for 26c a lb.

FARM LABOUR—

The scarcity of farm help is still a serious problem, although the aid of high school students is likely to lessen the strain somewhat. For instance, in the County of Welland from 50 to 60 students have been placed on farms, while thirty boys from Napanee Collegiate Institute have been secured to help in agricultural work. More horses are being used on large implements, and there is much talk about the coming of the farm tractor. Skilled farm labourers, however, are harder to find than ever.

A NEW DRUG WORTH $1,000,000

Will Pick Up a Run-down, Weak, Nervous System in 5 to 10 Days

This new drug is a combination of iron and phosphorus, discovered by a Toronto chemist, who is making a fortune out of it. Doctors, hospitals and the public are using it with wonderful success. The iron combines with the phosphorus, forming a new drug called Bonised Phosphorus with iron. Doctor Mainprise says that just as soon as Bonised Phosphorus with iron is taken the iron is almost immediately taken up by the blood, while the phosphorus is absorbed by the nerves. He also says he can take a person who is all run-down, tired, nervous, weak, and build their system up to normal strength in 5 to 10 days, by giving one to three of these tablets after meals and at bedtime. It has of late been discovered that 90 per cent. of all ailments susceptible to the human race can be traced to impurities in the blood and weak, run-down nerves. To get the taking all sorts of laxatives and poisonous tonics, which only ruin your system, go to the root of all this trouble and strengthen your blood, restore your nerves and your digestion by taking this new drug. Bonised Phosphorus with iron is dispensed by one druggist in each city. F. C. Webber is the agents for Peterborough.

Total Captures For The Month

Special to the Examiner:

LONDON, May 2.—British captured 19,343 Germans and 256 guns in April.

Kindness makes sunshine wherever it goes; it is the real law of life; the link that connects earth with heaven. Would you live in the remembrance of others after you are gone? Write your name on the tablets of their hearts by acts of kindness and love.

When You Eat Bread you are entitled to everything in the whole wheat grain. Dr. Wiley says: "Wheat is a complete food containing all the elements necessary for human nutrition." But be sure you get the whole wheat in a digestible form. Shredded Wheat Biscuit is whole wheat made digestible by steam-cooking, shredding and baking—the best process ever devised for preparing the whole wheat grain for the human stomach. Two or three of these crisp little loaves of baked whole wheat with milk and berries, make a delicious nourishing meal. Made in Canada.

Ton of Counterfeit Coin Is Destroyed

The United States Treasury Department have completed destruction of nearly a ton of counterfeit coins representing a fictitious value of $80,000, bogus United States currency of $75,000 face value, and about $3,000,000 counterfeit Mexican paper money, all seized by Secret Service agents within the last year.

This was the largest single quantity of counterfeit money destroyed for a number of years, and represented the unusually important captures in the last year, mainly on the Pacific coast. The currency was burned and the coins made principally of lead, were melted and will be used for window weights.

Will Take Immediate Possession And Title Of All German Vessels

Senate Passes Resolution to Take All German Vessels Here—Means of Sending Troops to France—600,000 Enemy Tonnage Now Ready For Use Would Answer Transport Question—Will Carry Food Supplies.

WASHINGTON, D.C., May 2.—The Senate passed the administration's joint resolution authorizing the President to take immediate possession and title of all German vessels within the jurisdiction of the United States, or the vessels of any nation with which the United States may be at war.

The action was hailed enthusiastically by government officials as a long step taken in the solution of the momentous problem facing this country in transporting America's army to France.

Similar action will be taken by the House, it is expected, with the next few days and the way cleared for the administration to put the German vessels already seized into the service of the government.

Supporting the resolution, Senator Knox, of Pennsylvania, declared it "would be not a blunder but a crime to hesitate in taking the step to meet Germany's ruthless submarine warfare." He called attention to the German announcement that the submarine campaign had destroyed 1,600,000 tons of ships in sixty days, and asserted that there is an "almost equal amount in our ports which should be made the target of these attacks."

SHIPS ARE READY NOW.

During debate on the resolution the fact was brought out by Senator Hoke Smith, of Georgia, and Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, of Massachusetts, that the 600,000 German tonnage previously seized by the government was ready to be put into commission this week, or ready now, in fact. Further information bearing on the question was abruptly shut off by Senator Gilbert M. Hitchcock, of Nebraska, democrat, of the Foreign Affairs Committee, who demanded that the Senate doors be closed.

Marshal Joffre gave as one reason for favouring the sending of a small American force to France at first, rather than attempting to send an army of 500,000 men, the fact that the transport problem with the larger force would be too great.

The German vessels already seized, government officials say, would be a great asset in transporting troops to the Continent. Some of the larger vessels, such as the Vaterland, are capable of carrying 5,000 or 6,000 troops.

MAY CARRY FOOD SUPPLIES.

While the administration has not divulged its scheme, the remark of Senator Smith that the German vessels probably would steam this week indicates that the administration already has arranged to utilize the great merchantmen in carrying food supplies to the Allies.

There are more than thirty Austrian vessels in the country, it is said, which will be seized as soon as the government declares war on Germany's ally.

For six hours behind closed doors the Senate debated the administration's resolution, finally adopting it without a roll call in amended form.

Mr. Overman, of North Carolina, said that the Committee on Judiciary was ready to report a bill on this subject. The debate then dealt with the legal aspects of seizure.

"I believe," said Mr. Lodge, of Massachusetts, "that the President has full authority now, without any action by Congress, under the war power to take possession of those ships and I hope he will do so. Then we can pass resolutions and discuss international aspects of them and we can take the question into court afterwards.

"WE WANT SHIPS NOW."

"But we want those ships now. Every hour is of importance. I have not any question of the President's power. There is not any power on earth that would question our title except Germany and Austria and we are going to settle that question with them in other ways."

Mr. McCumber, of North Dakota, objected to pushing the bill to enactment and said:

"The idea on the other side of the chamber is that by overfeeding the submarine you can destroy it."

Mr. Hitchcock, of Nebraska, active leader of the Committee of Foreign Relations, said that the subject was manifestly one for secret session and on his motion the doors were closed.

GREATNESS OF THE POTATO

Those who were familiar, "in the piping times of peace," with a certain beautiful playing field hard by a certain Old World town in the Thames Valley, near London, will learn with regret that it has been given over to potatoes. "On Saturday and Monday I passed through it," writes a correspondent, "and it was full of people digging their own particular patches: workmen, gentlemen and women, all together, and you see men of every class passing down the roads with their tools on their shoulders." Surely, never before in its somewhat checkered history, did the potato have such greatness thrust upon it.

The story is one of a derelict hop garden in Kent, of a neighbouring camp of soldiers, and of the War Agricultural Committee. It tells how the War Agricultural Committee took note of the derelict hop garden, and approached the military authorities at the camp, intimating certain views; how the military authorities took up the matter with enthusiasm; how 500 men marched to the hop garden with bands playing; how in two hours the poles in fifteen acres were pulled up, and stacked ready for removal; how the soldiers were played back to their billets by the band; how a check was forthcoming for their labours; how, next day, a steam plow was hard at work, and how, within a very short time, what was once a hop garden was planted with potatoes. Somehow, the whole episode is reminiscent of the famous "King of France" He marched his soldiers up the hill,
Then marched them down again.

Fight To Break Will of "Diamond Jim" Brady

Frank E. Hipple, as attorney for Mrs. Mary E. McGee, petitioned in the Surrogates' Court, New York, for leave to intervene in the matter of the will of James Buchanan Brady. Mr. Hipple asserts that Mrs. McGhee is the daughter of Mrs. O'Neill, a half sister of Mr. Brady, and as such is entitled to one-third of his estate if the will is broken. The other two-thirds, he says, will go to the brother and sister of Mr. Brady. The properties are worth more than $4,000,000 and are left by the will largely to charity.

A Surrogate will sign an order today to show cause why Mr. Hipple should not have permission to intervene and begin a will contest. In the event that no adequate reason is presented to prevent him a contest will be begun at once, alleging that Mr. Brady was incompetent at the time he executed his will, on January 16 of this year.

English Is The Tersest Tongue

The phrase "Wait and see" has bothered the French newspaper correspondents in London lately, declares the Manchester Guardian. No account of the crisis, of course, would have been complete without it, yet only one correspondent, M. Condavier, of the Journal de Geneve, has attempted to translate it. His version is: "Attendez, et vous verrez ce qui arrivera." Thirteen syllables against three; It is a curious fact, always brought out for instance, by the polyglot version of the resolutions of international societies, that English is the tersest language in Europe. The English version on such occasions is always much shorter than the French or Italian. At the beginning of the war, when all cables had to be in English or French, the Italian and Russian correspondents in London chose English and found their cabling expenses much reduced.

Anaemia, or blood turning to water, is caused by the heart becoming deranged, and if the heart becomes weakened it cannot pump the blood as it should. As a result the blood becomes impoverished, and it loses its nourishing qualities. The face becomes pale and thin, and the lips bloodless. There is a weakness, tiredness and loss of weight.

When those suffering from thin or watery blood start taking Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills they can see a change from the outset.

Every dose introduces into the blood those vital elements necessary to make it rich and red. The pale cheeks take on the rosy hue of health, the weight increases, and the whole being thrills with a new life.

Mrs. R. J. Grey, Fredericton, N. B., writes: "When I was a girl working at general house work I overtaxed my strength and became completely run down. For over a year I was very bad with anaemia. A friend told me to try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills so I got a box and when it was done I decided to get six more. When I had taken them I gained not only in strength, but in flesh and colour, and best of all was good health."

PAKENHAM HEAD OF CRUISER FLEET

Made a K.C.B. for the distinguished part he took in the Battle of Jutland, when he commanded the Second Battle Squadron, Rear-Admiral Sir William Pakenham has been appointed to succeed Sir David Beatty in the command of the Battle Cruiser Fleet.

Born in 1861, Sir William comes of a good old North Country stock. One grandfather was Sir Tatton Sykes, the fine old Yorkshire sportsman, whose name is still held in loving remembrance all over the country, and beyond; the other was the Earl of Longford.

Very early in his career Pakenham showed the sort of stuff he was made of. The ship on which he was serving as a midshipman was steaming out of a harbour in Cyprus when a seaman fell overboard. Without a moment's hesitation the seventeen-year-old "snotty" jumped into the sea and succeeded in saving him.

Ten years later he made a plucky effort to repeat the feat at Kiel. A warrant-officer missed his hold of the foreyard while at drill and fell into the water. Pakenham went in after him, but this time he was unsuccessful, the man sinking like a stone.

King George has a strong personal regard for Admiral Pakenham, dating back from the time when they served together in the old Canada on the North American station. Our King was himself a "snotty" in those days, and the two were great chums.

The new commander of the Battle Cruiser Fleet has served all over the world — on the Australian Station under Tryon, in the Pacific, in the Mediterranean and on the China Station.

As Naval Attache to Japan he was in Admiral Togo's flagship at the Battle of Tsushima, when a shell burst near him and killed and wounded several men. Pakenham ran forward and helped to carry the injured below, his white uniform being plentifully smeared with blood in the process. Going down to his cabin he quickly changed, and was on deck a few minutes later calmly watching through his glasses the progress of the fight.

In appearance Admiral Pakenham is slim, and exercises the sailor's privilege of cultivating a well-trimmed beard, which, together with an unusually heavy moustache, makes him look perhaps a trifle older than he really is. His face, however, has none of the sternness we usually associate with naval commander of high rank, a merry smile lurking almost continually in his clear grey eyes.

FEARED BREAKDOWN IF PRISON-CLAD

Special Report Sent to the Minister of Justice on Prisoner's Condition.

OTTAWA, May 1.— Thomas Kelly, the Manitoba Parliament buildings contractor, and now confined in Stony Mountain Penitentiary, was the subject of two enquiries in the Commons yesterday. Dr. Molloy, of Provencher, asked if his prison treatment had differed from other inmates and if any request had been made for his liberation. Hon. C. J. Doherty said that when Kelly was received at the penitentiary the cutting of hair, and wearing of prison clothing were postponed and special privileges given on the erroneous understanding that judicial proceedings were still pending.

When it was ascertained that there were no longer judicial proceedings affecting his case, directions were given for his identification, haircutting and prison clothing, but the execution of these were postponed on the recommendation of the prison surgeon, who certified that in view of Kelly's condition, any change in his treatment would precipitate a nervous breakdown.

Requests for Kellys' release had been made, on account of his age and poor health.

It is understood that a special report to the Minister of Justice on the condition of Kelly has been forwarded. The decision of the Government as to Kelly's release will be based on this report.

RECOVERY OF NEW JERSEY WOMAN

Due To Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Bridgeton, N.J.—"I cannot speak too highly of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for inflammation and other weaknesses. I was very irregular and would have terrible pains so that I could hardly take a step. Sometimes I would be so miserable that I could not sweep a room. I doctored part of the time but felt no change. I later took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and felt a change for the better after the second day. I took it until I was in a good healthy condition. I recommend the Pinkham remedies to all women as I have used them with good results."—Mrs. MILFORD T. CUMMINGS, 24 New Street, Bridgeton, N. J.

Such testimony should be accepted by all women as convincing evidence of the excellence of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as a remedy for the distressing ills of women such as displacements, inflammation, ulceration, backache, painful periods, nervousness and kindred ailments.

SPAIN PLANS FOR TRADE

Hopes to Make Cadiz a Great Port for Transatlantic Traffic.

MADRID, April 3. (Correspondence of The Associated Press).—While most of Europe is at war, Spain, detached, neutral, and far removed from the actual fighting, is putting her house in order for the period of reconstruction and revival which will follow the war. It is recognized that the fighting nations, comprised virtually of Western and Central Europe, will be heavily burdened, if not prostrate, financially and in many other ways, for a generation or more after the war. This is true also of most of the neutral European nations located in the midst of the fighting, like Switzerland, Holland, Denmark, and Greece which, though neutral, are so near the area of disturbance that they share many of its burdens.

Spain is the one European country so far removed geographically from the conflict that she feels little or no direct effect from the war. Life in the cities and the interior goes on as usual, with little or no change in industry, production, labour, finance and all the other branches which are being drained to the limit by the need of fighting men and supplies in the countries at war. The submarine scare looked threatening for a time, but this has almost passed, for Spanish industry is getting the coal it needs to keep the wheels in motion, and Spanish exports which fear the risks of ocean transport are getting out by new land routes eastward to France and thence across the Channel to England.

With Spain this normal, while the rest of Europe is abnormal, she is in a position to look over her economic resources, bring them up to a more modern standard, and be ready for the important part she expects to take after the war. She is doing this in all branches of activity, particularly in modernizing her railroad system, developing her merchant shipping, improving her ocean ports, and considering new trade routes with the outer world which may make Spain the highway and commercial link between Europe and America, and between America and the vast traffic coming and going to the Mediterranean. King Alfonso is taking a direct personal interest in this development, and his views are shared by the Ministry and by public men without distinction of party. While details cannot at present be given, it can also be said that American capital and enterprise are likely to play an important part in this development. Thus far British, French and German capital have been doing most of the development in Spain, and have not done it well, while now the appearance of this new factor of American capital promises a new order of things for Spain.

A new system of Spanish railways is now receiving very full consideration in the highest quarters, with some of the master builders of America taking an important part. Spain is one of the few countries of Europe where the railroads are not owned by the State, but are farmed out to private parties on concessions. These are supposed to give mutual advantages to the concessionaries, to the State, and to the public. But in actual practice concessionaries have received most of the benefits and have given the public a railroad system of the most antiquated type, with old-fashioned ramshackle cars and excessive fares for trips which are made as long and roundabout as possible.

There are about 15,000 kilometers (about 10,000 miles) of railway in Spain, or an average of about a mile to every thirty square kilometers. This is almost the lowest average in Europe.

One of the chief purposes of those who are going over the situation here is to connect one of the great seaports of Spain by a fast modern railway route with Madrid and thence to Paris and across the continent of Europe. Geographically these seaports lie much nearer to New York and other American ports than Liverpool, Havre and the old-established ports, so that distance and time would be saved by American travel to Europe via a Spanish port. The Spanish Government was quick to see this, and gave its encouragement to establishing a great port at Vigo. This plan has not gone ahead, however, as engineering difficulties of an insurmountable character have been encountered. But a far more important route is now being considered, with the famous Port of Cadiz as the central point.

Cadiz has a splendid natural harbour eaqual to Liverpool or Havre. It is a natural supply and distributing port, not only for Spain but for Western Continental Europe. It is proposed to link it with a thoroughly modern railroad, on American lines and with American backing, running straight to the great centre of Continental Europe, via Madrid and Paris. It is calculated this will be of a great saving of time over the old northern routes, both in the sea voyage and the land transit.

It has not escaped attention in this regard that the war is probably going to make many changes in the German routes and German lines. These lines have always been handicapped by having to start from Hamburg and Bremen, far removed from Western Europe. The French gave them grudging permission to touch at a western port, Cherbourg, and the English at Plymouth. But at both points lighters have to be used for passengers and freight, making the landing costly and difficult.

"And do you suppose," said a very prominent Spanish official, "that France or England will ever again give Germany even these scant landing privileges in Western Europe after the bitterness of this war? What, then, is more natural and even necessary than that the great trade roues and lines formerly developed by the Germans must seek Spain as a landing port of Western Europe?"

WOMEN SHOULD GET THIS HABIT AS WELL AS MEN

Happy, bright, alert—vigorous and vivacious—a good clear skin; a natural, rosy complexion and freedom from illness are assured only by clean, healthy blood. If only every woman and likewise every man could realise the wonders of the morning inside bath, what a gratifying change would take place.

Instead of the thousands of sickly anaemic-looking men, women and girls with pasty or muddy complexions; instead of the multitudes of "nerve wrecks," "rundowns," "brain fags" and pessimists we should see a virile, optimistic throng of rosy-cheeked people everywhere.

An inside bath is had by drinking each morning before breakfast, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver, kidneys and ten yards of bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour fermentations and poisons, thus cleaning, sweetening and freshening the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

Those subject to sick headache, biliousness, nasty breath, rheumatism, colds; and particularly those who have a pallid, sallow complexion and who are constipated very often, are urged to obtain a quarter pound of limestone phosphate at the drug store which will cost but a trifle, but is sufficient to demonstrate the quick and remarkable change in both health and appearance awaiting those who practice internal sanitation. We must remember that inside cleanliness is more important than outside, because the skin does not absorb impurities to contaminate the blood, while the pores in the thirty feet of bowels do.

MAYBE HE'LL SLIP, TOO.

OURDAILY SHORT STORY

The Cure of Joel White

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1916, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

Joel White had lived to be forty-five years old and had never seen a live elephant, a lion, tiger, a bear or any of the wild beasts kept in zoological gardens or carried around the country by circus menageries.

Joel White bought butter, eggs, hides, potatoes and other things of farmers and shipped them to New York. He was known as a quiet, honest man and had the respect of all. He had been in business five years when the time came that he had to go to New York city. When there he went to the zoo. The place was a great surprise to him. He was fascinated. Instead of making a visit lasting two or three hours, he spent the best part of three days looking at the beasts and birds, and then could hardly drag himself away. When he reached home he could talk of nothing else to his family, and he had a certain wildness of eye which his wife did not like at all. However, he went to bed at the usual time and slept quietly through the night.

When Joel arose next morning and sat down to breakfast he looked at the food placed before him with great contempt and said to his wife:

"This is no food for a lion. Go down to the butcher shop and bring me five pounds of raw meat!"

"Why, what do you mean, Joel?" she asked in astonishment.

"I mean that I am a full grown lion and that I shall kill half a dozen persons during the day."

The wife ran out and got three or four men, and when they entered Joel retreated to the back yard and there reared and snarled and pawed the earth like an angry lion. Two doctors came and examined him, and the verdict was that he had gone temporarily insane. The man-lion was guarded at day and night and next morning looked and acted as sane as anybody. He did not remember that he had played the lion, and the doctors said that no one must tell him. He went to business and for three days was all right. Then he awoke to declare that he was an elephant. The attack came upon him just as he had left his gate behind him to go to a store. He began swinging his right arm as an elephant swings his trunk, and he sent forth trumpet blasts.

Joel's elephantine fit lasted two days and then suddenly left him. He picked up his business at just the point where he left it and did not seem to realize that he had lost any time. Then he began to "perform" again, and his "performance" created a sudden and great shock.

Joel White was a member of one of the churches and was always in his pew of a Sunday. He was there on this particular Sunday, and he was a close listener to the sermon. When it was about half done Joel suddenly sprang to his feet and yelled out:

"Look out for me! I have turned into a rhinoceros!"

With this he began running up and down the aisle. The people rose up and hurried out as fast as they could, but he bumped against a full score and sent them sprawling.

The doctors were very doubtful if he would recover from this last illusion. For two days he remained sullen and silent and did not seem to recognize even his wife. Then he awoke, as it were, and was his real self again.

When Joel came to himself again he was plainly told of his past performances. He was utterly astonished. Those things were blank to him, and he wept over them. So great was his earnestness that it was feared to give him a last chance. If he played too on that town any more he must be shipped off to the state asylum.

One morning Joel was nailing up a box in front of his store. As he worked away at the box he suddenly emitted a sound between a hiss and a cackle, and, throwing away the hammer and nails, he cried out:

"Tom, I have been turned into an ostrich! And don't let them pluck out my feathers!"

With that speech he went running up the street with long strides, and the town was soon in an excited state again. Joel hadn't committed any damage when he came across a tin peddler's rig which was standing in front of a house, and the peddler himself had just come out of the gate after a call.

"Look out! Look out!" cried Joel as he came striding up. "I have been turned into a ostrich, and if I kick you once I shall break all your ribs!"

"Look out yourself!" shouted the peddler. "I am an ostrich myself, and if there is any kicking to be done you bet your boots I shall have a hand in it!"

Joel made an awful kick at him, but missed, and in return was fairly turned around by the shoe which struck him. Then he received two more kicks and escaped a third by starting off on a run. Seeing that the peddler was after him, he leaped a fence and came down on his head on the other side.

At first it was believed that Joel's neck was broken. When that was found not to be the case the doctor looked for concussion of the brain and found it, and Joel White was borne to his home and remained in his bed for long weeks. He had no illusions when his senses came back, and he had none when able to go to business again. In fact, he is alive and rational today, and all he has ever said about it was the muttered words:

"Darn that old ostrich!"

HIS CONSIDERATE WIFE.

It Is Too Bad That We Can't Hear Her Side of the Story.

She never abuses us to outsiders. When she is talking to other women she pretends that she doesn't care for the things she actually needs.

"I am ashamed," she says to us—"I am ashamed for them to know how you treat me. No other man would allow his wife to wear the clothes that I have to wear. Other men tell their wives to buy things, but if I waited for you to tell me to buy something for myself I wouldn't have a new dress between now and doomsday.

"And yet I tell people that you urge me to buy things. I know I will have to answer for it, but I do it on account of the children. I don't want them to be humiliated by growing up in a community where people know how their mother is treated. Yes, that is all I have heard since I married—debts, debts, debts. I don't know what in the world you would find to talk about if you were out of debt.

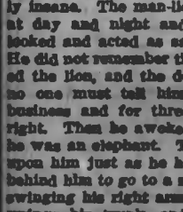
"I could write to my people to get money to buy the things I need, but I am ashamed to let them know what you are. Oh, you can't see it—you can't see anything.

"I just wish you would point to one thing I have bought this season—just point to one thing I have bought. Oh, yes, that suit—that suit is all you can think about. I guess you wish I hadn't bought it. I guess you wish I didn't have anything at all to wear.

"Yes, I bought a pair of eight dollar shoes, but did you want me to go barefooted? You wouldn't care if I did. If there were any shame in you, you wouldn't treat me the way you do.

"What about that hat? Yes, that's what I say—what about it? Ought I to have gone without a hat? That is just the way you always are—when I try to say a word about anything you call attention to everything I ever have bought. It hurts you so much for me to buy anything that you never quit thinking about it—never quit wishing I had done without. There isn't another woman"—

—Claude Callan in Fort Worth Star Telegram.



DON'T PUNISH the sick child by forcing him to swallow nauseous oils and mixtures. Children dread these remedies, and this leads them to hide the little ills until serious trouble results. Most of childhood's troubles originate in constipation and disorders of the stomach. To correct these conditions you will find nothing better than Chamberlain's Tablets

One tablet at bedtime will do the work and make your child bright and sunny the following morning. The liver is stimulated, the stomach cleansed and the bowels purified—safely and gently. Little folks appreciate them.

CHAMBERLAIN'S TABLETS
Good for children

Isn't This True?

When you "feel mean"—dull, tired, nervous, bad digestion, no appetite—

Don't you find out, afterwards, that your bowels were not acting freely and naturally?

Take two or three pills—once. After that, only one, until your're all right.

Convict, Burglar And Bridegroom

Detective Fishel of New York, saw a man enter a pawnshop at Third avenue and Forty-Second street yesterday. His face seemed familiar, and Fishel quickly identified him as Elmer Schultz, a burglar who escaped from Sing Sing Prison Sept. 11 last.

Fishel walked into the shop, displayed his shield and said:

"Come on down to Headquarters. The boss wants to visit with you."

"Now, ain't that too bad?" observed Schultz. "And me only married a few weeks. This'll be a knockout for the madam."

He went quietly to headquarters. There he said he "might as well tell all about it."

"The getaway job was easy," he said. "I hid in the condenser room, stuffed the siren whistle with rags, shinned over the wall when I saw the way clear and dropped into the river. I swam three-quarters of a mile to a safe landing place and then hit the rails south.

Policeman Let Him Pass.

"I'd walked twenty-two miles to Hastings, when I bumped into a copper. 'Hey, where are you going, all wet like that?' he says to me. 'Oh, my boat tipped over and I'm going home.' I says, and he goes on about his business.

"Knowing I'd need some spare change, I went into a house and took $500 and some diamonds and other jewellery. I blew in the money in New York and then sold the junk. It didn't take long to go broke again.

"Being broke, I enlisted in the navy under the name of J. Ford, but I didn't stay long. The work didn't just suit me, and I beat it at the end of two weeks. They got after me hot foot for deserting, and when they caught me, which was right off the bat, they gave me sixty-three days in the brig."

Schultz said he served just one day of that sentence. Getting out was "like taking candy from a child." Once free, he said, he went back to Hastings, where he "turned off" a house for $350 and several rings. After that he went from place to place making a good living by his wits.

Stole to Pay Wedding Expenses.

Three weeks ago, being about to marry and needing cash, he returned to Hastings, where he made a haul of cut glass. He sold this and got enough to pay his wedding expenses.

"Where do you and the madam live when you're at home" asked Detective Fishel.

"At No. 72 Townsend avenue, Laurell Hill, L-I," replied Schultz. "If you bulls go over there be easy with the wife."

Capt. Herbert Graham went to the address and found Mrs. Schultz an attractive woman of twenty-one. When she was told that her husband was an escaped convict she became hysterical.

After she had calmed down Mrs. Schultz said she had met Schultz in Manhattan, where she worked in a bakery, and after a rapid-fire courtship he married her in City Hall April 8. He seemed to have saving habits and they started a bank account. He was kindness itself, she said. After the police had searched the room, the young woman departed, saying she was going to her parents in Manhattan. She told Capt. Graham, Schultz had informed her he worked in a Fourteenth street poolroom.

No Pistol-Carrying for Him.

Capt. Graham found in the room two watches, three rings, two watch chains, three jewelled lavallieres, and two bracelets. On Schultz Detectives Fishel found a bank book showing a balance of $125, a ring with three large pearls, a signet ring with the initial 'C,' a diamond pin and five cartridges.

"I see you have no revolver," said Fishel.

"You see right," responded Schultz, "The last time I carried one on a little affair the man I went up against nearly killed me. Nothing doing in the revolver line."

The police have asked the Warden of Sing Sing to take back his guest.

HAD INDIGESTION
COULD KEEP NOTHING ON STOMACH

After a meal you feel that you must get rid of that nasty, bilious, burning sensation; that souring and rising of the food which is so unpleasant and in many cases very painful.

It is not necessary for you to be troubled with indigestion when Burdock Blood Bitters may be so easily obtained. This old and well-known remedy, which is a combination of nature's best roots, herbs, barks and berries will cure indigestion and all stomach troubles.

Mr. Lazare Savoy, Pokemouche, N. B., writes: "About two years ago I was troubled with indigestion that bad I could keep nothing on my stomach. I was sorely disappointed in everything I tried to relieve me. At last a friend advised me to try Burdock Blood Bitters. I took four bottles and can now eat anything that is set in front of me."

That grand old medicine, B.B.B., has been on the market for the past forty years, and we claim, without any fear of contradiction, that it is the best cure for all stomach troubles.

FORD TRACTOR IS EXPECTED TO AID IN CROP WORK

DETROIT MANUFACTURER WAIVES PATENT RIGHT AT REQUEST OF BRITAIN TO HELP ALLIES.

DETROIT, Mich., April 28.—Henry Ford, at the request of the British Government has waived the patent rights on his tractor to permit the Government to manufacture them in large quantities. The request came after the British Government observed the action of Fofd tractors that are now working 24 hours a day in fields in England and France.

To enable the British Government to proceed as rapidly as possible with the manufacture of the tractors in factories that have already been commandeered for the purpose the specifications of every one of the hundreds of parts in the tractor have been cabled to England, Mr. Ford bearing the expense of the cable, which amounted to thousands of dollars.

The success of the tractors in England and France has encouraged Mr. Ford to hasten preparations for their manufacture in this country. He hopes to have between 25,000 and 30,000 of them in use in the United States before August 1. A large force of draftsmen is now at work at the plant in Dearborn, preparing diagrams and specifications so that they can be submitted to manufacturers in all parts of the country.

These various manufacturers will make parts from which the tractors will be assembled. Mr. Ford expects that many manufacturers will observe President Wilson's request for unselfish service and will co-operate with him to get the tractors out as rapidly as possible. "I do not expect to receive a cent for the work I have done for the British Government," said Mr. Ford."

"England needs food and the tractors will help provide it. I expect that in time the little tractors will make every community self-sustaining and when that is done a great deal will have been accomplished toward bringing peace into the world. I am a pacifist, but it may be that militarism can be crushed only with militarism. If that is so I am in it to the finish."

The tractors are being used not only for dragging plows and hauling, but for many other purposes. At the experimental station they have been used for running saws, threshing and other work. The tractor develops 26 horsepower and runs on alcohol, gasoline or kerosene.

CADAVERS NOT HUMAN

PARIS, April 26.—The French press is greatly stirred over an article, taken from the Berlin Lokal-Anzeiger and reproduced by the Independence Belge, about a German factory for extracting chemical products from the corpses of German soldiers.

The story is credited by all the papers except the Paris Midi, which prefers to believe, till further proof is offered, that the corpses in question are those of animals, not human beings.

Two reasons for not crediting this story until further proof is forthcoming are that the account of this factory was published by the German paper early in April, and may be an April fool joke, which it is customary for German papers to indulge in and that the German title of the factory is given as Kadaver Verwertungsanstalt.

"The expression "kadaver" is never employed in current German usage to mean a human corpse, which is invariably referred to as "Leichnam." The use of this French sounding kadaver seems to indicate something distinct from what is known as "Leichnam." This deflection of the original meaning of a foreign word, especially in technical terminology, is very frequent in German.

L'Oeuvre, in a leading article, makes great fun of the journalists here for exhibiting such gullibility, coupled with ignorance of the German language. The writer points out that the use of the word "Kadaver" and shows it has been used before to signify dead animals in the advertising columns of the German press. Meanwhile the local papers, including those published in English, are still playing up the story, expiating on the "ghoulish practices of the Huns," even hinting that they will shortly be reverting to cannibalism.

King George Works From Railway Coach

Few people have any idea of how much work the King gets through in the course of a day in these busy and strenuous times. Not long since King George had engagements that kept him busy without a break from 9.15 in the morning until 7 at night. His lunch that day consisted of a couple of sandwiches eaten in his motor car when journeying to inspect a military camp.

When the King is inspecting munition works, hospitals and military centres in different parts of the country he will often travel two or three hundred miles in the day. On such occasions he travels with half a dozen secretaries and with three or four officials of the royal household.

Two special saloon coaches are put on the train, one of which is fitted up as an office, with three large writing tables for the secretaries, and during the outward and homeward journeys that part of the royal correspondence is attended to which requires the King's personal attention and supervision.

Not long since the court circular was issued, for the first time, from a railway train. The secretariat [illegible] is provided with a telephone [illegible] ious stopping places the [illegible] connected with a telephone [illegible] and the King can receive the latest news from the various government officials at Buckingham Palace.

It was during a railway journey some little while ago that the King received the intelligence that the son of one of his oldest friends had received the Victoria Cross. The news was sent direct from the War Office, and the King at once telegraphed his congratulations to the boy's father.

If he cannot get back to London in time for dinner at Buckingham Palace, a meal is served in the train during the homeward journey.

What is called the "train" dinner menu is always the same—soup, cold beef, salad, fruit, coffee. This dinner with the necessary appliances in the way of cutlery and linen, is made up in a large basket at Buckingham Palace and sent in the royal train in charge of a servant.

Since the war began King George has refused to make any engagements of a private nature. His public and official duties take up the greater part of his time, and often he is called upon to attend some ceremony of which he knew nothing the night before.

BREAD UP IN ST. THOMAS.

ST. THOMAS, May 1.—The price of bread advanced in St. Thomas yesterday. Loaves weighing one pound, which sold at nine cents, advanced to 10 cents a loaf. The small loaves under twelve ounces were raised from five cents to six cents. The city aldermen also claim that the price of gas will advance in St. Thomas owing to raise in gas coal.

IF FOOD DISAGREES DRINK HOT WATER

When food lies like lead in the stomach and you have that uncomfortable, distended feeling, it is because of insufficient blood supply to the stomach, combined with acid and food fermentation. In such cases try the plan now followed in many hospitals and advised by many eminent physicians of taking a teaspoonful of pure bisurated magnesia in half a glass of water, as hot as you can comfortably drink it. The hot water draws the blood to the stomach and the bisurated magnesia, as any physician can tell you instantly neutralizes the acid and stops the food fermentation. Try this simple plan and you will be astonished at the immediate feeling of relief and comfort that always follows the restoration of the normal process of digestion. People who find it inconvenient at times to secure hot water and tasteless who are frequently obliged to take heavy meals, poorly prepared, should always take two or three five-grain tablets of Bisurated Magnesia after meals to prevent fermentation and neutralize the acid in their stomach.

FISHERMAN AND KING.
(Boston Transcript.)

A fisherman can look at a king. He surpasses the cat in the ability to shake a king by the hand. Mr. Tom Wing, M.P., tells how he accomplished one who was awarded the V. C. from a mine-sweeping trawler to Buckingham Palace to receive his decoration from the King of England.

"He rolled along with me in true seafarin style," said Mr. Wing, "until, as we approached the gate, I remarked, 'We must pull ourselves together, otherwise we shall not be admitted.' My gallant friend, who had been chewing a plug of tobacco, took it out of his mouth and carefully put it in his cap.

"It is usual for the King to shake hands with recipients, and when he did it on this occasion my man would not let go. He held on, and to make certain it was all right, he put his other hand on it. Then he looked at his Majesty, as much to say: 'Are you the King, or are you only "kidding" me?'

When we got outside he said it was all like a dream, and he felt for his pipe to make quite sure he was awake."

Weak, Nervous, Anaemic School Children

Are Quickly Restored to Health and Vigour by the Upbuilding Influence of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

PETERBOROUGH, Ont., March 12.—It is only necessary to watch the children coming out of school in order to learn what a large proportion of them are weak, anaemic and nervous. One indication of exhausted nerves is the large number who wear glasses.

The school age is a most trying time because of rapid growth and development both mentally and physically and the added strain of examinations and class rivalry.

Because of its gentle action and great blood forming qualities, Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is admirably suited as a restorative for anaemic, nervous school children.

Mrs. M. E. Robson, 170 Dublin street, Peterborough, Ont., writes: "When about the age of 14 or 15, my daughter was on the verge of a nervous breakdown. She had a very poor appetite, lost all her colour, and at times had a twitching of the nerves in her limbs. I secured some of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and gave her a treatment, using five or six boxes. The results were splendid, entirely curing her of her nervous trouble and [illegible] her appetite. I find Dr. Chase's Nerve Food a splendid spring tonic, and best results to be found by taking some of the Kidney-Liver pills at the same time."

Mrs. James Bigue, 220 Dublin street, Peterborough, Ont., writes: "Three years ago I noticed that our children seemed to be suffering from bad nerves and poor appetites, and were inclined to be anaemic. Knowing the good of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, I started to give them a treatment of this medicine. I found it built them right up, made them bright and cheery and restored their usual good health. I have also used the Nerve Food myself, and found it very beneficial for nerves and heart. In fact, I have found Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to be such a valuable medicine for general family use that I have recommended it to many of our friends and acquaintances."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, a full treatment of 6 boxes for $2.50, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. Do not be talked into accepting a substitute. Imitations only disappoint.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

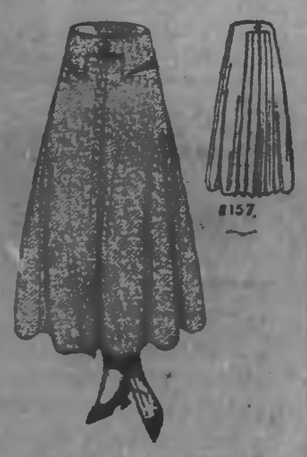
LADY'S FIVE GORED SKIRT.

By Anabel Worthington.

Many smart models in separate skirts for street wear have been brought out for spring, and because of the novel features embodied in those bearing the labels of some of the famous houses abroad the indications are that the separate skirt will be very successful.

Yokes are cleverly introduced in some and the pleated effects are also desirable. The illustration shows a skirt just out, copied from an imported model with yoke and pleated effects combined. The woman who aims to appear well dressed in a suit and blouse will do well to choose this design. From a raised waistline the back is laid in pleats in such a way as to feature the panel in pleated effect. The front is plain, with a tailor pleat down the centre and with buttons at top and bottom to emphasize the straightness of line. The separate front but with yoke influence is the novel feature. At lower edge in belt size 24 the skirt measures exactly three yards.

Silk, satin, serge and pique, cordeline, cotton gabardine, linen and novelty cotton weaves are included in the showings of spring and summer models. Keeping step with fashion is easy enough when the pattern of such garment is laid in pictures for your convenience in copying.



The skirt pattern, No. 8,157, cuts in sizes 24 to 34. To make in size 24 requires 4 yards of 36 inch goods.

To obtain the pattern send [illegible] to the office of this publication.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 15 cents, or 6 for 80 cents.

Address—The Examiner Pattern Service, The Examiner, Peterborough.

THE HOME GARDEN

It is only in recent years that corn has come to be considered a suitable crop for the small garden. The old varieties were of rank growth and of only indifferent quality. Market improvements have been made so that now there are the short stalked, early maturing sorts that are so prized on the table.

One good reason for growing sweet corn is that it loses its freshness very quickly. The ears that were pulled yesterday and retailed to-day by the grocer have already lost much of their flavour. Take them direct from the background to the boiling pot and get one of the choicest treats of the home garden.

Corn may be grown on a vacant lot just plowed up, provided the soil can be broken and subdued in time for planting. Sod ground with a little stable manure gives the best kind of seed bed.

A method adopted among home gardeners to secure extra early corn is to start several dozen paper pots with two or three seeds each in the house toward the end of April. Keep in a fairly warm room and set them out in hills 2 1-2 to 3 feet apart each way when danger of frost is past. Protection may be given during cool nights after setting out. The roots will not bear transplanting operation.

Corn will not sprout in cold soil, so it is necessary in early planting to have comparatively light ground that absorbs the heat of the sun readily. Make up for any lack of plant food by the use of well rotted manure.

Varieties like Malakoff and Cory may be used for the earliest planting which will be about May 12 to 15. Golden Bantam may be started from May 15 onward, depending on the weather. If the tender roots get above ground before the last frosts they may be protected by flower pots or boxes, taking care to leave spaces for circulation of air during the night. Even if it is caught by the frost and cut back without being killed, it will often revive and produce an earlier crop than when seed has been kept out of the ground until all frosts are past.

To get a succession plant at intervals of ten days until late in June using always the varieties that mature quickly.

Planting may be done in drills if a considerable quantity is grown but whether in hills or drills the work should be in straight lines to make cultivation easy. Corn is a shallow rooted plant so that light hoeing or raking is all that is necessary after the crop gets a start. With faithful stirring of the surface there is little risk of corn suffering from drought It is a hot weather plant and flourishes where many other vegetables wilt.

Crows are the worst enemies of young corn when grown at a distance from a dwelling. They root up the young plants soon after sprouting unless kept away by scarecrows or treated to poisoned bait.

Besides the varieties mentioned above there is Peep O'Day, an extra early sort; Crosby Early, Metropolitan, Stowell, Evergreen and Country Gentleman.

PARIS CROWDS SEIZE COAL.

Swoop Down on Waggons Until Police Drive Them Off.

PARIS, April 26.—The coal scarcity and the slight prospect of its being remedied for some time continues to be a vital theme for the press and public. The fact that speculation is going on is not denied and revelations have been made in the press about obtaining coal by means of private intermediaries who ask a high commission. Yesterday passersby in a central street observed ten waggons loaded with the valuable combustible, the sight of which so filled them with fury that in a few moments a crowd had pillaged the contents of two waggons. Finally the police intervened and led off the remaining carts, the contents of which were handed over to the municipal authorities.

In this connection, L'Oeuvre recounts a tragic tale which, for certain reasons, no other papers published. An old char-woman was arrested a few days ago on the denunciation of her employer from whose cellar she stole a few handfuls of coal. The woman, who admitted the offence, was taken to a police station where, according to the regulations, she should not have been detained, but the Commissary was absent and she was locked up for the night. Meanwhile her young daughter, not knowing what had become of her mother, inquired at the latter's employers, where she was informed that her mother was at the police station for theft. The girl hurried there and used every entreaty to liberate her mother, but in the absence of the Commissary her request was refused. Soon afterward the police was informed that the body of a young girl had been picked up on the pavement in a neighbouring street. Papers found on the corpse which was brought in proved her to be the daughter of the charwoman. The next morning the Commissary in resuming its duties, ascertained that the girl had left a letter in her lodging which was an eloquent statement of the motives that led her to suicide.

It is significant that a paper like L'Oeuvre published such a story, as it makes a point of avoiding sensational matter.

NEW BLOW AT U-BOATS.

LONDON, May 2.—Lord Charles Beresford, the Admiralty expert, in a speech here, declared that the navy had devised a brilliant plan to overcome submarines. He gave it as his personal judgment that the plan would succeed. Such an authority inspires especial confidence that the crisis in the U-boat menace presently will be past, and it is strongly believed it concerns an American contribution to the war.

Long silk jerseys in bright colours are favoured.

LADIES! DARKEN YOUR GRAY HAIR

Use Grandma's Sage Tea and Sulphur Recipe and Nobody Will Know

The use of Sage and Sulphur for restoring faded, gray hair to its natural color dates back to grandmother's time. She used it to keep her hair beautifully dark, glossy and attractive. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect.

But brewing at home is messy and out-of-date. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for a 50-cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get this famous old preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients, which can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

A well known downtown druggist says it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, it becomes beautifully dark and glossy.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite for those who desire a more youthful appearance. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

HUN AGRICULTURE FAILS TO PRODUCE DESPITE THE NEED

BERNE, April 30.—The Deutche Tages Zeitung, a German Conservative and Agrarian organ, thus describes the desperate situation of German agriculture:

"The ground is so exhausted that pasturing is seriously threatened. It is almost impossible to sow new pastures, owing to the lack of seed. Clover and Lucerne grass especially are lacking."

The Government is making great efforts to intensify agricultural production. In the Frankfort papers the War Office publishes an appeal to the women to go to the fields and assist the peasants in their work. The generals commanding in the districts where the state of seige gives them unlimited power have decided to advise mobilised men who are able to work in the fields that they will be compelled to do so under pain of forfeiting their locations or holdings. The communal associations in Eastern Prussia have held meetings in the churches at which those attending were sworn to strive with supreme energy to augument agricultural production. Here is an extract from a sermon in a Stallupohnen church.

"The coming five months will decide our destiny. We can hold out only if each gives up without restriction the commodities of which he disposes. If we do not give sufficient our dear Fatherland will succumb to the enemy and its ruin will be consummated."

MAY WORK ON SABBATH.

The Prussian Minister of the Interior has published a decree authorizing work in the fields on Sundays, declaring that the public health imposed the necessity of violating the sanctity of the Sabbath. Agrarians request that the general inventory of the stocks of food products decreed on March 23 last be postponed for several weeks, on the ground that as the farmers are now being employed in the fields the formalities of the inventory would cause them to lose precious time. This postponement annoys the Tageblatt, which says:

"It must not be forgotten that the daily ration of bread since April 15 has been reduced from 200 grams (seven ounces) to 175 grams (6.1 ounces, that the supplementary rations for labourers have been reduced by 25 per cent. and five supplementary rations for children have been suppressed. It is an elementary duty to seize the provisions still hoarded, thus limiting as much as possible the period of fresh privations of the German nation. The impudence of the Agrarians surpasses all limits. The Prussian peasant does not seem to appreciate the gravity of the time nor the imperious nature of his patriotic duty, for he persists in concealing his resources."

TOWN CHILDREN TO COUNTRY

Prussia to Send Her City Youth Away During the Summer.

THE HAGUE, Netherlands, April 30.—The town-bred children of Prussia are to emigrate to the country this summer, not in parties, but in veritable armies, if the latest movement, under the patronage of German Empress Augusta-Victoria, is successful. From the back streets of grim, war-beclouded Berlin and other big cities they are to be transferred for two months to smiling meadows, farms and villages of the countryside.

The Prussian Ministers of the Interior, Education, and Agriculture have jointly addressed a proclamation to the population, wherein they say that greater efforts than last year must be made this summer to accommodate such children. They sum up the advantages which the public interest derives thereform. Fathers at the front and mothers at home are relieved of a burden of care if they know their children are well cared for and their own strength is thereby reinforced. The mothers and sisters of the youngsters get more opportunity to undertake work in the interests of the fatherland. The large towns are relieved of the care of feeding the children, so that there is more food for adults, particularly in the industrial regions. These are some of the benefits enumerated.

A society has been established at Berlin, under the presidency of the Burgomaster of Charlottenburg, with branches throughout the country. The Empress is to be its patroness. Lists are being drawn up for persons who will take one or more children, free of charge, or on payment of 12 cents a day, for about six weeks. The children may be used for "light field work."

THE OLD GARDENER.

Hardy asters ought to be divided every spring, a fact which the average amateur overlooks. The roots are easily pulled apart and should be replanted at once. Beginning with a single plant, the gardener can soon have enough for a bed. Helenums or sneeze weeds and boltonias should be treated in the same manner. If allowed to go more than two years the flowers will begin to diminish in size.

THE FRENCH OFFENSIVE IS GAINING GROUND

NO LARGE MOVEMENTS ON BRITISH FRONT

Germany's Grip On French Soil Is Being Steadily Broken

Hindenburg Throws More Reserves Into Battle But French Are Even Tighter Grasping Moronvillers Crest and Gaining Ground---Halt in Major Operations on the British Front Still Continues To-day, General Haig Reporting No Large Movement.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

(From Henry Wood, United Press Correspondent.)

WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES AFIELD, May 2.—At 12:40 in the afternoon, after a terrific bombardment, the French infantry leaped from their trenches and went loping up the slopes of Mount Haut and Cornillet. Although in the first onward rush the French were victorious everywhere, the Germans gradually put up the resistance of desperation which now characterizes their entire defensive. Hindenburg threw into the struggle another of his "strategical reserve" divisions—the thirty-third out of his total of forty-three reserve divisions on the western front which he has already sacrificed in seeking to check the Franco-English offensive.

Note—The German division formerly contained twenty thousand men, but recent advices have detailed a new organization plan, whereby such units now only include from ten thousand to twenty thousand men.

The French were occasionally driven back, but every time they doggedly re-attacked. Nightfall found them ever tighter grasping Moronvillers' crest, and one of Germany's firmest grips still left on French soil. That grip is all but broken. Germany's fingers only hold a tiny bit of it now.

LONDON, May 2.—Another night of inaction in so far as large movements were concerned, was reported from the British front to-day by Field Marshal Haig. "Between St. Quentin and Lens there was mutual artillerying at night," he declared. "In the neighbourhood of Fauquisart a German raiding party was repulsed." The halt in major operations on the British front has now extended over three days. Meanwhile the armies on both sides continue locked along the Scarpe, neither side being able to gain against the big forces opposing.

AMSTERDAM, May 2.—To date Germany has lost 1,300,000 killed in fighting, according to statistics compiled by Dr. Friedrich Naumann and announced in a recent lecture in Berlin. Naumann estimated that with this and the decrease in the German birth rate, the total German population had been reduced by 3,800,000. The surplus of females over males in Germany he figured, had been increased from 800,000 to more than 2,000,000.

LONDON, May 2.—The second boatload of survivors of the American armed steamer Vactum were officially reported saved to-day. Additional survivors include Capt. S. S. Harris, Third Mate Ed. Husted, the boatswain and four American blue jackets, gunners on the vessel.

LONDON, May 2.—A Turkish official statement to-day says the Russians have evacuated Mush, in Armenia, and that the town has been occupied by the Turks. The news of this retirement by the Russians in Armenia is somewhat disappointing. Any considerable evacuation would jeopardize not only the Russian army in Armenia, but permit Turkey to throw an overpowering army against the British under General Maude in Mesopotamia.

CHANGES IN ADMIRALTY BOARD.

LONDON, Eng., May 2.—There is no official confirmation that Sir Edward Carson has resigned as First Lord of the Admiralty. The Daily Mail, however, predicts important and immediate changes in the Admiralty Inventions Board, of which Lord Fisher is chairman, and the Department of Sea Traffic which directs the courses and routes of British freighters. Lloyd George is giving his undivided attention to the submarine menace problem at present.

COMPULSORY SERVICE NEEDED HERE.

WINNIPEG, Man., May 2. — After a conference with military heads here Major-General Newburgh, Director-General of Canadian Defence Forces, has forwarded to Ottawa their unanimous opinion that compulsion would be resorted to in Canada to obtain men for home and overseas forces.

(By George Martin.)

WASHINGTON, May 2.—If Germany's extended peace proposal includes giving up her strongholds in Bulgaria, Serbia and Turkey, the Allies may look twice at the proposition, it was stated authoritatively here to-day. If Germany offers no concessions in the eastern theatre the Allies will brand the peace move as a fake, because Germany's eastern control would give her a death grip on "a vital nerve centre of the world." It also became known to-day that a majority of the Allies do not expect a permanent peace in the sense of the word that there will never again be a war. They will be satisfied with a peace insured for five or six generations. A peace based on concessions on the western front alone—evacuation of Belgium, giving up Alsace-Lorraine and other similar concessions — the Allies say would mean only exceeding brief peace, a mere breathing spell for the Teutons.

LONDON, May 2.—A denial that Foreign Secretary Balfour had reported from Washington that President Wilson had expressed the opinion that a speedy solution of the Irish problem "would do more to further the fight for world democracy than any other concession Britain could make," was made in the House of Commons to-day. Lord Cecil, Acting Foreign Minister in Balfour's absence, made the denial in reply to queries from Irish Nationalist members.

PARIS, May 2.—Intense artillery fire in the Mont Haut and Mont Cornillet regions, and a successful French raid on German trenches around Eparges, were among the active incidents of fighting on the French front, to-day's official statement reported. The repulse of German attacks in the front between Cerny, Hurtebise and Craonne, was also detailed. French patrols in Lorraine took a number of German prisoners.

BERLIN, May 2.—The failure of British and French advances around Lens and on the Aisne, was reported in to-day's official statement.

LONDON, May 2.—Copenhagen despatches say that the "new peace offers" of Germany, which it was expected Von Bethmann-Hollweg would announce in the Reichstag Thursday, has been "postponed till a more fitting occasion."

An Early Morning Fire Alarm

Prompt action and presence of mind prevented the complete destruction of the home of Mr. D. Solomero, corner Albert and Chamberlen streets. Fire broke out at 3 o'clock this morning, when the rafters caught from a defective chimney. Mr. Salomero persuaded the occupants of the house to go out, and closing the door and windows, rode to the telephone office, where he gave the alarm. The damage done will amount to about $50, as no harm by water was done, but chemicals used.

GERMANY CAN NO LONGER DICTATE THE TERMS OF PEACE

Candid Admission by Theodore Woeff Who Says However That Freedom of Trade Must Be Guaranteed the Huns

A NEW PEACE OFFER

Special to the Examiner:

LONDON, May 2.—German newspaper comment, received via Holland, included this extract from an editorial by Theodore Wolff, in the Tageblatt: "We must openly admit that Germany is no longer able to dictate peace terms. Germany, however, demands a peace that will allow her freedom of trade and independence, and guarantee her economic interests abroad shall be protected, whether they be in Sydney, Yokohama or Antwerp." The Reichstag reassembled to-day after a recess since April 24. At that time the sitting was dissolved amid considerable disorder on account of Socialist demands. To-morrow it is promised Von Hollweg will announce the new peace terms.

GARDEN PROBLEMS

To the Garden Editor:

Can you give me any information on the following garden matters.

1. Is there anything you can put on potatoes to prevent blight?

2. How deep should lettuce be planted?

3. How many potatoes will it take to plant one acre putting them in hills and how far apart?

4. How many potatoes will it take to plant one acre ploughing them in two feet eight inches one way and ten inches apart?—A. C. P. Aylmer street.

Answer by Canadian Horticulturalist:—

1. The only preventative of late blight on potatoes is Bordeaux mixture. This is composed of blue stone or copper sulphate, lime, and water. The proportions used are four pounds blue stone and four pounds of lime to a fifty gallon barrel of water, smaller quantities may be made by adhering to these proportions. The blue stone and lime should each be dissolved in water separately. These can then be poured together in the balance of the water. This is used as a spray on the potatoes after they have made some growth. It is not usually necessary to spray potatoes for late life until about the first of July. This treatment will be expensive this year on account of the high prices of bluestone.

2. Lettuce must not be covered too deeply, probably 1-4 of an inch or less would be enough for lettuce sowed in the open ground. The usual method is to scatter the seed on the ground and rake a little earth over it.

3. About sixteen bushels of cut seed potatoes will be required to plant one acre putting them in hills 30 inches by about 15 of 18 inches.

4. For ploughing potatoes in 12 in. 8 in., by 10 inches will require probably seventeen or eighteen bushels of cut seed per acre.

CHEMONG BRIDGE DAMAGED BY THE HIGH WINDS

The floating bridge at Chemong is in trouble again, but not from the usual cause of ice jams. The high wind yesterday broke the bridge apart a distance of about 20 feet, in the middle, and as the weather condition render repairs impossible, no horses have crossed since, pedestrians being carried over by an improvised ferry. The bridge at Pigeon Creek is also reported to be badly damaged, but on account of the telephone wires being down, no particulars can be secured.

PTE. M. S. KENNEDY OFFICIALLY REPORTED AS KILLED IN ACTION

Son of Mr. and Mrs. Dawson Kennedy Laid Down His Life at Vimy Ridge---Pte. H. F. Baker of 93rd Battalion is Wounded--First Instalment of Extra Pay For Returned Men Will Be Paid at the End of the Month--To-day's Military News.

KILLED IN ACTION.

Pte. Marvin S. Kennedy, son of Mr. Dawson Kennedy, 600 Water street.

WOUNDED.

Pte. Herbert Frank Baker, late 93rd Battalion, Water street.

PTE. MARVIN S. KENNEDY.

Pte. Marvin S. Kennedy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dawson Kennedy, 600 Water street, has been killed in action. The tragic news came in a message from Ottawa received yesterday by Pte. Kennedy's brother, Mr. H. P. Kennedy, of Toronto, who came down to Peterborough to break the news to his parents. Pte. Kennedy was born in Peterborough county thirty-nine years ago, and had lived here all his life up to eight years ago, when he went west. Before leaving Peterborough he was associated with his brother, Mr. H. P. Kennedy in the cattle business. Pte. Kennedy enlisted with the 107th Battalion in Brandon and went overseas with that unit last autumn, afterwards being transferred to the 1st Canadian Mounted Rifles at the front. Pte. Kennedy had twice been offered a commission, but had refused. In his letters home he always expressed his satisfaction at being able to play a man's part in the fight for freedom. A letter received on Saturday, and written on April 4th, said: "You can expect to hear great things within the next three weeks."

Besides his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dawson Kennedy, Peterborough, there are left to mourn his loss two sisters, Mrs. R. J. Kidd, 33 Benson street, Peterborough, and Mrs. R. A. Ward, 67 Rosemount Ave., Toronto, and three brothers, Evangelist H. D. Kennedy, at present at Spearfish, N.D., Mr. H. P. Kennedy and Major F. W. Kennedy, in Toronto.

Hundreds of friends in Peterborough will hear with deep regret of Pte. Kennedy's death. The official message stated that he was killed between April 7th and 10th.

PTE. H. F. BAKER.

Mr. Harry Baker, of the Peterborough Planing Mill, received an official message from Ottawa this morning, that his brother, Pte. Herbert Frank Baker, who went overseas with the 93rd Battalion, is reported wounded on April 9th. Pte. Baker boarded on Water street before enlisting.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Howden, 201 Romaine street, has received the following letter from Major J. C. Davidson, now with the No. 3 Canadian Stationary Hospital in France. The letter reads as follows:

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Howden—

I have only now seen the news of the death of your fine boy in the "Examiner," and hasten to tell you of my personal sorrow and deep sympathy for you. Leslie was one of the nice bright boys of our old 93rd and always seemed quietly happy and good-natured. I have heard nothing of him since leaving Shorncliffe Camp, and do not know into what battalion he was drafted.

The Canadians are about thirty miles or more north of me, and transport is very difficult. In fact it has been impossible for me to visit them, or I would have done so before now. I hope, however, soon to receive permission.

I know that this sad loss will be a heart-break to you both, and I pray God to give you the strength and faith and hope you need. Your boy has been courageous and now you must be so too, hard as it is. Yes it is a great calamity to lose these young vigorous lives. I am deeply sorry for you and his other relatives.

Yours with warm sympathy,

J. C. DAVIDSON.

PTE. MILTON V. BYERS.

Pte. Milton V. Byers, brother of Mrs. J. A. Perry, 316 Maitland avenue, and Mrs. Joseph Ingram, 394 Pearl avenue, has been killed in action. An official message received to-day stated that Pte. Byers was killed on April 9th. He is the son of Mr. Robt. Byers, of Bethany, and enlisted in the 58th Battalion at Calgary going overseas as a member of the machine gun section. For eighteen years Pte. Byers had lived in the west and he was a [illegible] of Chesdale, Alberta, at the [illegible] his enlistment.

Kingston, May 1.—The case of the Crown v. Sergt. G. C. Nelson, who was charged with forging the endorsement on two military cheques, was disposed of by Judge Lavell, who sentenced the prisoner to three months in jail. In giving judgment, Judge Lavell censured the military authorities for the looseness of the system used. He said: "I feel that the lax methods of the paymaster's office exposed the accused to temptation greater than he should have been subjected to and I cannot therefore deal with this offence as severely as might be warranted under other circumstances. Here is a youth 18 years of age, enlisting for overseas service getting little more than $1 a day, arbitrarily placed in a position where he was asked to handle thousands of dollars in cheques so loosely issued and so carelessly supervised that with hardly any skill on his part and but little risk of detection, he could manipulate them to his own advantage. Is it surprising that he failed to withstand such a temptation?

Woodstock, May 2—The Great War Veterans' Association notified the Provincial Soldiers' Aid Commission to-day that in future they would not undertake the responsibility of meeting and providing receptions to returned soldiers, making advances to soldiers' dependents, securing employment for returned soldiers, or in fact assuming any responsibility at all. They take the ground that the government should assume the responsibility and as the body representing the Provincial Government in matters of this kind the Soldiers' Aid Commission.

Ottawa, May 2.—The Militia Department announces that soldiers who have served overseas and have been honorably discharged will receive at the end of this month the first payments on the three months' extra pay and separation allowances which the government recently authorized. The second payment will be made in June and the final one in July, to all returned soldiers discharged up to date.

Payment will be made from Ottawa to all those who were finally paid from Ottawa on discharge. All others will be paid by the Hospital Commission Paymaster of their district.

The Peterborough branch of the Great War Veterans' Association wish to express their sincere thanks to the little tots of the Sacred Heart school, Lake Street, for a contribution to the funds of the Association. Other gifts received recently by the War Veterans and gratefully acknowledged by them, were three plants from Mrs. Perry, and three chairs from Mr. John Jayes.

The War Veterans held their weekly meeting last night with a good attendance present. Among the items discussed was the part the War Veterans will take in the reception to be tendered His Excellency the Duke of Devonshire.

French Victorious Over Desperate Foe

New Offensive in the Champagne Encounters Hard Resistance But is Irresistible in Spite of German Orders to Hold the First Line.

PROGRESS IS STEADY

French Front in Western Champagne, May 1.—There commenced yesterday afternoon another offensive operation on the left of its last brilliant advance in this region—that advance which gave us the chief heights of Moronvilliers, a block of hills to the left of the depression in the French lines running for about seven miles just north of the old Roman road. The west end of this depression is left doubtful; the rest of it has been driven into an extent varying from one-third to two-thirds of a mile, while on the north, slopes have been captured on a like depth. On the north slopes of Mont Haut the fighting at some points was of an extremely severe kind, and it is still proceding. Artillery and their observers have been at work for several days upon that systematic smashing of the enemy's field works without which no infantry movement can now be attempted.

A Country of Observatories.

This sector is a peculiar one. Both sides hold commanding positions. The Germans are on Nogent Berru, the hills about Beine and the village of Nauroy. The French are along the crescent of the heights on the west, south and east. Some of the points rise as much as 600 feet above the plain between, so that from a military point of view it is essentially a country of observatories, this characteristic being qualified by the fact that the plain is patched over with thick woods, mostly a plantation of stunted firs, familiar all over the Champagne. But for this, I suppose, the bringing up of reliefs and supplies would hardly be possible in fine weather, and we are having one of those sudden spells of hot sunshine that are usual in France at the end of April.

"In ten minutes they go," General X said to me at 12.30 yesterday afternoon, and, cool as he is, I thought there was a tremor in his voice. This was not a great battle, but no commander can be indifferent in the moment when his men are going out to meet their fate. The chief line of attack was from the French front, less than half a mile north of the old Roman road, in the direction of Nauroy village. This was supported by lesser attacks on the right and left, and but for thick woods, in and behind which the Germans were entrenched, I imagine it would have been relatively an easy task.

What with the enemy barrage and our advancing curtain fire these woods soon recalled the spectacle of a forest conflagration. Banks of light smoke rolled over them, broken here and there by a black eruption of "coal boxes" and mines heaved over from trench mortars.

By 1 p.m. the advance got beyond the first line of woods and the reaction did not seem to be very serious, possibly because the German gunners were still afraid of firing on some of their own men. After that time they put over an increasing barrage with successive clouds of gas, and later in the afternoon determined counter-attacks were made on the French left. It was here, particularly around the field work called the "Redoubt," north of the Bois Wood, that the hardest fighting has taken place. The tactics of holding the front lines lightly, which the Germans command certainly favored for a time, apparently had been abandoned. Perhaps it favored things by surrender.

I have before me a letter addressed by Gen. von Schumiel, commanding the division on the Aisne last month to the officers of one of his brigades. He says he cannot understand how the officers have got the impression

POTATOES ARE SO SCARCE, PLANTING WILL BE LIGHT

Price Continues to Soar and Supplies Are Exhausted Although it is Claimed by Mr. Burrell There is Plenty

SOME ACTION NECESSARY

In many parts of Ontario united steps have been taken to secure a sufficient supply of potatoes for the gardening campaigns that have been inaugurated. Doubtless the need for this action was as acute as it is in Peterborough where the Garden Club died of congenital anaemia—with the germs of dissolution in its infant frame. Wherever you turn among those who are anxious to plant potatoes you find citizens who are held up by prices of 80c and 90c a peck. This excessive price becames more of a tribute levied upon the industry of householders who should be encouraged even by the interposition of the government in their behalf.

If other cities can succeed in securing supplies of potatoes and other seed to be retailed at a fixed minimum price, is it not possible that similar results can be obtained in Peterborough? Everyone who has attempted to put in a garden is more or less angered by the hold-up to which he has been subjected, by the fact that the potatoes were not in Peterborough. The few car loads that were received were simply doled out after the manner of the delivery of coal last winter.

Something should be done now and should be done quickly if the campaign that was begun in the first flush of Spring. It is entirely inadequate for present requirements to depend upon the dealers when their best efforts fail to secure supplies and to keep the price at a moderate, or even reasonable level.

Hon. Martin Burrell's million and a half bushels have strangely disappeared at the moment the people reached out for them. The following reference to that alleged supply is reported from Ottawa yesterday:

OTTAWA, May 1—Responsibility for any shortage in potatoes for either food or seed purposes in Ontario rests primarily with the Provincial Minister of Agriculture, according to the statement of Hon. Martin Burrell, Dominion Minister of Agriculture, in Parliament this afternoon.

Rising on the orders of the day when the House met, Mr. Archie B. McCoig of West Kent called the Minister's attention to the statement issued by him from his department during the recess, announcing that there was in Canada a large surplus of potatoes. Mr. McCoig asked for information as to where the surplus was, and as to how the commodity could be secured. There was, said Mr. McCoig, a serious shortage of potatoes both for food and for seed, throughout the southwestern peninsula of Ontario, and he desired to obtain official information as to where they could be obtained.

HAD AMPLE NOTICE.

Hon. Martin Burrell replied that when he heard reports of possible shortage he had, toward the end of February last, communicated with every Provincial Minister of Agriculture in Canada, with a view to ascertaining the condition in each of the Provinces. As a result of the reports received, as nearly as could be computed by a conservative estimate, it was learned that there was one million and a half bushels of potatoes as surplus over what was required for food and seed. The surplus was largest in Alberta, Prince Edward Island and New Brunswick. Since this estimate was completed, about half a million bushels have been exported, leaving roughly one million bushels of surplus in the country.

Immediately upon the summary having been computed, Mr. Burrell continued, a summary of the situation was sent to each Provincial Minister of Agriculture, with the counsel that, in event of a likely shortage, he should watch the situation closely with a view to supplying the needs of his own Province.

RECRUITING AND REFUSAL.

That Canadian soldiers in France have been, and are, taking a glorious part in the war, winning battles and winning fame from King and commoner, from militarist and civilian, is not very greatly due to the course of the government in the matter of aiding recruiting. The Examiner has contended that the government has not taken the active official concern in recruiting that the circumstances demanded; and the feeling of the truth of this is as general as it is justified. The fact that we have enlisted over 400,000 of the best soldiers in this war of good soldiers, is chiefly due to the spontaneous voluntary spirit of our young men and to the organization of private citizens to give effect to this spirit. These are two facts that admit of no tenable dispute.

Not only has the government been indifferent towards recruiting, but it seems to have been actively hostile. Sir Sam Hughes may be regarded as a disgruntled ex-minister of war, but with all that has been urged against him he has never been accused of being a liar. Speaking at Lindsay, when his constituents re-nominated him as a proof of abiding confidence, Sir Sam stated as evidence of the government's ineptness and lack of interest in recruiting, that in March, 1916, he was asked by Premier Borden not to press recruiting, as men were more needed for making munitions. Only three months before, on January 1st, 1916, Sir Robert Borden engaged that enough more soldiers should be recruited to bring Canada's total up to 500,000 men. Yet in fulfilment, he puts a damper, by telling the greatest recruiting officer in the government to "slow up" in recruiting, and, as Sir Sam says, recruiting was practically dead, and has been since, and is so to-day. And unless the government takes a new line of action Canada will never make up the difference between the number enlisted and the number of soldiers promised—500,000.

In the first eighteen months of the war the spontaneous voluntary spirit thrust recruits upon the government as fast as they could be mobilised and equipped. When the material of this spirit was exhausted, Patriotic Leagues—private citizens—did their best, and with scant success. They told the government that nothing could be further done in recruiting without the organization and resources of the government being utilised to locate and bring to the ranks the stray volunteers scattered among our population.

The government refused to act, and though recruiting was practically dead, as Sir Robert Borden well knew, for he had been told often enough, he promised another 100,000 men, and to facilitate their enlistment told Sir to slow up on recruiting.

At last the government recognized that something would have to be done if anything was to be accomplished; and issued a decree for the enlistment of a Defence Force of 50,000; and so little spirit and organisation and government bona fidis followed the decree, so little confidence had the government inspired, that the Canadian Defence Force has become a humiliating farce as far as results have come or are likely to come.

In the face of this failure following the decay of recruiting, the government still maintains its do-nothing attitude. It refuses to consider conscription or the application of the Militia Act to fill up the ranks of the Canadian Defence Force. Premier Hearst at Hamilton declared yesterday that the need to win this war was more men. We are getting no more men now.

Canada has enlisted altogether 407,000 men. Of these 300,000 are overseas, leaving 107,000 at home that could be sent abroad if we enlisted or called to service a defence force for home protection. What are we going to do about it? What is the government going to do about it?

A DOUBLE HEADED APPEAL.

President Wilson of the United States, has been doing a deal of talking the past three years, but it has not been in vain, in that it has kept him in training for saying things very much to the point, as he is doing these latter days.

He has issued a proclamation to the people of the United States, which, mutatis mutandis, applies equally well to the people of Canada, besides procuring action by the legislative authorities of his country, looking to something like modified compulsion in procuring a fighting force; something that applies to Canada's securing the defence force, called for.

President Wilson's call to his people has admirable qualities, directness of appeal, and comprehensiveness.

It points out that the raising of an army and making the navy effective—important as they are—are subordinate to the demands of duty made upon the non-combatant population in a hundred ways.

President Wilson of course asserts that the United States people must supply abundant food for themselves, and for their allies in Europe: and ships to carry this food overseas — "submarines or no submarines"—that all men and women in the multiplied activities of field, factory, forest and mine; the industrial and domestic forces of the country, must all do their full share in cooperation and coordination with the fighting forces on sea and land. The President also decrees that—

> The course of trade shall be as unhampered as it is possible to make it, and there shall be no unwarranted manipulation of the nation's food supply by those who handle it on its way to the consumer.

All this constitutes an appeal to us, comprises our duties in every way. It shows the duty and necessity of universal cooperation among ourselves, and with all our allies. But above all this pregnant sentence from President Wilson's proclamation comes with intense appeal to us Canadians:

> This is the time for America to correct her unpardonable fault of wastefulness and extravagance.

This includes Canada and Canadians. We are too wasteful and extravagant in our personal and domestic habits. We should not be so, judged by the standards of ordinary times, but in these days of stress and sacrifice—the days when our soldier boys are making not only the sacrifices of comfort, of ease, of full feeding, of soft sleeping, that we enjoy; (sacrifices the vast majority of us never think of making) but are sacrificing life and incurring wounds. Sad to say, most of us live our normal lives, follow the daily round, quite uninterrupted by any unpleasant variation; we pursue our frivolous pleasures, eat, drink and are merry—without, apparently, one serious thought of the seriousness of the times in which we live, of the serious call of duty that commands us all, from the least to the greatest, to do our part, even it in the humblest way to win this war, in our own interests and in the interests of freedom and humanity.

This appeal, and these multiplied appeals, comes more directly to Canadians, for we have longer been, or should have been, in the fight, and should have gained a deeper, wider, fuller sense of our duty.

We should lay to heart, and put upon our consciences, and live in our actions, the spirit of the words with which President Wilson concludes his message to his people—

> The supreme test of the nation has came. We must all speak, act and serve together.

The Settlement Of Home Rule As A Necessary War Measure

In the centre of Ulster are two counties with a population of a little more than 300,000, and just now they are blocking the settlement of home rule and holding up the British Empire. These are the counties of Tyrone and Fermanagh, and around them turns the problem which is defying the power of British statesmen to solve when the destinies of nations and the future of civilization are at stake. A microscopic bit of territory in Ulster is paralyzing the influence of one of the chief belligerents in the world war; but Tyrone and Fermanagh are mere symbols of the old factions and fights of Ulster. Perhaps it would be truer to say that they are used as pawns for bigots to bargain with. Certain it is that they are at present holding up the home rule settlement.

The particular issue at stake in deciding the question is whether these counties in Ulster should vote as one block or should vote as a unit. Every sane person in England considers that Ireland should remain one political unit. Everyone in Ireland considers that for economic reasons the country cannot be partitioned; but a section of Ulstermen cannot be judged by the ordinary standards of political sanity. The Nationalists consider that Ireland should be one and indivisible, but for the sake of peace they would reluctantly agree to a vote by county whether the people should come under a home rule Parliament or not, confident that no system but one Parliament for the whole of Ireland will work.

Some Oppose Democratic Solution.

Both Asquith and Lloyd George have committed the Liberal party to that policy. The simplest workable administrative unit, the county, has been chosen for the referendum. Bonar Law, the official head of the Conservative party, accepts county option, Sir Edward Carson, the leader of the Ulstermen, is prepared to be willing. But there are strange Orange political troglodytes (cave dwellers) in the North of Ireland, who have never heard of the Russian revolution or of the world war, and they are opposed to this democratic solution. They are, however, prepared to accept county option on terms and have put forward a preposterous proposal which is now being considered by the Prime Minister.

Their terms are that, while exclusion from Home Rule can be carried by a bare majority, inclusion can only be carried by a majority of 55 per cent. This suggestion sustains the Orange theory, held as tenaciously as a region, that one Orangeman is worth more than one Nationalist.

The pettiness of all this is amazing enough, but we must recognize in it the fine art of political legerdemain. Tyrone returns three Home Rulers and one Unionist by an aggregate majority of less than 1,000 out of an electorate of 25,123. Fermanagh returns one Nationalist and one Unionist, but the two Nationalist candidates in the county polled 243 more votes than the Unionist on an aggregate poll of 9,248. It will be seen, therefore, that the device of the Orangemen is to turn a majority into a minority for Ulster inclusion purposes, while leaving the figures the same.

Lloyd George Determined.

The Nationalists are holding aloof from the present negotiations, as they consider that no policy of partition is possible or desirable, and will only accept it under pressure and as a war measure. It is well known that the Lord-Lieutenant of Ireland, Lord Wimborne, and Chief Secretary Duke, who is a Unionist, hold the same views. It is the only rational policy. But as both Asquith and Lloyd George have committed themselves theoretically to partition in order to avoid coercion, the settlement will be along the lines of county option.

Lloyd George is determined to settle the problem. He almost did it last July, and failure then was not due to him, but to delays on the part of Asquith, who showed a too conciliatory attitude toward the anti-Home Rulers in his Cabinet. Lloyd-George had no difficulty with his Liberal or Labour colleagues nor with his Conservative colleagues. Sir Edward Carson's influence as a political force is waning in England, and also in Ireland, as he is no longer able to control his followers.

The overseas members of the Imperial Conference are one and all in favour of Home Rule and immediate settlement for the sake of peace.—Robt. Donald in London Chronicle.

Double Gift To Two Newly Doubled Milk Vendors

Last night the Milkmen's Association was at it again. We have proof that they can do something besides raise the price of milk—they can raise money for handsome gifts to the many members of the association who enter the married estate.

The last occasion, there were two at once— Messrs. Driscoll and Shaughnessy. Last night between thirty and forty of the lacteal league assembled at the residence of Mr. James Shaughnessy, Otonabee. Mr. Driscoll, the other new Benedict, was also present, as well as the two brides. Mr. Hodgson, on behalf of the other members, read the following dual address:

To Messrs. Driscoll and Shaughnessy—

Dear Friends,—We desire to congratulate you both upon the happy circumstances of your marriage and to wish you and your better halves all possible happiness and prosperity.

We have, heretofore, had to singly congratulate members of our Association who have taken the matrimonial responsibility, but it has never before been our good fortune to celebrate a double wedding, meaning double happiness and double congratulations.

We wish to ask your acceptance of these two clocks, which will, we hope, long mark the happy hours of four wedded lives, and, in measuring happiness will be two clocks that tick as one and four hearts that beat as one.

That this twin presentation, of twin clocks may have a like suggestiveness of similar happiness in the years to come, and that these years may have a double share of happiness is the heart-felt wish of the friends you see about you at this time.

Signed on behalf of the Peterborough Milkmen's Association.

A. Hunter, President.
F. Darling Secretary.

The accompanying presentation of two handsome marble clocks was made by Miss Fitzgerald and Miss Hodgson.

Messrs. Driscoll and Shaughnessy acknowledged the gifts in neat and timely speeches, whose happy terms, as well as their good qualities, brought out the singing, with a heartiness that was meant—"For They Are Jolly Good Fellows."

Then followed supper and dancing, and if the happy quartette have wedded lives as happy as their guests spent last night, they are doomed to lives of great happiness.

Britain's Debt Is 18 1-2 Billions; New Advances in Taxes

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, Eng., May 2.— Britain's present national debt is eighteen and a half billion dollars, according to figures included in the budget introduced in the House of Commons today by Chancellor of the Exchequer Andrew Bonar Law. Among the increases in taxation was the fixing of a duty of eight per cent. on excess profits of manufacturers in England, as against sixty per cent. carried in last year's budget and an advance of a shilling and ten pence per pound sterling on tobacco. Twenty-eight millions extra duty will be raised by the tobacco increase annually. Since the war Britain has advanced three billion dollars to her Allies and 681 millions to Overseas Dominions.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

BIG LEAGUE MAY NOT PLAY IN 1918

NEW YORK, May 1.—There may be no major league baseball next year. Ban Johnson, president of the American League, flatly stated his belief to-day that unless peace comes by December and conscription as now planned goes through it will be necessary for the two big leagues to call their 1918 schedule off.

Governor John K. Tener, president of the National League, foreseeing the conscription of hundreds of young ball players, said he did not believe baseball could continue under such conditions.

"Our business is just like any other business," said Tener, "except for the fact that our employes collectively are of military age for the most part. Our business therefore would be affected more than any other. Baseball will have to do its share the same as other walks of life. When the call comes there will be no hesitating. Our men will respond and will be found to be just as patriotic and just as ready to fight as any other."

Ask No Favours.

Johnzon does not expect any favours to be granted ball players when the draft comes, nor does he want them. There are now 214 men in the two big leagues subject to draft.

"Our men are going to war," said Johnson, "and when the call comes we will go at once. There will be no quibbling. Then if we haven't the players we naturally will not have baseball."

CONNIE MACK IS BACK IN RUNNING; HAS STRONG TEAM

NEW YORK, April 28.—"Give us good pitching—not the best, but just good, consistent work in the box—and they'll have to look out for us."

"We've reached the point where we're likely to do anything. We have a club that is peculiar. It is composed of men who can do many things," said Mack. "Everyone of them is different. They're not recognised stars yet. They'll make runs and they'll hit most any kind of pitching. All I need is good, steady work in the box."

Mack said he was depending a great deal on the work of Bush, Meyers, Johnson and Noyes.

"Those boys are fine pitchers and hard workers," he said. "Noyes proved where he belongs when he beat the Yankees in a close game. Bush and Meyers are known to possess ability and Johnson is coming fast.

"I like the work of Bates mighty well at third base. He fills in with McInnes and Witt, two other stars. He will be recognized as a find before the season is over."

Mack's team has ceased to be the joke attraction of the American League. When he broke his old machine into bits and started to rebuild he predicted he would be back in the running by 1917. His sword appears to have been placed on a sure thing, for his team is playing snappy winning baseball.

"I have a team that will hit and fight with the best of them. I'll not win a pennant this year, but—I'll not finish in last place, either," Mack declared.

FATTENED BY BEANS TO MAKE NAVY WEIGHT

Boston baked beans may make a sailor for Uncle Sam out of a New York boy. Thomas Wood, aged 17, of that city, and Arthur Woods, also 17 of Essex street, Weymouth, were arrested in Scollay Square and taken to the Court Square police station as runaways. The boys told the police they were looking for work. Woods was given a job as a messenger boy and then it was learned that Hins, who is of German descent, had tried five times to enlist in the navy, but was two pounds under weight.

Capt. Sullivan of the station, at his own expense took the boy to a nearby restaurant and fed him ten plates or so of Boston baked beans. With the coffee and water the boy drank, it was found that he was nearly two pounds overweight. Captain Sullivan put Hins on a car bound for Charlestown and left him, after exacting a promise he would come to the station if he was not accepted. At noon yesterday nothing had been heard from Hins.

BIOGRAPHY OF KAISER WILHELM

(Ray Hoffman in N. Y. Telegram.)

Kaiser Wilhelm, Emperor of Germany, imposed his presence on civilisation about sixty years ago, and the world has been wearing crepe on its ears ever since.

The stork that was assigned to the task committed hari-kari out of sheer mortification. The second day after he saw day-light he cut a dachshund in half and commanded Krupp to work his plant in four shifts a day. Immediately after his birth was announced eight medal factories were built to make decorations for him to wear.

Nothing of particular interest happened in his life until he got old enough to get jealous of Bismarck, whom he fired without the customary two weeks' notice. Ever since Bismarck stopped punching the time clock the German flivver has been running on flat tires. The versatile young autocrat then conceived the idea that it would be awfully nice to make every man in his empire a soldier.

He then proceeded to muster a large army of mechanical toys, hinged at the hips in order to goosestep properly. At his dictation individual thought was discouraged in Germany and all the average German had to strain his brain for was to say 'Hoch!' when the Kaiser passed by with 700 servants, three dachshunds and 1,000 guards. Soon the army grew so large that a civilian was looked upon in the same manner that a freak is regarded in a museum.

The Kaiser's mustache was clamoring for publicity by that time, and in order to train it upward he wore a powerful magnet on his nose. Being an humble and generous hearted man, benevolently told the Almighty that he would make Him his junior partner and announced to the world that "Me und Gott" would rule it, which was very nice of him indeed.

Possessing a modest and retiring nature, the Kaiser dislikes egotism as only a democratic man like him can. In fact, he hates himself to such an extent that he will not allow a mirror in any of his castles. He has so many uniforms that seventeen adding machines are required to count them.

Under his supervision the German spy system grew to such an efficient state that if Mr. Blubber, of the North Pole, lost a trouser button, the German Government knew it and filed the information accordingly. His idea of the map of the world is one country and that Germany.

Regarding the lobster as good example he believes in moving backward, and if he had his way we'd propose to women by hitting her on the head with a club and eat dinosaurus steak for breakfast. He is so yellow that the sun is getting jealous. He fits in with modern civilisation like a number ten foot fits in a number five shoe. The world would regard it as a great favour if he'd surround himself with a wooden overcoat.

DRIFTER CAPTAIN BLINDS HUN SUB. WITH COAL SHOVEL

WASHINGTON. — In an exquisitely turned little speech the head of the French Mission to America paid his first formal tribute to the people of America to-day.

The circumstances were somewhat trying. M. Viviani speaks no English and brought suddenly face to face with the necessity of expressing deep emotions and strong convictions to those who understood no word of what he was saying, he might have been excused for hesitating.

But those who expected anything of the sort reckoned without the savoir faire of a French statesman. With all the enthusiasm and clarity that he might have used in the Chambre des Deputies in Paris, he addressed the small group gathered to hear him. His message was of necessity a formal one; words of greeting and thanks, a graceful allusion to ancient friendship and a tribute to the President. Straight from the heart came the message from France—France suddenly attacked, making the fight for the world, battered, shaken, bleeding, but hanging grimly on, and to-day nearer to her goal than ever before.

Being what it was and in the conditions under which it was given, M. Viviani's statement could be little else than formal and general in character, but it was delivered with a telling force and conviction, with little driving gestures of both hands and with an eloquence that was the more impressive because of its restraint.

BRITISH ADMIRAL'S STORY.

Just by way of contrast there was a talk with Admiral de Clair of the British party in the morning. Here was a man with a tremendous story to tell—twenty-two months of submarine chasing in the North Sea—who simply could not find words in which to tell it.

Here was a situation which the Admiral had never been called on to face before. Tackle a submarine or a swarm of submarines, live for weeks on a bucking patrol boat in the middle of the North Sea winter, meet death face to face a dozen times day and night—all that was easy. But sit down and describe it all! Was ever seadog so badgered and flustered, and generally laid aback as this before?

You had to fish in deep waters to get the story of those twenty-two months; in fact you had to fish with the aid of a diving suit. There was about the narrator all the naivete, literalness and positive genius for understatement that goes with his class.

But, reading between the lines of the story you get the reward. You get a picture of the Admiral, with his flag fluttering from a converted cruiser, in command of a squadron of all sorts and conditions of ships, blithely setting forth during the flat calm and burning sun of August, just to see what he can see.

And then the calm of August changes to the howling gales of December and January and February and March—in fact it was "quite bad"—but the patrol goes on.

ONE ROARING NIGHT.

You see that roaring night when the seas opened and swallowed one vessel of the command and no man knows or ever will know what became of her; whether she broke her back, hung up between two seas, or whether she just turned over under some titanic blow and disappeared betwixt wave and wave.

You see the Admiral himself in a six-oared whaleboat, manned by Newfoundlanders—"the finest boatmen in the world," he says—setting forth on some specially delicate mission to a suspect, wallowing and heaving in a full North Atlantic gale, so fierce that a man might keep his seat only when the combers momentarily banked the wind, and when on their crests the gale snatched the oars out of the tholepins.

You see a ward room table laden with coffee, bacon and eggs, marmalade and such like breakfast dainties, jerked bodily from its fastenings, and jammed, ramwise, through a bulkhead, while eighteen apoplectic officers lay in layers with eggs and bacon between.

"KEPT US JOLLY, THESE."

"Such things served to make us laugh and keep us jolly," solemnly declares the Admiral.

And finally you assist at that Homeric conflict between a German submarine and a drifter with its crew of four men. That was thing to rejoice the gods upon Olympus.

Picture a little, battered, old drifter upon "her lawful occasion," doing her eight knots, thinking ill of no man, but prepared for the worst. What might such an one hope for when a dripping periscope appears? Obviously nothing but a dire calamity. Yet the skipper was a man of "infinite resource and sagacity."

Head on, the drifter wallowed at the submarine and before its startled commander could dive, the little vessel had bumped firmly astride of her, and the periscope was scratching chips out of the bulwarks.

"Gimme something to hammer this thing with!" roars the enraged skipper, and it was so. You can picture for yourself bits of an expensive German lens flying through the air to the brandishings of a scoop shovel passed up from below.

The rest of it was easy enough, save for one thing. The submarine had had its eye knocked out and its back sat upon by a steamboat.

Surrender was the only course, but how could a drifter captain in command of a crew of four take the surrender of a crew of thirty four, and be safe? Luckily a patrol boat came along about then and settled the problem. But one brave German sailor stayed below to open the cocks on the recaptured vessel so she should not be a prize to England, and went down with her, caught by the rush of water. Whereupon the drifter clumped off, looking for more worlds to conquer.

SILENT ON SUBMARINE'S FATE.

The Admiral is grimly silent upon the fate of submarines. He tells you more or less vaguely that "they catch them" and that "there are devices for catching them."

Net them? "Yes; they are netted." Then, in a burst of confidence. "I understand that they are very much upset when they find themselves tangled in a net."

He is a little more illuminating on the methods of determining when you have hit a submarine. When the sound of the shell impact is "different," and there is no rainbow from the splash, when you find bubbles of oil arising and, above all, when you see bits of periscope and things flying through the air, you can be tolerably sure you have hit something.

But it does not do to rely wholly on oil bubbles. Wounded submarines, bleeding oil, or deliberately sinking it for purposes of deception, have been known to get away.

Submarines at night are a "bit harder," but you ought if you are any good, to see the phosphorescence of a periscope wake or of the half-submerged hull a mile away. Then the thing to do is to "pot" it quickly.

It is all so very obvious and common place that the Admiral rather wonders at your curiosity. It is of course very sad that a ship should be be swallowed up without leaving a soul to tell the tale; very amusing that a cockleshell with four men on board should capture a submarine with a coal scoop, rather good fun to look for polar bears from the deck of a battleship, but it is all in the day's work and what is there to talk about?

LA FOLLETTE'S DEFENCE

"La Follette's defence," said Poultney Masters, the Pittsburg jujrist, "seems to me as confused as the swan song of the burgess who was deposed from office for chicken stealing.

"I'm up a tree," the burgess declared 'but my back is to the wall, and I'll die in the last ditch, going down with flags flying, and from the mountain-top of democracy, hurling defiance at the foe on the wings of triumph, regardless of the party lash that barks at my heels."

Heiress is Secret Bride of Banished Family Chauffeur

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Schroeder Announce Their Daughter, Helen, is Mrs. Joseph Van Derbeck.

NEW YORK, May 2.—Friends of Miss Helen Landolt Schroder were surprised to receive cards from her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. H. Schroder, No. 112 North Grove street, East Orange, announcing that she had been married on November 25 last to Joseph Van Derbeck, who had been chauffeur for the Schroder family.

Mr. Schroder is an officer of the P. Lorillard Tobacco Company and is said to possess a large fortune. Van Derbeck had been chauffeur for the family until about a year ago, when he was dismissed, and at that time Miss Schroder's young friends said it was because he seemed to have formed an attachment for her.

The chauffeur opened a tire vulcanizing shop in Main street, East Orange, and for several months—in fact, until last November—it was said that Miss Schroder, who had learned to drive an automobile, found much trouble with her tires, and had to have Van Derbeck adjust them frequently.

The vulcanizing business was closed and Van Derbeck became a salesman for the Standard Oil Company, and had worked up a good business with New Jersey garages. The bride returned to her home and kept her secret until recently. Van Derbeck has been saving money and he and his bride expect to start housekeeping before long.

Mr. Schrodar declined to discuss the matter yesterday except to say that his daughter was at home. Van Derbeck has been supporting his mother and a sister in a little cottage at No. 296 Preakness avenue, Paterson, and his mother said last night she learned of the marriage only recently.

"Helen is a very nice girl and has a very liberal mind," said Mrs. Van Derbeck last night. "She had quite a sum of money of her own and took charge of it the day they were married, but 'Joe' will not have any of her money and is working hard to establish their own home." Van Derbeck is thirty-three and the bride nineteen.

MINOR AMBITIONS.

I'd be a monarch, crowned and throned,
And count myself secure from shocks,
If ever coin enough I owned,
To buy my golf balls by the box.

I'd be a sheik or grand vizier,
And sweetly life I'd contemplate,
Enough spondulicks could I spear
To buy my stogies by the crate.

I'd be a skylark or a sprite,
So happy when the day is done,
To take you dog that yowls all night
And buy him poison by the ton.

FRENCH MUNITION PLANTS CONTROLLED BY THE STATE

PARIS, May 2.—It was not until the battle of the Marne was at its height, when war munitions were running low, that the French government realized the imperious need of an intense production of war material, according to statements made by Albert Thomas, Minister of Munitions, in the Chamber of Deputies. M. Thomas was speaking in reply to criticisms of the conditions under which war material had been supplied to the French army.

From his assertions, it appears that the French War Department had estimated before the war that it would be necessary for state arsenals to produce not more than 13,000 shells a day. In the belief that the conflict would be short, no provision whatever was made for the production of explosives during the hostilities.

When it was discovered, during the battle of the Marne, that this estimate was insufficient, Alexandre Millerand, then Minister of War, summoned to Bordeaux the heads of all manufacturing establishments available and organized them into groups for the rapid production of 3-inch shells.

Neither the Government nor the manufacturers had then any basis for figuring the costs. The exceptional conditions and the great need of immediately replenishing the supply, M. Thomas said, accounted for the abnormal prices and for the fabulous profits reaped by the manufacturers. Three-inch shells at that time cost the Government 14 francs each. To-day they are purchased at prices ranging from 6 francs and 50 centimes to 7 francs and 50 centimes.

The French War Department has placed 64,000 contracts for artillery projectiles and explosives since September, 1914, M. Thomas said. All munitions - producing plants in France, he added, have been under the control of the State from the beginning. Replying to Deputies who demanded that all industries able to contribute to the national defence should be requisitioned by the Government, M. Thomas declared that this would cause disorganization. He accepted a proposal for a regime under which the state would exercise a control and share in the profits of these industries.

The Government has established ten new gun foundries since September, 1914, and has enlarged eighteen others, it developed in the debate.

Knocked "Horns" Off Mine With An Oar

LONDON, May 1.—The Government pays $25 to any boat that captures and tows in floating mines. A Liverpool fisherman lassoed a mine and dragged it several mines. The sea was getting high, however, and fearing he would lose his prise, the fisherman hailed a passing ship.

"I've got a big mine in tow," he said. "I can't handle it. Please tow it in for me."

Panic ensued aboard the ship.

The horns of a mine are the contact points. The moment they are touched the mine explodes. The fisherman had knocked them off, ignorant of his danger. The mine had a bad detonator, which happens about once in a hundred times. The fisherman got the $25, plus some good advice.

that there is no absolute necessity to hold the first position. "All orders," he adds, "prescribe that the first line must be defended at all costs, and that if it be lost the struggle must be continued till it is recovered. Our principal line of combat is the first line." Such is the present word of command, and for the moment it is being literally obeyed. While that continues a sweeping advance such as sometimes has been obtained in the past is not to be expected. Enough that the balance of success swings steadily, if slowly, to our side.

Don't Miss "The Whip"

"The Whip," heralded as the biggest of all motion picture plays, will open an engagement of two matinees and two nights, Friday and Saturday, (May 4th and 5th, at the Grand.

This wonderful picture with its hair-raising scenes, is undisputed as the most remarkable photoplay ever presented before the public. In one of the many thrilling scenes two fast express trains are shown running at a tremendous speed; the rear car is detached from the first train directly in the path of the following express. The latter crashes into the car and is shattered into a mighty wreck, lit up by lurid flames and shrouded in a pall of steam from the bursted boiler of the overturned locomotive.

The purpose of the wrecker — to work injury to the crack racehorse "The Whip," and to prevent her from entering the Saratoga handicap —is defeated through the appearance of a rescue party, who remove "The Whip" from the stalled car just before the crash. This stirring incident is merely one of the many that make "The Whip" stand out and eclipse all its predecessors. Tickets now on sale.

Rev. William Sunday Uses Strong Words

Consigns German Emperor to Hot Place All Good People Avoid.

Three thousand women and a few hundred men heard Billy Sunday preach yesterday afternoon on "Taking Your Bearings." The text was: "Ye have not passed this way heretofore."

The narrative the evangelist told his hearers concerned the return of the Jews to the promised land after forty years of wandering in the Wilderness. "Joshua," he said, "was a new and untried commander, as the people had known no other leader than Moses. It was only natural that Joshua should come in for a lot of criticism and suffer by comparison with Moses. Just as a man who takes a second wife, this wife has to hear all about the biscuits the first wife used to make."

This made many of the women in the Tabernacle giggle.

"The people thought Joshua was trying to show off in going up against a walled city like Jericho with bows and arrows, and the rams horn business made them laugh.

"But you'll always find knockers We're got 'em right here in this country, as you saw when we started in our preparedness. It's because we had these knockers that we're no more prepared than we are and now we see what fools we've been. It's one thing on which I disagreed with my friend Mr. Bryan. I can't go with him on his views now."

He urged the congregation "Never to sink a principle to please anybody—not even your husband." There was another titter, which grew as the evangelist went on: "Don't slap Jesus Christ in the face to please that old reprobate, your husband.

"Do you think I'd slap my country in the face to please the Kaiser? Not on your life! Let him to go to hell with the rest of them."

Charmeuse and satin are great rivals.

Former Peterborough Pastor Sues Ottawa Teacher For Libel

Rev. Isaac Couch, Former Pastor of the George Street Methodist Church Claims $10,000 Damages on Account of Letter About Him Writt by the Defendenant

The Ottawa Journal says:

A $10,000 libel action has been instituted by the Rev. Isaac Couch, pastor of McLeod Street Methodist Church, formerly pastor of George Street Methodist Church, Peterborough, against Mr. J. C. Spence, principal of First Avenue school.

The action arises out of a letter which it is claimed the defendant "falsely and maliciously wrote and published to the recording steward of the First Methodist Church at Owen Sound." Writs in the action have been issue and the case will be heard at the June sittings of the Supreme Court in the Court House here.

Rev. Mr. Couch claims that by reason of the publication an invitation to him to become pastor of the First Methodist Church at Owen Sound has been withdrawn "and he has been greatly injured and damnified in his said profession and calling." He denies the allegations set forth in the letter to Owen Sound.

Anonymous Letters.

The litigation is the aftermath of a split in the congregation of McLeod Methodist Church. Over some internal troubles part of the congregation left and formed the congregation of St. Paul's Methodist Church. Many of the adherents of the latter church received anonymous letters and in the statement of the defendant he claims that "it was demonstrated to the satisfaction of himself and many other adherents of the said church that the plaintiff (Rev. Mr. Couch) had been the writer of many, if not all, of the said letters."

Admits the Letter.

Mr. Spence believed it to be "his social and moral duty to communicate the conditions of affairs at Ottawa to those interested at Owen Sound." He admits writing the letter to Owen Sound, but asserts that it was done without malice.

The letter which has brought on the action is as follows:

159 Centre Street,
Ottawa, Feb. 22, 1917.

The Recording Steward,
First Methodist Church,
Owen Sound, Ont.

Dear Sir and Brother,

I have been given to understand that negotiations are proceeding between your church and the officials of McLeod Street Church, Ottawa, for a transfer of pastors. May I be permitted to urge you most sincerely and earnestly to consider the matter very carefully and make due inquiries before you have definitely committed your Church to the care of Rev. Isaac Couch. Since his coming to Ottawa, nearly four years ago, his recording steward, treasurer, chairman of finance committee and, several other members of the quarterly board have resigned and left the church as a protest against his methods of carrying on the work. A most unchristian state of feeling has been engendered and friendships of long standing have been broken through his most unusual conduct. Added to this, he is under suspicion of serious misconduct, and I am confidently assured that his character will not pass the final district meeting without question.

No Animosity.

"I wish to assure you that I am not moved by any animosity toward Mr. Couch, but as ex-recording steward in his church for nearly two years, I have concluded that Mr. Couch ought not to be in the Christian ministry. I feel also, that any church that is doomed to suffer as McLeod Street Church has suffered, should have fair warning.

"May I urge you to endeavour to visit Ottawa, before deciding the matter as you can see that I am merely suggesting that is all is not right, and there is much more to learn."

Yours sincerely,
J. C. SPENCE.

Inference a Libel.

The inference the plaintiff has taken from the letter is that he was guilty of gross misconduct in his profession and calling, and, that he is not a fit man to carry on the duties of a minister of the gospel, and that charges of misconduct are impending against him.

By reason of the premises, the plaintiff claims to be greatly injured in his credit and reputation and in his profession and calling. He has been deprived of occupying a position of emolument and benefit and is seeking $10,000 damages and costs.

Mr. A. E. Honeywell is appearing for Rev. Mr. Couch and Mr. Spence is represented by Mr. J. I. MacCraken.

"REBEKAH"

In their second annual concert last night Knox church choir presented the cantata "Rebekah" before a fairly large audience. It was unfortunate that the weather was so unfavourable for it must have kept away many persons who desired to lend their encouragement to Mr. Kenyon in his praise-worthy efforts to establish Knox choir among the leading choral organizations of the city. In this respect there remains no doubt that the choir has attained an enviable position. The impression made a year ago has been renewed and deepened by last night's production, which was, not only, the work of local talent, but with few exceptions of the home choir.

"Rebekah" is a scriptural idyll, relating the story of the selection of Isaac's wife chosen from the women of Canaan by signs, revealed by God. The music by Barnby is throughout sweet and rich in melody, reflecting the sentiment of the theme. Most of the work falls upon the soloists. The subject is largely pastoral and lyrical to which the music has been adapted with many beauties of effect. The choruses are full of harmony to which the choir ably responded. The opening "Evening Song" was reflective and restrained. In fact, it was not until the closing chorus of benediction that the choir had a real opportunity to reveal its volume. Practically all the intervening lines fell to the soloists. But when called upon the choir responded in a highly pleasing manner. The unison in the opening chorus was good, but precision a little more sharply defined was perhaps admissable, although this may seem mere captious criticism. But if the choir is to continue the splendid progress of the past two seasons, this is only to be sustained by guarding against the seemingly trivial defects and to take a pride in avoiding them in the future. A retrospect of the musical year now nearing a close affords a reminder that its bright spots have been fewer than usual. But Knox church choir, affected by present conditions as it has been, has managed to continue its work with a success that should be most gratifying to its members and to its leaders.

The programme included the chorus es "O Canada" and Kipling's "Recessional" which were particularly well sung. Mrs. Parks took the solo in the latter hymn.

The soloists were Miss Myrtle Penrose who sang the role of "Rebekah"; Miss O. Kenyon, Mr. John Smith, baritone, who had the lines of Eliezar and Mr. E. Humpage as Isaac. Miss Penrose, as the central figure with a large share of the work depending upon her, carried off the honours of the evening.

This was her first appearance in a part as exacting as that of "Rebekah" and her singing created a fine impression, not only in the present compass of her voice but also in the increased power, flexibility and range that future experience should bring. Her voice is a sweet and clear soprano and is apparently used without effort. Its natural qualities are a promise of future accomplishment that should be enhanced by the assurance that comes with other successes of last night's character. Miss Penrose is to be congratulated upon her singing of "Rebekah" and encouraged to continue her vocal work

Messrs. Smith and Humpage gave a satisfactory rendition of their respective parts. The lovely aria "The Soft Southern Breeze" was sung by Mr. Humpage with a nice appreciation of its tender melody, but the memory of Mr. Albert Downing's singing emphasized the possibilities of this solo.

In the first part of the programme Miss Laura Logan wove a spell over her audience with her violin across the "Meditation from Thais," by Massanet and Godard's "Berceuse." While the public realizes the extensiveness of Miss Logan's repertoire, apparently her predilection turns to the meditative which she plays with rare charm.

Mr. Kenyon's accompaniment was all that could be desired throughout "Rebekah" including the march interlude, and to Miss Logan's solos he showed a fine reserve.

Work of St. Peter's Rector Cobourg, Appreciated

Complimentary References to Rev. F. J. Sewers at Annual Vestry Meeting

At the adjourned vestry meeting of St. Peter's (Anglican) church, Cobourg, among the business done was the appointment of a committee to arrange for the celebration of the centenary of St. Peter's, which will come in January, 1919. That, however, was not the most interesting part of the proceedings to Peterborough people. It was the hearty tribute of the vestry to the work of the rector, an "old Peterborough boy"—Rev. F. J. Sawers. In relation to this the report from the Cobourg Sentinel-Star is reproduced below:

The adjourned vestry meeting of St. Peter's Church took place on Monday evening in the Parish Hall. The Rector occupied the chair and opened the meeting with prayer. Mr. Chas. Gummow acted as secretary. After the adoption of the minutes Mr. E. H. Osler spoke of the good work of the past year, and the progress which had been made in all lines of the Church's work. He said it was only fair and right that the congregation should give expression of the hearty satisfaction so generally felt with the excellent work of the rector, under whose wise and energetic leadership so much was accomplished. Several others spoke in the same way, after which the rector thanked those who had spoken so kindly of him. He said it had been a great joy to him to work in connection with St. Peter's. He felt that any success was due to the hearty co-operation of the people, and that without that any progress would have been impossible.

Rev. Mr. Sawers has a very wide circle of friends in Peterborough, who to their hearty congratulations to him upon the cordial appreciation of his services, will add their conviction of it being well deserved.

Red Triangle Is Organized For Soldiers

Y. M. C. A. Starts First of Series in Down-town District in Toronto

A down-town rendezvous for returned soldiers and others temporarily in the city has been opened up in Toronto, April 16, by the Military Service Department of the Y.M.C.A. It has been given a name that will strike a peculiar note to the returned soldier, the Red Triangle Club, for he has met it in different forms in the training camps of Canada, the camps and hospitals of England, the huts in France, and the dugouts in the shell areas behind the front trenches.

This Club succeeds a former hotel, and every arrangement has been made for attractive and home-like quarters for the soldiers. There are amusement rooms, writing rooms, magazines, pianos, billiard tables, shower baths, etc., provided free of charge for the use of any soldiers who are rooming at the Club or who may drop in. The old bar is now a cafeteria served by ladies who give their time free, while 65 beds are available at a low cost each night.

The response from the men has been mostly hearty the past few days, and plans are being made to establish similar Red Triangle clubs in other centres in Canada for the benefit of returned soldiers.

Snowdrifts and Frost Mark April in England

April in England came in with great snow storms all over the country. In some places the snowdrifts were many feet deep; in others the sun melted the snow and caused great floods.

In London one morning people woke up to find to their surprise the land covered with a blanket of snow. The early hours had been marked by intense cold; afterwards the snow fell, and by midday the sunshine of spring came out to cause a constant drip from the houses, and a state of the roads such as rarely seen at that time of the year.

In the north the visitation was much more severe. In several districts the snowdrifts were six feet deep; birds and rabbits were frozen to death, and farm work entirely suspended.

Several cases of collapse were reported among Manchester tram drivers. In many places traffic was disorganized.

In Sheffield the heaviest snowfall since April 1, 1783, prevailed. Children on their way to school, postmen and milk dealers were snowed up, and for the second day the Royal mail had to be dug out.

The School Board Will Consider The Question Of More School Accommodation

Special Meeting Will Be Held in the Course of a Few Days to Deal With a Number of Important Questions—Regular Meeting of the Board Was Held Last Evening—Reports Received.

The matter of making some changes in the manual training and domestic science departments of the public schools of the city will be dealt with at a special meeting of the Board of Education, to be held within the course of a few days. This action was decided upon at the regular monthly meeting of the Board, held last evening. The Provincial inspector's report and the question of more school accommodation will also be discussed when the school trustees meet in special session.

The 57th Chapter, I. O. D. E., was granted permission to place coin holders in the public schools for the collection of pennies, the funds so collected to be used for patriotic purposes.

The Board recorded its appreciation of an enlarged photograph of the late Lieut. Harold Smith, presented by Mr. A. St. A. Smith, father of the deceased soldier. The picture will be hung in the halls of the Collegiate Institute, in company with the large number of others already there.

The Literary Society of the Collegiate Institute placed to the credit of the Board the sum of one hundred and twenty-five dollars, to be expended in the purchase of enlarged photographs of ex-students, who have lost their lives in the defence of the Empire. The Board acknowledged the gift.

Permission was granted to the parents' Circle of the Queen Mary school to hang a copy of the Ten Commandments in each of the rooms of the school. Mr. G. N. Gordon, a member of the Board, suggested that a copy be hung in the Board Room. The Board received a quotation of thirteen hundred dollars for the erection of a suitable fire escape at the King Edward School. The matter was referred to the Property Committee.

Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—Just a few words in regards to the Soldiers' Wives. These people are the subject of many insults from a lot of people. An ordinary soldier's wife receives $20 separation allowance and a like amount for assigned pay. These cheques come monthly. The soldier's wife pays $10 rent, buys flour at $7 per cwt., potatoes $5 per bag, butter at 43c. per lb. and other necessary foods to keep body and soul together. She has next to nothing to keep going from one month till another. The one great draw back is the length of time between payment. In every class of people men are getting big increases in their pay; some men (and young eligible men included) are making as high as $5 daily. But what about the soldier's wives? They get the same paltry salary from the government to-day as they did two or three years ago. How in the name of common sense do they expect them to live on that pay when the ever increasing cost of household goods stares them right in the face? Why don't Mr. J. H. Burnham bring the matter to the government's attention? The people in this country enjoy their freedom, go back and forth to work, get very high pay, have good warm snug beds to sleep in at night, while on the other hand, the soldier has to endure endless struggles in the trenches working long hours, and in the end the dependents receive a small sum. Of these two classes the soldier is the superior of any. The young eligible man working in factories making as high as $5 per day, hasn't as much sand in his whole body as the soldier has in his little toe. Why don't the employers discharge them and let them get a taste of what the soldier has to endure in France and elsewhere? It is all very well for people to talk and say, well the soldiers' wives get enough money to do them. Let those same loose tongues do the same work with the money they get from the government and they will get their eyes opened.

Good luck to Mr. Burnham for defending the soldiers, because if he does not no person will. You had spunk in you, not like young dudes making fortunes while soldiers' dependents live on starvation wages. Pardon me, Mr. Editor, for interloping on your valued paper so much, I am,

Yours sincerely,
"Lonelydale."

WRITES A WAR POEM

Robert Bridges Addresses Verses to United States.

LONDON, May 2—The Poet Laureate, Robert Bridges, addresses through The London Times the following verse "To the United States of America":

Brothers in blood
They who this wrong began
To wreck our Commonwealth will rue the day
When they first challenged free men to the fray,
And with the Briton dared the American.

Now are we pledged to win the rights of man;
Labour and justice now shall have their way,
And in a league of peace—God grant we may—
Transform the earth, not patch up the old plan.

Sure is our hope since he who led your nation
Spake for mankind and ye arose in awe
Of that high call to work the world's salvation;
Clearing your minds of all estranging blindness,
In the vision of beauty and the spirit's law.
Freedom and honour and sweet loving-kindness.

"Count" Planned To Kidnap Wilson and Raise Army To Invade Canada, Court Told

NEW YORK, May 2.—Charges that Max Lynar, also known as "Count" Lynar-Loudon, had plotted to "seize the person of President Wilson and raise an army of 150,000 German reservists in this country for an invasion of Canada," was made yesterday when he applied for release on parole from the prison, where he is serving a sentence for bigamy.

Application for the parole was made to Judge Rosalsky in the court of general sessions through the commissioner of corrections, who recommended that it be granted. Application was opposed by representatives of the Department of Justice and Police.

Judge Rosalsky Disapproves.

"Commissioner of Corrections recommends placing Lynar on probation," said Judge Rosalsky in announcing that he would not approve of the application.

"The United States authorities and the police want to prevent that. I am told that this man Lynar made arrangements to seize the President of the United States, hold him for a hostage and organize an army for the invasion of Canada. I do not believe such a man should be allowed his liberty at this time."

Lynar was sentenced to the penitentiary in April, 1916, after his conviction on a charge of bigamy brought by two of three women he was alleged to have married. The two who testified against him were Amelia Wendt, now Mrs. Arnold of Poughkeepsie, and Rose O'Brien of Albion.

At his trial agents of the department of justice alleged that Lynar was a notorious international crook. Max Schienmangk, who had operated in France and Germany, prior to serving a prison term in Germany.

Equipment Firm Recalled.

Before his arrest here, he gained access to many army secrets, it was alleged, through his organization of the Lynar Equipment Company, which was supposed to manufacture military devices, which he attempted to have the United States army adopt.

After his term began, Lynar was taken to Newburgh, where his factory had been established, to tell before a referee how he induced Commodore John D. Lacey of that city to invest $55,000 in a plant to manufacture the "Lynar equipment," which was to revolutionize warfare, and for which he said he had a big order from the Austrian government.

Lynar swore the Austrian order was genuine. As a result of his operations in Newburgh indictments for forgery were returned against Lynar and he will be removed there for trial at the close of his New York prison term.

Estrangement of Couple is Now Explained

A young woman whose identity was kept secret was revealed in New York recently as the reason why Morris Roderick Volck, son of Madame de Gama, wife of the Brazilian Ambassador to Washington, and Mrs. Elsie Holmes Volck, daughter of Jabish Holmes, wealthy lawyer, were estranged last winter. Supreme Court Referee George J. Gillespie recommended to Justice Finch that a decree of divorce be granted to Mrs. Volck.

A clerk of the Great Northern Hotel testified that he had seen a young woman in Volck's room. The young woman and her mother had a suite adjoining the room to which there was a connecting door. Volck was ordered from the hotel.

Mrs. Volck gave her mother-in-law the custody of her son, Morris Roderick, Jr., aged six, until he reaches his majority. She retained sole custody of her daughter, Elsie Holmes Bates, aged four.

The referee found that Volck should pay his former wife $100 a month until she remarries. From Arthur H. Hearn, second husband of Mme. de Gama, a large fortune was inherited by Volck.

BANK COAL OUTPUT GREATER THAN EVER

Statement Made by United States Official—What Boston Paper Says

The output of anthracite coal at the mines for the month of March was the largest in the history of the industry, according to a statement issued last night by United States Attorney Anderson, who declares that there is no real reason why coal should not be sold in New England at a reasonable price, or, at any rate, at a price much lower than many consumers are now paying. Mr. Anderson said:

"The condition of the local coal market is again becoming artificial, panicky, hysterical. Apparently buyers are indulging in the foolish practice of bidding against each other, with the natural result that sellers put up the price, both to make profits and to check demand.

"I have good—I think adequate—reasons to believe that if people will wait, keep cool and stop hoarding, their reasonable wants for coal will be supplied at much less than current prices."

Congressman Tinkham yesterday filed in the National House of Representatives resolutions adopted by the Massachusetts General Court urging Congress to take such measures as may be necessary under the commerce clause of the Federal constitution to regulate the price at which anthracite coal may be sold by mining companies and their agents.

THE WEATHER IN APRIL.

The average temperature for the month of April was just normal. The warmest day was the 20th, with 71 degrees; the coldest, 17 degrees on the 9th. The precipitation for the month was 3.18 inches, of which 2.43 was rain and .75 snow.—W. P.

SERIOUS CHARGE IS LAID AGAINST U. S. HORSEMEN

MONTREAL, May 2.—Bringing a big ship across the pond has plenty of thrills these days. A captain now in port can swear to that. In addition to the dangers from sub sea pirates and mines, he had a little war all of his own on board. An echo of it was heard around Police Headquarters yesterday when the skipper called and swore out warrants for thirty-four men he had on board on a charge of creating a disturbance at sea, compelling him to reduce the speed of his vessel in the danger zone and thus endanger the lives of his crew and others as well as his vessel. The men in trouble are horsemen who were returning to this side of the seas after having taken a cargo of mules overseas. It is claimed the men broke into the cargo of the vessel and made merry on the liquid contents therein stored.

Thirty of the men are in the cells and the warrants are ready for serving on the other thirty-one.

Ford

A Car of Proven Quality

THE Ford Car has been on the market twelve years, surely long enough to have proven its high quality. There is nothing experimental about it. Every part has stood the test of time and proven its stability with hard service. No other car has ever approached the durability records of the Ford.

No matter what price you pay for a car you cannot get one with a staunchcr chassis. Government Laboratory tests have shown that the different parts of the Ford car are superior to those in any other car. Ford Vanadium steel has never been equalled in strength.

If you want a car that can plow through deep mud, sand and gravel—that can cross fields, corduroy roads and ford streams – that can climb the steepest hills with ease—that will give the greatest mileage all year ronnd with the least expense and care—then there is only ONE car for you—The Ford.

OBITUARY

JOSEPH WHITEMAN

Joseph Whitman, a citizen of Peterborough for many years, died this morning at the family residence, 764 Concession street. Mr. Whiteman was born in Bedfordshire, England and came to this country when a child. He was a member of the Mark Street Methodist church.

The funeral will take place on Friday afternoon at 2.30. A short service conducted by Rev. Mr. Whattam will be held at the house before leaving for the Little Lake cemetery.

SAMUEL WALKINGTON ENGLISH.

Peterborough lost one of its oldest and most respected residents this morning in the death of Samuel Walkington English. His death will be a great surprise to his many friends, who will recall seeing him about town only a few days ago. It was on Thursday last that he left his business and went home complaining of a chill, but later on was thought to be better. On Friday the family physician advised hospital treatment, and he was removed to Nicholls Hospital, where, despite every attention of nurses and the best of medcial aid, he passed away. While of apparently robust physique, it is said to be a fact that the death in action of his son, James, at the front early in the war, preyed upon his mind and reacted upon his vitality.

The deceased was one of the best-known men of the city, having for many years managed the William English Canoe Company, and was associated with its beginning as the first organized employment of canoe making as a commercial industry. He was born in the old English homestead on Charlotte street, on the 20th of March, 1852, and was the youngest son of the late John English. He was a member of the Canadian Order of Foresters and also of the Maccabees.

He is survived by his wife and one son, Mr. William English; one sister, Miss Kate English, and one brother, Mr. James English, of 544 Gilmour street.

The funeral will take place from the family residence, 309 Margaret avenue, on Friday afternoon at 3.30 o'clock, and proceed to the Little Lake Cemetery for interment. Funeral services conducted by Rev. J. P. Wilson, of Trinity Church, at 3 o'clock.

MRS. JOHN GILLESPIE.

Mrs. John Gillespie of Bethany died this morning at her residence, in her 64th year. She was born in the County of Armagh, Ireland, and moved with her parents to Canada when a young girl. The family was one of the pioneers of Cavan and was widely known throughout the district. Mrs. Gillespie is survived by nine children, as follows: Albert, of Hastings; Alfred, of Peterborough, Hugh and William of Lindsay, Mrs. Rich. Staples, Hamilton, N. D., Mrs. Harvey Staples, Lemsford, Sask., Mrs. Wm. Hutchison of Saskatchewan; Mrs. Wm. Cavano of Bethany, and Miss Maggie Gillespie, at home.

The funeral will be held on Thursday evening from the family residence, Bethany, to the C.P.R. station, and thence to Peterborough, and from the local station to the Little Lake cemetery on the arrival of the Port McNichol train.

United States To Help Fight Submarines

Special to the Examiner:

WASHINGTON, May 2.—Four hundred thousand tons of shipping was destroyed by submarines week before last, according to shipping men's estimates, Secretary of the Interior Lane told representatives of all State Defense Councils at their opening session here to-day.

If this proportion continued, he declared, it would seriously threaten the life of Great Britain and France. He pointed that the United States must aid thoroughly in replacing the shipping in order to offset German inroads. American inventive genius, Lane asserted, would find some means of combating the submarine. He indicated the patent office already is beginning to receive American inventors' ideas.

Tells How to take Soreness from a Corn and Lift it right out.

Hospital records show that every time you cut a corn you invite lockjaw or blood poison, which is needless, says a Cincinnati authority, who tells you that a quarter ounce of a drug called ferrozone can be obtained at little cost from the drug store, but is sufficient to rid one's feet of every hard or soft corn or callus.

You simply apply a few drops of this on a tender, aching corn and the soreness is instantly relieved. Shortly the entire corn can be lifted out, root and all, without pain.

This drug is sticky but dries at once and is claimed to just shrivel up any corn without inflaming or even irritating the surrounding tissue or skin.

If your wife wears high heels she will be glad to know this.

Italy Has Heroes To Avenge And Wrongs To Right

Austria, Ruled by German Inhabitants, is Her Arch-enemy —Memory of Sauro, Battisti Revered - Austrian Subjects Fought Italy's Battles and Lost Their Lives.

AGGRESSIVE INVASIONS

By ROSAMOND BOULTBEE

ROME.—No country has more reason to resent the persistent German propaganda than Italy. Although not in recent times, yet the Germans have been eight times to Rome, a fact which most Italians consider sufficient for them to have bro'en with their former allies and to see that a recurrence of these invasions is made impossible.

Of course, France has never forgotten 1870, and her hatred has been a very sincere one for nearly fifty years, but what they resent more than anything else is the hall mark put on them because of it—that of an incapable and degenerate nation. There is no need to reiterate the splendid invincibility of the French, but it is necessary to emphasise that the Italians have bitter wrongs to be righted, wrongs that will never cease to exist while they remain unvindicated.

Here, of course, it is Austria who is the arch enemy, but after all, what is Austria? It is simply a mixture of German, Slav and Latin peoples. And the Germans which are found around Vienna—amounting to twelve millions—are the rulers.

The Austrian embassy here, an interesting structure of feudal times, was first Italian and then Austrian, having been taken over by them in one of their aggressive invasions. On one corner of the building the Austrians put up a sign, that it being the inherited property of Austria, that Italians must not put foot into it. It was a ridiculous command, and one which the Italians paid no heed to. The occupation of the castle by Austrians at their right had long annoyed the Italians, so it was not treated as most embassies are, but was taken over by the Government as Italian property. If Austria remains a country her future embassy in Rome will have to find new housing, never will they again inhabit the splendid old building belonging to these people, who now intend to hold it for themselves.

ITALY'S HEROES.

Italy has her heroes in this war, victims of the merciless enemy, such as Captain Fryatt, just as any other nation. Yet perhaps these Italian heroes are the bravest, for the two which I here refer to were Austrian subjects, coming from Trieste and the Trentino, but Italians in sentiment and heritage; thus serving with Italy in the war they knew that if caught their chances of life were nil.

The first was Cesare Battisti, the member for Trentino in the Austrian Reichstag. He joined the Italian army at the outbreak of war, was taken prisoner, and hung as an Austrian traitor. The other was Nazario Sauro, a citizen of Triste, a merchant captain, a man who knew the Adriatic absolutely. Therefore to render Italy the greatest service he was put in command of a submarine and succeeded in several very daring exploits. But last August the submarine piloted by Nazario Sauro failed to return, and the fate of the crew was feared for some time in Italy. Then news came that Sauro was to be hanged, having been captured by the Austrians. For some time the enemy was not sure of the identity of the prisoner, as he gave an assumed name. So with the usual cupidity of Germans, they summoned his wife and mother from Trieste, who when they saw the prisoner denied all knowledge of him, and for a while his life seemed to be saved. But not for long, and he, too died, a true Italian; and for the untruths they had told the wife and mother were made to witness his execution.

SAURO'S MEMORY REVERSED

The people of Cappodistria, in Istria, where Sauro was born, erected a monument to him, and the Italian navy has named an armed merchant ship taken from the Austrians the "Nazario Sauro." To his eldest son, Sauro wrote before he died, "You understand, or perhaps will understand, Nino, in a few years what was my duty to Italy. I give you and Libero, Anita, Italo and Albania, names of liberty not only on paper, but I prove it now, and add to it my seal. I die with but one sorrow, that of depriving my children of their loving father. But to you remains our country, which will take my place. And to this country, my Nino, you must promise me to be true, you and your brothers, when they are old enough to understand; must be, ever, and no matter where, and before all Italians." ("Nino" was the name of a great Italian general; "Anita" the name of Garibald's wife.)

There is great pride of family here among the peasants, and always a great reverence for the father—the "Padre." We all know of how the Italians come to our countries to work; but how few remain there! They go to America, Russia, Turkey, everywhere, but always return home at the "Padre's" command later on. One poor, young soldier who died recently under thirty years of age, had been in the United States, and had made his little pile, then returned to Italy and married. Beside the Padre's home he had himself built a small house—and had even made his own furniture. When in hospital he had talked much of his return to his family, of his wife, of his two little girls. But no! he was just one of those sacrificed to the German military reptile. We all must remember that each of our allies are suffering, just as we are, and so we must try to understand that any differences there are between us are only those of race.—E.B.

Ellis, a contractor and builder, and former mayor of St. John's; Thomas Hall, Government engineer; Henry Lamessurier, deputy minister of Customs and Charles Hutchings, deputy minister of justice.

Mr. Bensonhurst—Yes; I couldn't get my window shut.

TO BUILD WOODEN SHIPS IN JERSEY

New Plant Will Soon Be Turning Out One 10,000 Freighter Every Ten Days.

NEW YORK, May 2—Some of those 1,000 wooden ships with which the United States is going to fight the German submarine blockade will soon be on the ways at a new plant not far from New York. The exact location cannot be made public, but the new plant is in New Jersey, and it is going to be big enough for ten building ways, so that ten ships can be under construction at once.

Joseph P. Day owns the land, a fifty-five acre tract on deep water, with the excellent communications for the supply of material. He has leased it at a nominal rental for the period of the war to the United States Government, which has already awarded a contract to the Foundation Company, which will set up the plant.

They expect to have the first keel laid in thirty days, the first pattern ship in the water, complete in ninety days after that, and not long after that. I expect to be turning out a 10,000-ton freighter every ten days.

France Hails Petain as the Great Commander; The Verdun Slogan, "Now All Is Well," Re-echoed

PARIS, May 2.—"Now all is well"—that was the remark of a certain General when, at the beginning of the German onslaught on Verdun, he was apprised by telephone that General Petain had taken command of the Verdun army. That same remark re-echoed through France Monday morning when it was announced that Petain had been appointed Chief of Staff.

Petain is the man the nation has been waiting for, and waiting long. Now that it has him at the head of things there is greater harmony than I have ever before heard expressed in France in the opinion that he is the right man in the right place. It is said General Nivelle is thoroughly satisfied with the new conditions, while the War Minister, M. Painleve, is unanimously praised for his disinterested action in summoning Petain, who henceforth in the very nature of things is bound to play a leading role.

It is no secret that negotiations had been pending for some days before all conditions of the various parties involved were blended into a working programme. Ever since Verdun Petain has been the soldiers' idol, and his name has been on the lips of all Frenchmen whenever appointments were discussed. Throughout all time nations and armies, although often mistaken as to the elements of real generalship, have instinctively realized there was one man they wanted to command them—one man they wanted to obey.

This feeling for Petain has surged forward from an unexpressed desire to a positive demand, although for obvious reasons it could not be publicly voiced. The French Army and nation, which under the great Emperor experienced the supreme benefits of generalship in the highest form, is still guided by the same instinct toward a man born to command. Petain's character has been politely termed "independent." I have heard from soldiers in sectors where he has commanded that whenever the signal is given to go over the trench parapets the remark is heard all along the line from men and officers:

"Everything is ready; it's Petain's work; all will be well."

PARIS, May 2.—General Petain, as technical adviser to the Government, will occupy very much the same position as General Sir William Robertson in London, and will be responsible for the general conduct of operations wherever French troops are engaged. In addition to this appointment, it is understood that the Government contemplates various other measures of reorganization, based on an examination of the military situation and the lessons taught by the recent operations.

The British Drive Is Resumed In a New Direction

Field Marshall Haig Reports Heavy Fighting on a Twenty Mile Front—A Number of Enemy Positions Captured —A Strategic Move

Special to the Examiner:

LONDON, May 3.—After two days of inaction, the British drive was renewed in powerful force again to-day and in a new direction, Field Marshal Haig reported to-day. "There was heavy fighting all along the front from the Hindenburg line south of the Sensee river to the Acheville Vimy road," he said. "We are progressing and have already captured a number of strong hostile positions." The British Commander in Chief's report indicates an offensive extending over a front of at least twenty miles. It is that distance from the road between Vimy and Acheville on the north to the Sensee river on the south. There has been almost continuous fighting around Vimy but the direction of the thrust by the British offensive has heretofore been exerted in an easterly direction toward Douai. Haig's report to-day indicated a sudden switch to a northern push out of Villerval, Oppy and Arleux. These towns lie approximately seven and a half miles north of Monch Le Preux, where the strength of the British drive was formerly most powerfully exerted. It was against further advances here also that Hindenburg threw great forces of his reserves.

400,000 Tons Of Shipping Sunk Week Before Last

U. S. Minister Tells Defence Councils That States Must Aid Thoroughly in Replacing Lost Tonnage and Offset German Inroads—Inventors Are Invited to Submit Ideas

WASHINGTON, May 3.—Four hundred thousand tons of shipping was destroyed by submarines the week before last, according to shipping men's estimates, Secretary of the Interior Lane told representatives of all State Defense Councils at their opening session here yesterday.

If this proportion continued, he declared, it would seriously threaten the life of Great Britain and France. He pointed out the United States must aid thoroughly in replacing the shipping in order to offset German inroads.

American inventive genius, Lane asserted, would find some means of combatting the submarine. He indicated the Patent Office already is beginning to receive American inventors' ideas.

The official statement of British losses for the week ending April 29 reported the loss of 55 British ships. Of these forty were of 1,600 tons and over, and fifteen were of under 1,600 tons. An increase in the figures was expected as the days grew longer, thus giving German submarines more hours of daylight in which to attack vessels.

Last Week's Losses.

LONDON, Eng., May 3. — Thirty-eight British ships, over sixteen hundred tons and eighteen under sixteen hundred tons, were sunk by submarines last week.

Situation is Serious.

WASHINGTON, May 3.— Secretary of State Lansing yesterday afternoon voiced an official warning to the country as to the submarine situation. "We might as well wake up to the fact and make up our minds that the situation is serious," he declared.

Following the statement of Secretary Lane earlier in the afternoon that the Germans were estimated to have sunk 400,000 tons of shipping in one week, and that the war would have to be carried to Germany if it was to be kept from this side of the Atlantic. Lansing's warning created the deepest impression in Washington.

It was recalled that at the outset of Germany's submarine campaign the Berlin Admiralty declared it would regard the warfare a success if 1,000,000 tons a month were destroyed. The rate of destruction reported by Lane would be 1,600,000 tons a month.

HASTINGS, May 3.—A well-attended memorial service was held in Westwood on Sunday evening, in honour of Pte. Max. Breckenridge, who so nobly gave his life for his king and country.

Wedding Bells.

A wedding of local interest was solemnized on Wednesday last at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Latherly, when Rev. D. A. Thomson, Pastor of the Presbyterian Church, united in marriage their only daughter, Violet, to Mr. Fred Burridge of Peterborough. After the ceremony the happy couple received the congratulations of their friends, and with them, sat down to a sumptuous wedding dinner. The bride then donned her going-away suit of green, with hat to match, and the young couple left for Norwood, amid showers of rice, etc., where they took the train for Toronto and other points for a short honeymoon trip, followed by the best wishes of a host of friends. On their return they will take up residence in Peterborough.

ELEPHANTS FOR FARM

Circus Animals Prove Useful in the Fields

A variety of animals have been pressed into farm work in England, owing to the extreme necessity for cultivating as much land as possible, and the shortage of farm horses. At one farm where circus animals are given shelter during the winter months the elephants have been employed in the fields, and in another farm in Norfolk, the eastern custom of yoking oxen to the plough has been adopted. These animals do not take kindly to the work at first and it requires a practised hand and much patience to train them.

Good Shot at the Truth

There is no doubt that Jules Verne made a very good shot at the target of truth when he wrote his work of fiction called "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea." That story of the submarine was told forty years before the submarine was even begun.

In all, 24,015 horses were purchased in Canada for the Canadian army since the war began up to 1917. The total cost of the animals was $4,398,850.

ARMORED CAR FLEET MAKES DESERT DASH

Motorcar Column Fight Hidden Foe for Twenty-four Hours—Making Swift Descent on Siwa

A correspondent writes: So far as we know no motor-car column has done anything on so large a scale as the swift descent on the Siwa oasis, in the western desert of Egypt, when, apart from the splendid feat of conquering tremendous natural obstacles, and of revictualling and munitioning a force which had left their base 200 miles behind them only three days before, the car crews fought a stubborn and well-hidden enemy for twenty hours, and during the night twenty-two men remained within 500 yards of a foe outnumbering them by fully 25 to 1. The problem of supply made it imperative that the journey of nearly 400 miles out and home should be performed in a week. It was exclusively a motor column, which soon after dawn started from the base.

Daring Motor Feat

The force bivouacked at 90 miles from the coast and went on next day to near the top of the sharp escarpment some 15 miles from Siwa. It was then three o'clock. A reconnaissance was necessary to discover a place down which the cars could enter the depression, our information telling us that the Segga Pass was mined. An officer returned with the news that he had found a possible track for the cars. The officer had selected a spot where the escarpment, instead of having a sheer cliff face, bulged slightly outwards towards the flat, and knowing his drivers' willingness to take any risks he was confident they would get to the bottom. The capacity of the men at the wheels had not been underrated. If you have seen a water-chute, and can picture the boat on its descent throwing up clouds of spray and completely enveloping itself when it enters the water, you get a good idea of the passage of the cars down that giddy, unstable, sandy path which Nature never intended should be used by man, machine, or beast. Every car safely negotiated the rough-and-tumble pass.

One Car Bears Brunt of Fight

The armoured cars led the way towards Girba, and the whole of them got into action within 300 yards of the enemy's position by ten o'clock, with the exception of two, which were delayed by getting bogged in the treacherous sand. The others had a hot reception. The tops of the turrets had been removed to save weight, and the mohafzia, as the Senussi soldiery are called, scampered from their places of security behind rocks to the top of the Girba limestone cliffs and poured down a plunging fire in the hope of hitting the machine gunners inside the cars. Leaving one car in the centre to engage the enemy, the remainder moved to the right and left to enfilade the position, and for half an hour this one car received the heavy fire from two 10-pounder mountain guns, two machine guns, and 800 rifles. The crew fought most gallantly, and gave infinitely more than they received. At noon a Senussi bugler sounded the charge, and many of the enemy rose as if to make an advance, but our machine gunners did such execution that they quickly dropped back into cover.

MAKING A PEACE TREATY

Peace Treaties are Written by Hand; Securely Guarded

When the war comes to an end a treaty of peace will be signed, sealed, and delivered, as between the various belligerents. This will be a most imposing document, written by hand throughout, sealed with many seals. Following the usual custom, each copy will begin with the words: "In the Name of the Most Holy and Undivided Trinity." Should, however, Turkey be one of the signatory Powers, as seems probable, this formula will be altered to "In the Name of Allah the Almighty God," in the copy allotted to her. At least as many original copies as there are signatory Powers will be signed and sealed. The original copies will be securely locked up in the State archives of the different countries. Peace treaties are not written straight across the page, or pages, like ordinary documents. They are written in parallel columns, one in English, the next in French, the next in Italian, German, Russian, and so on, according to the number of languages spoken by the peoples of the signatory Powers. The text of each of these columns is an exact translation of the text of all the other columns, and the utmost pains is taken in the selection of words that will convey identical shades of meaning. The monarchs of the signatory Powers do not affix their signatures or seals to the peace treaties entered into by them. This important formality is carried out by specially accredited Peace Plenipotentiaries.

TANKS ARE SUPERHUMAN

Can do Anything and Everything Worth Doing

A soldier at the front in a letter home gives the following amusing account of the superhuman qualities of the British tanks: "They can do the prisoners up in bundles like straw binders," he says, "and in addition have an adaptation of a Goss printing machine, which enables them to catch the Huns, fold, count and deliver them in quires, every thirteenth man being thrown out a little further than the rest. While their equipment renders it possible for them to charge into a crowd of Huns and by shooting out a thousand spikes like porcupine quills, carry off an opponent on each. The cars in question," he continues, "can chew up barbed wire and turn it into munitions; as they run they slash their tails and clear away trees, houses, howitzers and anything else in the vicinity. They turn over on their back and catch live shells in their caterpillar feet. They loop-the-loop, travel forward, sideways and backward. They dig themselves in, bury themselves, scoop out a tunnel and come up ten miles further off in half an hour. The tanks can do anything and everything, in fact if there is anything which can't be done, the tanks can do it."

Directory First!

WHEN you call a telephone number from memory or when you guess at it you are apt to be wrong.

¶ The mind has a trick of transposing figures—instead of "1263" you are quite likely to say "1623."

¶ Also, telephone numbers, firm names, etc., are frequently changed.

¶ And when you thus ask for the wrong number, you waste your own time, the operator's, and the time of the person called through your error.

¶ Directory first is a good principle. In the end it saves time and temper to first consult the latest issue of the telephone book.

HAD AWFUL ATTACKS OF HEART TROUBLE

For 5 or 6 Years

Diseases and disorders of the heart and nervous system have become frightfully prevalent of late years.

One can scarcely pick up a paper but he will find recorded instances of sudden deaths through heart failure, or of prominent men and women unable to prosecute their ordinary business or profession on account of a breaking down of the nervous system.

We do not desire to unnecessarily alarm anyone, but to sound a word of warning.

When the heart begins to beat irregularly, palpitates and throbs, has shooting pains through it, it is time to stop and think.

To all sufferers from heart and nerve troubles Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills can give prompt and permanent relief.

Mrs. Frank Arseneau, Newcastle, N. B., writes: "I had awful attacks of heart trouble for the past five or six years, and as I had tried many kinds of medicine without getting any better I decided to give Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills a trial, and to my surprise I found ease from the second dose. I continued taking them until I had used six boxes, and now I feel as well as can be.

"At the present time my sister is using them for nervousness and finds great comfort by their use."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c or three boxes for $1.25 at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

She Forgot Her Wedding

By ELINOR MARSH

There are many ups and downs in the world. Estelle Ellison was a sufferer by one of the downs when she was barely twenty years old. A life of luxury was then, by her father's dying insolvent, turned to poverty. Her mother, her younger brother and sister were also left without a cent.

Walter Treadwell, a young man who was working his way through college by means of various expedients, had long been a youthful admirer of Estelle. It had been a question as to whether she would be won by a suitor who was able to support her in the style to which she had been accustomed or by this young man who promised to achieve success by his own endeavors. When the crash came in the Ellison family Treadwell was in his senior year in college, laying plans for raising funds to enable him to study a profession. This eliminated him as a probable winner of Estelle. Like many at times cure like, but poverty cannot cure poverty. Estelle had partly promised to wait for Treadwell, but her father's failure and her present necessities had changed all that.

Estelle at once set about considering what she might do to earn money. At that time the kinetoscope had been recently invented, and the picture play was in embryo. Estelle had taken part in private theatricals, and it occurred to her to apply for employment as a movie actress. She was pretty and petite. One of the magnates to whom she applied looked at her critically. He had accepted a scenario, the heroine of which was in the earlier parts a child and the last act a woman. Estelle's size was in her favor. He had engaged an actress for the part, but took Estelle's address, intimating that she might hear from him.

This is as near to an engagement as Estelle came. It certainly was not money earned. Meanwhile the wolf was prowling about the door. Even hunger visited the family. With hunger came a wealthy man who had had business relations with Estelle's father. It was said that the man, Elbert Atwood, had been the cause of Mr. Ellison's failure. He was sixty years old and unattractive. Whether he was anxious to undo what he had done to bring about the family misfortune or wanted a young wife is not known, but he proposed to marry Estelle and on the day of their marriage settle upon her an amount that would enable her to support those dependent upon her comfortably.

Here was a temptation for Estelle to do violence to her heart for the purpose of relieving the strain. She held out till the condition of the family became unbearable, then consented.

Preparations were made for the wedding. On the appointed day Mr. Atwood, who was to meet his bride at the church, went there to be married. The bride was late in coming, and he waited. Half an hour passed, and he sent to ask what had caused the delay. The messenger was told by Mrs. Ellison that her daughter had gone out at 9 o'clock in the morning and had not returned.

The groom expectant left the church. He knew that Estelle was to sacrifice herself to save her mother and her brother and sister from want, and naturally inferred that at the last moment she had been unable to carry out her intention. He made no effort to find her and did not even inquire later if she had returned to her home.

On the morning of the intended wedding the postman had left a letter for Estelle from the manager of the film company which had taken her address. It was simply a request that she would call upon him. She went at once, and he told her that the actress he had engaged had failed to comprehend the part she was to enact and he would give Estelle a trial. Estelle replied that she must be given a trial and a decision at once or she would not be open for engagement.

The company was assembled and Estelle was given the scenario of her part, which she committed to memory scene by scene. In the movies a great deal depends on the power of facial expression. This turned out to be a gift with Estelle, and at the end of the third act the manager offered Estelle an engagement at $25 a week. So absorbed had she been in the play that she had taken no account of time. When this offer was made to her she asked to be informed of the hour. What was her astonishment to learn that it was 12 o'clock—the hour for her marriage.

To appear at the church dressed as she was was unthinkable, and it would require half an hour to get there. The manager, who was bent on securing her for the part, wrote out a contract naming $50 instead of $25 a week salary and placed it before her. Tempted by the pay, scarcely knowing what she did, she signed and was launched as a movie actress.

That evening when her mother was putting the children to bed Estelle stole into the house and told what she had done. She was suffering at the position in which she had been placed with regard to Atwood and rejoicing that she had been able to relieve the necessities of those dear to her without sacrificing herself.

Estelle Ellison, under another name, is now one of the movie stars who command large salaries. But it is said that she will soon leave the profession to marry a young lawyer who worked his way through college.

The Verdun Cathedral.

It is incredible that the cathedral of Verdun is so little damaged. Perched on its hilltop, it dominates the city and the silvery thread of the river below. For miles about the rolling country it, stands out as a landmark. Though by night and day shells whistle by it, destined for the supply-trains on the roads that feed the Verdun sector, its outlines are intact. The railing that surmounts the tower on the right, as seen from the courtyard of the Bishop's Palace, has been partly blown away, and the facade is plentifully splintered with flying shell fragments. It would almost seem as though the Germans deliberately intended to spare the cathedral. Or else, which is more likely, they consider its destruction a waste of ammunition.

They have not been so considerate of the adjoining seminary and Bishop's Palace. Here we have the old monotonous story—roofs gone, arches crumbled, windows smashed, and the courtyard littered with broken stone. A Red Cross flag flew over the building closest to the cathedral. But a shell whipped it away and crushed down the roof over the patients beneath.

There was a greater impression of devastation inside the cathedral than without. We fell over broken stones and our footsteps reverberated in the ghostly depths of the vaulted rafters above. Our captain drew aside the curtain for us, but before we could steal out the wind swung the door to with the resounding report of a pile-driver. When the echoes died away we could hear the guards turning over on their pallets. I looked over my shoulder as a ray of moonlight filtered through the broken windows and fell on the marble column. I seemed to be leaving a place strangely peopled with ghosts.—Walter Hale in Harper's Magazine for February.

Lilted Little Rhymes.

When a passing acquaintance with Lord Cromer revealed his love of literature, he was a master of the classics, though his knowledge was mostly acquired by leisure reading, after school days. He would pause in a conversation and say, "How does this go," and quote, with delighted appreciation, lines from Homer or Pindar. His memory was excellent, but this did not prevent him from keeping commonplace books in which he entered anything which he particularly liked, or which amused him. He had that ingrained love of literature which makes a few written words on a bit of paper attractive. Somebody who knew him well recalls how enchanted he was with the lines:

Naughty little cuss words
Such as "Dash!" and "Blow!"
Just as much as wum words,
Point the way below.

Death Chair Now To Work At Night

ALBANY, N. Y., May 2.—Execution of the death sentence against condemned murderers at Sing Sing hereafter will be held at eleven o'clock at night on the Monday in the week set for enforcing the Court's decree. Heretofore the executions have been held early in the morning, usually on Friday.

It was stated at the Prison Department that the order for the change in procedure grew out of the indictments attending the execution of Petrus von den Corput, more than a week ago, when appeals to the courts resulted in the issuance of temporary stays of sentence that delayed the execution dangerously close to the expiration of the time set by the Court. Under the new arrangement applications for a stay of proceedings will have to be made sufficiently early in the week to permit a final decision long before the expiration of the time in which the condemned man shall be put to death.

PLENTY OF OFFICERS.

Nobody Seems to want to be a Private in the U. S.

BOSTON, Mass. — An officer's commission seems to be the only thing, outside of conscription, that will draw recruits into Uncle Sam's military forces.

While the Enrollment Office of the Officers' Training Camp at Plattsburg was swamped with seekers after shoulder straps yesterday, the regular recruiting offices of the city were shunned more unanimously than on any day since early in March.

Only four men willing to do their bit for their country as privates were examined at the army office, 2 Tremont Row. The office is expected to furnish 135 men in a day.

More Enthusiastic Reports On Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

Peterboro' People Are Putting This Great Restorative to the Test—Two Interesting Letters To-day

Peterborough, Ont., March 13.—The people of this city were never so interested in any medical treatment as they are to-day in Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. The Examiner has been reporting cures daily, and this has kept the people talking about their experiences until everybody seems to know about Dr. Chase's Nerve Food as a most satisfactory restorative for a run-down system.

Almost everybody feels the need of restorative treatment at one time or another. The business man and school boy, as well as sister and mother at home join in praising this well-known medicine.

Mrs. Craig, 45 Macdonnell street, Peterborough, Ont., writes:

"Several years ago when my family was small, I became run down and weak and was bothered with palpitation of the heart. I commenced using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and found such good results that I continued the treatment until I had taken about four or five boxes. It helped me and made me feel better afterward.

Since then, when I feel that I need a tonic, I take two or three boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, finding the same good results each time. I can also speak highly of box, a full treatment of 6 boxes for your Kidney-Liver Pills. I have great confidence in the use of Dr. Chase's Medicines as family remedies, and we always keep some of them in the house."

Mrs. J. Freeman, 538 Patterson Street, Peterborough, Ont., writes:

"Last spring, my daughter, aged eleven years, had a serious attack of heart trouble. For three weeks she was in bed under the Doctor's care. After she got up and was going around, we found she did not sleep well at night. We decided to try Dr. Chase's Nerve Food with her, so I procured some and commenced giving it to her. We found it benefitted her good[illegible] she did no wake up [illegible] the night, as she used to. [illegible]ed the treatment, and at present she is still taking them. She sleeps splendidly, and has not had any trouble with her heart since she commenced this treatment. I have recommended the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to many of my friends.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, a full treatment of 6 boxes for $2.50, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. Do not be talked into accepting a substitute. Imitations only disappoint.

PRINCESS MARY PLANTS POTATOES

British Family Eats War Bread, a Good Deal of Porridge and Herrings.

LONDON, May 2.— Princess Mary has taken up a plot of ground in the gardens of Windsor Castle, where the royal family is now living, which she is personally digging and preparing for potatoes.

The British royal family continue to set a good example to their subjects in war time economy. The latest restrictions to be adopted are five potatoless days and one meatless day each week.

More than two years ago the King and Queen banished alcoholic drinks from the table. All mention of the royal family, royal household and the royal servants are governed by the same rules. No royal guest is supplied with alcohol.

War or standard bread is eaten by the King and Queen, and to prevent waste, no toast is placed on the royal table. A good deal of porridge is eaten, and herrings are included in the dishes for the royal household.

IF BACKACHY OR KIDNEYS BOTHER

Eat less meat also take glass of Salts before eating breakfast

Uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish, ache, and feel like lumps of lead. The urine becomes cloudy; the bladder is irritated, and you may be obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night. When the kidneys clog you must help them flush off the body's urinous waste or you'll be a real sick person shortly. At first you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, you suffer from backache, sick headache, dizziness, stomach gets sour, tongue coated and you feel rheumatic twinges when the weather is bad. Eat less meat, drink lots of water also get from any pharmacist four ounces of Jad Salts; take a table spoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent should take now and then to keep the should take nw and then to keep the kidneys clean and active. Druggists here say they sell lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.

ONE OF MANY.

O, boy of mine, 'tis May again!
But closed my eyes to all the bloom
Of mayflower and of violet
I see but this; your empty room.
O boy of mine, again 'tis May!
'Twas Maytime when you went away!

And all the long and weary year
Have gone my weary way and yet—
Have gone my weary wa— and yet—
O boy of mine! full well I've known
That, spite of grief and spite of woe,
If you were here I'd bid you go!

That May day bright you marched away,
Your fair young head held bravely high,
And I, your mother, in the throng
Saw but one tall young form go by.
O b . of mine, "ve missed you so!
Yet, were you here, I'd bid you go!

O boy of mine! I'd bid you go
With pride, not tears, the world to see.
Fight bravely on, my soldier son,
For King and country, home and me!
Your mother bends to kiss the rod,
Submits—and leaves the rest to God.

Mr. Vedado took his wife to see a baseball game. At one stage of the game the left fielder made an exceptionally pretty catch, and Mr. Vedado rose to his feet and cheered with the other fans.

"Why, what's the matter?" asked his wife in surprise.

"Didn't you see the fielder catch that ball?" inquired Vedado, as he sat down.

"Yes," was the innocent reply "but isn't that what he's out there for?"

SKIN SOFT AS A CHILD'S.

"I was a great sufferer from eczema, and sold cream for years," writes Mr. John W. Moss, Lunenburg, N. S. "Five years ago three boxes of Dr. Chase's Ointment cured me and the old trouble never returned. My skin is as soft as a child's now, and I shall always say a good word for this Ointment."

LOCAL WEEKLY MARKET REPORT

Winter Wheat, $2.20.
Rege, $16.50.
Flour, per cwt., $7.00.
Gran. Sugar, $9 to $9.25.

The market continues its apparently blind soaring in practically every direction and the future seems without hope until the great readjustment has occurred.

Matthews-Blackwell are quoting $16.25 to farmers for live hogs.

Butter and eggs are stationary but the market is firm, and inclines upward.

The cheese boards have opened the season with a phenomenal showing for fodder cheese. Last week the reported top was 25 13-16c made at Belleville, 24th on Friday last Napanee cheese board brought 27 11-16c. The Imperial government's intention to buy cheese may be responsible for the flurry. Last year the exportable surplus and more of Canada was shipped, being only limited by the ocean space available. What more can be done this year is a question.

POSITION OF EGGS.

The Sun says:

Eggs are in a strong position. This is the season when they go into storage and prices have not come down as was expected. Storage men are putting them away as fast as possible as eggs are never cheaper than the early spring. This means continued high prices the season through or else a lot of dropped money.

POTATOES AT TORONTO.

Old vegetables are just about cleaned up on the Toronto market and the new supplies have not yet got into their stride. Old potatoes are still supplying the trade with Delawares at 65 per bag on the track; Ontarios, $3.75, with Western Canadas also at $3.75. A few hampers of new U.S. potatoes have been coming in but the trade in general in not handling them, according to A. A. McKinnon, wholesale dealer, who gives the above quotations.

Dawson and Elliott report some Prince Edward Island potatoes coming forward, and selling at $3.10. There is a general feeling of strength in the potato market in general.

Dandruffy Heads Become Hairless

If you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.

It doesn't do much good to try to brush or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop, and your hair will look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid arvon at any drugstore. It is inexpensive, and four ounces is all you will need, no matter how much dandruff you have. This simple remedy never fails.

"You ought to be happy now. Wheat is two dollars a bushel." "Yess," replied Farmer Corntossel. "The wheat's all right. But two dollars isn't anything like it used to be."

MAY WHEAT MAKES A JUMP OF 33 CENTS

May wheat at Winnipeg yesterday covered a range of 33 cents between the low point of the day and the high at the close. A rush to cover by the shorts, and very little for sale, sent the market up.

Chicago, May 3. — May wheat jumped 14 1-2 to 269 1-8 per bushel at the close of the market yesterday.

A buying wave started on the strength of an advance at Winnipeg. A feeling that peace talk was futile at present, and an unverified report that England had further requisitioned ships for the American trade. There was also heavy buying by traders who took profits Tuesday. July wheat was up 11 cents to $2.21, and September up 6 1-4 to $1.86 3-4.

The Winnipeg and Chicago wheat markets again broke loose near the close yesterday, when prices on all the options went away soaring. Winnipeg May covered a range of 33c between the high and the low, closing at the high point. Following Tuesday's wheat declines, millers Tuesday nigt at Winnipeg, and yesterday at Toronto, lowered flour 50c.

Cattle Markets.

Union Stock Yards — Receipts, 86 cars; with 987 cattle, 130 calves, 2-144 hogs, and 51 sheep and lambs.

There was a good steady market yesterday at this week's prices. The run for the midweek market was moderately fair, not too heavy nor too light, so that the offerings just about met all requirements. Had there been a heavier run prices might not have held quite so steady. There was some choice quality cattle offering and selling around $12.

Good grass cows are in steady demand.

Sheep and lambs firm.

8,000 LOCOMOTIVES TIED UP.

Accumulation at Essen, Germany Due to Lack of Lubricants.

LONDON, May 2.— When application was made in the Prize Court today for condemnation of several shiploads of lubricating oils and fats as enemy property, counsel read an affidavit from a member of the War Trade Intelligence Department in which it was stated that the latest reports in the hands of the Government showed that 8,000 locomotives were laid up at Essen alone last month on account of wear and tear caused by the scarcity of lubricating oils in Germany or by the employment of bad lubricants.

The lubrication of railway engines was said to be one of the most pressing problems in Germany.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

GIRL'S RUSSIAN BLOUSE DRESS.

By Anabel Worthington.

One look at this design makes it clear to us why the fancy of fickle fashion is securely anchored in the Russian blouse. Truly it is a most satisfying style for the growing girl.

In the model illustrated the blouse slips on over the head, is loosely belted at a bit below normal waist line, with pockets in contrasting note clinging to the belt for novelty and to delight the wearer. The sleeve may be in three-quarter length and finished with a very lovely cuff, as pictured, or a long sleeve with its fulness gathered into a wristband cuff may be your choice.

The separate two gore skirt is of different material, but all one may be employed to advantage. Many mothers like a woollen weave for the skirt and linen for the blouse. Others use striped and plain material, as in the illustration, or reverse and make the blouse of striped, trimmed with plain material, and the skirt of plain ground goods. The detail touches are effective, but the lines of this model are so very simple that a girl who has been taught sewing in the schoolroom can copy the design without effort.

The pattern No. 8,153 cuts in sizes 8 to 14 years. To make in size 10 requires 1⅛ yards of 36 inch goods for the skirt and trimming of blouse, and 2¼ yards of 36 inch material for the rest of the dress.

To obtain the pattern send 10 cents to the office of this publication.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 15 cents, or 2 for 25 cents.

British Advance Both North And South of the Scarpe

Hindenburg Throwing Fresh Divisions Into the Fight With Orders to Hold at All Costs But British Forces Still Making Progress--America Getting the Full Figures of the Submarine Losses Lord Northcliffe Emphatically Declares.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

(By William Philip Simms.)

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN THE FIELD, May 3. — In the darkness just preceding dawn to-day, the British again dealt a blow at the Germans over a wide front both north and south of the Scarpe River. At the moment of cabling, the impressions here is that the battle is going satisfactorily for the British. Prisoners are beginning to arrive and more German guns have been taken. Heavy fighting continues. Since the fighting began on the ninth, more than thirteen enemy divisions have been exhausted on this front alone—and yet Hindenburg is desperately throwing in fresh units with pitiless orders to hold or die. To the north of Greenland Hill and towards Fresnoy, Cherisy and Bullecourt, reports to headquarters indicate the British have gained ground. At Gavrelle and Loos the Prussians are counter-attacking fiercely. The enemy is in a particular frenzy over the British possession of these parts because such a hold hampers the work of destruction of Lens. That destruction is proceeding by day and by night. The Boches also fear for Douai, and the remaining portions of the Siegfried or Hindenburg line which has already been partly turned at Arras. The attack this morning began under an indigo sky. The moon had set, but during a brief period between the hurricant barrage fire and the attack itself, the stars lit up the battlefield with a blueish light.

By Stewart Lyon, Canadian Press Correspondent With the Canadian Forces

CANADIAN HEADQUARTERS IN FRANCE, May 2.—The enemy is now thoroughly alarmed over our thrust toward Douai from Vimy Ridge, and he has increased his artillery fire on this part of the front. He is expending projectiles more freely now than at any time since our advance began. Among the new guns he has brought up is a long one of 14 inches calibre, probably originally meant for battle cruisers of the Hindenburg class. Shells fired from it appear to be of fairly recent make, although others of smaller calibre that were used a short time ago were armour-piercing, which would indicate a scarcity of ordinary high explosive ammunition.

This morning aeroplanes on our corps front temporarily blinded the enemy by destroying four of his observation balloons, while maintaining vigilant guard against enemy planes.

Enemy patrols in the region between Arleux and Fresnoy are very nervous and call for aid from their artillery at the slightest sign of abnormal activity on our front. They are clearly apprehensive of an attack on Fresnoy.

The Germans attempted to raid our lines last night, but failed to reach them. Some casualties were inflicted by us.

Submarines Can Never Win the War

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, May 3.—Sensing wide doubt as to whether Britain has been telling the truth regarding the German submarine successes and the Western front, the United Press to-day put the question squarely up to the best posted man in the British Empire, Lord Northcliffe, and inquired whether America is getting the truth. As an indication of the importance attached to the inquiries by the British Foreign Office, the resulting interview was cabled to the United Press to-day over the British Government's own line, evidently at the suggestion of the Foreign Office.

(By Ed. L. Keen, U.P. Staff Correspondent)

(Copyright 1917 by the United Press)

LONDON, ENG., May 3,—America is getting the full and complete facts of every news feature of the British end of the war developments, except the actual figures of submarine losses, and may expect to receive them very soon. The submarine menace is the strongest card Germany has played, but it will never win the war. The foregoing is on authority of the man whose prophesies and statements on the war have come to carry more weight than those of any other figure in the Allied countries, Lord Northcliffe. Northcliffe is probably the squarest facer of facts in England. He never dodges. To-day the United Press put squarely up to him the proposition of the gathering doubt and distrust in America, resulting from the belief that British officialdom has not been frank with America in its statements of submarine losses, and possibly has not told the full truth regarding the Allies' successes on the Western front. "In regard to the loss of tonnage by submarines," said Northcliffe, "there is no doubt that the figures are serious. The Government does not prevent our newspapers from saying so, nor prevent American correspondents from saying so. The Government will, I believe, very soon publish the full facts and figures as soon as they can arrange the matter with our French and Italian allies.

"I do not hesitate to say in my newspaper that the submarine menace is the greatest difficulty we have had so far, but to pretend that the war can be won by submarines is preposterous. The very fact that the Germans are concealing their huge losses in men and our methodical capture of their underground forts in the battles around Arras should convince Americans that our successes have been so great as to cause them to hide their colossal losses in dead, wounded, prisoners, guns and other booty. The whole situation of the war is that in 1914 and 1915 the Prussians, owing to their many years of preparation, were successful in certain areas, though they lost all their colonies and had their ships driven from the seas. Last year was the year of final preparation by the Allies, but during 1916 the fight resembled that point in a tug-of-war, when neither side seems able to pull the other over. To-day Turkey is on its last legs. Austria and Hungary are crying out for peace, and Prussia and Bavaria are discontented. Through the United Press I have repeatedly pointed out at various periods of the war that, in my judgment, the struggle will be a long one. I have not altered my judgment. A tyranny that has taken so many years to gather strength and has fortified itself by every possible mixture of brute force and science is not easily broken. You ask about Ireland, and I appreciate the stimulus that would be given the campaign in America were the Irish question settled. There is, however, no difficulty between England and Ireland. It should be remembered that the difficulty is between the Ulster Protestants and the South and South-West Catholics. Mr. Lloyd-George is devoting a great amount of time in an effort to bring about union among the Irish people themselves. We hope, as you do, for an early and satisfactory settlement. Save for the submarine tonnage figures, which I believe will very shortly be made public, I know of nothing in the way of news of importance, either on land or sea, that has been withheld by the British censorship during many months, except the details of one or two signal successes with certain new war implements, the nature of which the Government is wisely hiding from the enemy in the same way that it kept the great secret of the tanks."

PHILADELPHIA, May 3.—The big tanker Sun was torpedoed and sunk in the Mediterranean, according to advices received here to-day by the Sun Oil Company, owners, from its London agency. The crew is reported as having been saved.

LONDON, May 3.—The transport Arcadian was sunk in the Mediterranean April 15, with a loss of 279 lives, according to an Admiralty statement to-day.

The Arcadian was hit by a torpedo from a Teutonic U-boat and sank in five minutes, according to the official statement. Most of those lost were drowned.

The Arcadian referred to is probably the former Royal Mail Steam Packet liner, a vessel of 8,939 tons, registered at Belfast.

PETROGRAD, May 3. — The Russian Provisional Government has again assured the Entente Allies that the change in government in Russia does not mean any slackening in the part of Russia in the common struggle of all the Entente Allies.

STRANGE LETTERS ALARMED PEOPLE IN CONGREGATION

Anonymous Notes Sent to Members of McLeod Street Church Recalled —Interest in the Libel Action of Rev. I. Cough

UNSIGNED LETTERS

OTTAWA, May 3.—Among Ottawa church quarrels and controversies not one has been so threaded with intrigue, bitterness and possibly conspiracy as that which will be aired in the courts as a result of Rev. Isaac Couch's action against J. C. Spence, principal of First Avenue School, for $10,000 damages for libel.

While Mr. Spence is the person against whom official action falls, because of the letter which he wrote to the recording steward of First Methodist Church, Owen Sound, resulting in the cancellation of an impending call, many other Methodists of McLeod street and St. Paul's churches have direct interest in the case.

Inception of the Trouble.

Local Methodists state that the first restlessness in McLeod street church began before Rev. Mr. Couch became pastor. It grew naturally out of the circumstance that the congregation was made up of elements from other churches, and perhaps in an honest disagreement as to policy concerning the wisdom of building the present costly edifice.

Then the city grew still farther southward and some of the congregation wanted a church in the Glebe locality. The natural drift of a growing city again contributed to discontent at McLeod and Mr. Couch inherited this further handicap.

It seems to have been the pastor's good fortune to have made many staunch friends, who, by virtue of the very intensity of their loyalty to Mr. Couch further stirred his critics against him.

Unsigned Letters.

Anonymous letters were received by various members of the congregation. They were for the most part vile in character, reeking with malice of a mind obsessed with some grievance. The death of one recipient has been attributed by some people to the shock he received from one of these blighting letters.

Suspicion fell on various people, the pastor among others. He denied authorship repeatedly. As a matter of fact, friends of Mr. Couch advance many reasons why he could not have written the letters. They say also that handwriting experts will reveal the true source and that the revelation will astound the city.

Now in the Courts.

The case is now in the courts. A judge and jury will decide whether Mr. Couch has in any way failed to maintain the high standard of his Christian calling or whether he is the victim of a heartless conspiracy.

An Expert Opinion.

Rev. Isaac Couch did not write anonymous letters to Methodists on the Glebe. At least this is the finding of a hand-writing expert, employed by the W. J. Burns Detective Agency, who took part in the famous McNamara dynamiting case in Los Angeles. The expert's probe was exhaustive, according to a prominent member of McLeod Street Church, and he was of the opinion that the slanderous anonymous letters were the work of a fanatical woman. It is more than probable that this expert will give evidence at the hearing of the $10,000 libel action which Mr. Couch has instituted against Mr. J. C. Spence.

The name of the woman who is believed to have written the letter has not been learned, but that she was the tool of others is the conclusion of some Methodists.

Rev. J. Hugh Michael, M.A. At St. James' Church

The opening services in connection with St. James Methodist church will be continued next Sunday, May 6th. Rev. Professor J. Hugh Michael, M. A., of Victoria University will occupy the pulpit morning and evening and will also deliver his celebrated lecture on "Lloyd George," in the George Street Methodist church on Monday evening, May 7th at 8 o'clock.

Chief Points In Report Of Railway Commission

OTTAWA, May 2.—The majority report of the Royal Commission on Railways recommends that Canada should have two railway systems.

(1) One owned by the Government and operated by a Board of trustees, to be incorporated with nominal share capital as the "Dominion Railway Company," and merging in its system the G.T.R., the G.T.P., the Canadian Northern and the National Transcontinental;

(2) The Canadian Pacific Railway, owned and operated under its present status and by the existing company.

The majority report of the commission would provide for four systems: The present Government railways, including the National Transcontinental, the Canadian Pacific, the Grand Trunk and the Canadian Northern. By this proposal the Grand Trunk Railway would be confined to Eastern Canada and the Canadian Northern to the West, and would provide for an interchange of traffic between the two.

Hun Attacks Repulsed And Prisoners Taken

Special to the Examiner:

PARIS, May 3.—(French Official.)—Resumption of spirited fighting along widely scattered fronts of the whole French front were reported in to-day's official report. It showed French troops in action at such widely distant points as south of St. Quentin, around Rheims, at Verdun and St. Mihiel.

"In the Chemin Des Dames region there was great activity in artillery and patrol encounters," the statement said. "In the Champagne German attacks were repulsed in the woods west of Monts Cornillet and Haut, our forces capturing 219 prisoners, and entire garrison of a block house.

"Around Verdun the French penetrated German trenches in the Avaucourt wood, on the right bank of the Meuse. "There was patrol fighting and cannonading at several points on the front, especially in the St. Mihiel sector."

NATIONALIZATION OF THREE RAILWAYS

THE MAJORITY REPORT

OTTAWA, May 3. — Immediate nationalization of the Grand Trunk, Grand Trunk Pacific and Canadian Northern, and their amalgamation with the National Transcontinental and Intercolonial into one great publicly-owned system, operated by an independent board of five Commissioners on a strictly business and economic basis, free from the danger of all political interference, is the special recommendation of Sir Henry Drayton and Mr. W. M. Acworth in the majority report of the Royal Commission appointed last July to inquire into the general problem of transportation in Canada. This report was presented to Parliament to-day, and accompanying it was a minority report by the third Commissioner, Mr. A. H. Smith, President of the New York Central.

The American railroad expert is opposed to Government ownership and operation, believing that best results can be achieved by continuing private enterprise, with the reorganization and better co-ordination of the work of the Grand Trunk Pacific, Grand Trunk, National Transcontinental and Canadian Northern. He recommends in brief, the taking over of the Grand Trunk Pacific with its branch lines in the West by the Canadian Northern, leaving the latter company free to operate in the western part of Canada, while the Grand Trunk should lease the easterd lines of the Canadian Northern from North Bay east, and confine its operations to eastern Canada. With regard to the Intercolonial and National Transcontinental, he believes that they should be left as at present as a continuous system from seaboard to the grain-distributing centres. The Commissioners agree that the Canadian Pacific is now giving good service and should not be interfered with. The Commissioners also agree that present conditions are economically bad, that there is wasteful duplication of lines lack of co-ordinated transportation economy, and heavy deficits to be met on behalf of the railways by the people of Canada for years to come, unless some scheme of radical reorganization is promptly carried out.

Two Great Railway Systems.

The majority report, prepared by the head of the Dominion Railway Commission and Mr. Acworth, one of the best known British experts on railway rates and economics, involves the creation of practically two great systems in Canada, one publicly owned and the other a private enterprise, the Canadian Pacific, both under the control, as to rates of the Dominion Railway Board, both operated by expert railway men, both serving their own economic territories, competing with each other, but each serving the people who contributed nearly all the financial assistance which built them.

The report declares that if the chief bane of Government operation of railways, namely, political interference, is eliminated, the proposed new great national system, operated on a strictly commercial basis, can be put, within a comparatively short period of years, upon a satisfactory financial basis.

Cost 12 1-2 Millions Per Annum.

The annual liability of the Government to meet unearned interest charges for the first few years of the new scheme is estimated at about $12,500,000 per annum. Compared with this, the country is confronted with a continuation of the present system of annual assistance to the Canadian Northern and Grand Trunk

SEED POTATOES FOR THE FARMERS

To Be Distributed in Oxford County at $3.50 Per Bag

SECURED IN ALBERTA

Higher Grades Placed at $4.25, $4.30, and $4.50 per Bag.

Assistant Deputy Minister Bailey, of the Department of Agriculture, arranged yesterday for the sale of a carload of seed potatoes to a farmers' club in Oxord County at $3.50 per bag. The potatoes are from Alberta and ordinary field run varieties. Another carload of Gold Coin potatoes were sold through the department in Hastings County at $4.25 per bag and a carload of Delawares from New Brunswick was distributed in Elgin County at $4.50 per bag. The department also has a car at Craigside which will be disposed of at $4.30 per bag f.o.b. there.

Mr. Bailey is also advised that the crop in the onion belt around Leamington will be 25 per cent. above normal this year and that cabbages will be 50 per cent. over normal also. The vegetable growers are buckling to with a good will and intention to crowd production well above the normal this year. Tomatoes will be lighter owing to the belief of the growers that the city folk intend to raise sufficient for home needs in the tomato patches of city backyards. Vegetable growers are fairly well supplied with labour at $60 per month for experienced help.

Smith Township Will Co-operate With the City

By-law is Being Prepared to Restrain Dogs From Running at Large in the Township

In response to a letter received from City Clerk Armstrong, requesting that the Township of Smith co-operate with the city in trying to prevent an outbreak of rabies, Reeve McKee called a special meeting of the Board of Health at the Clerk's office, Bridgenorth, on Monday evening. It was pointed out that there were a number of cases in the city of dogs affected, and that there was danger of it spreading to the adjoining districts. For the prevention of the same and for the protection of the people the Clerk was instructed to confer with the Township Solicitor and to have a by-law prepared for the prevention of dogs running at large. It was also decided to call a special meeting of the Council on Saturday next at 10 o'clock for the passing of the same.

Monaghan Must Supply Water To Mr. Geo. Lockie

The Court of Appeal which recently delivered judgment in the case of George Lockie versus The Township of North Monaghan, practically upheld the county court judge here upon all points. Damages were reduced and the injunction as to the water removed but the result is substantially the same. The Court found that Lockie's water rights had been invaded by the municipality and granted damages for this invasion. This gives the right to one again unless Lockie is supplied with a continuous supply of fresh water. As to the location of what is known as the "disputed road" the Court of Appeal took exactly the same position as that taken by Judge Hayoke. Lockie was unable to prove his claim as to this success being divided no costs were granted to either Lockie or the Township.

The main point at issue was the right of Lockie to have fresh water from the stream flowing to the north of his farm. The Court of Appeal has made this right absolutely and the Township will, no doubt, take the necessary measures to furnish the water required. The case has aroused a great deal of interest to the township, the last election being determined to some extent on the issue.

WAR TIME SENATORS.

The life of the present Dominion Parliament has been extended in the interests of better prosecution of war legislation and administration. Strictly, according to the Confederation Act and virtually the present parliament is an illegal body and cannot logically concern itself, except incidentally, with any work beyond that for which its life was extended—that is war work, and necessary routine legislative and administrative work. In this view, the demand that no more appointments to the Senate should be made by the government which holds power by a parliament really in a state of suspended animation, functionally, is quite justifiable. The government has already—to the partisan politician—the grand desideratum, a party majority in the Senate; and, besides, no national interest can suffer from waiving Senate appointment by a government that gets its authority from a parliament that has no strictly legal right to making appointments. The demand upon a government that holds office by the support of a parliament existing upon sufferance, might well be regarded, from a patriotic point of view. The two party leaders of Ontario, with a larger patriotism than that which flourishes at Ottawa, have come to an agreement to hold no by-elections during the war or before a general election.

A TIME FOR EVERYTHING.

The Examiner has received the following letter for publication; and the request is readily complied with; for we, as everybody must be, are in very hearty sympathy with the spirit of its appeal:

With the hearty approval of the Minister of Education, a letter was sent to every school in Ontario, requesting a subscription to assist in erecting a monument to Miss Edith Cavell who was so foully murdered by the Germans in Belgium.

It was hoped that in some way the people in nearly all school sections would raise an amount, large or small, for so worthy a purpose, but a very large proportion of the schools have not answered the letter.

It has, therefore, been decided to try and secure the co-operation of all the papers in Ontario by requesting them to urge editorially that on Empire Day this year each school that has not already contributed to the Cavell Fund should hold a concert or other entertainment under the direction of the teacher, aided, if possible by a committee, and under the patronage of the trustees; and that the proceeds be sent as soon as possible to the Secretary-Treasurer at the address given.

By granting this request in the next issue of your paper, you will confer a favour on the committee, and aid in a good work.

Yours faithfully,
E. de W. MONRO,
Secretary of the Fund.
Toronto, April 28, 1917.

No object can be more nobly worthy than that of suitable recognition of the sacrifice and martyrdom of Edith Cavell. Her life represents the highest type of devotion to the most sacred duty, and her end the most heroic fulfilment of its obligations—"faithful unto death."

The martyred minister of beneficence is worthy both in her life and death of the greatest of monuments. Still, there seem to be considerations of a weight and importance that render the present time an untimely one to undertake the provision of a monument by the means indicated. The erection of a monument is in its most abstract analysis a matter of sentiment; and of sentiment only; and though as in this case the sentiment is greatly noble, yet facts and deeds are the demand of this sternest of times, in the country's, empire's and world's history.

The task of winning this war—which is the noblest, most fruitful and beneficial vengeance we can wreak for Edith Cavell's murder, demands individually directed energy to that end. To win the war is a heavy task, growing every day harder, and to a degree that to win needs the enlistment of every particle of national and individual contribution of energy, of service and sacrifice. We need every penny possibly available, and every instrument and act of production to conserve the fighting energy of our soldiers and the operative vitality of those employed in munition production.

Every day and every hour appeals are made in the interests of work necessary to helping on the war. Women are called from their kitchens to work in the fields, and even school boys are subject to demand to help meet the most essential work of food production. The submarine sinkings of food-laden ships, adds to the shortage due to the millions of producers becoming destroyers—in the fighting ranks. Economy in use and concentration of service in production of food, are the first call upon our energies, and the necessity is emphasized by the fact that the King himself has made appeal for the practice of economy in eating.

The war and its winning is the supreme and central object of the life of every good citizen. We have to set aside every postponable project, no matter how laudable, that interferes with this one object. Public works in both Dominion and Province that can be done without, for the present, are held in abeyance. And so on through all ranges and levels of human activities and interests the essential takes precedence of the comparatively unnecessary and deferrable.

In this view, the monument proposed to Edith Cavell can be postponed. If the martyred nurse could speak to us no doubt she would say that the work to help in the war should not be allowed to wait. Her life was given to Red Cross work, and she, doubtless, would be pained if anything that would be a hindrance in the smallest degree, should be made a reproach to her interest in the work she had at heart and for which she laid down her life.

We must finish the war as a first duty. When that is done we can consider the weaving of the laurel crowns. No mother who has lent a child to death, with other stricken children needing her care, would think of a monument to the lost one, till the others were healed and tended beyond need of her nursing. So we must or should not think of dividing spoil and raising monuments till all the interests we are fighting for do not need the undivided devotion of our hearts and the untiring work of our hands.

Edith Cavell's sacrifice and death are the glory of our day and race; and if we can't keep her memory green without a monument, till we have finished the work for which she laid down her life, she will have died in vain.

Motor Car Shortage Is Imminent

The Ford Motor Company Said to Be 110,000 Cars Behind Orders

Due to its inability to produce cars in sufficient quantities to meet the existing demands, the Ford Motor Co. is said to have been 110,000 cars behind orders a week ago. As a consequence the erection of another plant is one of the developments of the immense business of the Ford Company.

In view of these conditions the energetic local dealer of Ford cars, Mr. Jos. J. Duffus, must have achieved considerable success in securing such an allotment of cars as has kept him in good going, up to date. His sales force have been kept working all spring up to their full capacity. With an apparent desire to avoid all appearance of egotistical enthusiasm, Mr. Duffus states that he unloaded four carloads of Fords last week, and he expects to unload another shipment of five carloads, now in transit.

Weeks ago, after having thoroughly diagnosed the situation to the best of his ability, Mr. Duffus foresaw an imminent shortage of cars on account of the factories starting to manufacture other motor-driven vehicles necessary for war purposes. He immediately took prompt action to be assured of his full allotment of cars up to the present month. From now on, however, Mr. Duffus is at present unable to predict for the future, or to give any assurances of later deliveries, or what the prices will be. But his views will be of special interest at this time to all who may be holding back, in the hope of securing some concessions. Mr. Duffus' intimate association with one of the greatest Canadian and American industries, gives him a standing as a safe spokesman on the subject.

Willie—Did you ever read the story of the sword of Damocles? Just think of a man sitting through a whole meal with a sword above him suspended by a single hair.

Gillis—Bah! He isn't in it with the woman who can dance serenely all evening with her whole wardrobe depending on a dingy little shoulder strap.

SINKING HOSPITAL SHIPS, THE CULMINATION OF SAVAGERY

Because hospital ships, with wounded soldiers and nurses on board, have recently been sunk without warning by submarine pirates, the International Committee of the Red Cross has sent to the German Government a protest against what the British Admiralty calls "this culmination of savagery." It says:

In torpedoing hospital ships combatants are not attacked, but defenceless persons, wounded, who have been mutilated and paralyzed by shell fire, women who have been devoting themselves to works of mercy and charity, men whose only weapons are such as do not take the enemy's life, but help to preserve it and to alleviate his sufferings.

If a submarine commander, the committee adds, suspects that a hospital ship "is being partly used for military purposes" he has the right, under The Hague Convention, to make an inspection, but for the torpedoing of a ship in hospital service there can be no excuse.

This protest will be ineffective. Even if the German Government should solemnly promise not to sink hospital ships, the losses of the Belgian Relief Commission show that in all probability the promise will be broken. Submarines are still sinking relief ships, plainly marked and carrying the German Government's written guarantees of immunity, granted in accordance with pledges given by that Government on March 15. The latest additions to the list of those sent to the bottom are the Ringborn and the Kongsli, torpedoed a few days ago without warning, in routes called "safe." The Kaiser's pirates are not satisfied with the destruction of such ships, sailing under his protection. It is their custom to shell the lifeboats in which sailors try to save themselves as the relief ships and their cargoes of food are going down. In this way they killed seven of the Haalen's men and wounded nine in the boats of the Tunisie. Norwegians complain because their sailors are victims of this inhuman practice. Two weeks ago the lifeboats of three of their ships, the Blomvag, Star and Bergengut, all torpedoed without warning, were targets for murderous gunfire. Eight men were killed in one of them and four in another.

These recent proofs of German brutal cruelty and barbarism are additions to a long list of offences which show, as President Wilson said, that the German Government "has thrown aside all considerations of humanity and is running amuck." They call for official denunciation by all the neutral nations of the world. Even those intellectual giants in Berlin who, we are told, have been 'intently studying the problem of Germany's world-wide unpopularity," without finding a solution of it, might be enlightened if they would give due weight to the record of their Government's foul crimes on the seas.—New York Times.

Tractor's Magneto Went Dead Machine Helpless On Road

A dead magneto in the motor tractor that arrived here on Tuesday for plowing, accounts for its failure to get into action as announced. Last night the magneto was separated from the machine and sent to Toronto and may have to be forwarded to Minneapolis where the tractor was made. On account of its unfamiliar design it could not be repaired here and it is likely that the tractor's heart, for such is the magneto, may have to be sent to the parent factory to be revived and returned.

The disappointment of this failure will be felt by those who were anxious to see the machine in action, and to turn it loose on fields near the city, where its capabilities could be fully tested. But it limped into the Peterborough Machine Company's yard and is likely to remain there until the magneto is returned, ready for work.

The success of tractor plowing is vouched for by Mr. Wm. McIlroy of South Monaghan, who recently purchased one of the International Harvester machines. Mr. G. A. Gillespie, who has followed the work closely, learned that Mr. McIlroy is highly satisfied with the performance of his tractor, which, right off the reel, turned up a sixteen acre field without a hitch.

According to the information, Mr. McIlroy handled the tractor himself and is speeding up his spring work.

Four of these International tractors arrived in the city this morning. One of them has been sold to a farmer at Garden Hill, and Mr. Gillespie endeavoured to obtain permission from Toronto to purchase a second one to undertake the work intended for the Minneapolis machine. If this step carries through, both machines will be used here and Mr. Gillespie hasn't any doubt that they will be fully used if they are immediately available.

It was hoped that the first machine would have begun work yesterday morning and by this time had demonstrated by its action that it was of real and extensive assistance to the farmers.

CLASSIFIES ALL CLOTHING.

In a pamphlet, called, "Establishment of Just Prices for Old Clothes," the German Imperial Clothing Department which is regulating the dress of the Kaiser's subjects with a view of conserving the nation's stock of drygoods and textiles describes and classifies all sorts of worn clothing, and finally divides them into the following three classes:

"Quality One—Good. This includes scarcely worn suits, cloth neither faded nor injured, lining neither torn nor patched; trousers may show traces of boot blacking under the front tuck, and of fray under the rear tuck, provided the knees and seat reveal only faint signs of shabbiness.

"Quality Two—Medium. Abundantly used but well preserved; collar lapel may be faded, elbows a little shiny; button holes slightly frayed or spotty, lining torn in places or patched; trousers may even reveal a faint shininess from sitting, with emphatic signs of use around the pockets and at the extremities.

"Quality Three—Bad. Much worn, with evidence of bad treatment; pockets, collar and seams worn through; button holes torn and very spotty; lining broken and unpatched; seats patched and cloth as a whole shiny."

Furthermore, according to excerpts from the pamphlet printed in the London press, owners of sack suits, Summer and Winter overcoats, extra pairs of trousers, and mantles, will receive on their cards entitling them to buy new clothes rebates amounting to 30, 20 and 10 per cent. of the prices paid in peace times, according to the category to which the second-hand garments are assigned. Frock coats and all that appertains to them, for reasons that seem sufficient to the government, are banished entirely from the "good" class.

A still severer decree is pronounced against "Schmoking" suits and frock coats with "phantasy" waistcoats, which are admitted only into the "bad" class.

CARROT LOAF.

One cup boiled mashed carrots, add one well-beaten egg, one onion minced fine, one tablespoon melted butter, one-fourth teaspoon salt, little pepper, one-half cup finely chopped walnuts and enough bread crumbs to make a stiff mixture. Form into a loaf, place in a greased pan and bake in a hot oven about one-half hour. Serve hot with ketchup.

RUSSIANS ANXIOUS TO RETURN HOME

Many Have Engaged Passage on First Ship Leaving for Copenhagen

WILL NOT WAIT FOR PEACE

Steamship Agents Say 1,000,000 Men Returning to Europe After War Will Cause Labour Shortage Here.

Steerage ticket agents in this city expect to have a big rush of emigration to Russia and Poland after the war is over, according to the hundreds of inquiries they have received since the Romanoff Government was overthrown from Russians and Poles here who are anxious to return to their old homes and see what has become of relatives.

A great number have paid a deposit on their tickets to travel on the first steamship leaving for Copenhagen or Bergen without waiting for peace to be declared. It is understood that when the Scandinavian - American Line receives permission from the British authorities to sail the Hellig Olav from New York for Copenhagen via Halifax, she will go out with all her first, second, and third class accommodations filled.

The labour agents predict that after the war there will be the greatest shortage of labour in this country that has been known for the last half century, and are confident that the emigration to Europe will exceed 1,000,000. There will be very little male immigration in return, because every able-bodied man will be needed to rebuild the countries which have been devastated by the war.

The British Government, in co-operation with the Canadian immigration officials at Ottawa, is making arrangements to send thousands of discharged soldiers with their families out to the northwestern provinces and give them free grants of land. In view of the probability of the war ending this year four officials from the Colonial Office in London have been in Ottawa for some time making arrangements for the allotment of the land so that there will be no delay in sending the men out after peace has been declared and the greater part of the army discharged.

The Canadian Pacific Railway also has immense tracts of land in the Northwest, a good portion of which will be given to men who have fought for their country in the war.

BUILD UP THE BLOOD

It is a hopeless task to try to restore your health while your blood is deficient in quantity or quality. The blood circulates through every portion of the body. It takes nourishment from the food and distributes it to the various organs and muscles; it takes also any medication that is administered through the mouth. The blood is the only means by which medicine can reach the nerves. Hence if the blood is poor, the body becomes weak and the nerves shaky, and the victim may be subject to headaches and dizziness, poor appetite, indigestion, a constantly tired feeling or perhaps to rheumatism, sciatica or neuralgia. Poor Blood is the forerunner of nearly every ailment to which mankind is subject, and you can only enjoy robust health by keeping the blood rich, red and pure. To keep the blood in this condition no medicine yet discovered can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Every dose helps to make new, rich red blood which carries new health and new strength to every part of the body. When one becomes weak and pale Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will restore the blood, bring the glow of health to the cheek, and make weak, ailing people energetic and strong.

You can get these Pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co. Brockville, Ont.

ROLL OF HONOR

Several thousand officers and employees of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company enlisted for active military duty with the Canadian Expeditionary Forces, and the majority of them are now in Europe, bravely battling for Canada and the Empire. This list of those who have given up their lives for their country or been wounded in action does not include the Army Reserves.

Impressions of a Hospital Ship

To-day when the world's seaways are traversed by all kinds of mysterious craft; and any distinctive marks they show are frequently designed to hide a sinister purpose, when the 'harmless necessary' tramp may be busily depositing mines, and the respectable merchantmen suddenly uncover a formidable battery—there is one class of ships which display their identity openly to the watchers of all the seas—"The Hospital Ships."

Painted pure white, relieved only by a broad band of green and great crimson crosses—that daring splash of colour which shows up so well on a dull horizon—they form a striking contrast to sombre merchantmen and cruel looking war craft.

At night, when a girdle of emerald lights shines round them and ruby crosses blaze out above, they become fairly like visions of the sea.

The creation of a great fleet of hospital ships is the necessary result of our far-flung battle line and our world-scattered empire.

SAIL IN ALL SEAS.

They exceed in number the total of our transports in the South African war, and are to be met in all the seas, carrying back to the empire's remotest confines those who have suffered in the empire's cause.

Dedicated solely to humanity's common cause, protected by the covenant of all nations, our hospital ships may carry none but sick and wounded and those who minister to them.

No other persons may travel in them on any pretext or urgency—patients, doctors, nurses, comprise all their company in addition to seamen.

Although, by terms of the Geneva Convention, Hospital Ships have full liberty to carry personnel and equipment for medical units in the field, the War Office has ordained that no person, not actually on the staff of the ship, and no article not destined for use on board, may be conveyed.

This stringent regulation is sufficient commentary on the German canard, alleging that our Red Cross ships carry combatants and munitions.

DEVOID OF MYSTERY.

No mystery surrounds these ships, neutrals from every land have inspected them at all times—journalists, philanthropists, men of action, men of letters, the interested, the curious even the inquisitive have been freely given entree. All over the neutral world are witnesses who know what our ships are like, whom they carry, and how they are managed. Curiously enough these facts are more familiar to foreigners than to our own people, with the exception of dwellers at home ports, and it is well that they should know something of hospital ships, and the peculiar sanctity attaching to them by international treaty, and should realise our strict observance of the corresponding obligations imposed.

The fleet comprises ships of varying sizes from the greatest ocean liner with deck above deck of wards and yet more wards, bewildering in number and providing more accommodation than the largest London hospitals, to the tiny converted channel ferry resembling a tender rather than a sister ship.

All alike are adapted to the special work they have to perform and to the ports they have to enter.

The larger ships, destined for voyages to Eastern or Colonial ports are fitted with all the special facilities for treatment and scientific work afforded by the best equipped institutions at home—are indeed great floating hospitals with a staff for all requirements and admirable discipline.

THE SMALLER SHIPS.

The smaller ships making only short passages and not requiring elaborate provision for continued treatment, are yet supplied with every requisite which experience could suggest, and are planned and fitted with the same judgment.

In the internal arrangements of the ship's good use has been made of the space, and while preserving the main divisions of the vessel as they existed, the wards are not unmanageably large, their number allowing of the necessary segregation of cases.

The most easily accessible wards are devoted to surgical and other helpless patients, both in order to minimise discomfort, and to allow of rapid removal to deck in case of emergency. Specially devised lifts, even in the small ships, contribute to the same objects.

Swing cots are provided for the more serious cases, and all beds are of a most comfortable type. Excellent food, and careful attendance and nursing are ruling principles.

It is interesting to watch the loading of a hospital ship—the train arrives, stretcher bearers are in waiting and the work begins immediately.

HANDLING THE PATIENTS

With the skill that only long practice can bring, the patients are lifted on to stretchers, carefully covered, and carried on board, each bearing a label with name, regimental number, disease or injury and briefly the treatment. Received at the head of the gangway by the Commanding Officer, they are, by his direction, carried to the ward most suitable to the nature of the case.

On the skill, method and quickness of all concerned in this process of embarkation depends, not only the comfort of the patients, but the efficiency of the Service.

In the wards the patients are received by the Medical Officers in charge and Sisters, and directions as to diet and treatment are at once recorded.

During the voyage lists are prepared of all cases for special treatment, in order, on arrival, to facilitate the despatch of cases to institutions reserved for, or affording the appropriate treatment.

Other lists classify the patients in home localities, so that they may be, as far as possible, sent to hospitals accessible to their friends.

The medical staffs of Hospital ships are composed almost exclusively of civilian practitioners, over age for service in the field, who have joined the R.A.M.C. Among them are some better known in another sphere than in their war guise.

Of the nursing sisters it is enough to say that the standard among them is equal to that of the London hospitals.

LESSONS TO BE LEARNED.

Of all the lessons to be learned on a hospital ship, the most insistent is one in human nature—the splendid cheerfulness and patience of the wounded. Whatever his other qualities, there can be no question of Tommy's shining example as a patient—wonderful in field and fight, he is never so wonderful as when under the weather and 'bound for Blighty.'

Just as it may be said, that no part of our war machine has been more perfected than the Medical Service, it is equally true that no part of medical administration is better devised than this, for evacuation and repatriation of the wounded—with a simplicity, a directness and a regularity reflecting the personality and genius of a directing mind.

NEW YORK PAYING LESS THAN OTHER CITIES FOR BILLY

NEW YORK, May 2.—New York is paying Billy Sunday a lower rate for "converting its citizens" than any other city in which the evangelist has campaigned in recent years. The average cost of the 16,156 trail hitters who have grasped the Evangelist's hand since he sounded his call to salvation in the tabernacle at 168th street and Broadway is $1.64. Buffalo, recently "revived" paid at the rate of $3.67 each for the "converts," gained in the first three weeks of the revival. Boston went even higher for its "reclaimed" inhabitants. Billy Sunday believes, therefore, the New Yorkers, while quick to respond to his stimulation, are slow when it comes to "paying their way to Heaven."

That New York is getting its religion cheaply became known yesterday when official figures of converts and collections in New York and Buffalo were given out for comparison. The total number of converts in New York up to last Sunday night is 16,156; Receipts in tabernacle collections for the same period totalled $26,519.52. In the first three weeks of the Buffalo campaign 7,831 trail hitters were obtained, while the collection amounted to $38,824.01. All members of the Sunday party feel that New York has fallen short of their financial expectations.

Smuggled Over Canada Border

U. S. REVENUE OFFICIALS MAKE AN IMPORTANT CAPTURE OF LEADERS OF BAND IN NEW YORK.

Two men alleged to be leaders of a band of drug dealers doing an illegal business in narcotics all over the country, have been arrested in New York, and cocaine, heroin, morphine, and opium, with a retail value of $500,000, have been seized in two upper east side apartments as the result of four months of work by detectives of the Internal Revenue Department, under the direction of Colonel I. G. Nutt, Chief of the Department.

Another man, who the authorities say, was the head of the syndicate, is being guarded in his handsomely furnished apartment. He is too ill to be moved. This man, it is alleged, has made more than $1,000,000 in the last seven months in the illicit traffic.

The drugs, it is said, were purchased in England, and smuggled across the Canadian border in various ways. A train porter, it is charged, threw a suitcase containing $8,000 worth of drugs from a car window when he was about to be arrested recently. The drugs found in the apartments were in three trunks and many of the cans containing them bore London labels.

Colonel Nutt has been assisted in the work of running down the syndicate by Federal Agent W. Yasalli, Police Lieutenant Henry Scherb, of the Narcotic Squad, and Detectives Judge and Haskett.

The men arrested gave the names of Max Kirschon, a Russian, 27 years old, of No. 220 East Seventy-Eighth street, a moving picture operator, and Jack Malaga, a Russian and a painter of No. [illegible] Second avenue. In an apartment in East Eighty-third street two trunks full of drugs, were seized, and in another in Avenue A one trunk full of drugs was seized.

Having been informed that the head of the alleged syndicate recently had received $8,000 for certain drugs, which were to be delivered to the buyer at Seventy-Sixth street and Third avenue, Detectives Judge and Haskett were on the watch when an automobile drove up, and the detectives allege Kirschon handed from the automobile a suitcase, which afterward was found to contain drugs, to Malaga. Malaga was at once placed under arrest, charged with violating the Harrison anti-drug law. Kirschon was arrested later on the same charge at his home.

Chief Nutt said the drugs would have been sold for perhaps more than $500,000, and that they were retailed in New York, Pennsylvania and New Jersey principally, but that the trade was carried on in nearly all parts of the country. He considers the arrests and the raid just made the most important in a long time.

LURED CRUISER TO DOOM.

How the Pegasus Was Destroyed by Germans Through a Ruse.

An astonishing story of how, at the outset of the war, the British cruiser Pegasus was fooled into dismantling at Zanzibar, where she was attacked and sunk while thus defenseless by the German cruiser Koenigsberg on Aug. 9, 1914, was told by some officers and men of the Koenigsburg,, captured at Tabora, German East Africa, by the Belgian troops and sent to France recently as prisoners. Their assertions were confirmed in every particular by documents and maps found on Capt. Lieut. Schreiber and other officers. These and other papers seized at Tabora furnish additional proof, if any were needed, of German premeditation in the world war. They show that hostilities were started in Africa before war was declared.

Thus on Aug. 1, the Koenigsberg put out from Dar-es-Salem, the capital of German East Africa, intercepted a British collier laden with fuel for warships on the East African station, put a prize crew aboard her to take her into Dar-es-Salem, and took possession of her wireless code. By means of the code the warship sent out a message to the Pegasus, ordering her to put into Zanzibar, overhaul her machinery, and scrape her hull. The Captain of the Pegasus, never doubting that the code message came from the Admiral commanding the squadron, did so. The Koenigsberg followed her into the harbour at Zanzibar on Aug. 9 and shot her to pieces, killing 300 of the crew.

The news of this treacherous act soon reached the British squadron and the Koenigsburg fled southward and hid up the Rufiji River, where Admiral Kings-Hall found her in the following July and destroyed her.

The guns of the German cruiser had been landed meanwhile, however, and after being used against the flotilla that went up the river to fight her were served by members of the crew in the land campaign until one after the other they were destroyed or captured. On more than one occasion they were pitted against artillery salvaged from the wreck of the Pegasus.

While the attack on the Pegasus was in progress, and the Belgians knew so little of the cataclysm in Europe that the flag still flew over the consulate at Dare-Salem, the gunboat Von Wissman, on Lake Tanganyika, destroyed the German vessel Delcommune and bombarded the Belgian coast of the lake, and Dr. Schnee, Governor of German East Africa, appointed Councillor Brandenburg, a member of his staff, Governor of the Belgian Congo.

Following is a characteristic entry in the diary of an officer of one of the lake gunboats.

"We are pirating. The life of a pirate is a very agreeable one. We land at a place and sack the stores. The Belgians have some good champagne."

Joseph and Isaac went to hear Billy Sunday preach, and after the service, as they were going home, Joseph asked:

"Well, Isaac, vat you tink of him?"

"I didn't like him," said Isaac. "Too much hell. It was hell, hell, hell, all the time. And I don't believe there is any hell, Joseph."

"No hell?" asked Joseph in amazement.

"No;" answered the friend.

"Well, then, Isaac," said Joseph, "if there is no hell, where is himmel gone?"

When British And Slav Troops Joined Hands

Wonders Achieved by Empire Soldiers in Four Months Fighting—Continuous Struggle on River Tigris—Forced and Fierce Encounters Drove the Turks Pell-Mell Before Us

For four months British troops in Mesopotamia have been fighting without cessation, and in that time they have achieved wonders. From Kut to Bagdad, from Bagdad to Khanikin, they have steadily fought their way, driving the Turks pell-mell before them.

The Russians operating from the north-east have been doing much the same thing. Advanced detachments of the two forces established touch south of Khanikin, which was taken by the Russians.

In a despatch from the front via Bussorah, dated Feb. 20, Mr. Edmund Candler says:

The fighting on the Tigris has been almost continuous since we began our offensive on December 13, but there was no sign of tiredness among the troops who fought in the Hai salient. We began our offensive here on both banks on January 25th.

I was going round the trenches with a brigadier the evening before the assault. He wanted to make sure that his men knew exactly what they were going to do. We had suffered losses at Mahomed Abdul Hassan by units who were carried beyond the objective in the flush of victory, but the orders for the coming attack were clear. Four hundred yards of the enemy's trenches facing our firing line had to be taken, held and consolidated, and no one save the bombing parties was to go one step beyond.

But the general's visit to the trenches preceded the issue of regimental orders. He stopped at every second bay, and asked the men how far they were going, and what they were going to do. None of them knew, but none erred on the side of caution. The general explained tersely what was expected of them, threatening anathema to the heedless and extinction from our own guns; and he rubbed it in in his half-amused Irish way that it would be their own fault. As he progressed the cumulative uninstructedness of two battalions lent emphasis to a sufficiently emphatic tongue. At last we came to a small Irishman with clear, steady eyes and the true Hibernian smile.

"I'M GOING INTO KUT."

"Well, how far are you going to-morrow?" the general asked him. "Bedad, sir," he answered. "I'm going as far as I can. Eight or nine miles if they'll let me."

"You will stay in the enemy's firing line," the general said quietly and steadily. But the Irishman took that as an impudence, and spoke up sharply.

"Not I, sir," he protested. "It will be into Kut I'll be going."

The general repeated the order. But as he spoke this mettlesome Celt interrupted protesting that one trench was not enough and that he was "not going to let them say he was afraid," and I know that he meant it, that if by any accident his company officer failed to instruct him, he would go straight on, beyond the enemy's captured trench, alone or accompanied, without looking around until he fell.

However, nothing was left to any chance. I saw him the next day confidently cutting a fire step in the enemy's first line, converting a parados (back of a Turk trench) into a parapet (front of a British one) and waiting for the Turk to come on.

I was with the U——s in the trench when they went over. They looked thoughtful and a little strung up, but there was no tiredness about them. When the signal was given that they had got in I crossed over and found the enemy's firing trench broken up by our artillery and heaped with the dead, the parapets fallen in on a debris of rifles and ammunition and litter of all kinds. We captured two officers prisoners, 136 rank and file, three trench mortars and a machine gun.

During the night the Turks made repeated attempts to bomb us out of the ground gained, both on our flanks and in attacks directed down our communication trenches on to our centre. The U——s and V——s stood their ground and out-bombed them every time.

In the morning we attacked on a 400 yards front; before dawn we had bombed out on both flanks, and held 1,200 yards of the enemy's first line, and a strong position in the second.

COSSACK'S RIDE.

Writing from Kisil Robat on April 2, via Bagdad and Basra, Mr. Chandler said:

At noon to-day we met the Russians at Kisil Robat. The officer commanding our column, seeing their cavalry with the blue and white pennant, called up the Indian Lancers, who pushed forward, wheeled into line and saluted, and turned back, bringing the Russians into camp. Our Allies had a hard task from Hamadan; through an inhospitable country, over snow passes trodden into the consistency of ice down into the burning heat of ravines, they pressed hard on the heels of the Turks.

The road all the way from Hamadan was a defile between snow clad ranges, which made a turning movement almost impossible. Hence there was no opportunity of rounding up the Turkish rearguard, but owing to the relentless pressure of the pursuit the enemy suffered heavy losses in the retreat, through artillery fire, sickness, and exhaustion.

All the way the road was littered with dead mules, horses, camels, asses and buffaloes. The Turks' ranks were thinned by typhus and most of them were bare footed.

The country between Kermanshah and Khanikin is an uninhabited waste—seven armies have passed through it in seven months. Villages are abandoned, and supplies do not exist even in districts which are the least exhausted. The two armies were dependant on a country that could barely support a brigade. Many Turks fell from exhaustion, and the cemeteries of every village show signs of new graves. Nearly 2,000 were counted at Kermanshah alone.

PERSIA CLEAR OF TURKS.

The Cossack horses were fed on dry leaves and shrubs. There was no grain, and the troopers had been reduced to two chappaties a day.

At lunch we drank the health of the Russian army. A motor convoy brought in bully-beef rations, biscuits, jam and dates for the Cossack squadron. The Cossacks a hard, weather-beaten, cheery crowd, were soon fraternising with our troops. They ride with short stirrups, toes down, heels up, leaning forward, their weight thrown on the stirrups. They wore jack boots and sheepskin caps. Besides their rifles, they carried knives, and curved Caucasian scimitars without hand guards.

They came in at a walk, their small horses, which are mostly under fourteen hands, being heavily laden, and looking thin and spent. They had crossed the Persian frontier at Kasrishirin, and bivouaced last night ten miles north east of Kisil Robat. Their casualties during the whole march from Hamadan were not heavy.

Persia is now clear of the Turks, and there are no enemy troops this side of the Diala river.

NEW DISCOVERY MADE AT NEWRAY

The latest news from the Newray, in Porcupine, is that the drift on the Anchor vein, which was cut recently at a distance of 330 feet southwest of the main shaft, is in approximately 60 feet, and that the entire face is in ore, which carries high milling values. This ore is the typical quartz and schist of the Hollinger-McIntyre area, in which Newray is located.

The discovery of this vein is the more interesting in view of the starting of the Newray mill about the end of the month. There is a large dump of ore, which runs around $20 in gold to the ton, on the property, but the management plans to operate the mill on what will be recovered in development, and the probability is that the dump will be held in reserve.

Newray is capitalised at only a little over $1,000,000, and as the property comprises 320 acres—being one of the largest holdings in the camp—the market value of the company is comparatively low, despite the fact that the shares are selling now

Ex-Officer Gives Authentic Story Of Atlantic Raider

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico. —What is believed to be authentic information as to the fate of the German cruiser, Karlsruhe, which was active in the waters of the Caribbean and off the coast of Brazil during the first months of the war, was given this week by Captain Heinrich Lubinus, former prize officer on the Karlsruhe, and who brought the German prize K. D. III. into this port in January, 1915. The K. D. III. was formerly the British freighter Farne, and was captured on October 5, 1914.

The Karlsruhe was sunk following an internal explosion on November 4, 1914, not far from the Island of Trinidad, according to Captain Lubinus, who said that he had only recently received this information direct from Germany, from one of the surviving officers of the cruiser.

This statement gives confirmation to reports from Trinidad about that time saying that a life preserver and portions of wreckage believed to have come from the Karlsruhe, had been picked up there.

According to Captain Lubinus, Captain Kohler, commander of the Karlsruhe, several of the officers, and more than one hundred of the men, lost their lives when the cruiser went down.

"The Karlsruhe was not built for tropical service," said Captain Lubinus. "She was designed for home waters. Her ammunition rooms were very hot, and it is believed that an explosion in one of these rooms caused the ship to sink.

"According to my letter the explosion blew the cruiser in two almost amidships; the forward portion, where Capt. Kohler and more than 100 men were at the time, sinking immediately and without permitting anyone to escape. The after portion was 24 minutes afloat and many of those in this section of the ship saved their lives. Most of the survivors were picked up by another German ship, the Rio Negro, which made its way through the British blockade back to Hamburg."

"On October 31 the Karlsruhe left us. We were to remain in a certain position off the Brasilian coast, out of the usual sea tracks, until she returned to us for coal. We sailed back and forth along a line sixty miles long for week after week, and in all our sailing we saw but one vessel, a British man of war. We hoisted a British flag and the ship went on, apparently not noticing us."

After waiting for almost two months for the Karlsruhe to return to her, Captain Lubinus started for Northern waters. He was almost completely out of supplies and water. Sailing mostly at night and keeping out of the way of ships in the South American trade, he finally made his way to this port, arriving on January 12, 1915.

For more than two years after interning here Captain Lubinus said he could get no information of the Karlsruhe. Then a few weeks ago came the letter from one of the Karlsruhe's survivors.

The Karlsruhe was at Havana at the outbreak of the war. Prior to that she had been on duty in Mexican waters. After taking coal and provisions here on August 9, 1914, little definite is known of the cruiser's activities. If the statement of Capt. Lubinus is correct the Karlsruhe sunk seventeen ships between that date and her capture of the Farne on October 5. How many more she sent to the bottom between that time and her own sinking on November 4, may not be known until after the end of the war.

Against the statement of Captain Lubinus is a story told within the last two weeks by an American ship captain. This captain said he was in Hamburg in January, 1915, and saw the Karlsruhe there at that time.

SEES $1.00 POTATOES.

Black is Optimistic—Creelman Calls Burrell a Shifter.

TORONTO, May 3.—"Even if the acreage planted to potatoes in Canada this year is ten per cent. less than last season, we should, if we have a fair average crop, find the price of potatoes lowered to $1 a bushel by next autumn," said W. J. Black, Dominion Commissioner of Agriculture yesterday. "There is no reason for any panic about the potato situation Canada had only half a potato crop last year."

Dr. C. C. Creelman commenting upon the statement of Hon. Martin Burrell in the Commons throwing the responsibility for any potato shortage upon the Provincial Ministers of Agriculture stated, "Mr. Burrell is only trying to shift the responsibility off his own shoulders."

Summary of the Metal Markets

There is Still a Shortage of Many Lines of Raw Material

In its summary of the iron, steel, metal and machinery markets for the week ending May 1, Canadian Machinery and Manufacturing News, Toronto, makes the following observations:

The industrial situation, while favorable in regard to volume of business, is not so satisfactory in other respects. There is still a shortage of many lines of raw material, and the freight situation is not as it should be. There is still considerable congestion in the railway yards, and as a result deliveries are delayed. The coal situation is also causing considerable uneasiness owing to shortage of supplies and continued high prices. The advance in miners' wages and increase in cost of transportation will result in higher prices for the consumer. The situation in the steel market in the United States is becoming more settled and prices continue to advance. The demand for steel products is steadily increasing in spite of the abnormally high prices, and there is no sign of any decline in either respect; in fact, indications point to further advances and increases in volume of tonnage. The pig-iron situation is unchanged. Domestic iron is still off the market, and quotations therefore are unobtainable. Prices of copper and brass scrap have declined in sympathy with the virgin metal market. Steel and cast iron scrap on the other hand are firm and in good demand. The non-ferrous metal markets are unsettled on account of the uncertainty prevailing as to the requirements of the United States Government and fixing of prices. Copper and spelter are weaker and have declined, but tin is stronger and higher. The machine tool market is fairly active, but deliveries continue slow except on lathes. Prices continue to advance, affecting high-speed drilling machines and millers.

Robert Warwick At The Empire

"Friday the Thirteenth" Being Shown the Balance of This Week

Robert Warwick, the popular matinee idol, will return to this city at the Empire Theatre for the balance of this week, when he will be seen in the World Film presentation of "Friday the Thirteenth," the Thos. W. Lawson story which appeared serially in "Everybody's" magazine a few years ago. It will be remembered that when Mr. Lawson was contributing to this magazine, its sales reached the million mark, and was never as popular as when this noted stock broker was a contributor. But of all his stories, "Friday, the Thirteenth" stands out prominently as the most vivid, fascinating and interest absorbing that was ever written. In the film play, made under the direction of Emile Chautard, William A. Brady and Mr. Lawson collaborated in making it a film masterpiece. It has already created quite a furore wherever shown, and will positively make the hit of the season when shown here.

A slight disturbance arose outside of a church in the far famed Ozarks, where a funeral was being solemnised, says "Judge." "What is going on out there?" whispered an usher to a late comer. Aw, the hearse and the pallbearers' wagon 'pear to be jockeying for position," replied the new arrival, who was the owner of a running horse.

"The Whip" Is A Wonderful Picture

Will Appear For First Time at the Grand To-morrow Afternoon and Evening

Several representatives of film exchanges were in the city yesterday, and while "The Whip" is a rival production, when interviewed about it, they all pronounced it a wonderful production and one that should draw big audiences in Peterborough.

"The Whip," the supreme offering of filmdom, is coming to the Grand Theatre to-morrow and Saturday to charm, delight and thrill the patrons of this show house with its thrilling story, its splendid characterization, its truly wonderful photography and its sensationally magnificent scenic effects. "The Whip" is easily the world's biggest motion picture. One scene alone, that of the great train wreck, was staged at an enormous expense merely for this offering. And it is the biggest and best train wreck yet seen in motion pictures. An automobile race and wreck that is so vivid as to hold the spectators gasping is another big feature. But, of course, the biggest feature of all the tremendous scenes and events in this gigantic production is the horse race. The scenes for this splendid event were taken at Saratoga, where the biggest racing events of the world are pulled off, and the excitement and the enjoyment of Saratoga are shown with striking fidelity. "The Whip" has not one star, but six. From start to finish it has been staged on a remarkably elaborate scale. The production has been made by that genius of the screen, Maurice Tourneur, and he has excelled all his previous efforts in this tremendously successful production. By all means, see "The Whip." It is the only motion picture that you cannot afford to miss.

NEW MEN ON CANADIAN GENERAL ELECTRIC BOARD

Mr. George Beardmore, of Toronto, and Mr. W. G. Ross of Montreal, have been elected directors of the Canadian General Electric Company. Mr. Beardmore, who is connected with several large Canadian corporations, takes the seat made vacant by the death of the late Senator Kerr. Mr. W. G. Ross, who is president of the Montreal Harbor Commission and of the Asbestos Corporation of Canada, takes the place of Mr. J. K. L. Ross, who resigned from the board after his appointment as chairman of the Pensions Board of Canada.

The first quarter has been a good one for the Canadian General Electric. Business has been quite as good as any three months during 1916, and compares very favourably with the first quarter of last year.

PREVENTION OF COAL SHORTAGE.

This winter we have had a coal "famine" and that suffering has accompanied the shortage of this necessity is undeniable. The average citizen has a notoriously short memory, but now is the time to impress upon him that, in many cases, the suffering was due to lack of foresight. In Canada many people buy in small quantities—often only one ton. If, for any cause, there is a shortage of coal, improvident householders demand that the coal dealers do the impossible, namely, that they supply fuel that is unobtainable. Whereas, had they purchased their coal in the summer or autumn, there would be ample supplies available.

While some large consumers, such as manufacturers, cannot store a six months' supply, most householders can, with their present bins or with enlarged bins, store coal to meet their requirements till March or April.

In recent years, we have had two coal "famines," first in 1901-2, the year of the coal miners' strike, and second, this year, when the severity of the weather and the extraordinary prosperity of the United States caused an unprecedented congestion of freight. A survey of conditions in the United States demonstrates that in the future there will be more coal "famines" than in the past and that they will occur at shorter intervals. For this there is only one remedy:

Buy your coal in the summer. If you have not sufficient storage, enlarge your coal bin.

CITY IS IN THE MARKET FOR A SUPPLY OF COAL

Will Ask For Tenders on About One Hundred and Fifty Tons —Meeting of the Fire, Water and Light Committee

Sixty minutes was the actual time consumed by the Fire, Water and Light committee at a meeting held last evening. In that time Ald. Dobbin, chairman of the committee, manoeuvred his committee through the jungles of departmental business and emerged just as Big Ben was recording the hour of nine.

A bill from the Utilities Commission for the sum of $312 for water supplied for the three months of the current year, occasioned some discussion. Ald Dobbin, chairman of the committee, pointed out that the amount was based on the amount charged last year. This is at the rate of $1,250 for the entire year. The amount covers the cost of water used by the city for street watering, etc. The account was turned over to the Finance committee.

Honk! Honk!!

A contract for the purchase of a chassis for the use of the Fire Department was accepted by the committee. The price of the chassis is $466. The body and self starter will bring the total cost up to about $800.

The committee will meet representatives of motor driven fire engine apparatus on May 15th. Specifications have been sent out to a number of manufacturers for a 750 gallon capacity pumper.

Black Diamonds.

Letters inviting tenders for coal will be received by the city up to May 21st. Over one hundred and fifty tons are required for the city buildings, police station, isolation hospital and fire department.

Fire Protection.

A fire alarm box will be placed in the vicinity of Albert and Alfred streets at a point to be selected by Ald. Dobbin and Chief Howard.

The factories of the city will be invited to instal fire alarm boxes at their own expense. The city will connect up with the boxes.

The Fire, Water and Light committee will recommend the installation of a fire hydrant in the vicinity of the Henry Hope and Sons.

Ald. Dobbin was empowered to dispose of a horse as soon as the new motor driven truck arrives from the factory.

The Night Soil Must Be Collected Every Month

Collectors Encounter a Difficulty and Come to the Property Committee For a Ruling—Old By-law Continues in Force

A couple of night soil collectors waited on the Property committee last evening and informed the committee that a number of residents had refused to have monthly collections made, upon the grounds that it had been proposed to bring in a new by-law making it possible to have collections made every two months. Mayor Duffus suggested that the Sanitary Inspector prosecute a number of cases as an example to others. One of the collectors produced a newspaper clipping which he claimed was interpreted by a number of ratepayers as meaning that collections would not have to be made each month. It was pointed out that the by-law referred to had not been adopted and that in the meantime the collections would have to be made monthly or oftener if the Sanitary Inspector deemed advisable.

Will Be Reported.

Ald. Smith said that the newspaper clipping referred to could not be interpreted as meaning that collections could be delayed for two months. The collectors were authorized to go ahead and report all citizens who refused to have the collections made each month.

In a letter received from the Chief Officer of Health for Ontario, it was stated that collections should be made oftener than ten days. The committee agreed that this would be impossible in view of the present condition of the labour market.

Scarcity of Labour.

Mr. E. K. Graham, contractor for the collection of garbage, appeared before the committee and stated that he was unable to secure sufficient men to do the work. A total of thirteen men employed by Mr. Graham have enlisted. Three men left Mr. Graham on Monday. Ald. Saunders, chairman of the committee, assured Mr. Graham that every effort will be made to assist him to secure men for the work.

MOSQUITO NETTING FOR ARMY.

NORWALK, Conn., May 2.—The Dresden Lace Works has an order from the Government for 600,000 yards of cotton netting to protect from mosquitoes the army and navy forces stationed in warm climates. It will cost about $300,000. The factory will be run twenty-four hours a day.

DID YOU WEIGH YOURSELF?

In many public places we see a sign, "Did You Weigh Yourself Today?" So, we are minded to ask, "Have you weighed yourself to-day, in relation to your job, and if so, how did you size up with the requirements?"

The story of any successful man's life is the story of mind development, courage, industry, enthusiasm, patience and determination. It is entirely and solely up to whether you will remain a follower or become a leader, whether you will be a mental cripple or an intelligent giant. Every position presents numerous opportunities for personal development, and the material with which men may develop.

A "light-weight" is all right in his own class, but he seldom does anything outside of it. Even in his proper division, a light-weight is seldom successful unless he carries a good, stout "punch" in either glove. On the other hand, a man may weigh a few hundred pounds, physically, and still be more interesting than important. Of course, employers feel an interest in the style of clothes a man wears and his ability as a social mixer, for such things bear directly on business success, but the big thing which overshadows the rest, is this:

How much do you weigh, mentally? Have you initiative, creative ability, vision, imagination, nerve? Have you plenty of "pep?" Do you try to do a little more and a little better work to-day than you did yesterday or last week? Or, do you continually "shoot at the clock," kill time, watch the man in the front office, worry about the heat and do just enough work to get you by? Are you an 18-karat staller, or a quick-thinking, rapid-moving live wire? Weigh yourself.

At the risk of being trite, we call the attention of every man to this sentence of sound logic: "The fellow who never does any more than he is paid for, seldom gets paid for more than he does." It doesn't take long to spot the clock-watchers in any organisation.

If any member of an organization does not give his organization the best he has in him, then he is not an ideal member of the group. Your best means just that — not pretty good, nor good enough, but best — and to deliver it you have to keep hustling about sixty seconds every minute. Of course it can be done. Everybody is pulling for you to come through a winner. Are you coming, or are you going to quit on the stretch?—Ford Times.

SNOW IN NORTH COUNTRY

New White Blanket Covers old Snow in Woods.

HAILEYBURY, May 2.—Weather conditions throughout the north country are very bad; soft snow has been falling all day. In the open country it melts almost as soon as touching the earth, but in the wooded area, where the old snow is still nearly two feet in depth, a new white blanket is taking form. The heavy rains of yesterday have served to hasten somewhat the approach of more springlike conditions, but the ice on the lakes is still quite solid.

Peace Offers Will Not Be Acceptable

Germany Will Likely Want to Retain Her Way to Bagdad

Austria, Bulgaria, and Turkey Show Little Signs of Breaking Away.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—The British Mission expects to be here at least ten days longer. Then the party will leave for New York and possibly a short trip into the Middle West. Several experts will remain permanently in Washington to help work out the arrangements agreed upon and to reinforce the staff of the British Embassy. To-day was devoted largely to detailed discussion, especially in following out the shipping suggestions brought out at Tuesday's first formal conference.

Reports of fresh peace offers from Berlin brought forth the statement from the mission to-day that a series of feelers were expected during the next few months, as an immense amount of quiet peace effort has been under way by Teutonic emissaries, especially by Austrians in Berne, but no credence is being placed in their acceptability. Germany was stated to have made advances to the entente proposal surrendering her conquered territory in the east and west on condition of retaining the Balkan way to Bagdad and Mesopotamia, but the allies have been more united against that plan than against any other proposal.

Turks, Etc., Will Be True.

Prospects of a separate peace by any of the Teutonic countries are wholly discounted by the British Mission on the ground that Germany's hold on her allies is altogether too firm. There is not felt among the British commissioners to be the slightest chance that Austria, Bulgaria or Turkey will break away from the alliance, despite increasing reports to that effect.

The Funeral Of Arthur S. Borland

The funeral service of Arthur Shaw Borland, youngest child of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Borland was held at the home of his parents at Indian River on Monday, April 23rd.

A great number of friends came from all parts of the country side to pay their last respects to the departed and to sympathize with his parents in their great affliction.

The number of very beautiful flowers which were sent from different sources and which surrounded the casket seemed to also offer consolation as they nestled near the boyish form, for they told of a Creator who cares and of a Saviour who loves.

The interment took place at Fife cemetery.

SEES BOOM TIMES FOR THE FARMERS

FAVOURS CROP GUARANTEES.

Editor of Rural New Yorker Thinks Government Should Fix a Minimum Rate For Staples.

Herbert W. Collingwood, editor of The Rural New Yorker, says he believes that farming will soon become one of the world's most prosperous occupations.

"The dependence of our country upon agriculture has perhaps never been so keenly felt as to-day" he declared recently. "As a result of the prevailing food scarcity a new era of prosperity is opening for farmers all over America. The President and the Governor of New York state, in their recent proclamations, have shown very clearly that the production of crops is just as much a patriotic duty as is military service. When promptly done I am inclined to regard it as the greatest service that can be rendered to one's country, for in the last analysis successful wars are fought more with biscuits than with bullets.

"Personally I do not believe we are going to see an end of our food difficulties for two or three years. Our crops are short now, notoriously so in some cases. It is too late to add much to our wheat supply this season. In the South it may be possible to plant some, but the South must be depended on for a large supply of corn. The South, with its splendid productive areas, must be looked to for the most help in supplying food this year. My advice to the farmers in the North, who wish to contribute something to the grain supply, would be to plant barley and buckwheat. I am surprised that so few farmers in this neighbourhood or New England raise barley. It can be grown with little trouble and with excellent results. Buckwheat can be planted in June and July. It is a reliable crop and entails no great difficulty. Corn has always been one of the staple northern crops and our farmers can doubtless plant more acres of it very successfully. More potatoes will surely be planted this year than ever before, for farmers are assured of good prices for another year at least. That is a crop that requires great care, and I would not advise it for the small farmer with only a few acres.

"One excellent feature of the popular cry to make land productive," added Mr. Collingwood, "is the impetus it is giving to the small landholder to get a food supply from his little plot, whether it be half an acre or less, or half a dozen acres. Such landowners, and there are thousands of them within the commuting distance from New York City, will be most successful if they confine their farming energies to raising green vegetables. Peas, all kinds of beans, tomatoes, beets, carrots and salads, can be raised with a little serious labour and care. They are all good producers, and from a few acres a family ought to raise nearly all that is absolutely required for the next few months, leaving flour and meat as the necessities to be purchased. The surplus supply of beans, peas and tomatoes can be canned for winter use by the frugal housewife and it might be wise this year to put up less fruit and pay more attention to preserving certain vegetables. They will come in handy next winter and prices are not going to be low."

Mr. Collingwood also urged that wherever possible hens should be raised.

"Every suburbanite who keeps chickens should see that every setting hen hatches out the largest possible number of eggs this year," he said. "If a man has a few acres the cost of raising the broods will not be heavy, for they will pick up a large amount of their food in the land. Chickens are always in demand at good prices and if not required for home consumption can easily be sold, but hundreds of small landowners will be able by more intensive chicken raising to add materially to the supply of meat and help themselves if not actually helping others."

Mr. Collingwood said he believed the next important step to be taken by the Government in its efforts to speed up crop production would be to assure the farmer of a certain minimum price for some of his products.

"The farmers of our country are as patriotic as any one else," explained Mr. Collingwood, "but they cannot be asked to cultivate large acreage and pay out more money for labour if they feel they are doing the work on a gamble. There must be some reasonable assurance that in return for the increased expenditure there will be a satisfatcory profit. England has done it in several ways, notably by buying the entire Canadian wheat crop at a minimum price. I think about 1.78 a bushel. The United tates Government will undoubtedly take some such action to insure larger production of the staple food supplies. I do not mean that every pound of potatoes or handful of vegetables will have a fixed minimum price, but in respect to wheat and a few other staples some assurance must be given to the farmers that when the crops are gathered they may rely upon a fair price.

"I think this country has seen an end of low prices for farm products. The low food prices of a few years ago will not come back. There will be markets for all the food our country can raise for the next three years at least. Farmers are going to be prosperous, and after the war I look to see a great flood of able young men going back to the farm. With the prevailing good prices it will be one of the most attractive business openings in the United States. You will see hundreds of deserted farms in this State and New England brought back to a high state of cultivation. Good farm land is going to be in demand, and just as soon as the farmers see that they are getting a fair return they will speed up agriculture."

FOUR INVETERATE DRUNKS ARE PLACED ON NEW "INDIAN" LIST

Inspector Stewart placed three persons on the prohibited list yesterday and added another this morning. The Temperance Act provides that on his own motion or at the request of relatives, he may prevent individuals who are addicted to liquor from importing further supplies. Hence, Mr. Stewart has notified the Express Companies that future consignments received by them for any of the four persons he has put on the "Indian list" must be sent to the office of the License Inspector for confiscation.

The individuals of this quartette of wrecks have been conspicuous for many years in their intoxication. When the hotels and drug stores were closed up they fell back on the Express companies, but by Inspector Stewart's latest action this source of supply has been closed. It is likely, however, that they will succeed in obtaining liquor in the future through the medium of other persons, who, for a consideration, would risk detection and the heavy penalties of the Temperance Act.

Editor of The Examiner:

On behalf of the respectable dogs of the city, will you kindly allow me to encroach upon your space to voice some of the complaints we feel your readers should be acquainted with. In the first place I will introduce myself as a collie of honourable antecedents, with a reputation for good conduct and good temper. I have never snapped at children, growled at deliverymen or chased the noisy motor cycle or the fussy Ford. I have at all times endeavoured to conduct myself as a good citizen. When strange dogs ventured to praise the good qualities of their respective towns I have never failed in a dignified manner to point out how much superior Peterborough was. On the rare occasion when I visited other cities I lost no opportunity of telling the acquaintances I met that Peterborough possessed possibilities unparalleled. And what is to be my reward?

It seems to be a choice of being tied up in the back yard for the next three months or to be carried about the streets by an individual armed with a net, finally winding up in the pound with the possibilities of a corpulent policeman using me for target practice. And from all I can hear our peelers are not in the William Tell class when it comes to shooting—with revolvers at least. My grandfather, I am told, was shot by a policeman, the fifteenth shot proving fatal.

Now I ask you, is this British fair play? Because one of our number bites somebody we are all to be imprisoned. And Ald. Dobbin insults us by saying the bylaw will be a 'howling success.' Moreover, although we are to be deprived of all the privileges of citizenship, there is no reduction in our taxes. The 1917 dog tags are being sold at $1.00 where 75c should be the figure under the present conditions.

Already the citizens are beginning to learn the folly of shutting us up. I have just heard that a coon, knowing that we were out of commission, strolled into town and bit a clergyman. I am sorry for the divine, but the city would have resounded with canine language if one of the Aldermen had been the victim.

There will be other visitors from the wilds, while we are in quarantine and if damage is done lay the blame where it belongs—on the Board of Health and the City Council.

Spying On Tenor Prompted By Wife

Herbert J. Sondheim, a young attorney who went to Rome to secure evidence against Edoardo Ferrari-Fontana, the tenor, for use in the divorce court brought by Madame Ferrari-Fontano, who is Margerete Matzenauer, famous Australian contralto, told Justice Donnelly of New York, that he took his life in his hands when he went on the mission.

When Sondheim crossed the border into Italy on his way from Paris he was stopped by the Italian military authorities and held for a short time, suspected of being a German. Finally, however, Sondheim, flashed his American passport and went on to Rome, where he engaged rooms at the Hotel Quirinal, bored holes in the door of the tenor's apartment, through which he declared, he observed Ferrari-Fontana making love to a young woman, identified only as Miss Luppi.

Sondheim added that the Hotel Quirinal's head porter, Ernesto Martini also an Italian, furnished the original tip which took him to the hotel. The singer declared Martini had been lodged in jail as a German spy since Sondheim went abroad.

With her secretary, Mme. Matzenauer sat in an obscure corner of the court room and seem pleased with the disclosure made by her lawyer. Sondheim was incensed when Nicholas Selvaggi, attorney for the tenor, characterised him as a detective.

While peeping through the holes in the door, Sondheim testified, he saw Miss Luppi enter from a room adjoining that of the tenor.

"Were they kissing?" asked Selvaggi.

"They appeared to be kissing," was the reply.

Q. Do you know the positions of persons' heads when they are kissing?

A. I cant' say that I do. So many people kiss in different ways.

The trip to Italy, the lawyer said, cost him about $1,600. He disbursed small sums of money to those who had helped him, including $5 to the Italian carpetner who bored the peep holes.

City Fathers Will Adopt Fish And Soup Fronts

COUNCILMEN OF HARRISON, N. J., SET NEW PACE BY PASSING REVOLUTIONARY RESOLUTION

Beau Nash, the well known theatre programme editor, ought to write this (says a New York paper), he should, under the caption, "What the Well Dressed Councilman Will Wear." Harrison, N. J., gasped for breath to-day and then reached for all the literary books on court dress and etiquette, for, no matter what the food shortage may be, Harrison is going to "be there with soup and fish." Harrison is going to be the "Class." Harrison, town of mills and slag piles and Hackensack River is going to set the sartorial pace for the legislative bodies of this hitherto carelessly attired democracy.

Council was in session the other night. There was a large, impressive absence of Councilman at the place of John E. Anderson, of the First Ward. Suddenly, with the stage all set and the scene worked up for a spectacular entrance, enters John E. Anderson, resplendent in what the official minutes of the meeting describe as "full dress suit," known on this side of the Hudson as evening clothes. Much expanse of white shirt front, white pique waistcoat, and spiketail coat. (Sensation in the Council chamber.)

Councilman Anderson explained he came poste haste from a wedding. Councilman Daniel D. Ryan offered a resolution making it obligatory on all members of the Council to wear "full dress suits," at the weekly official sessions. Gaining on the glory of Councilman Anderson, the body adopted the resolution unanimously.

William B. Ross, city clerk, spread the resolution on the minutes. Joe Souter, city counsel, gave a curbstone opinion that the resolution was legal and binding. The merry councilmen registered apprehension and dismay, but by their secret hearts they were tickled chromatic because they will have legal authority to deck themselves in scenery especially made for this production. They talked of repealing the resolution, but Councilman Anderson announces he will insist on its enforcement. And well he might, for he has a scalloped suit and they have not. And Harrison's Council will be as resplendent as the Metropolitan Opera or the Walter's Ball.

A negro was recently brought into police court in a little town in Georgia charged with assault and battery. The negro, who was well known to the judge, was charged with having struck another negro. After the usual preliminaries the judge inquired:

"Why did you hit this man?"

"Jedge, he called me a black rascal."

"Well, you are one, aren't you?"

"Yessah I is one. But, Jedge, suppose, somebody'd call you a black rascal, wouldn't you hit 'em?"

"But I'm not one, am I?"

"Naw, sah, naw, sah, you ain't one; but s'pose somebody's call you de kind of rascal you is, what'd you do?"

Constantine Says German Influence Is Not In Control

WASHINGTON. — Formal statements by King Constantine and by the Greek government denying stories that the king had been guided by German influence or had harbored hostility to the Entente were made public to-night by Mr. Vouros, Charge of the Greek Legation, who at the same time issued on his own initiative a denial of certain "fabricated interviews" with the king published in this country.

King Constantine's statement, addressed to the French Minister at Athens, denies specifically a despatch published in the Paris Temps. Referring to this article the King says he never received "from any sovereign of the group enemy to the Entente any telegram, note or counsel whatsoever on the subject of the policy he should follow to maintain his throne." He then emphatically disclaims inferences "that he or his government ever harbored hostile intentions of any kind towards the Entente.

Mr. Vouros in his denial, said that King Constantine had "given certain authentic, authorized statements to the correspondent of the Associated Press in Greece, as well as to certain British and French correspondents, but that a number of wholly fabricated interviews have been published giving an entirely false impression of the attitude of King Constantine, which impression is now being widely exploited by factions in the internal politics of Greece."

The statement of the Greek government makes the "most formal and categorical denial" of the Temps article, and goes on to declare that stories of a wireless station at the Greek royal palace, of Greek aid to German submarines in the Mediterranean and of a Greek ambush against the Allied marines landed in Greece last December, all are false. On the contrary, it is declared, "the royal government has set itself scrupulously to execute the engagements it assumed towards the Powers."

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE C. P. R. SHAREHOLDERS

Revenue Statements For Years Are Satisfactory States the President's Report—Earnings Will Be Better Than Had Been Anticipated

Special to the Examiner:

MONTREAL, Que., May 3.—At the annual meeting of the shareholders of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company to-day, the report of the directors was unanimously adopted. E. W. Beatty, Hon. Frederick L. Bequet, Hon. Jas. Dunsmuir and Charles R. Hosmer were re-elected directros. The special general meeting called for the purpos eof considering the issue of collateral trust bonds was adjourned until the thirteenth on August next.

In the morning on adoption of the annual report, the President, Lord Shaughnessy said: "The reason for the change in the date of the annual meeting recommended by the directors is explained in the report of the company's affairs that I now have the honour to submit for your consideration and approval. The practice of making the fiscal year of railway companys on this continent correspond with the calendar year will henceforth be quite universal, and the desirability of being able to compare this company's annual statements and statistics with those of other railway companies similarly situated for like periods is manifest.

The revenue statements are very satisfactory. Indeed, the earnings were much better than we had reason to anticipate in October last, but I am afraid that the substantial advance in wages, due in a large measure to the shortage of labour, and the abnormal increase in the price of fuel and of all other articles, that we find it necessary to purchase, will have an important bearing on the working expenses in future.

Since the close of the half year, under an agreement with the Imperial government, Canadian 4 per cent. consolidated debenture stock of the amount of 4[illegible] million dollars which the company was empowered to issue and you had authorized, was issued and loaned to the Imperial treasury for a minimum period of five years, at a premium of 1-8 per cent. per annum, over the interest payable on the stock. Provision is made in the agreement for the sale to the British treasury of this stock in annual instalments, should the company require money for any of its purposes in Great Britain, and the treasury reserve the right to purchase all or any of the stock during the five years at the price of twenty per cent. of its face value. The by-law passed by the directors giving effect to the transaction will be submitted for your sanction.

The plan formulated at the request of the Lords of His Majesty's treasury for creating and selling collateral trust bonds of the company to the amount of about 100 million against debenture stock and other securities of the Company, and its leased lines to be deposited by the Imperial Treasury, fully described in the annual report, and in the circular to the shareholders, and has been the subject of financial negotiations and arrangement resulting from the participation of the United States in the Epropean war, been abandoned for the present at any rate. In order, however, that the Company may be in a position to cooperate should the occasion arise hereafter, is proposed at the instance of the Chancellor of the Exchequer to ask the Parliament of Canada to grant statutory powers, for which application has been made.

The willingness of the Company to lend its name and credit to the Imperial Treasury, in connection with financial operations at this juncture, is keenly appreciated, and I am asked by the Chancellor of the Exchequer to convey to you the thanks of the Imperial Government for the important assistance that you are ready to give.

At the meeting of the Board, subsequently held, Lord Shaughnessy was elected President; George Bury and E. W. Beatty, Vice-Presidents for the Company, and the Executive Committee was appointed as follows: Richard B. Angus, E. W. Beatty, Geo. Bury, Sir Herbert S. Holt, Sir Edmund B. Osler and Lord Shaughnessy.

At a meeting of the directors of the Canadian Pacific Company, held to-day, a dividend of two and one-half per cent. on common stocks for 4th quarter ended 31st March last, being at rate of seven per cent. per annum, from revenue, and three per cent. per annum from special income account, was declared payable 30th June next, to shareholders of record, at 3 p.m. on the 1st of June next.

Fighting Men Of The Courageous "Foreign Legion"

Michigan Man, "Bunkie" of Poet Alan Seegar, Tells of Life

DETROIT, Mich.—"Come home. Take dad's advice," was the cablegram Fred W. Zinn received from his father back in Michigan when the war broke out in the fall of 1914. Instead young Zinn, a graduate of the University of Michigan, continued on to Paris, where he enlisted in the famous Foreign Legion. There is was the "bunkie" of Alan Seegar, the now famous poet who gave his life for France.

Zinn was wounded during the Champagne campaign and was transferred to the flying service. During a leave of absence home he told some interesting facts about the Foreign Legion.

"Seegar's best stuff was written during the war—most of it in the trench when the rest of us were sleeping, eating, telling stories, or laughing," Zinn said. "If he had not been killed at the comparatively early age of 28 he probably would have done some even better work. In fact, he was just coming into his strength when he died between the trenches in one of the advances.

"The people I meet who have read Seegar's war poetry usually say something about 'the pity of his death.' I can't see it that way, even though Seegar was my intimate friend, my companion on many adventures and almost as close to me as a brother.

In Love with Life.

"I am not sorry, because I know that Seegar never looked at death that way. It was not that he wanted to die. There never was anybody more in love with life—with the depth and the fullness of just living—than Alan Seegar. But he wasn't the kind to flinch when it came his turn to get what others had taken without whimpering. No, I am proud to have known Seegar, grateful for the months of intimacy with him, and glad of the luster that clings to his name, but I am not sorry for him.

William Thaw Served.

Kiffin Yates Rockwell, who was in the legion, also was doomed to die famous. He and his brother Paul, who enlisted with him, were from Atlanta, Ga., though their family, socially prominent in the south, also had a home at Asheville, N.C. They were graduates of Georgetown university and were newspaper men before the war. Kiffin served in the legion until he was wounded and then was transferred to the flying corps, where he made a big name for himself before he was shot down in his airplane.

"'Shorty' Ohlinger of the legion really was Prof. Ahlinger of the law department of the University of Columbia.

"With us also was William Thaw. He is a distant relative of Harry Thaw, but he never likes to be reminded of the fact. Thaw served with us in the legion for the French private's pay of 5 cents a day. He is said to have had a private allowance from his family of $1,000 a month.

Sorry for Dowd.

"With us also was Dennis Dowd, a graduate of Columbia University in both the literary and the law departments. He had just started to practice law in New York when the war broke out, and he travelled to France to join the legion. He was wounded later and entered the flying corps. While volplaning to earth at high speed his heart failed. He was killed in the tumble when he lost control of his machine.

"Now, it is a queer bit of soldier psychology that I feel sorry for Dowd and not for Seegar. I think the reason is that Seegar died playing the game, taking the chances he counted on taking, while Dowd was killed by an accident.

"I wouldn't feel the same way about Dowd if he had been shot down in a fight. That would have been a part of the game. I don't expect any one to feel sorry for me if I am shot down in the air. I'm taking that chance as a part of the game. See the difference?

"With us in the legion, but not in the same battalion, was Rene Phileziot, who before the war was a widely known elephant hunter. He had fitted out five different African expeditions at his own expense. When war broke out he had $20,000 worth of ivory stored at Antwerp. The Germans got it. Phileziot told me he had shot 166 elephants on his various expeditions. He was a University of Chicago graduate.

Maxim Gorky's Son.

"We also had Kenneth Weeks, of Boston and Paris; Paul Pavelka, of Madison, Conn.; Zannis, a Greek volunteer; Frank Musgrave, of San Antonio, Tex.; Jack Casey, a newspaper artist from New York; Corporal Zinovi Pechkoff, son of Maxim Gorky, the Russian novelist, and Neamorin, a Hindoo from Calcutta, who had been educated at Oxford University.

"Our bugler was an Arabian, Abdul Bou-ba-ker; Pala, a Frenchman, was said to have been a Kerjian 'Apache'; Voronoff was reputed to be a Russian price, who found it convenient to leave Russia. Davy King, a Harvard man, belonged to a widely known Pittsburgh family and was rich; the two Colette brothers, Joe and Marcel, were from New York and looked like twins, but were not. Both later were killed.

And a Negro Boxer.

"Bob Sweeney had studied three and a half years at West Point and was fired six months before graduation for his part in a hazing escapade. Later he became a lieutenant—no small feat when you remember that the French lieutenant usually has studied four years in his own military schools and in addition has served three years with the army. It's not so easy to be a lieutenant in France as it is in England. In France only merit of the highest quality will get you a commission.

"Then there was Bob Scanlon, the Negro boxer. Bob came from Mobile, Ala., and was the son of a preacher of the African M. E. Church.

"We also had Edgar Bellini, of New Orleans, who had been a sergeant in the American army. Bellini has been wounded four times at the front and recently went back for the fifth time."

THE WEATHER.

The cool weather at present is not very encouraging to gardening operations. This morning there was thin ice to be seen, the thermometer going slightly below 32. Yesterday morning's figures were the same, with a few snow flurries. The season is not as far advanced as this date last year.—W.P.

BASEBALL

NEITHER TEAM GETS HIT OR RUN IN NINE INNINGS AT CHICAGO.

CHICAGO, May 2.—A world's record was made here to-day in a ten-inning game between Cincinnati and Chicago when, after the game had gone nine innings, neither club had registered a hit or a run. Cincinnati won 1 to 0.

For nine innings Vaughn, assisted by a remarkable defence by the Chicago infield, did not permit a Cincinnati player to reach second base, and in this only slightly surpassing his pitching opponent, Toney, who allowed but one Chicago runner to reach second. Vaughn struck out ten Cincinnati batsmen, while only three were fanned by Toney.

The game was won when in the tenth inning, after one was out, Kopf singled, advanced to third when Williams dropped Chase's fly, and scored when Thorpe hit a slow bounder to Vaughn. Score:

Nationalization of Three Railways

jority of the remaining trustees. Should the Government refuse to approve a nomination, it would devolve upon the trustee to submit to new name. Parliamentary control is to be continued sufficiently by a continuous public audit of the Dominion railway accounts under the direction and control of the Finance Minister.

Public Investment Heavy.

The report points out that the public investment in the Canadian Northern, Grand Trunk and Grand Trunk Pacific is already enormous, and that the people of Canada have already given in aid to the chief railway corporations nearly one billion dollars.

Cost of Taking Comparatively Small.

The equity of the Canadian Northern and the Grand Trunk in the systems they now own is declared by the Commissioners to be comparatively small, considering the fixed charges which have to be met. Consequently the cost to the country in taking over what are now for the present practically bankrupt systems will be comparatively small. Whatever equity there is, is to be determined by arbitration.

systems. The former system, it is pointed out, had a deficit last year, when all fixed charges were considered, of more than five millions. The Grand Trunk, through its Grand Trunk Pacific liabilities, has to raise more than seven million dollars per year, and Parliament will be required to foot the bill.

To Avoid Political Interference

The scheme devised, in the majority report, for overcoming the objection as to political interference, is the operation of the new system by a board of five trustees, three being expert railway men, the fourth a man of business and financial experience, and the fifth one who specially possesses the confidence of the railway employees. This board is to be originally appointed by Parliament, but is to be non-political, permanent and self-perpetuating. The tenure of office of its members is to be substantially the same as that of Judges of the Supreme Court. The trustees are to be appointed for a fixed period of seven years and vacancies are to be filled, in the case of a railway member, by the Governor-General in Council on the nomination of a majority of the remaining trustees.

MANY TRADE FREAKS CAUSED BY THE WAR

Wool Now Comes From Iceland, Cotton From China, and Lobsters From Africa.

THE CANARIES SEND ONIONS

National City Bank Says Manufacturers Are Ransacking Every Corner of World For Material.

NEW YORK, May 1.— Wool from Iceland, cotton from China, beans from Brazil, and lobsters from South Africa are among the eccentricities of commerce in these days of high prices and interruption of the usual trade currents. An analysis by the National City Bank of New York of the commerce of the United States for the latest month for which detailed figures are available, February, showed the arrival of 4,300 pounds of clothing wool from Iceland, and also of 3,000,000 pounds of cotton from China, this being imported into the country which prides itself on producing two-thirds of the cotton of the world.

The records of 1915 also show imports of lobsters from Japan and onions from the Canary Islands. Of the 5,000,000 bushels of onions imported into this country in the last five years the Canary Islands, furnished 150,000 bushels, and Australia, on the opposite side of the world, about an equal quantity. Of the $5,000,000 worth of mushrooms and truffles imported in that same period, more than $230,000 worth came from China, Japan, and adjacent territory. The bank's compilation showed that of the $3,500,000 worth of eggs imported since the beginning of the war, China alone sent nearly $2,000,000 worth. Madagascar is now contributing vanilla beans, and materials of hat manufacture, while $2,000,000 worth of peanuts have been sent from China and Japan since the start of the war.

"The manufacturers are ransacking every corner of the world for material for their factories," said the bank's statement. "They are bringing wool from Iceland as above indicated, and they brought last year from South Africa, $1,500,000 worth of ostrich feathers, and considerable quantities from Brazil, Uruguay, and Argentina, which now have their ostrich farms, as to South Africa and Australia. Bones were brought from India, China and the Philippine Islands, and dried blood from Australia, Argentina and Uruguay.

"Nearly $2,000,000 worth of bristles were brought from China into this country, which has one-third of the swine of the world. We sent to India for nearly $2,000,000 worth of indigo, for which we paid over $2 per pound, against 35 cents a pound in the year before the war. We have since the beginning of the war brought from China $250,000 worth of human hair. Asia sent us last year alone $13,000,000 worth of goat skins and over $2,000,000 worth of buffalo hides, and from Australia we bought 1,000,000 pounds of kangaroo skins."

Other American purchases included $250,000 worth of elephant tusks shipped from Egypt, together with vegetable ivory from Ecuador and Colombia. West Africa contributed 12,000,000 gallons of palm oil, China 5,000,000 gallons of hut oil, and Japan 12,000,000 gallons of soya bean oil. African thrift was responsible for sending this country nearly 1,000,000 pounds of rags, South Africa contributed $1,000,000 worth of hair of the angora goat, while 3,500,000 pounds of sugar beet came from Asiatic Russia.

In conclusion, the City Bank's statement said:

"Curiously, this great agricultural country with more cattle than any other country except India, found it advisable to import $12,000,000 worth of dairy products, bringing condensed milk from Switzerland and Australia, cream from Canada and Japan, cheese from a score of countries, but especially from Switzerland and Italy, and butter from Denmark and New Zealand. The pearl divers of Ceylon and the Pacific sent us $10,000,000 worth of their products, most of it, however, by way of the European countries. Cuba recognized our sweet tooth not only by sending us a larger quantity of sugar than ever before but adding to it 68,000 pounds of honey. From the Orient, chiefly China and Japan, we bought $10,000 worth of joss sticks. Wild animals imported for educational purposes in the zoological gardens of the United States amount in value to approximately $15,000 a year, and this does not include those imported for other entertainments exhibiting them for profit. Persia sent $500,000 worth of rugs. Artificial silk comes in increasing quantities, chiefly in the form of thread and yarn but in lesser quantities as woven fabrics, the total averaging about $3,000,000 a year. The users of Turkish tobacco who formerly were bringing $10,000,000 worth a year from Turkey in Europe and Asia are compelled to satisfy themselves as best they may with substitutes, since scarcely a pound is now permitted to reach the United States. France continues to send us nearly the usually quantities of champagne, and at about the usual prices, the average import price of champagne being no greater at the present time than in the months preceding the war."

BERLIN, via London, May 3.—"The Central Powers are all united and Must continue to fight, but they are always ready for an honourable peace, which is only possible through a conference," declared Talaat Pasha, Turkish Vizier, in an interview printed to-day by the Vienna Neue Freie Press.

King's Prize Winner Is Now Missing

Examiner Special:

TORONTO, May 3.— Flight Lieut. William J. Clifford, of Toronto, who won the King's prize at Bisley for Canada in 1911, is to-day reported "missing" in Flanders.

Farmers in This District to Plant Few Potatoes

While car lots of potatoes are as scarce in thi section as bright May days, Niagara Falls, Ont., reports as follows: "Several carloads of potatoes went through here to-day (May 2) for United States points. It is said they were intended for seeding purposes in the United States."

Rounding Up a Supply.

Mr. Peter Gettas of Douros and Gettas, left on Saturday afternoon on a buying trip through the west, and wired last night that he had already secured one car load and expected to close for another both of which would be shipped to Peterborough as soon as possible. It is expected that this supply will include good seed potatoes and that the price may be reduced below the present figures.

In the meantime most of the grocers are distributing the red potatoes brought in by Mr. walter Lake. Ninety cents a peck is quoted by most of the retailers, apparently without the least hesitation.

Farmers Have to Buy.

Inquiries around this district disclose the fact that the farmers are in the market as buyers. P. G. Towns of Douro, stated that he had paid $5 a bag in Peterborough and many other farmers were forced to pay practically the same price. As a result, the planting of potatoes would not be large. The farmers were thinking three or four times before they paid $5 for one lonely bag, and would probably plant only for their own requirements.

Mr. Bruce Johnston, of Monaghan, Mr. Harold Baptie of Springville and other farmers corroborate this view that the price of seed is discouraging and even prohibitive

Mr. John Telford of Bridgenorth, reported similar conditions. Most farmers in his neighbourhood were forced to buy their potato supplies. One Peterborough man visited the village in search of supplies and went home with a single peck of Cobblers.

Hence, there seems to be little doubt but that the farmers will seed only for their home requirements and that the yield in the country around Peterborough will be less than normal.

There are some potatoes around Manvers and Harwood, but in each case the holders are waiting for the maximum prices, apparently expecting that the worst (for the buyer) is yet to come.

Bought Stolen Calf Must Make Good To The Former Owner

In a sitting of the Division Court at Norwood yesterday Judge Huycke dealt with a case that developed out of the Dummer cattle stealing trial of recent record. The evidence on that occasion showed that Davis Hill had stolen a calf from Wm. Davis, of Dummer and sold it to R. J. Simpson, a butcher in Hastings. Mr. Simpson had identified the hide in court and that phase of the situation was clearly established. Mr. Davis then sued Simpson for $50 for the calf which the latter had purchased from Davis Hill. The fact that the animal had been stolen left the responsibility with Simpson, against whom Judge Huycke gave judgment of $33.25. Davis had been previously paid $11.75 for the hide by the local dealer who had bought it from Simpson. Judge Huycke decided yesterday that the calf had been worth $45 and deducting the $11.75 for the hide, ordered Simpson to pay Davis the remaining $33.25. Mr. F. D. Kerr appeared for the plaintiff and Mr. H. R. Armstrong, of Gordon and Widdifield for the defense.

Merger Is Chief Topic of Conversation

OTTAWA, Ont., May 3.—The report of the Royal Commission favouring the acquisition and operation as a public-owned system of the Grand Trunk, Grand Trunk Pacific, and C. N. R., is the chief topic of discussion in all circles to-day. Government action will not be taken till the return to Canada of Premier Borden. It is known that the Canadian Northern will oppose the proposition, so will the Grand Trunk, so far as the eastern lines are concerned. The Canadian Pacific also views with considerable anxiety the prospect of huge competition with Government support such as the proposed merger would be.

Hints To Boys Going On Farms

To the Editor of The Globe: I presume a large number of persons are going out to work in gardens and on farms to use tools that are quite new to them, with hands that are soft and in a few hours those hands will be blistered and very sore. Nothing is more discouraging and harder to bear than blistered hands. As an ounce of prevention is said to be worth a pound of cure, a few suggestions along that line will, I am sure, help in the cause of increased production.

Sheepskin gloves are a good thing, and everyone will do well to get a pair for protection, but care of the hands is my theme. Wash with salt water; when dry, oil with any kind of good lubricating oil. It will be well to take with you a ten-cent pot of vaseline, in case oil will not be found where you go. Repeat the salt-water wash several times to prepare your hands. Oil the handle of every hoe, rake, spade, hand-hold on plow or other implement; rub the oil in with a piece of smooth hardwood, until the handle is smooth and well oiled; then oil your hands. Do not hold the handle too firmly, and do not work all day at the same class of work until your hands are toughened.

It will always be wise to take a bar of pure castile soap with you, as a soap containing lye is very bad for tender hands. Never go to work at any job without first oiling your hands. Oil will keep dirt out, and the hands will always wash clean; for hands that get in red blotches use castor oil.

The use of oil to prevent blisters became known to the writer of this when, as a pioneer, he was clearing land. One incident will show its value. A young man about my own age, 21, about the end of February, 1864, met me in town and said: "I have been going to school for six months and my money is done. Can you give me a job for a month?" I said: "Yes I have eight acres to chop, and will be glad to have you help me." "Oh," he said, "I am afraid my hands will not stand chopping." I said I would make a handle for him, and guarantee there would be no blisters. We chopped that eight acres in the month, and his hands did not blister.

An Old Farmer.

CENSORSHIP OF IRON-CLAD TYPE ORDERED BY U.S.

ALL CABLES, TELEGRAPHS AND TELEPHONES SUBJECT TO SUPERVISION.

WASHINGTON, May 1.—The United States Government to-day locked a censorship upon cables, telegraphs and telephones, applying the cable prohibitions to all lines, but operating against telegraphs and telephones only along the Mexican border.

President Wilson ordered the censorship by proclamation and left it to War and Navy Departments to work out regulations. These regulations were completed and the censorship ordered into immediate effect.

Mr. Wilson's proclamation reads: "Whereas, the existence of a state of war between the United States and the Imperial German Government makes it essential to the public safety that no communication of a character which would aid the enemy or its Allies shall be had.

"Therefore, by virtue of the power vested in me under the constitution and by the joint resolution passed by Congress on April 6, 1917, declaring the existence of a state of war, it is ordered that all companies or other persons, owning, controlling or operating telegraph and telephone lines or submarine cables, are hereby prohibited from transmitting messages to points without the United States and from delivering messages received from such points except those permitted under rules and regulations to be established by the Secretary of War for telegraph and telephone lines, and by the Secretary of Navy for submarine cables.

"To these departments, respectively is delegated the duty of preparing and enforcing rules and regulations under this order to accomplish the purpose mentioned. This order shall take effect from date.

(Signed) WOODROW WILSON.

Commander D. W. Todd, director of naval communications, will be in charge of the cable censorship, with Commander Arthur Hoff controlling the New York division, while Brig.-Gen. McIntyre will direct the telegraph and telephone supervision on the border.

BRITISH PAPER TRADE FACES SERIOUS CRISIS

LONDON, May 3. — The Express says that there is an acute crisis in the paper trade in Great Britain owing to submarine activities, and that imports of raw material have almost stopped. Several paper mills have been obliged to close, and imports in the last few weeks were only ten per cent. of the restricted amount followed by the Government.

There is no prospect of improvement, as every ton of shipping will be needed henceforth for food. A further reduction is considered inevitable. Paper which before the war cost the newspaper publishers two cents a pound, is now nine cents.

The Canadian Troops Captured Fortified Village After Hard Fighting

Capture of Fresnoy Carried the Canadians Almost a Mile Further on the Way to Douai—Attack Was Preceded by Tornado of Fire.

VETERAN TROOPS EMPLOYED

(By Stewart Lyon, Special Correspondent of the Canadian Press in France).

Canadian Army Headquarters, May 4.—Yesterday, shortly before dawn, a Canadian column composed of veteran troops, carried the fortified village of Fresnoy-en-Artois by storm.

They encountered the same tenacious resistance as at Arleux on Saturday last, but, aided by an artillery barrage, which is so effective an aid to infantry advancing to assault a point, they speedily came to grips with the enemy, and in house to house fighting, drove him out of the village.

The capture of Fresnoy carried the Canadians almost a mile further than before on the way to Douai, which is only a little more than eight miles due east from the furthest point of yesterday's advance.

Since April 9th, the line has been pushed eastward from Neuville St. Vaast, the jumping off place of the Canadian army corps, a distance of almost six miles under most adverse weather conditions during the greater part of the time. Now that nature smiles, the rate of progress is expected to be more rapid.

Attacked Before Dawn.

London, May 4.—The British attacked in the darkest hour preceding dawn yesterday morning, striking at the German positions east of Arras. The infantry assault was delayed until half an hour after the half-moon had gone down. The night was clear and star-lit, and the almost ceaseless flashing of guns gave definite shape to the shadowy outlines of the salient points.

The correspondent says the attack was directed to the taking of certain points of considerable importance to improving the British line. The British desired to gain complete mastery of dominating points whence their artillery would be able more effectively to devastate the fresh troops which the Germans continue to throw in.

Preceded by Tornado of Fire.

There was the usual preliminary tornado of fire from weapons of all calibres, and then the equally familiar creeping barrage, working with absolute punctuality as the order to the men to go forward was snapped forth simultaneously down miles of trenches. Thousands of crouching figures formed into regular waves for the advance.

Then came the inevitable deadly rattle of machine guns and rifle fire, and the crashing of bursting bombs as the infantry reached the parapet of the first enemy trench.

As to the results obtained, the correspondent adds, reports thus far are vague, but the British made progress in several directions—toward Fresnoy and Cherisy, and also toward Bullecourt, which is a point on the Hindenburg line.

Attack on 12-Mile Front.

The British commander-in-chief's report indicates an offensive extending over a front of at least twelve miles. It is that distance from the road between Vimy and Acheville on the north, to the Sensee River on the south.

There has been almost continuous fighting around Vimy, but the direction of the thrust by the British offensive has heretofore been exerted in an easterly direction toward Douai. Haig's report to-day indicated a sudden switch to a northern push out of Willerval, Oppy, and Arleux. These towns lie approximately seven and a half miles north of Monchy Le Preux, where the strength of the British drive was formerly most powerfully exerted. It was against further advances here also that Hindenburg threw the forces of his reserves.

TURKEY TALKING PEACE.

Grand Vizier's Movements in Austria and Germany are Significant.

LONDON, May 3.—According to Amsterdam despatches, considerable importance is attached to the visits that Talaat Pasha, the Turkish Grand Vizier, is paying the Central Powers. The correspondents say that after seeing Emperor William and Field Marshal Von Hindenburg at German Headquarters, he went to Munich and conferred with King Ludwig and the Bavarian Ministers. Later he went to Vienna, where he is said to have discussed the prospects of peace and concessions regarding the Dardanelles with Count Czernin, the Austro-Hungarian Foreign Minister.

The Turkish Premier's visit to Vienna at the moment when Count Von Hertling, the Bavarian Prime Minister, was there, is considered to be especially significant.

Terrific artillery fire preceded the Canadians in the capture of Fresnoy, many Germans being buried in the ruins. Two hundred and seventy prisoners taken. A despatch from the front says that the British troops reached Cherisy, crossed the Hindenburg line toward Reincourt and are reported to have taken Bullencourt.

AMERICAN ROADS READY TO EMPLOY WOMEN ON TRAINS

NEW YORK, May 4.—Many big eastern railroads have started making arrangements to employ women in place of men called to arms by the draft. Among the roads which are taking these steps are the New Haven, Lehigh Valley, Erie, New York Central, the Pennsylvania and the Long Island.

The Central Railroad of New Jersey has not made any plans yet, but by experiments already conducted in its system, it feels sure that women can do the work of a large number of the men. All roads made it plain that no men would be displaced by women unless actually drafted. The women will be used in departments not actually engaged in physical operation of trains.

At the offices of the Lehigh Valley road it was stated that women are now being given preference in the hiring of new employees, in departments where they are able to do the work. The Lehigh is already employing women as car cleaners and has made some experiments with them as train despatchers. The New York Central also is employing women as car cleaners. The Central Railroad of New Jersey has not taken any steps yet, but experiments which have been conducted show that the employment of women as clerks, ticket agents, telegraphers and in similar positions, is "entirely feasible."

BOSTON, May 4.—As a precautionary step against the probability of a large number of electric car operatives being conscripted into Federal service, the Boston Elevated Company is laying plans for taking on women as car conductors.

When the programme was about half finished she whispered: "Henry, you must admit it is wonderful. Why these men have been playing together for eight years." A look of incredulity relieved the carved-in-stone expression on Henry's face. "Eight years!" he repeated. "Surely, we have been here longer than that!"

WORLD'S FIRST IRONCLAD

Invented in Moment of Genius by Ship's Captain

It is interesting to recall that the first ironclad used in actual naval warfare was designed on the spur of the moment during the war over American Slavery. The name of this vessel was the Merrimac, and she was originally an old wooden steamship. She belonged to the Confederate States, who were fighting the Northern States on the question of slavery.

One day in March, 1862, her captain hit upon the idea of plating her all over with old iron rails torn up from a derelict railway. A sloping roof of the same material was built up to protect her deck, and, thus equipped, she steamed into Hampton Roads in Virginia early one morning and sank in the space of about half an hour, two great wooden line-of-battle ships lying there, in addition to several smaller craft. This exploit, by sounding the death knell of the wooden battleship, rendered obsolete at a stroke the navies of the entire world.

FREAKS OF NAVAL DRESS

Eccentricities of Naval Dress Have Origin

A naval man writes: The naval dress is full of curious little freaks. It was Lord Nelson who introduced the sailor collar, to keep his pig-tails which sailors wore then from making stains on their service jackets. The three rows of white braid round the edge were added later to celebrate three victories of the period. A sailor's black tie, again, recalls Nelson, for it was first worn as the navy's mourning for the death of their chief at the Battle of Trafalgar. Why it has been worn ever since no one seems quite able to explain, but it is a fitting memorial to the memory of our greatest sailor. A sailor's trousers recall the old days of sailing ships, when swarming up and down the rigging was part of every day's work. To make his climbing as easy as possible the trousers were designed tight at the knees. They were wide at the ankles to be easily rolled up when cleaning the decks.

SEPOY EARNED CROSS

Devotion of Indian Soldier to Wounded Officer

Among many incidents of the war a story is told of an Indian soldier who saw his officer lying wounded out in the open. There was a heavy fire at the time. It was broad daylight. This soldier determined to go to his officer's assistance. Accordingly he proceeded to crawl out to him. When he got to the officer, who was 100 yards out, he lay down, between him and the enemy. He dressed his wounds, dug a hole and rolled him into it, and then he lay down beside him on the side nearest the enemy, so that if any bullets came that way he, and not the officer, would stop them. The whole operation, before night came, when they brought the officer in, took five hours. That was a V. C. action.

TRIBUTE TO CANADIANS

Splendid Fighting Quality of Men Won Vimy Ridge

A newspaper correspondent writes: The ridge was won by the splendid fighting qualities of our men, and held by ceaseless toil throughout the week by thousands of men with pick and shovel, who opened up trails where roads could not be built because of the conditions of the ground. The people of Canada should know that our soldiers have earned praise in this hurried construction of the means of communication, almost as emphatic as that given to them after the battle of Vimy Ridge. At first every pound of food and ammunition and every gallon of water used had to be carried on slippery trails by man-power. Even pack mules could not negotiate the labyrinth of shell holes and craters. Our men cheerfully worked long hours, and sometimes they slept in the open in the rain without food, because details sent out to bring it up got lost. It is easy to do this, even in daylight, and after dark movement is practically impossible. In less than a week, during which snow fell for three days, the work of restoration was well on toward completion, and the military side of the campaign tailed up.

TOMMY LIKES GERMANY

An army officer writes: The explanation why Tommy likes Belgium is that the Belgian had helped Thomas Atkins to solve the language problem by a rapid acquisition of English; that home comforts have been brought nearer by "tea, bread and butter, and chips"; that every Belgian farmhouse has always a cup of coffee and a friendly word for the British soldier. Between Tommy Atkins and the Belgian people there has grown an understanding the credit for which must be given to the initiative, the hospitality, and the adaptability of the Belgian. Everywhere English is spoken; every village behind the line has its comfortable estaminet where Tommy Atkins can vary army diet by an indulgence in eggs, chips, and confectionery; every schoolchild has a smattering of English, and the boys will always raise their caps to an English officer.

BOYS OF THE DOMINION

Canadians Enthusiastic Soldiers—Tribute to French Priests

Lord Northcliffe in London Daily Mail says: Just a word as to the constitution of the Canadian army. The earliest contingents were naturally composed of a considerable proportion of emigrants from the Old Country. Latterly, native-born Canadians have predominated. In fact, on my second day with the Canadian troops I encountered nothing but Canadians, both French and English speaking. The French-Canadians have so far not enlisted in numbers commensurate with the population of the great French province. But those who are in France are enthusiastic soldiers. Their enthusiasm is largely for the cause of their French kinsmen. It is probable that if the French side could be explained in Quebec by some of the brave French priests from the trenches French Canada's share would be more worthy. To meet them marching along a cobble-stoned road in Flanders dressed exactly like the English soldiers, but speaking French, is one of the thousand confusing incidents of the front. Captain Paquneau told me that these Canadian Frenchmen have brought back to France the old look-peeps taken away by their ancestors between two and three centuries ago. Sometimes as they pass through the French villages singing their songs the old inhabitants come out to hear bits that had almost passed from their memory.

HAD BOILS
FOR SIX MONTHS
B. B. B. DROVE THEM AWAY

When the blood becomes impure the very first symptoms which manifest themselves are a breaking out of various forms of skin trouble such as boils, pimples, sores, etc., and to get rid of these troubles you must cleanse the blood thoroughly with a good blood remedy.

The best blood cleansing remedy on the market to-day is Burdock Blood Bitters.

Thousands of people from one end of Canada to the other have used it during the past forty years, and have nothing but words of praise for its cleansing properties.

Mr. Rufus Beers, Upper Main River, N.B., writes: "I want to say a few words about your medicine, Burdock Blood Bitters. I had boils for over six months and sometimes was so bad I could not work. I tried lots of cures but nothing would drive them away for good until I took B.B.B. In a short time I was all better. It is a dandy medicine. I keep it in the house all the time."

Burdock Blood Bitters is manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont. It sells so well and favourably is it known that there are many imitations on the market. See that our name appears on the wrapper.

Comrades Reunited

A friendship, which started in France when the 22nd French-Canadian Regiment arrived at Havre, on its way to the trenches, in Flanders, was renewed at the Royal Victoria Hospital in Montreal, when Abbe Theilier de Poncheville, the renowned French soldier-priest, before leaving for France to join his regiment, paid a visit to Major Lambert Dumont Laviolette, of the 22nd Regiment, who returned from the front as invalid owing to sufferings endured while on duty at Passchendaele and Ypres.

The Women in Khaki

The "Khaki Woman" was something of a shock to the British public at first, but her training and discipline have been justified. When the Zeppelins first attacked London the women's ambulance was the first on the scene to remove the dead and the injured.

The whole army of San Marino, an island off the coast of Italy, would not furnish one battalion. It consists when fully mobilised, of five officers and seventy men.

CHARGE THE WAR'S DEBTS TO THE FISH

That's the Plan of Some British Financiers—British Columbia, Hudson's Bay and Newfoundland to Lead

A plan to make the fishing resources of Hudson bay, the whale oil of the South seas and the jute trade of India, help pay off the huge debt with which the British empire will find itself burdened at the close of the war, was launched in London, Eng., through the formation of the empire resources development committee, with Sir Starr Jameson, the organizer of the Jameson raid, as chairman. The plan is to put the work in the hands of captains of industry whose business would be the development of potential wealth. The state would back the enterprise, would enlist the work of experts, who would seek out the most valuable resources of the empire and exploit them for the benefit of the people.

Use for the state, after the war, of the British fleet now engaged in mine-sweeping is one of the novel suggestions of Alfred Bigland, member of the house of commons and a leading business man who has traveled extensively in the United States.

How Plans are to Work Out

"We should take," said Mr. Bigland, "the fisheries in the Pacific ocean, besetting on British Columbia; in the mouth of the St. Lawrence; and in the waters around Newfoundland and Labrador. We could become the purveyors of fish in all forms, almost to the whole world. Already Newfoundland is sending on an average of 300,000 tons of cod to the Mediterranean and neutral countries. There is practically no limit to the quantity, and the Grand Trunk Pacific railway has already offered us refrigerating plants to bring fish from Prince Rupert island to Liverpool at two cents a ton, which would reach still further on government contracts."

Use for Mine-Sweepers

"After the war, if the government allowed it, all the vessels now used in the North sea for mine-sweeping and other purposes, could be used to form the nucleus of an empire fishing fleet."

"Cold storage houses should be built in towns all over the land, and profits from the sale of fish caught by the state fleet should go into the state treasury. The fisherman would be paid according to the size of the catch, with a guaranteed minimum." Mr. Bigland said that he believed that four times as much fish might be sold in this country as was sold before the war, and that the state might make a gross profit of $180,000,000 a year.

NAVY AND ARMY CUSTOMS

Why are medals and decorations always worn on the left breast and not on the right? The knights of old placed their medals and insignia on the left breast because it was the shield side, the left being always considered to be the most honorable side owing to the position of the heart. Why does every horseman mount from the left side? The reason is that in the days of old the knights wore a sword on that side, which made it practically impossible to mount a horse from the right side. Hence, what originally was a necessity has become universal in civilized life to-day, and a requirement in service. There are very many ancient customs in the Navy, some of which are "wrapt in mystery." For instance, when officers go aboard or leave their ship, it is invariably the case that the junior steps into the boat before his senior, although at the end of the journey the order is reversed. This curious custom is as old as the Navy itself. Any person coming on the quarter-deck is obliged to salute the symbol of authority. It is believed that this dates from the time when religious images were carried on board.

URIC ACID SUFFERING.

Uric acid is an accumulation of poison which finds lodgment in the system when the kidneys fail to remove it from the blood. In the kidneys and bladder it forms stone, in the joints and muscles it causes rheumatism. In any case the pain and suffering is almost beyond human endurance. Uric acid is promptly removed from the system when the kidneys are kept healthy and active by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

Say Trouble Will Continue

RETURNING TRAVELLERS PREDICT MORE FOOD RIOTS AND SAY PUBLIC IS WEARY OF WAR.

NEW YORK, April 26.—Passengers arriving here from Germany said that the food riots in Germany and Austria would increase in number the coming summer, because the crops were not likely to prove any better than those of 1916, and the Governments had told the people all through the winter that the harvests would be abundant.

Dissatisfaction was spreading through the army in both Austria and Germany, the passengers said, because the officers and soldiers were not getting sufficient nourishing food, and, in consequence, there was considerable sickness among the troops.

The sinking of the Scandinavian steamships by German submarines, it was said, had cut off the small supply of butter, eggs, cheese and other dairy produce that was obtained from those countries, especially Denmark. There is a strong belief all over Germany that the war will be over by Christmas, whether the Central Powers win or lose.

Alfred Stetman, of Chicago, who has been living in Frankfort as representative of an American manufacturing firm, said that most of the German people were so weary of the war and the general living conditions that they were almost ready for revolt against the Government. The newspapers continue to print enthusiastic articles about the victories on land and the sinking of the British merchant ships, but the officers and men returning from the battlefields tell different stories.

"Of my own knowledge," Mr. Stetman continued, "I can say that three officers were recently shot on the Western front for saying that the Crown Prince had failed as a military leader, and that the Allies would soon crumple up the German line and drive them to the Rhine. For the first two years in the war officers and men were greeted with cheers in the streets when they marched by, and the mention of the Kaiser's name elicited loud shouts of 'Hoch! Hoch!' but now all this is met with stolid apathy.

"When men and women cannot get proper food and see their little children go hungry day after day, they lose the warlike enthusiasm and interest in everything except the prospect of peace. The people are tired and ill through eating the various chemical substitutes for food devised by the scientific experts. Germany is hungry, and wants real food that will fill the stomachs of the people and give them strength to work.

"The masses of the people are living on turnips and all kinds of roots that can be boiled down into something like human food. Potatoes are seen by only the wealthy classes, and when I left Frankfort there was only one egg for each person every week.

"The Germans have been buoyed all winter by the promises of the Government, and now they have come to the boiling over point. If they do not get food during the next two or three months there will be a serious uprising all over the Empire."

Mr. Stetman said that outbreaks of smallpox were growing more frequent and that there was not a sufficient supply of toxins to combat the disease, as what the Government had in stock was being kept for the fighting men, and the civilians could not get any.

"Russia has plenty of munitions, complete and in process of completion. In fact, in the matter of munitions she excels in some points. She has the finest detonator in the world and the second best, I should say, time fuse. By this time Washington has, no doubt, full information on these and similar matters of efficiency in the Allies' two and a half years' bitter experience of war."

Asked as to the Allies' feeling in regard to the extent of the United States' participation in the war and the possibility of such participation shortening its duration:

"It will undoubtedly shorten the war by its moral effect if from nothing else. As to material participation in Europe, it is quite possible that the vast weight of moral influence and material promise may result in the collapse of Germany's ambition before the United States has an opportunity to baptize with her own blood, the ideals to which she has dedicated her life and fortune. It may seem a strange thing to say, but it is the heartfelt wish of many who love the United States that the war will continue for six months more so that American troops may have an opportunity to seal the compact which will bind for all time the brotherhood of the English speaking race.

"I believe, as well as hope, that she will have this opportunity. After all that has passed in the last two and a half years—the misunderstanding, the unjust vituperation, the impugning of motives—it would be unfortunate if she did not have it."

MAINTAIN ARMY BY ENDING WASTE AROUND THE HOME

NEW YORK, May 2.—American women can maintain the Allied armies on the firing line by eliminating waste in the home, in the opinion of Herbert Hoover, (who is to be American food controller) in a copyrighted article in To-day's Housewife.

"If we are to pull our Allies through with sufficient foodstuffs to maintain their men at the front and their women and children at home we have simply got to reduce waste and consumption of food stuffs to the minimum upon which we can maintain good health," Mr. Hoover warns.

"This can be done if we have the united good will and devotion of the American women. They control direct, 85 per cent. of the total food, being that part consumed in the home, and they indirectly control a large part of the food consumed in public places."

Mr. Hoover advises the wealthy to eat luxuries exclusively, and thus conserve the staples for exportation.

"From the point of view of our Allies and our own poor in these times of high prices," he said "the ideal meat of the well-to-do would be terropin, turkey and tenderloin."

Urging every housewife to study scientific food values, Mr. Hoover suggested that Americans, so far as possible, eat fish, fruit, potatoes, vegetables, poultry and dairy products, which cannot be exported, and save the exportable grains and staples such as sugar, lard and cured meats.

"Each housewife outside the cities," Hoover declared, "should use every spare hour of each member of her household to enlarge her garden or plant one where none existed before, or to install chickens or rabbits, and every household that adds a pig to the entourage to eat the slops is saving waste."

BEGIN HOT WATER DRINKING IF YOU DON'T FEEL RIGHT

Says glass of hot water with phosphate before breakfast washes out poisons.

If you wake up with a bad taste, bad breath and tongue is coated; if your head is dull or aching; if what you eat sours and forms gas and acid in stomach, or you are bilious, constipated, nervous, sallow and can't get feeling just right, begin inside bathing. Drink before breakfast, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it. This will flush the poisons and toxins from stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels and cleanse, sweeten and purify the entire alimentary tract. Do your inside bathing immediately upon arising in the morning to wash out of the system all the previous day's poisonous, waste, gases and sour bile before putting more food into the stomach.

To feel like young folks feel; like you felt before your blood, nerves and muscles became loaded with body impurities, get from your pharmacist a quarter pound of limestone phosphate which is inexpensive and almost tasteless, except for a sourish twinge which is not unpleasant.

Just as soap and hot water act on the skin, cleansing, sweetening and freshening, so hot water and limestone phosphate act on the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels. Men and women who are usually constipated, bilious, headachy or have any stomach disorder should begin this inside bathing before breakfast. They are assured they will become real cranks on the subject shortly.

ENGLAND'S CANALS TO COMPETE AGAIN

War Freight Rates Give this Wonderful System a Chance—Railways Own Many Routes

England hopes to witness a revival of interest in its waterways system through the action of the government in commandeering all canals in the country. The canal system has been allowed to fall into disuse since 1906 when the railways made it impossible for them to compete successfully. With the increased freight rates since the war the advocates of the waterways system see a big increase in canal traffic. Sir Maurice Fitzmaurice, a consulting engineer of wide experience in government service, has been appointed chairman of a committee designated by the board of trade, to inquire into the inland waterways of the country and to see where they can be improved for the benefit of the nation.

Need Standardizing

In the United Kingdom there are about 4,500 miles of navigable waterways. Of these some 3,000 in England form one intersecting whole, but owing to their haphazard method of construction no one single type of boat can navigate the whole of them. Boats and locks are not standardized. Neither is there centralization of the control, the canals being under different companies. Railways now own more than 1,300 miles of the canal system, including most of the important links. As showing the influence of the railways on the inland waterways it is stated that no waterborne traffic can enter or leave the rich manufacturing district of Birmingham without passing over water owned by a railway company.

War Teaches Lessons

Advocates of inland waterways in England say they realize that this country is far behind Germany and France in utilizing its canals but that they hope the lessons taught by the war, through high freight rates and congestion on the railroads, will result in a big impetus in canal construction in the days to follow peace.

OUR WOMEN SURGEONS

Scottish Women's Hospital Fund do Splendid Work

Beatrice Heron Maxwell writes: The Abbaye de Royaumont is one of five hospitals financed, initiated, organised, and staffed by the Scottish Women's Hospital Fund for our wounded Allies in their own country. It is known as Hospital Auxiliaire No. 301, affiliated to the Societe Francaise le Secours aux Blesses Militaires, and under the British Red Cross. The surgeons, with Miss Ivens at their head, numbering, with the bacteriologist, seven, wear a simple uniform of gray linen, with the silver badge on velvet of the French medical service on their collars. Comely capable women, as sincere as they are skilful at their work, they are no longer supervised in operations (as at first) by French surgeons, because it was recognised after a few days that their profession was backed by expert performance. The badly wounded men who come there feel confidence in these marvellous fingers, whose dexterous accuracy of touch is enhanced by softness. These lionhearted women are performing as many as a hundred and fifty or more operations in a week. They avoid amputations wherever possible, of course, and one man whose hand seemed hopelessly crushed owes the restoration of three fingers to their expert method of repair.

ASSISTED DR. CARREL

Canadian Physician's Distinction as Blood Transfusion Expert

A Canadian's distinguished career in France was almost unheard of until the return of Lt.-Col. Francois de Martigny on leave, after two years' hospital work in Canadian Hospitals in France. Lt.-Col. Martigny, who, before he left Canada with Col. Mignault, was attached to the Hotel Dieu in Montreal, made a specialty of blood transfusion with remarkable success. He was stationed at Hospital No. 21 Compiegne, where he worked with Dr. Dehelly, of Havre, as assistant to Dr. Alexis Carrel. Dr. Col. de Montigny is a brother-in-law of Messrs Joseph and Eugene Tarte, of La Patrie newspaper.

Splendid War Work Record

An English father writes: "My family consists of six boys and five girls. Of my boys—all happily still living—every one has been in the army, in one capacity or another, since the first year of the war. Of my daughters, one is a nurse at Salonica and another at Le Touquet; a third is doing carpenter's work in France, a fourth is on the land, and my youngest girl is making hospital swabs several hours daily. My wife is cook at a local war hospital, and I am very busy in a munition factory."

Jesus, the servant of all. John 13: 1-17.

Golden Text: Whosoever would be first among you, shall be the servant of all. Mark 10:44.

1. Verse 1. When did the consciousness first come to Jesus, that the Jews would crucify him?

2. Is it possible or not, and why, through divine grace, for everybody to love with the strength, purity and self sacrifice that Jesus did?

3. Verse 2. Could Judas have rejected this temptation of the devil to betray Jesus, or was he foreordained by God to do it? Gid your reasons.

4. Verse 3. In what sense, or with what limitations, if any, has God put everything into the hands of Jesus?

5. What connection did "Jesus knowing," have with what Jesus then did?

6. What is the greatest thing in the world, over which God gave Jesus full control, in which he is our example in this story and at all times?

7. Verses 4, 5. Why should every Christian, no matter how exalted his position, arrange his affairs, and so "gird himself" that he may do personal service for everybody?

8. What kind of service may Christians do in these days for their fellows, to most nearly correspond with Jesus washing his disciples feet?

9. Why cannot any person be a disciple of Jesus who is not willing to do the most menial thing for his fellows, should God so command?

10. Verses 6-8. From a wholly human standpoint, what can you say about Peter's resolution, not to allow Jesus to wash his feet?

11. Would you say or not, and why, that it is ever right for us to act contrary to our own judgment

12. Should we or not, and why, in thought, give God the right to command us to do that which we think to be wrong?

13. Verses 6-8. Should our modesty or our creed, or any other thing, at the clear command of God, stand in our way of doing anything that may bring us either pain or pleasure?

14. Verse 9. When a man sees he is wrong and acknowledges it, how long is it before God forgives him?

15. Did Peter sin or not in this thing, and does God ever record sin for anything prompted by pure love, even if in an abstract sense it is wrong?

16. Verses 10, 11. Does God, or not, and why, blame all because some in the church live in sin? (This is one of the questions which may be answered in writing by members of the Club.)

17. Verse 12. What did Jesus mean to teach them, and us, by his washing the disciples feet?

18. Verses 13-17. What is the supreme duty, and the greatest privilege of a Christian?

19. Why is it that we get more happiness out of what we do for others, than we do out of what they do for us?

20. Jesus says here that he is our example, why may we assume that, by his grace, we can follow it and become duplicates of Jesus?

Lesson for Sunday, May 13, 1917: —Jesus the True Vine. John 15:1-16.

DANIELS'S SON JOINS MARINES AS PRIVATE

Josephus Jr. Greatly Pleases Secretary by Enlisting in the Navy.

WASHINGTON, May 2.— Josephus Daniels jr., son of the Secretary of the Navy, is a private in the United States Marine Corps. He will have to earn his spurs just like any other young American who enlists in the navy.

Secretary Daniels's face beamed with pleasure when he was asked about young Josephus, who is just of age.

"Yes, the boy has joined the Marine Corps and I am very happy over his decision," said Mr. Daniels. "That is the spirit we all want to see."

Young Daniels has been employed recently on his father's newspaper in Raleigh, N. C. When he visited the recruiting station a slight defect in vision was disclosed. It was not sufficient to prevent his enrolment and the medical examiners passed him. He will shortly be sent to the naval training station at Philadelphia.

STOMACH MEDICINES ARE DANGEROUS

DOCTORS NOW ADVISE MAGNESIA

Just how dangerous it is to indiscriminately dose the stomach with drugs and medicines is often not realised until too late. It seems so simple to swallow a dose of some special mixture or take tablets of soda, pepsin, bismuth, etc., after meals, and the folly of this dragging is not apparent until, perhaps years afterward, when it is found that gastric ulcers have almost eaten their way through the stomach walls. Regrets are then unavailing; it is in the early stages when indigestion, dyspepsia, heartburn, flatulence, etc., indicates excessive acidity of the stomach and fermentation of food contents that precaution should be taken. Drugs and medicines are unsuitable and often dangerous—they have little or no influence upon the harmful acid, and that is why doctors are discarding them and advising sufferers from indigestion and stomach trouble to get rid of the dangerous acid and keep the food contents bland and sweet by taking a little pure bisurated magnesia instead. Bisurated Magnesia is an absolutely pure antiacid which can be readily obtained from any drug store. It is absolutely harmless, is practically tasteless and a teaspoonful taken in a little warm or cold water after meals, will usually be found quite sufficient to instantly neutralise excessive acidity of the stomach and prevent all possibility of the food fermenting.

SHIPS OF FERRO-CONCRETE.

Vessels to be Tested for North Sea Trade.

LONDON, May 2.—A Christiania despatch to The Daily Mail says that twenty-three Norwegian ships, aggregating 36,000 tons, were sunk by submarines last week. This is a record for Norwegian losses.

The correspondent says that an experiment is about to be made with two motor ships, the hulls of which are constructed of ferro-concrete, to test the fitness of such vessels for North Sea trade. The boats will be of 1,600 tons and 600 tons, respectively. Ferro-concrete lighters have been used successfully for some time in Swedish coast traffic. The Norwegian boats can be built in four or five months and are cheaper than those of steel or wood.

TEUTON OUTRAGES ENRAGE IRISHMEN

Reverence for Religion and Purity Inspire Wrath the World Over— No Welcome for Kaiser

Only Ireland is with England in the present war, is explained by an officer of Irish race, who sends the following letter from Dublin: See that Irish peasant passing the chapel in his village? Watch how he doffs his battered hat and crosses himself in reverence to the Sacred Presence in the Holy Sacrament on the alter in the dim interior. Look at him standing at a street corner as a black-robed nun goes by to nurse the sick or shepherds her little flock of poorly-dressed children across the road. Off comes the hat again.

"God be with you, sister," he says respectfully. And the nun nods to him with a little smile of kindness; for she is truly the sister to all of us in our land. Think what that man felt, what thousands of us like him in Ireland felt, when we heard of the German outrages on holy women like her.

Tales at First Discredited.

At first few could bring themselves to credit the horrible tales, could believe that white men could be worse than wild beasts. I know it; for I was in Dublin when the stories came from Belgium. I spoke of them to officers of the National Volunteers—men who had enrolled themselves to fight Ulster and England too, if she backed up "The Black north."

"Those tales are lies," said one. "They must be lies. I don't know much about the Germans; but they are civilized men, aren't they? They are not black savages."

"It is from the English that we hear these stories," added another.

"Germany is their enemy. But they go too far when they spread tales like these that no one could believe about any European nation."

Nuns' Report Convincing

Both those men are fighting for the empire now. For when, from Belgium and France, Irish nuns came back to their native land and told of other nuns sacrificed to the brutal lust of drunken German beasts, they put forward and proved categorical statements of deliberately ordered outrages, and bitter conviction entered every man's heart. Then we Irish Catholics, who have clung through the centuries to our faith and value purity in woman above gold, knew on which side alone we could fight.

What of the hundreds of thousands of Irish from Ireland, from Canada, from Australia, from all the world over, who have flocked to the banner of the Sassenach to fight against the kindly nation that only wishes "to free enslaved Ireland?" Are their sympathies German? Who believes to-day that if the Kaiser's soldiers set foot in Ireland, we Catholic Irish would welcome them? No; rather, as my old rebel farmer said, "We'd bate hell out of them!"

WEDDING IN GREECE

British Subaltern's Experience at Queer Salonica Festival

Writing to a friend, a subaltern relates the following: To-day there was a Greek wedding in the tiny village near us. A party of about 50 of the bridegroom's family and friends proceeded to the bride's house singing a dismal chant. They carried a white flag, upon the staff of which were three apples. When they arrived at the bride's mud cottage, their chant was answered by feminine voices from inside. This was repeated several times. Then the bridegroom was carried over the threshold of the cottage. Inside he was received by the men of the bride's family. The women were in another room still dismally chanting. Meanwhile the bridegroom's party danced in a circle outside the house to the accompaniment of the playing of a very rude instrument similar to the bagpipes. The bride's trousseau was then placed upon a wagon drawn by oxen. The trousseau seemed to consist of vivid coloured blankets, cushions and towels, and a wooden box evidently made locally. All this was taken to the bridegroom's house. The bridegroom and his people then proceeded to his own house, chanting all the while, and preceded by the white flag. The bride and her party followed fifty yards behind, also chanting. The women all wore very gorgeous coloured dresses of the crinoline type. When they arrived at the bridegroom's house another dance took place. Eventually the happy couple were left to themselves.

WINNING THE V.C.

Spontaneous Actions Do not Count— Must be Deliberate

A newspaper correspondent writes: "I once asked an officer in charge of all these matters of rewards for a definition of the kind of bravery that it took to win the V.C., the highest and most coveted of all honors for gallantry, infinitely more precious and rare, for instance, than the Iron Cross or the French Legion of Honor. 'Deliberate,' he said. 'If I should have to define "V. C. bravery" I would call it that. Men do not receive the V. C. for spontaneous acts of gallantry that last a second or two, incidents that crop up in the course of a day's work. The V. C. standard requires much more than that—the kind of bravery where the deed shows deliberation, where the man is fully aware of his peril, yet goes on with whatever he is doing, although it be beyond his duty.'"

Even Veterans Impressed

When a returned soldier reads the war news of a victory, he wants to know how many prisoners have been taken. The capture of 15,000 of the enemy and between 50 and 100 guns in the first day of the Arras advance impressed even the veterans of 1915-16.

An English postcard has taken over twelve years to find its way from Paddington to Putney.

SUNDAY WANTS TO GO WITH "TEDDY"

Would Even Black His Boots to Get to the Firing Line.

NEW YORK, May 3.—Col. Theodore Roosevelt commanding an army division in France.

Rev. Wm. Ashley Sunday, along with that division and blacking Col. Roosevelt's boots, if doing nothing more warlike.

That was a little picture drawn by the irrepressible Bill at his tabernacle, when facing his smallest crowd of the campaign he clinched his fists and drew on all his powers of oratory. Billy was talking about Micaiah of old—"a guy who didn't put on his glasses and look to see who was in the pews before he announced his text," but who let the unregenerate have it both barrels at once.

Micaiah, it seemed, was a "fighting guy" for the Lord. And as Billy went on: "I'm tired of preaching sermons about keeping your temper. It isn't always the best thing. You've got to fight as well as preach. A man without temper is a man without force. The great men in history were all fighters, not mollycoddles."

The evangelist added: "Roosevelt, they say, wants to take an army to France and fight. I say let him take it, and I'd like to go with Roosevelt and that army, even if I couldn't do anything more than blacken his boots."

SAGE TEA TURNS GRAY HAIR DARK

It's Grandmother's Recipe to Bring Back Colour and Lustre to Hair

That beautiful, even shade of dark, glossy hair can only be had by brewing a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray or streaked, just an application or two of Sage and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundredfold.

Don't bother to prepare the mixture; you can get this famous old recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients for 50 cents a large bottle, all ready for use. It is called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound. This can always be depended upon to bring back the natural color and lustre of your hair.

Everybody uses "Wyeth's" Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair has disappeared, and after another application it becomes beautifully dark and appears glossy and lustrous. This ready-to-use preparation is a delightful toilet requisite for those who desire dark hair and a youthful appearance. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

OPPOSES KAISER'S PLAN

North German Lloyd Line Head Resigns.

LONDON, May 2.—A despatch to the Exchange Telegraph from The Hague says, a Bremen message reports that Herr Achelis, President of the North German Lloyd Steamship Company, has resigned as the result of a disagreement with the Board of Directors on the question of Government compensation for ships of the company confiscated in American harbours.

"It appears that the Government offered all the German companies £15,000,000," says the despatch, of which one-third was allotted to the North German Lloyd. Herr Achelis wanted two-thirds of the amount.

It is now believed the North German Lloyd will join the Hamburg-American line under the joint directorate of Albert Ballin of that company and Phillip Heineken, director of the North German Lloyd, with a view to an amalgamation with other German and Austrian lines in a general trust. Herr Achelis has always opposed this plan, which is said to have originated with Emperor William.

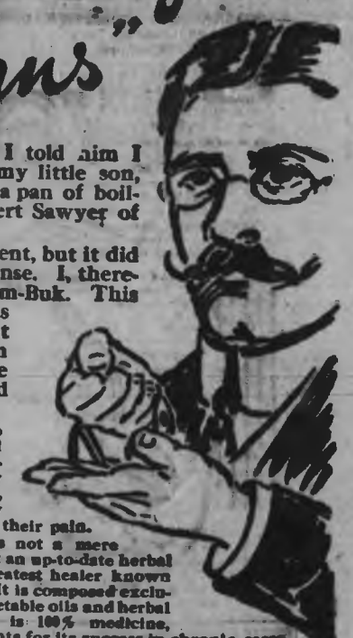
MY DOCTOR SAID "There's Nothing so good for Scalds + Burns"



when I told him I was using Zam-Buk for my little son, who had been badly scalded by pulling a pan of boiling water over himself," writes Mrs. Albert Sawyer of Midland, Ont. She continues:

"I called in a doctor, who gave me some ointment, but it did not seem to ease the child's pain, which was intense. I, therefore, discontinued it, and commenced applying Zam-Buk. This wonderful balm eased the pain almost as soon as applied, but to make sure I was doing the right thing, I called in a second doctor. When I told him what I was using, he said 'That's right—just continue the Zam-Buk treatment; there's nothing so good for scalds and burns.'

"I persevered. The soreness was soon all drawn out, and healing commenced. New skin gradually began to form over the sore places, and it was not long before the scalds—although so deep—were completely healed."

While Zam-Buk is excellent for such serious burns and scalds, as in the above case, it is just as necessary for the little accidents which are of far more frequent occurrence in every household—a scald from the kettle or from boiling fat, a burn from an iron or from the oven door. These little burns often cause a great deal of suffering, which can easily be avoided if Zam-Buk is applied at once. An application of Zam-Buk to a wound as soon as sustained, prevents any possibility of festering or blood-poisoning. Mothers should never be without Zam-Buk for their children's injuries. Children who have once had Zam-Buk applied will cry for it again, because they know it ends their pain.

Zam-Buk is not a mere ointment, but an up-to-date herbal balm—the greatest healer known to science. It is composed exclusively of vegetable oils and herbal extracts and is 100% medicine, which accounts for its success in chronic cases of eczema, ringworm, scalp sores, boils, ulcers, abscesses, bad legs, blood-poisoning and piles. All druggists and stores or Zam-Buk Co., Toronto. 50c. box, 3 for $1.25.

Experiments Rockefeller Institute

ROCKEFELLER INSTITUTE DESCRIBES THE PROGRESS OF SERUM TREATMENT OF MALADY.

NEW YORK.—Results of experiments made by the Rockefeller Institute showing how the body protects itself from infantile paralysis germs are described in papers published in the April number of the Journal of Experimental Medicine, published by the Institute. Dealing in a technical manner with the subject which is of such vital interest to New York, these papers make known the progress that has been made in the serum treatment of the disease. It is indicated that great things are expected of the serum as the surest way of checking the disease.

That the microbe which causes infantile paralysis enters the body by way of the mucous membrance of the nose and throat is now regarded as established. Many persons are exposed to the disease and even are contaminated by the virus and yet never develop the disease. This is because the body possesses natural defences which fight the microbe the moment it apepars in the system and sometimes fight so successfully that the germs are killed before they do any damage.

The first set of defensive means were discovered by Dr. Amoss, of the Rockefeller Institute ,and Dr. Taylor, of the Vermont State Board of Health, to reside in the secretions of the nose itself. For example, they found by means of experiments on monkeys that distilled water washings of the nose and throat when mixed with preparations of the active virus of infantile paralysis abolished or neutralised its activity.

BODY POSSESSES DEFENCES

The destructive power possessed by the nasal secretions is, however, not absolute, but is affected at, by the state, whether normal o otherwise, of the nasal mucous membrane of the persons tested and, second, by individual peculiarities not yet explained. But the lack of neutralising power is the exception and the existence of that powor the rule, from which it has been concluded that the secretions of the nose and throat are a real and effective safeguard against infection with the virus of infantile paralysis, and probably serve to diminish the number of healthy carriers of the virus as to remove and destroy the last of the virus present in the nose and throat of persons recovered from the disease.

Besides an external a set of internal defences also have been detected. They consist of the intact membranes surrounding the spinal cord and brain, with the added physiological structure in the brain known as the choroid plexus, which drain off the fluid from the blood which forms the normal cerebro-spinal liquid surrounding those nervous organs.

INJURY ADMITS VIRUS

The membranes mentioned when intact exclude practically everything, including microbes, except the watery fluid from the delicate nervous tissues. What has been found out is that very slight injury to those structures opens the way for the virus to get into the spinal cord and brain when infantile paralysis arises. That changes of the sort indicated may play a part in deciding the state of susceptibility or its reverse in exposed persons is suggested, as do the co-operation of the external defence or nasal secretions and the internal defence or impermeability of the membranes of the spinal cord and brain in determining protection from infection.

The microbe cause or virus of infantile paralysis is a very minute micro-organism which is unaffected by the blood of normal persons, but is neutralised or destroyed by the blood of persons who have recovered from an attack of the disease. Indeed, the reason recovery takes place at all is that these neutralising substances begin to appear in the blood within the first few days of the illness and either gradually or abruptly stop the growth of the virus in the nervous organs.

The virus of infantile paralysis is a very minute micro-organism capable of passing through porcelain filters and of growing under conditions in which air of oxygen is excluded from the cultures.

KILLED BY CONSTABLE.

Fugitive Fires on Party Sent to Arrest Him.

VICTORIA, May 2. — Because he fired upon a party of constables who had been sent to arrest him, an unidentified man was shot and killed at a lonely spot near Prince George a few days ago. The man, it was believed, was responsible for a number of depredations in the district, and constables had been sent out to round him up. They came upon him standing before the hut he had erected. He warned the officers not to approach, and emphasized his remarks with a shot in their direction. Fearing to take further chances a bullet from one of the constable's guns laid the man low.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A Bottle and a Message

By F. A. MITCHEL

I'm a fisherman myself, and before I was a fisherman I was a seafarin' man. So I can truly say that I'm a waterman all over. But now I'm livin' in clover.

There be stories of bottles with messages in 'em dropped from ships goin' down, that the messages bein' written for a joke. This has made possons think that all messages found in bottles are jokes. But this isn't so, as I can prove, for I picked up one of them bottles myself, and the possons that the message was written to are livin' and can vouch for my story. But the message I'm thinkin' of was a different kind from the jokes.

One day when I was pullin' in my net with a catch o' mackerel I saw a bottle bobbin' up and down. It floated near me, and I had only to put out an oar to take it in. The cork wa'n't sealed, but it was driven in so tight that I had to cut it out. There was a paper inside and a message on it, written with a lead pencil. This is the way it read:

On Steamer Ellen Hathaway.

Ship goin' down in a gale. I kidnaped Stephen Cartright. He's livin' with Mathew Drake, No. — Hennett Street, Baltimore, Maryland. SAM SHARKEY.

It didn't seem to me that if a feller was goin' to make a joke he'd write that sort of a one. So the next day I takes the message to Boston and hands it in at a police station. They called it a fake or something like that, but said they'd see that it got to the party what it was written to.

Not hearin' nothin' from it for some time, I forgot all about it. I jist kept on fishin'. One day a young feller come down on to the dock where I was mendin' my net and looked at me and asked if I was Jack Bunker. I said that was my name.

He stood lookin' at me kind o' queer for awhile; then he said:

"Mr. Bunker, if you had a wish granted what would the wish be?"

"My friend," I said, "I'm nothin' but a fisherman. I hain't got no time to be thinkin' about whether or not I'd like the sky for a blue bandannar."

The feller was a-studyin' me all the while, and when I'd said that he says:

"Mr. Bunker, is that your boat tied up alongside the pier?"

"I reckon it is," I says.

"How would you like a new one?"

"How would I like a new one? What d'ye take me for—a lunatic? Of course I'd like a new boat in place o' that old trap. I'm thinkin' that the next time I git caught out in a gale she'll let me down into the brine."

"Is there anything else you'd like, Mr. Bunker?"

I looked up at him, wonderin' of he was loony.

"Young feller," I says, "I reckon if I'm goin' to get these nets mended I'll have to shut you off all to once. I'd like a new house on the bluff over there, all furnished, with a garding. I'd like a thousand dollars a year to keep it up. I'd like the celler stocked with good grog. Now I've tole you all this perhaps you'll let me alone for awhile."

He turned away without sayin' nothin' more, and I thought he was mad. I was sorry, but I didn't see why he should take up my time askin' fool questions, so I thought no more about it.

Less'n a month after that somebody begun to build a house on the bluff. When it was finished it was the purtyest little shack I ever seen. And one day when I come down to the dock I found a single sticker about thirty feet long, brand new and rigged out with everything needed, anchored out about a cable's length. And the queerest thing about it was that on her stern was painted the same name as my ole tub. I asked who was her owner, but nobody seemed to know anything about her.

That afternoon I come in early from fishin', not havin' no luck, and as I rounded up to the pier who should I see standin' on it but the lunatic that was askin' me how many things I'd like to have if I could get 'em. When I'd throwed the painter around a post the feller said to me:

"Mr. Bunker, when I was here some time ago I think you said you'd like a house."

"Yes, and a garding. Are you goin' to begin that racket ag'in?"

"Do you see that house up on the bluff?"

"In course I do. My eyes are as good as when I was at sea and could take in a bird on the horizon."

"That house is yours. The cellar is well stocked with grog, and there is plenty of room for a garden."

"My friend," said I, "I'd better do you a favor. From what madhouse did you escape?"

"You also said," he went on, not noticin' my remark, "that you'd like a boat. There she is out there"—pointed to the new boat, still ridin' at anchor—"and in a deposit company's vaults in Boston are some 5 per cent bonds that will give you a thousand dollars a year income."

"See here, stranger," I was beginnin' when he stopped me.

"I'm Stephen Cartright. Your finding the bottle with the Sharkey message in it has resulted in my being restored to my parents, who are very rich. Go up to your new house on the bluff and you'll find them there waiting to thank you for being instrumental in giving them back their son."

Well, now, mebby I'm not havin' a jolly old age!

Marriage for love is a fine thing—if one can afford it.

When a man sits down and hopes for the best he is apt to get the worst of it.

A Statue That Never Was Built.

Mount Athos, in Turkey, was the spot contemplated by a sculptor for the most imposing monument that man had ever had. The sculptor Dinocrates offered to cut the huge mountain mass into the form of a statue of Alexander which should hold a city in the left hand and in the right a basin to receive all the waters that flowed from the mountain.

Alexander was much taken by the plan, but rejected it for the practical reason that there was not food enough in the district to feed the inhabitants of the proposed town. So the canal cut by Xerxes to enable the ships to escape sailing round the mountain remained the greatest enterprise ever achieved there.

Equity and Economy.

Two men, strangers to each other, were seated together on the outside of a tramcar, and both filled their pipes simultaneously. One, however, struck his match first, and the other requested that he might share the light. Having done so, he took from his pocket a box of matches and handed one to his obliging neighbor. "It is foolish," he said, "to strike two when one will do, but I can't very well expect you to provide that one when I have some also. Let me pay!" A mind of nice balance in equity as well as economy!—London Chronicle.

Vain Queries.

A little girl who was trying to tell a friend how absentminded her grandpa was said, "He walks around, thinking about nothing, and when he remembers it he then forgets that what he thought of was something entirely different from what he wanted to remember."

Caught Both Ways.

Mrs. Exe—My servant girl has left me. She said I had so much company there was too much work to do. Mrs. Wye—That's singular. Mine has left me too. She said I had no little company it showed I had no social position.—Boston Transcript.

Not Yet.

Mrs. Bacon—Don't you think I'm entitled to a pension, John? Mr. Bacon—Why, no. A pension is something you get after you are through fighting.—Yonkers Statesman.

AUTHOR, RANCHER AND UNDERTAKER IS SIR SAM

TORONTO, May 3.—Sir Sam Hughes passed through Toronto yesterday from Ottawa en route to his home in Lindsay. He told The Star that he had been made three flattering offers by three of the largest American publishing houses to write his reminiscences of the war. 'One of the offers,' said Sir Sam, "is really flattering and I think it may be accepted."

With regard to his recent speech delivered at Lindsay, the former Minister of Militia expressed himself as having "rattled the old, dry bones of Parliament."

Sir Sam will, while in Lindsay, devote his time to establishing a small-sized ranch at Eagle Lake for his daughter.

Cocoanut Oil Makes A Splendid Shampoo

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Don't use prepared shampoos or anything else, that contains too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Just plain mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at most any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months.

NORWAY WOULD JOIN ALLIES.

Endeavouring to Line Up Sweden and Denmark, Too.

LONDON, May 3. — Relations between Norway and Germany are rapidly approaching the breaking point, according to information received from Christiania. Norway is trying to induce Sweden and Denmark to join her in suspending all intercourse with Germany and entering the war on the side of the allies. Last month, 75 Norwegian vessels were sunk.

HUSBAND OBJECTS TO OPERATION

Wife Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Des Moines, Iowa.—"Four years ago I was very sick and my life was nearly spent. The doctors stated that I would never get well without an operation and that without it I would not live one year. My husband objected to any operation and got me some of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I took it and commenced to get better and am now well, am stout and able to do my own housework. I can recommend the Vegetable Compound to any woman who is sick and run down as a wonderful strength and health restorer. My husband says I would have been in my grave are this if it had not been for your Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. BLANCHE JEFFERSON, 926 Lyon St., Des Moines, Iowa.

COMIC OPERA GEMS.

Quotations From Gilbert's Works That Will Live Long.

Not the comedians of Sheridan nor even the tragedies of Shakespeare are more easily first in their respective classes than are the Gilbert and Sullivan comic operas in theirs. In all human probability they never will be equaled, and the best of them have something of that quality "not for a day, but for all time," which wars against obsolescence and leads to their constant revival even as "Hamlet" and "Macbeth," "The Rivals" and "The School For Scandal" and Goldsmith's "She Stoops to Conquer" are constantly revived.

Even should the stage in time to come know them no more they would not be dead, for, besides adding immeasurably to the innocent gayety of the English speaking nations and to their treasury of enduring songs, the operas have enriched the stock of household sayings.

From "Pinafore" we have "What? Never!" and the response "Hardly ever," "his station, his cousins and his aunts," "in spite of all temptations to belong to other nations," "You're exceedingly polite, and I think it only right to return the compliment," "O joy, O rapture unforeseen!" "Never mind the why and wherefore" and "Though I'm anything but clever, I could talk like that forever."

From "The Pirates of Penzance" we have learned that "take one consideration with another," "a policeman's lot is not a happy one."

From "Iolanthe" come "Said I to myself, said I," "did nothing in particular and did it very well" and that perfect specimen of the inverted truism:

Hearts just as pure and fair
May beat in Belgrave square
As in the lowly air
Of Seven Dials.

To "Patience" are due "a most intense young man," "nitra poetical, superaesthetical," and "there will be too much of me."

But perhaps the best known of all Gilbertisms and the one that comes oftenest to the lips is that refrain in "The Mikado" that almost sums up the whole science of an enlightened penology. "Let the punishment fit the crime." A wiser jest was never penned. From "The Mikado" also comes "He's got 'em on the list, they'll none of 'em be missed," "Here's a pretty state of things!" "Here's a pretty how-de-do!" "the flowers that blown in the spring," "something lingering, with boiling oil in it," "three little maids from school," "a source of innocent merriment" and "He's going to marry Yum-Yum."

Secret of the Baked Potato.

Occasionally a restaurant or a system of railroad dining cars becomes famous for its baked potatoes. At the San Francisco exposition several college girls operated an establishment at which the baked potato was the piece de resistance and cost 50 cents. All these successes have been based on a simple little trick.

A potato should be larded before being baked, so as to fill up the porous skin and retain the full flavor. It is necessary to cover only the skin with a little lard, bacon grease or butter to accomplish the end.

A potato so treated and baked just the proper length of time, usually three-quarters of an hour, will surpass a potato cooked in any other way. It must always be broken open immediately upon being taken from the oven, so that the steam may escape.

To Polish Silver.

To make a good silver polish mix together one-half ounce of fine salt, one-half ounce of powdered alum and one-half ounce of common cream of tartar. Put them in a large porcelain pitcher and pour on two quarts of water and stir until entirely dissolved. Now transfer the mixture to clean bottles and cork tightly. Before using shake well. Pour a little of the liquid out into a bowl and wash the silver all over with it, using an old linen cloth. Let it stand for ten or fifteen minutes and rub off dry with a buckskin. The silver will look like new.

Indispensable Man.

In "Things I Remember" Sidney Whitman tells among his recollections how on one occasion James Gordon Bennett cabled from Paris to New York ordering the discharge of a member of the staff. The manager replied asking him to reconsider the matter, as the employee in question was indispensable. "Discharge every indispensable man on the paper," was Mr. Bennett's reply. "I myself am not indispensable."

Named in a Suit.

"He's been named in a suit."

"What! I thought him to be a most exemplary person!"

"He is; he's bought some expensive clothes, and his tailor sewed the name inside the coat pocket."

HOW AIRCRAFT LAND AT NIGHT

The one great problem of the airplot namely, making a safe landing at night—appears to have been solved in an ingenious manner. A large white light is placed in the centre of the aerodrome, sunk in a pit in the ground and covered over with a sheet of thick glass to withstand the weight of an aeroplane should the wheels pass over it. At a distance of about 250 feet from this light, and also sunk in the ground, are four red lights corresponding to the cardinal points of the compass. Each of the red lights is connected by subterranean cables to a wind vane mounted on a mast or tower at some convenient point. At night the central light glows constantly, while the red light in the direction of the wind that happens to be blowing also shows, indicating to the pilot the wind conditions where the landing is to be made. It is understood that a system of altering the lights has been devised, so that an aviator has to understand the code in order to know his whereabouts. Thus enemy airmen are thwarted from making use of the lights as guides.

Airmen's Nerve Test

In France a very practical system is adopted to test the nervous system of air-pilots. The would-be pilot has to hold the handles of a special registering machine, which is so finely adjusted that it will show the slightest tremor. Whilst he is so occupied a pistol is fired suddenly, and if the machine records more than a very slight tremor the candidate is disqualified.

New Zealand Does Her Bit

New Zealand, the smallest of the overseas dominions, with a population of a million, has sent 70,000 men overseas. A monthly quota of 2,400 men being raised as reinforcements by a ballot system.

There was recently brought before a police magistrate in the South ... old darky who had fallen foul of ... bull dog whi'e in the act of entering the henhouse of the dog's owner.

"Didn't I give you ten days ... month for this same offence?" asked the magistrate. "It was the same ... house that you were trying to get in ... —what have you got to say for yourself?"

The darky seemed perplexed. "Ky Honah," he said, "yo' sent me to the chain gang fo' trying to steal some chickens, didn't yo'?"

"Yes, that was the charge."

"An' don't the law say yo' ... charged twice for the same offence?"

"That no man shall be twice placed in jeopardy for the identical same offence yes."

"Den, yo' Honah, youse gotta let me go, sub. I was after de same chickens, suh!"

Was Troubled With Shortness of Breath

When the heart becomes affected there ensues a feeling of a choking sensation, a shortness of breath, palpitation, throbbing, irregular beating, smothering sensation, dizziness, and a weak, sinking, all-gone feeling of oppression and anxiety.

The nerves become unstrung, you dread to be alone, have a horror of society, start at the least noise and are generally fatigued.

On the first sign of the heart becoming weakened or the nerves unstrung, Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills should be taken. They are just what you require at this time. They regulate and stimulate the heart and strengthen and restore the whole nerve system.

Mrs. C. M. Cormier, Buctouche, N.B., writes: "Since two years ago I was troubled with a shortness of breath, and sometimes I could hardly breathe. I went to see several doctors, and they said it was from my heart and nerves, but they did not seem to do me any good. One day I got one of your B.B.B. Almanacs and read of a case similar to mine.

"I bought a box of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and after taking it I noticed such a change that I kept on taking them until I had used four more boxes, when I was cured."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c a box, three boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co.

Heiress of $10,000,000 Dies At Age of 19

Kathleen Hermine Emily, Baroness von Eckhardstein, has just died at Clarence House, Regent's Park, W. London.

The eldest daughter of Mrs. Archibald Weigall, and granddaughter of the late Sir John Blundell Maple, Bt., the baroness was only 19 years of age. She had undergone a minor operation but never recovered consciousness.

Mrs. Weigall first married Baron von Eckhardstein, of the German Embassy. But the marriage did not prove a happy one, and she obtained a judicial separation in England in 1907, and a final decree of divorce from the civil court in Berlin.

Sir J. Blundell Maple, her father, left well over two million pounds, of which she was left the residue after several handsome legacies. Her marriage with Colonel Weigall (then Captain) was one of the society sensations of 1910.

Blood Thin and Watery And Circulation Bad

Nerves Become Starved and Depleted—But Dr. Chase's Nerve Food Enriched the Blood and Restored the Strength

PETERBOROUGH, March 14.—The nervous system requires an abundance of rich, red blood in order to replace the daily waste and generate the energy consumed in the activities of life. When you fail to obtain the necessary nourishment from the food you eat you must seek such assistance as is afforded by the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

By going directly to the formation of rich, red blood this great food cure brings strength and vigor to persons who are weak and run down. Here is the evidence:

Mrs. W. Grieves, 610½ Bethune street, Peterboro', Ont., writes: "Last fall my system was in a run-down condition, and I suffered from nervous debility and sleeplessness. At times I was troubled with dizzy headaches. My blood was weak and watery, and consequently I suffered from cold hands and feet. Many times at night I would waken up from sleep with a start, and then it would be a long time before I could quiet down and go to sleep again. Finally I became so bad that I could not do my own housework. I tried different remedies and preparations, as well as taking doctors' medicine, without any good results. Knowing Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to be good and very reliable, I secured some and took them. As they began to help me, I continued the treatment until I was helped a great deal. Now I can eat and sleep well at night, and am able to go about and do my own work. I also found good results from using the Kidney-Liver Pills in connection with the Nerve Food. I might also mention that I have used Dr. Chase's Ointment for a rash on my baby, and found it very beneficial. We always find Dr. Chase's medicines good, and are pleased to be able to recommend them."

$2.50 at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. Do not be talked into accepting a substitute. Imitations only disappoint.

AFTER MANY YEARS.

(Southern Lumberman.)

China seems to be about to throw off the dreadful burden of the traffic in opium. The ancient country has been wrestling with the opium problem for a long time, but has been balked by the commercial greed for Christian nations. From Hongkong recently came this news:

It seems probable that Hongkong's annual trade returns for 1916 are the last in which opium will be considered as a factor of any consequence. Only five years ago this trade in the colony and into China was one of the greatest features of the local commercial life, not only in its general volume, but also in its relation to banking and finance, as it involved from $12,000,000 to $20,000,000 annually and represented one of the most profitable lines of business in the port.

SHE GAINED 18 POUNDS.

Mrs. George Bradshaw, Barlowe, Ont., writes: "I was troubled for many years with weak watery blood and dropsy, had nervous headaches, dizziness, and sinking spells, and was in fact, a complete wreck. Doctors told me my heart and kidneys were diseased and gave me up but by using 10 boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I have been cured of many of my ailments and gained 18 pounds in weight."

Brand Whitlock Relates Horrors Of Deportations

AMERICAN MINISTER SAYS DEED WAS SO CRUEL GERMAN SOLDIERS ARE SAID TO HAVE WEPT.

WASHINGTON, D. C. — A bitter indictment of German brutality in the deportation of conquered Belgians for forced labor, written behind the German lines by Brand Whitlock, the American minister to Belgium, was made public by the State Department. It came in a confidential report last January when the United States was vainly protesting to Berlin against the treatment of the helpless people, but the Department did not dare publish it at that time or until Mr Whitlock was safe on French soil.

The report begins with a story of what happened immediately after the German army overran Belgium, of arrangements by the Belgian government to continue the wages of civilians thrown out of employment, and of their conquerors' determination to put these men to work for them.

"In August, Von Hindenburg was appointed to the supreme command," says the report. "He is said to have criticized Von Bissing's policy as too mild; there was a quarrel; Von Bissing went to Berlin to protest threatened to resign, but did not. He returned, and a German official here said that Belgium would now be subjected to a more terrible regime, and would learn what war was. The prophecy has been vindicated.

MISERIES HEAPED ON PEOPLE.

"The deportations began in October in the Etape, at Ghent and at Bruges. The policy spread. The rich industrial districts of Haimault, the mines and steel works about Charleroi, were next attacked; now they are seizing men in Brabant, even in Brussels, despite home indications and even predictions of the civil authorities, that the police was about to be abandoned. * * * As by one of the ironies of life the winter has been more excessively cold than Belgium has ever known it, and while many of those who protested themselves were adequately protected against the cold, many of them were without any overcoats. The men shivering from cold and fear, the parting from weeping wives and children, the barriers of brutal Uhlans, all this made the scene a pitiable and distressing one. * * * * * * The rage, the terror and despair excited by this measure all over Belgium were beyond anything we had witnessed since the day the Germans poured into Brussels. The delegates of the Commission for Relief in Belgium, returning to Brussels, told the most distressing stories of the scenes of cruelty and sorrow attending the seizures. And daily, hourly almost, since that time, appalling stories have been related by Belgians coming to the legation. It is impossible for us to verify them; first, because it is necessary for us to exercise all possible tact in dealing with the subject at all, and secondly, because there is no means of communication between the occupations of Gebiet and the Etaphen Gebiet. * * *

"FOULEST IN HISTORY."

"The well known tendency of sensational reports to exaggerate themselves, especially in time of war, and in a situation like that existing here with no newspapers to serve as a daily clearing house for all the rumours that are so quickly believed as they are eagerly repeated, should of course be considered, but even if a modicum of all that is told is true, there still remains enough to stamp this deed as one of the foulest that history records.

"I have had requests from the burgomasters of ten communes from La Louviere, asking that permission be obtained to send to the deported men in Germany packages food similar to those that are being sent to prisoners of war. Thus far the German authorities have refused to permit this except in special instances, and returning Belgians claim that even when such packages are received they are used by the camp authorities only as another means of coercing them to sign the agreements to work.

"I am constantly in receipt of reports from all over Belgium that tend to bear out the stories one constantly hears of brutality and cruelty. A number of men sent back to Mons are said to be in a dying condition, many of them tubercular. At Malines and at Antwerp returned men have died, their friends asserting that they have been the victims of neglect and cruelty, of cold of exposure and of hunger.

NO MONEY RECEIVED.

"It is said that in spite of the liberal salary promised those who would sign voluntarily, no money has as yet been received in Belgium from workmen in Germany.

GERMANY POSTPONES THE OFFER OF PEACE

Hollweg to Speak on "More Fitting Occasion."

COPENHAGEN, May 3, via London.—The speech which was to have been made in the Reichstag by Dr. Von Bethmann-Hollweg, the German Imperial Chancellor, on peace and international relations, has been postponed to a more fitting occasion according to word received here.

The situation as reported in a despatch from Berlin appears to be as follows: At a caucus of the majority Socialists in the Reichstag, the group that supports the policy of not embarrassing the Chancellor and the Government, it was decided to defer an interpellation that had been proposed regarding Germany's peace plans until a more suitable occasion. The interpellation was to have been made to-day. It is now expected that debate upon the political situation, together with the Chancellor's speech will probably be postponed until the third reading of the finance measures.

PUBLIC OPINION

CAN'T FOOL THE GERMAN STAFF.

New York World: Congress can fool itself; but it cannot fool the German Government. It can experiment with the volunteer system, but it cannot make the German General Staff believe that a country capable of undertaking an experiment has entered the war in earnest. Berlin is watching every step that Washington takes, and nothing is more important than to convince the German Government at the outset that this is to be a 100 per cent. war on our part. If the volunteer system is adopted in defiance of the President's protests by a Congress blind to all the lessons of the war, German autocracy will have its immediate vindication. It can point to this legislation as triumphal proof that the German General Staff was right when it assured the German people that they had nothing to fear from the military power and the military capacity of the United States.

THINGS CHANGE WHEN WAR COMES.

Detroit News: The soldiers are being treated like royalties. Uniformed men on the streets are followed by groups of admiring citizens. They are questioned, praised, made much of. The portals of all cafes are thrown wide for them, and they are treated as guests of honour. In one of the most exclusive hotel-cafes Wednesday night, several soldiers danced and were admired. And two short weeks ago there was a rule in this hotel, as in most others, that no uniformed man might use the dance floor. But that was before the war-cloud had burst.

THEY ALL VOLUNTEERED.

Tit-Bits: We should like to print this story in letters of gold. It is of a Colonel on the British front who wanted twenty men to face almost certain death. He called on the whole company together and made the situation clear to them. Then he asked for twenty volunteers to advance one pace. He loved his men and it was almost more than he could bear. He closed his eyes to keep back his tears, and when he opened the men stood in exactly the same formation. He was pained. "Is there not one volunteer?" he asked A sergeant stepped forward at salute. "Everyone has advanced one pace, sir," he said.

INDIA HAS DONE ITS SHARE.

The Times: Whatever mistakes the Indian military administration may have made in the earlier stages of the Mesopotamian campaign, the valor of the Indian troops who have contributed so largely to our successes on the Tigris has never been in question. In the last few days there have been discussions which seemed to imply that India's help in the war has chiefly consisted of a belated offer of financial aid. She has done far more, for, in common with ourselves, she has given the blood of some of her best and bravest, and nowhere more than in the deserts of Mesopotamia.

STATE BUYS POTATOES.

ALBANY, May 2.—The New York State Food Supply Commission has purchased twenty cars of Maine seed potatoes for distribution through the State and has options on twenty-one additional carloads. In a statement the commission says:

"Seed potatoes will be furnished in car lots to applicants at cost price with the freight added as far as the supply the commission has options on will go. Applications for these potatoes may be filed at the local or county offices of the commission or at the headquarters office in the Department of Agriculture of Albany."

The first lot will go to Jefferson Oswego, Allegheny and Delaware Counties. The shipping time is about ten days, and it is urged by the commission that those desiring seed potatoes should file their applications as soon as possible. The commission hopes to aid in the solution of the labour problem.

SHE KISSED KITCHENER.

It happened at the close of the South African war. Lord Kitchener was at the time en route from the front to England, having completed the arduous task handed over to him by Lord Roberts when relinquishing the post as commander in chief shortly after the advance to Pretoria.

The then mayor of Cape Town had invited about a hundred of the leading citizens of South Africa's metropolis, together with a few of the most notable military men at that time resident in the Cape peninsula, to do honor to "K," ere he left for England, and a dinner was accordingly arranged. After dinner a small company of ladies was admitted to the room in order to listen to the speeches which followed the repast.

At the close of the proceedings as the guests of the Mayor were enjoying a quiet smoke together, a young girl advanced towards Lord Kitchener with her autograph album in her hand, and asked him if he would kindly honor her by putting his autograph in her book.

Much as the late Secretary of War disliked this sort of thing he could not very well say "Nay," and so signed his name in the book. He was in the act of handing it back to the young lady, when before those in the room could realise what had happened she dexterously implanted a kiss on the cheek of the tanned and obviously annoyed distinguished soldier.

Needless to say, the company expressed its disapproval and disgust of the action in as forcible a manner as was possible in the circumstances, but the girl captured the position by means of a direct frontal attack and lived to tell the tale.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

GIRL'S RUSSIAN BLOUSE DRESS.

By Anabel Worthington.

One look at this design makes it clear to us why the fancy of fickle fashion is securely anchored in the Russian blouse. Truly it is a most satisfying style for the growing girl.

In the model illustrated the blouse slips on over the head, is loosely belted at a bit below normal waist line, with pockets in contrasting note clinging to the belt for novelty and to delight the wearer. The sleeve may be in three-quarter length and finished with a very lovely cuff, as pictured, or a long sleeve with its fulness gathered into a wristband cuff may be your choice.

The separate two gore skirt is of different material, but all one may be employed to advantage. Many mothers like a woollen weave for the skirt and linen for the blouse. Others use striped and plain material, as in the illustration, or reverse and make the blouse of striped, trimmed with plain material, and the skirt of plain ground goods. The detail touches are effective, but the lines of this model are so very simple that a girl who has been taught sewing in the schoolroom can copy the design without effort.

The pattern No. 8,153 cuts in sizes 8 to 14 years. To make in size 10 requires 1½ yards of 36 inch goods for the skirt and trimming of blouse, and 2¼ yards of 36 inch material for the rest of the dress.

To obtain the pattern send 7c. to the office of this publication.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 15 cents, or 2 for 25 cents.

The British Troops Are Surrounding Lens

New Gains Are Made North Of St. Quentin

Lens Three-Fourths Encircled By The British Forces To-day

Line Now Runs From Loos, Through Lieven, Givenchy, Vimy and Then Eastward to Fresnoy Where Canadians Are Fighting Tenaciously---General Haig Reports a Slight Falling Back of British From Advanced Positions on Arras-Cambrai Road But Details Progress in a New Sector Northeast of St. Quentin--French Gain Northeast of Rheims.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, May 4.—Lens was three-fourths encircled by to-day's fierce fighting marking the resumpeion of the British offensive. The British grip on the Coal City now twists from Loos, on the north, southward through Lieven, Givenchy, Vimy, and eastward to around Achevelle and Fresnoy, where the Canadians are fighting tenaciously.

It is around the last two towns that the heaviest fighting was centred to-day. There the British turning of the Wotan line was made complete by the rupture of the so-called "Switch line" from Oppy north to Drocourt, in fighting which has been almost continuous since early yesterday.

British forces were holding nearly one-fifth of a mile of the German trenches on this vaunted Hindenburg line to-day, located between Fontaine Les Croisilles and Bullecourt, in the face of terrific counter attacks launched by the German commanders.

AMSTERDAM, May 4.—"Although the Allied offensive has so far been satisfactorily resisted, an attack on a larger scale may be expected in view of the enormous massing of men, guns and munitions by the enemy," declares the Berlin Vorwaertt's Military critic, Colonel Gaedke, to-day.

LONDON, May 4.—Thirteen Averican naval gunners are among the sixteen men of the American steamer Rockingham still reported missing in an American consular report to-day. Thirty-three of those aboard the torpedoed steamer were rescued.

LONDON, May 4.—The tremendous weight of German reserves flung violently into the line of the British advance has forced a slight falling back of British troops from advanced positions captured yesterday, Field Marshal Haig reported to-day. His statement, however, revealed progress on an entirely new sector from that in which the British drive of the past forty-eight hours has heretofore centred, northeast of St. Quentin and northeast of Hargicourt. "At night around Cherisy and also astride the Arras-Cambrai Road we were compelled to fall back from advanced positions captured yesterday," the British Commander-in-Chief said. "We further progressed northeast of St. Quentin and northeast of Hargicourt, where we captured Malakoff Farm."

PARIS, May 4.—Only one French ship of more than 1,600 tons was sunk by German submarines during the week ending April 29, according to an official statement to-day. Five of less than 1,600 tons and three fishing boats were lost. Eight merchantmen were unsuccessfully attacked.

PARIS (French Official Statement), May 4.—Further progress northeast of Rheims in a combat featured by violent cannonading, was reported in the War Office statement to-day. In the woods west of Monte Cornillet a German attack was repulsed with grenades.

West of the Meuse the statement said a French raiding party obtained success in Avocourt Wood.

THE CANADIANS ARE HOLDING THEIR GAINS

War Has Never Seen Any Harder Fighting Than is Going on on Both Sides of the Scarpe To-day---Fighting Hand-to-Hand and Bayonet-to-Bayonet Over Miles of Front.

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

(By William Philip Simms.)

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN THE FIELD, May 4.—Germany is fighting as she never fought before to stop the British drive.

Fighting for the most part hand-to-hand and bayonet-to-bayonet over miles of front, the Tommies themselves were authority for this statement to-day. Not only were German soldiers fighting more desperately than ever before, but to-day the German artillery fire was vastly increased.

In the fact of such violent combat all along the line, to-day, the whole front situation was apparently practically unchanged. The war has never seen any harder fighting than that on both sides of the Scarpe to-day.

The Canadians, who yesterday advanced south of Lens, inflicting a hard blow on the Prussians, were still holding their gains and repulsing all attempts to retake their position to-day.

GOD SAVE THE KING

VISIT OF DUKE POSTPONED

The visit of the Governor-General His Excellency the Duke of Devonshire to Peterborough on Friday, May 25th, has been indefinitely postponed according to the following communication received from his secretary this morning by City Clerk Armstrong:—

OTTAWA, Ont., May 3, 1917.

The City Clerk, Peterborough, Ont.:

Regret that His Excellency's visit to your City must be indefinitely postponed in view of the fact that I have been unable to ascertain definitely when Mr. Balfour is coming to Ottawa or how long he is likely to remain.

It is essential that Their Excellencies should remain in Ottawa during his visit. They hope, however, that their visit to your City will not be long postponed.

COLONEL HENDERSON, Military Secretary.

AN INSIDE STORY OF HOW PRISONERS ARE USED BY HUNS

Peterborough Prisoner of War Succeeds in Smuggling Letter Through Telling Real Facts as to Treatment—Are Fed Four Pototoes a Day and Depend on Their Parcels

RUSSIANS SUFFER WORST

An inside story of how the prisoners in German hands are being treated has just been received by the local relatives of a Peterborough soldier who is a prisoner in Hunland. The letter is written on a leaf from a small note book and just how it was smuggled out is not known. Here is the letter which will prove an eye-opener:

Don't be surprised at the smallness of this letter, because the reason I am writing it on such a small piece of paper is that it is not going through the regular channels. If you do receive it you will know that it is smuggled through, and as you can judge by the facts that it is the only way in which plain statements of facts can be got through. You may think by my regular letters that we are having a perfectly good time and are really being treated first rate by our enemy, who cannot be as bad as he is painted. Don't run away with an idea like that. The only reason that we are not badly ill-treated is not because of any humanitarian trait in the German character. There is no such thing in his make-up. The reason is that now the German knows that he cannot monkey with the British without getting as much back.

I could relate facts about the experiences of some of my chums that would fill you with horror and disgust, but I have not the space. There is no such thing as justice in this country. If you can get copies of Curtin's letters, which have been appearing weekly in the English papers you will see statements of facts, no matter how strenuously they are denied in the German press.

When you read my letters of our Christmas and New Year's feast don't think it was due to any generosity on the part of the Germans. All the food we get from the Germans that we can eat at all is four potatoes a day, and often they are very small. For this munificent feed we are charged 45 marks, or $9.00 per month, for about 120 potatoes. Guess you won't get anything like that for yours. So you see that we are obliged practically to depend altogether on our parcels. We are mighty lucky to be able to receive them, but then they know that if we do not get them their prisoners in England will get none, and as we have more of them than they have of us you can see their reason for their change of attitude.

PTE HERBERT GUEST

Mrs. Guest of Braidwood Avenue, received the tragic news yesterday, that her husband, Pte. Guest of the 93rd Battalion was killed in action on April 21st. The sad news was broken to her by the Rev. Prizes For The Most Vegetables

Barrie's Limited, through Mr. Thomas Barrie, one of the Y.M.C.A. directors, has made a splendid donation of $25.00 to encourage the Y.M.C.A. garden scheme. A SWEET TREAT

Your Candy Man Has a Surprise For You Saturday

Our good friends, Madill's Drug Store, Coleman Brothers, (two stores), McDermid & Jury, Payne's Drug Store, W. J. Kent, F. C. Webber and James Haggis, have made arrangements with the manufacturers of Patterkrisp to give a free taste of the new candy to visitors who drop in on Saturday afternoon or evening. Patterkrisp is a brand new delicacy of the confectioner's art, which has met with tremendous favour in the big cities, and the people of Peterborough are to have a chance to try it, with a free sample, on Saturday.

A Popular Shoe Store

There's a reason why the people turn their steps toward the Lundy Block, when they want anything in the line of Boots and Shoes. They have discovered that there is a Live Shoe Store there, making a study of the wants of the people, and being sure to have that very thing on hand for them. Most people want the style of shoe that is being worn, and the Peterboro Shoe Store, at 291 George street, keeps its stock right up to the minute in this respect, and with ninety-nine per cent. of the people looking for a money-saving price, Mr. Erster is constantly watching the market, so he can buy at a favorable figure, and then give his customers the benefit. It is now recognized that no matter how nice a shoe you want, you can get it at the Peterboro Shoe Store, and no matter what the price is in the expensive district, you can buy it cheaper there.

SERIOUS SITUATION DEVELOPS IN RUSSIA

SERGT. GEO. A. GRAY, Canadian Artillery, who has been severely wounded. His home is on Wolsley street.

Open Rupture Between the Provisional Government Heads and the Workmen's and Soldiers' Committees Because Government Proposes to Stand by Czar's Contracts With the Allies

A BIG DEMONSTRATION

Special to The Examiner:

PETROGRAD, May 4.—An open rupture between Provisional government heads and the Workmen's and Soldiers' committee came to-day. The workmen and soldiers demanded that the government take them into their confidence. The tensity of the situation is growing hourly.

The first clash between the two elements in the new government came yesterday. The greatest feeling of indignation was aroused among workmen and soldier delegates by the announcement of the Provisional government that it intended to stand behind the Czar's contracts with the allies. Throngs of citizens gathered there in a gigantic demonstration against Foreign Minister Miliukoff.

Speakers from the soldiers' and citizens' delegations mounted impromptu rostrums and exhorted with the people to join in their demand that the government take all the people into their confidence.

A mass meeting of protest is in preparation for to-night. There can be no disguising of the tensity of the situation.

PETROGRAD, May 4.— A virtual armistice exists along almost the entire Russian front to-day. Not a shot has been fired on the Austro-German front in more than a month. There has been no real activity on the German Russian sector.

Gen. Gourka, commander of Russian forces on the Minsk front to-day issued a formal statement warning his forces to beware of a German ruse. He contended the German friendliness was part of their plan to obtain information of Russian conditions. Soldiers arriving for the Duma meeting are authority for the statement that there has been absolutely no fighting on the Austrian front.

(By Wm. G. Shepherd.)

PETROGRAD, May 4.—A dramatic speech appealing to the patriotism of the workmen and soldiers, delivered by Foreign Minister Miliukoff from the balcony of the government building had to-day apparently staved off the crisis that appears imminent in new Russia. From a heeting, jeering mob that demanded his resignation, Miliukoff turned the throngs of soldiers and workmen which had paraded the streets throughout yesterday, into a crowd which cheered his utterances, pledging unrelenting war on Germany. The situation was not entirely cleared up to-day, however. A joint meeting of the representatives of the Provisional government and the Workmen's and Soldiers' committee, scheduled for to-night has been cancelled. It is assumed that this action was taken to permit further conferences with the leaders of the workmen and soldiers demanding a greater participation in the affairs of the government. This would permit of an explanation of the government's statement approving pledges entered into by the Czar. "The Provisional government cannot strike the name of Russian from the list of the allied nations," Miliukoff declared with the greatest emphasis. "The Provisional government will never consent to a separate peace. We look to you to trust us. Give us your support." Prolonged cheering greeted Miliukoff's statement that the government would never consent to a separate peace.

Y. M. C. A. GARDEN CLUB READY FOR A BIG SEASON

Fifty Boys Are Going to Cultivate Backyard Gardens While Twelve Have Entered the Oke Potato Competition

PRIZES ARE OFFERED

One of the most enthusiastic and profitable meetings ever held in the Y. M. C. A. was that which took place in the boys' parlours of the local Y.M.C.A. last night.

The meeting was called for the purpose of instructing boys in the proper methods of growing vegetables.

Mr. Earl Barrie, President of the Y. M. C. A. garden club, presided in his usual business-like manner, and called on Mr. J. E. Smith of Farm and Dairy to give the boys a talk on how to plant and cultivate a back yard garden.

Mr. Smith's address was very instructive and it is certain that the 34 boys who attended the meeting, and who will follow Mr. Smith's advice, will have good gardens this summer.

Mr. F. E. Ellis of Farm and Dairy interested the boys very much when he demonstrated the correct way of cutting up potatoes for planting.

The boys were especially interested in this part of the programme, as a number of them are entered in the Walter Oke potato competition.

The following boys from the city have entered into the potato competition: Master Sowden, Earl Barrie, Nelson McFadden, Harrison Christopher, Willie Meagher, Harold Graham, Stewart Fleming, Gerhard Loescher, Alex. Elliott, Roland Doughty, Ralph Meserve, Alfred Cameron.

Mr. J. E. Smith and Mr. F. E. Ellis, the judges for the Y.M.C.A. garden club will have a busy time this summer when they will have to visit fifty boys' gardens and inspect them. The judges will make two visits to each garden, one in June and one in August.

The Y.M.C.A. are offering the following prizes for the boys' garden competition:

Best kept garden plot—1st prize, $3.00; 2nd, $2.00; 3rd, $1.00; next six, 75 cents each.

Best collection of vegetables, six kinds, grown on own garden plot—1st prize, $2.00; 2nd, $1.50; 3rd, $1.00.

Any boy who has a garden plot will be made welcome to the membership of the club.

It is the intention of the Y. M. C. A. to hold a vegetable exhibition in the Y.M.C.A., in September.

THE PARTISAN VIEW.

The Ottawa Journal-Press has the following significant paragraph:

"One or two more speeches like that at Lindsay on Saturday, and Sir Sam Hughes will lose the reputation he has gained recently for being a good sport."

The Journal-Press evidently considers that from a partisan point of view Sir Sam is not "a good sport," in that he "peaches" on his pals, draws on his knowledge of the inner workings of the government from which he was "cuckooed"—for apparently no fault except being too fast for the company he was keeping. As a politician and a doubtful "sport," Sir Sam is greatly to blame for speaking the truth in his habitually blunt way; but as a patriot he cannot be subjected to much blame for revealing conditions of friction and sinuosities of intrigue that it is feared has too much contributed to make Canada's administration of war interests less effective than they should have been. It was right for Sir Sam to tell that he was authoritatively directed "to go slow on recruiting." This may be denied, but it is consistent with the fact of unsatisfactory and merely nominal recruiting results, for which the government must be held responsible. Evidently the Journal's definition of a "sport" in the partisan sense is one that will not peach, no matter what wrongs of government administration he may know. He must lie low and keep dark dark secrets, as he was expected to go slow in recruiting, when recruiting was the most vital need of Canada and the cause.

PROHIBITION THAT DOES NOT PREVENT.

Quebec, though under prohibition in spots—under local option in a great many places—has not yet adopted general prohibition; but it is edging that way very rapidly. The Legislature has passed restrictive measures of a very important kind; the hour for closing bars has been set back to 9 o'clock p.m. and the treating has been abolished, or at least made illegal—a little distinction that must be made, since in this province we have nominal prohibition on the statute book, but we have not prohibition in fact. We don't have in Ontario to deal with treating, the greatest inducement to intemperate drinking under a license system, which Quebec has abolished as a preliminary to further curtailments that are promised, and will be directed to one end, the eventual abolition of the traffic.

It is to be hoped that when Quebec gets prohibition, it will get a better brand than Ontario has got, which though it is a tremendous boon, falls considerably short of the greater usefulness that a real prohibition enactment would represent. We have not a "bone dry" province, because openings are left for a serious seepage of strong drink into the province. The importation privileges are a great detriment to the effective working of prohibition. The spirit of the prohibition act is to make traffic in strong drink for beverage purposes unlawful. Yet liquor is largely imported in breach of the spirit of the Act. The province claims that it cannot prevent importation by act of law. Premier Borden says the province can do this. Whether he is right or not the Dominion Parliament has the power; and surely the Dominion can do as much as the United States Congress has done, make sending of strong drink into a prohibition state area a crime, thus legislatively at least, making such states "bone dry." But it seems the province can prevent if it would do so open breach, overt defiance, of the spirit of the temperance act, through newspaper advertising of strong drink. It is held that liquor advertisements in newspapers, and liquor circulars through the mails, thrust the facilities for getting drink upon the attention of many who would otherwise be indifferent, and would not make purchases, and get drink—and drunk. The relation between newspaper advertising and unlawful and intemperate use of strong drink are so direct, that the same penalty that the law imposes upon a "drunk" under prohibition should be imposed upon the newspaper publisher who helps him get the liquor with which to get drunk. He is guilty of subornation to crime.

INSPIRING PATRIOTIC ORATORY OF THE LIBERAL LEADER OF ONTARIO

The patriotic address of Mr. N. W. Rowell at the annual banquet of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association in New York evoked extraordinary enthusiasm. Canadians who were present testify that he profoundly impressed his audience, and they confirm the eulogies of his speech in the American press. The New York Times speaks editorially of the remarkable demonstration" when he said that if Great Britain had not entered the war "Prussianism,' cruel, heartless Prussianism, would be enthroned in the civilized world to-day." The Times adds that "the audience jumped up and cheered for minutes" at its reference to the sacrifices of the mother country in the war.

Canadians are not surprised by these tributes to Mr. Rowell's eloquence. No man in this country has spoken more inspiringly and to better purpose on the war and its problems. He performed a valuable service in New York by bringing the moral issues of the conflict and the achievements of Canada and Great Britain vividly before the minds of men who have unique means of influencing the minds of their fellow countrymen. He dilated in glowing language on Canada's contribution to the cause and on the valour of her soldiers, but intimated that the American Press had been so generous in its recognition of Canada's part that the greater part played by Great Britain might be underestimated. After reciting what Britain had done to save democracy from being slain on the battlefields of Europe, he said:

"Why do I mention these things to-night? Because your great nation, like our smaller nation, has sprung from the loins of Great Britain. The people who have carried this burden, and who have given us in a real sense our language, our literature, our laws, our democratic institutions, our moral and spiritual ideals, have, with France, given us an example of heroic courage, of unflinching determination, and of noble self-sacrifice, which should be an inspiration to their children the world over. In this struggle Great Britain's children may make great contributions to the cause of democracy and human liberty, but none of them will be able to equal that of the Mother of Liberty across the sea. As Canadians, we were never prouder of our association with Great Britain than at this hour."

Mr. Rowell touched the chord of American patriotism in describing the entrance of the United States into the war as a great event in human history, and the President's messages as a noble expression of the objects and ideals for which Americans were going forth to fight. "As Canadians, your immediate neighbours and friends, we join with wholehearted enthusiasm in welcoming you into this fellowship of the Allied nations; a fellowship not for aggression but for service; a fellowship of suffering and sacrifice. The democracies of Britain and her Dominions, of France, of Russia, and now of America, join hands with each other and with their other Allies, and pledge each other their faith to fight on until democracy wins its greatest, and we trust final, victory over autocracy, and until liberty, justice and peace are re-established among the nations."

These passages show that Mr. Rowell rose to the height of his argument and worthily spoke for his country before men who will give wings to his words and spread them far and wide for the good cause.—The Globe.

UNCLAIMED MONEY.

There are in the chartered banks of Canada, unclaimed balances, due depositors, amounting to over a million dollars — $1,087,758. This is lost money, insofar as at present it belongs to nobody. The depositors do not want it, for they do not claim it. Probably they are dead, for there are not many people who have so much money that they have no use for a little more, and would not claim it if it were justly theirs. The money does not belong to the banks, and the banks have no legal right to the profit of the use of money that does not belong to them and which probably in the usual course they will never be called upon to account for. In Parliament yesterday, Mr. Duncan C. Ross, of Middlesex, moved that the million-odd dollars of unclaimed balances in the banks should be turned over to the Patriotic Fund. The plea of the Finance Minister was that such an action would destroy faith in the stability of property rights, and that it would be "pure confiscation." This is an extreme view; for confidence in the "stability of property rights" could be preserved by making the withdrawal for conversion to patriotic uses, subject to the government being accountable in case claims should arise after the money had been used for the Patriotic Fund. Of course the banks might object, both on the ground of keeping faith with depositors and on the grounds of losing money which they were profitably using. But these are unusual times, and as Mr. Buchanan of Lethbridge, pointed out, we should not hesitate to set new precedents in the interests of a good cause. An addition of more than a million dollars to the Patriotic Fund would mean a good deal, especially as the popular capacity for giving, upon which this fund entirely depends, has been rather severely taxed; and it seems the government might well contribute a little by providing that idle, unwanted money should be put to the highest and most urgently needed use ever known in this country. The war pace is becoming furiously fast. The need of service, of sacrifice and help is growing beyond capacity to meet it in the ways we have employed, and extraordinary means may have to come to be ordinary. We are evidently face to face with some form of conscription in the matter of procuring soldiers, and this would make conscription of money for war purposes more defensible.

OUR CIVIL SERVICE.

The government has appointed a grocer to be superintendent of distribution at the printing bureau at a salary of $2,500 a year, and a tinsmith to be superintendent of advertising at a salary of $1,500. These appointments are cited merely to show the impossibility of getting qualified advertising or newspaper men to take jobs under the Crown. —Ottawa Citizen.

Presented Gold Cross and Address To Canon Cornish

The regular monthly business meeting of the Woman's Friendly Bible Class of St. James' Church was held on Thursday, April 3rd.

The meeting was well attended, there being a number of visitors from the congregation. After the business had been transacted the Rev. Canon Cornish was presented with a small gold cross by the President, Mrs. Deyman, while Mrs. May, the class leader, read the following address:

To the Rev. Canon Cornish.

Reverend and Dear Sir—The members of the Women's Friendly Class of St. John's Church, Peterborough, wish to present you with a small gold cross as a token of their regard for your kind interest and help in their work.

It is with sincere regret that we part with you and Mrs. Cornish, and take this opportunity of wishing you both every success and God's blessing in again taking up your work in your former parish.

We shall always remember you with affectionate regard and we remain

Yours sincerely,
Margaret A. May,
Leader.

Canon Cornish expressed his pleasure at being the recipient of such a handsome remembrance and thanked the members of the class in a very pleasing manner, after which a short social time was spent refreshments being served. The meeting ten closed with prayer.

WASHINGTON, May 4. — That President Wilson should be empowered to serve an ultimatum on the neutrals of the world, warning them that continued re-exportation of American foodstuffs into Germany would be met with a complete severance of commercial relations, was demanded by Senator Walsh, Montana, on the floor of the Senate to-day.

HOW TO GET STRONG

A Simple Remedy

Whatever the cause we want to say to every person who needs strength, you need Vinol as it is the most efficient strength creator we have in our store. Here is proof from Dorchester, Mass.:

"I don't know what we would do without Vinol in our family. I was weak, nervous and run-down as the result of an operation, and Vinol restored my strength. Then Grandmother had a nervous breakdown, and Vinol built her up and restored her health and strength after everything else had failed. We have used Vinol for 18 years in our family, and would not be without it in the house." Myrtle L. Healy, Dorchester, Mass.

We believe in Vinol because we know it is a great strength creator—due to the beef and cod liver peptones, iron and manganese peptonates and glycerophosphates, all dissolved in a pure medicinal wine, so we always return the purchase money if Vinol fails to benefit those who buy it.

Agricultural Class Of Normal School Visited Dairy Plant

The Normal School class in Agriculture of which Mr. E. E. Ingall is lecturer observed the operation of a modernly equipped dairy plant at the Peterborough Milk Products Limited factory this morning. The class was composed entirely of girls who received an object lesson in the handling of milk particularly the action of the clarifier and pasteurizer. The residue in the former machine separated from one run of milk doubtless left an indelible impression upon the minds of these teachers of next season who in their future work will be able to impart to their pupils the facts that were so vividly presented to them in the work of the clarifier. The class has two periods a week and is covering the leading branches of agriculture as fully as the time permits. Mr. Ingall and the students were welcomed by Mr. G. A. Gillespie.

A LIVE MAYOR & SAYS JOURNAL

Ford Publication Has Nice Things To Say of His Worship Mayor Duffus

J. J. Duffus, Peterborough is not only the Ford dealer and Mayor of this town but he is a good advertiser. He discovered the value of newspaper "spreads" even before Head Office began to urge larger space buys on its dealers this Spring.

Mr. Duffus makes the most of testimonial letters received from satisfied Ford owners in his territory.

Also he talks about:—

1. The big cut in Ford price compared with soaring prices on other cars.
2. About the new features in the 1917 model.
3. About the everlasting utility of the car.
4. About its all-year-round service.
5. His service supply stock and accessories.
6. The quality of Duffus Garage service.
7. His exchange policy by which a Ford owner can have a new car every year for just what it would cost him to maintain a larger car annually.

There is nothing slow about Mr. Duffus and that is why he is selling as many cars as we can deliver to him.

460 GERMANS IN PETERBOROUGH

They Were Prisoners However and Are Now Safe in An Internment Camp

Alderman Bound Over To Keep the Peace

KITCHENER, May 4. — Alderman Wilson Iler, who was accused by ex-Ald. J. H. Schnarr with threatening to do bodily harm, was found guilty by Magistrate Weir in the police court on Wednesday, and bound over to keep the peace in two sureties of $100 each. Ald. Iler was given until Saturday to furnish the guarantee.

The case arose out of the accidental breaking of a window pane by one of the plaintiff's sons, for which an account of $1 was rendered and paid under protest. Ald. Iler was alleged to have threatened to smash the ex-alderman's face and also give him a long-promised horse-whipping. The case attracted considerable attention in Police Court circles.

Anna Case

The Miracle Girl of the Metropolitan, whose bewitchingly beautiful Soprano voice was chosen for the first test to determine whether Edison had actually succeeded in achieving his ambition to re-create the human voice so perfectly that his re-creation could not be distinguished from the original. Since then many other great artists have made similar tests — always with the same successful results.

Hear Edison's Re-Creation of Anna Case's voice, and then hear her at the Metropolitan or when she is on concert tour.

This photograph shows Miss Case actually singing in direct comparison with Edison's Re-Creation of her voice.

Were You Ever "Fooled" by a Talking Machine

That question sounds absurd to you, doesn't it? Even a South Sea Islander could instantly tell as soon as he heard it, that a talking machine wasn't a real person.

Come to us and hear Edison's new invention, which actually re-creates all forms of music so perfectly that the blase music critics of the leading newspapers of this country admit in the columns of their papers that they cannot distinguish an artist's voice or instrumental performance from Edison's Re-Creation of it. A booklet containing their critiques will be furnished gladly.

The NEW EDISON
Re-Creates Music

We want the opportunity to prove to you that Edison's new invention is not a "talking machine"; that it does what no talking machine can do.

A demonstration entails no obligation on your part. We want you to understand Edison's new art.

SEVEN WONDERS FROM BOOK OF REVELATIONS

Will Form Subject of a Series of Addresses by the Rev. A. G. Doner at Bethany Tabernacle

WE WONDER WHY—the book of REVELATION is the most neglected in the Divine Library when it contains the last and only unabriged message of Christ to men?

Why so many Christians say, "It is a sealed book," when its name denotes the directly opposite, meaning, the veil drawn aside?

Why such a universal distate and diffidence prevail toward this book when it is the only book in the Bible at whose very doorstep there lies a three-fold promise of blessing on those who READ, who HEAR, who KEEP its sayings

Why intelligent folk who should be better employed, struggle in vain to force a spiritual interpretation upon the entire content of a book so intensely and emphatically literal, especially since such a process of interpretation has always ended in CONFUSION worse CONFOUNDED?

Why professedly scholarly men deliberately forfeit their lawful claims to scholarship by insisting that ALL the perdictions of this book were long ago fulfilled, when its simplest analysis renders such a position utterly untenable and conspicuously absurd?

Why so many gifted messengers, once simple and sincere, have turned to temporizing and time-serving,————Figure-Heads and Puppets who dance to the piping of the enemies of the cross, prating about world betterment, character-building, second probation, no-hellism and final annihilation of the wicked, while this book pronounces God's awful anathema on all who do such things?

Why 'midst crash of Empire and shock of Thrones, when men's hearts are failing them for fear, this book that more than any other reveals the consumation of World-History, World-Judgment and the Imminent, Pre-Millennial coming of the Desire of all nations, is not systematically, earnestly and prayerfully perused by every lover of truth?

We are now going, through this BOOK of WONDERS by a course of Subject studies, illustrated by Prophetic Chart, in both morning and evening services at Bethany Tabernacle. Some of the subjects to be considered are as follows:—

World-Judgment or The Great Tribulation, chap 6: to 19:
Three Wonderful Women, chap. 12: 17: 21:
Satan, Who he is, Where he is, What he is doing, chap 13: to 20:
Rulership of the Saints in the age to come.
The Bottomless Pit and The Lake of Fire.
The Prayers of the Saints.
Five Great World Empires.
The Four Square City of Gold.

We cordially invite all to attend these lectures while we prayerfully labour to make the Bible of greater and sweeter interest to you and prepare your heart and life for the RAPIDLY APPROACHING ADVENT of THE KING.

A. G. DONER.

Preventing Fly Specks.

Put a small amount of corrosive sublimate in your paste when you are doing your spring papering, and it will keep the flies from specking the paper and also kill any germ that happens to be on the walls.

Hardening Soap.

Laundry soap will last longer and waste less if the paper wrappers are removed as soon as one gets the soap. The moisture evporates and makes the soap harden and causes it to last longer.

DISTRIBUTING TROUT.

Fish Car Leaves for East First; Then Will Come to Peterborough.

The Game and Fisheries Department of the Public Works Department are starting the distribution of trout fry throughout the Province of Ontario. The eastern portions of the province will be visited first.

Applications for trout fry, from 50,000 to 150,000 in number, have been received from different parts, and the fish car starts out immediately to deliver these. Hastings county, Frontenac, Peterborough, will be the first visited. Then the car goes up to the Muskoka Lakes and Algonquin Park, and after that to the western portion of the province.

TO-DAY'S WAR NEWS

in Fresnoy (captured by the Canadians Thursday morning), and the trenches which protected it, agree that the enemy, who, as at Arleux, had taken over the defence only a few hours before the assault, had largely sought shelter from the fearfull shell fire to which he was subjected by descendi nginto deep dugouts and to the cellars of houses. Our infantry followed closely behind the bursting shells, and reached the enemy's dugouts before he could emerge. For the occupants of the dugout that meant either surrender at once or a horrible death by the bombing of the dugouts. Some of the Germans holding the trench to the north of Fresnoy did emerge from their dugouts and begin to fight. They speedily discovered that the Canadians, after passing over the wire and trench system, had posted men between the front line trench and the enemy's supports, and cut the Germans on the front line off from help. They were from the Rhenish province of Prussia. Practically an entire company of them surrendered under these circumstances, through officers with them, but, while the greater part of the prisoners were taken in this way, others surrendered only when they could no longer carry a rifle or operate a machine gun. A captured enemy officer said there was not time to bring the machine guns of his company into action before the men were overwhelmed.

What Vimy Ridge and Arleux began Fresnoy has completed. The Hun has been taught that it is a very dangerous thing to despise men who go at winning a battle as if it were their job.

LONDON, May 3.—The official report from British headquarters in France to-night reads:

"Fierce fighting occurred throughout the day from west of Queant to north of Fresnoy, four miles east of the Village of Vimy. The enemy again employed large reserves of men and guns, and delivered repeated counter-attacks practically along the whole battlefront. These hostile forces suffered heavily from our concentrated artillery and machine gun fire, both while assembling prior to the attack and during the actual assault. In the face of obstinate resistance our troops this morning penetrated a sector of the Hindenburg line west of Queant, and have maintained themselves there all day against constant and powerful counter-attacks.

"Further progress also was made in the neighbourhood of Cherisy, astride the Arras-Cambrai bank of the Scarpe, where the positions, which changed hands frequently and were defended with great determination, are now in our possession.

"On the left of the battlefront we captured the Village of Fresnoy and the enemy's positions south and north of Fresney on a front of two miles. We also gained a footing in the enemy's trench system north of Oppy.

"Progress was made at other points, and the fighting continues. In addition to the enemy's severe losses in killed and wounded, we captured several hundred of German prisoners."

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE WOMEN'S PATRIOTIC LEAGUE OF ASHBURNHAM

Past Year Has Been One of Great Activity With the busy Organization —Many Comforts Have Been Sent Overseas to Troops in the Trenches and to the Prisoners of War.

The Women's Patriotic League of Ashburnham held their second annual meeting on May 2nd in their workrooms at the King George School. The president, Mrs. Harry Adams, presided. In her address, Mrs. Adams regretted that there had been a falling off in the weekly attendance owing to illness and other unfortunate conditions, and hoped better weather would bring all the former workers back again.

After routine business had been disposed of, the following reports were read and adopted:

To the President and Members of the Women's Patriotic League of Ashburnham:

The Women's Patriotic League of Ashburnham is now closing its second year of work. We have had our work-room open every Wednesday afternoon with the exception of the Christmas week.

Our surgical room has been closed since July on account of the quantities of supplies on hand in the hospitals. We were sorry to close this branch of our work as so many seem to lose interest and were not willing to come in the sewing-room, where we have plenty of work for all ladies who will help or if they prefer taking sewing home, we can supply them each week.

We have sent money at different times to the Canadian Field Comforts, Prisoners of War Fund, Belgium and Serbian Relief. We have adopted all the Ashburnham boys who are prisoners, and have sent parcels to other prisoners who were lonely and had few friends.

We have had three paper collections this year. One in May, 1916, one in October, 1916, and one in April, 1917, and a substantial sum was realized from them all.

In October, we packed 151 boxes to send overseas with Christmas cheer. Each box contained—towel, 2 candles, handkerchief, ½ pound of peanut butter, 1 pound of raisins, ½ pound of almonds, 1 pound of Christmas cake, 1 pound of home-made candy, 2 packages of gum, 1 pair socks, Christmas card and a card addressed back to the League.

We have had many interesting letters and cards from the boys, and after listening to the letters telling us how they appreciated the gifts, we feel it is well worth while to do anything we can to make things more comfortable for them.

During the year, we were sorry to receive Mrs. Taylor's resignation as convenor of the Knitting Committee, which was accepted with regret. Mrs. W. Graham was appointed convenor, with Mrs. Wright as her assistant. Owing to Mrs. Gaskin moving from the city, Mrs. Clark was appointed one of the buyers. Mr. G. L. Hay was appointed auditor, to take the place of the late Mr. J. C. Anderson. Mrs. Convrey presented the League with a table scarf and Miss Burnham a wrap, and a nice sum was realized from them both.

Through the kindness of the Boys' Club of Mark Street Church, we had the use of their Rink on January 23rd, afternoon and evening. Mrs. Mein, Sr., kindly opened her home for refreshments and a social hour in connection with the skating party, which was a great success.

Owing to ill-health, Mrs. Craig asked to be relieved from convenor of the Buying Committee. We accepted her resignation with regret. Mrs. Clark was appointed convenor, with Mrs. Hurle as assistant. Mrs. Parsons was appointed to assist Miss A. Erskine with correspondence, owing to illness in the latter's home.

Our One-Cent-a-Day Club, which was organized by Mrs. W. H. Pretty, has been very successful. We were sorry Mrs. Pretty had to give up this work owing to ill-health, as she had spent a great deal of time and energy and deserves a great deal of credit for the successful way she and her helpers looked after all the contributions.

Mrs. G. L. Hay has charge of this branch of our work to raise funds, and is a worthy successor to Mrs. Pretty.

During the year, the following supplies were sent to the Red Cross and the Canadian Field Comforts, in addition to the money we have sent:

3290 Compresses.
1244 Dressings.
6200 Sponges.
6 Surgical cushions.
Old linen in large quantities.
862 Pairs of socks.
52 Gauge suits.
4 Pair wristlets.
550 Swabs.
200 Rolled bandages.
23 Personal property bags.
17 Hot-water bottle covers.
21 Many-tailed bandages.
36 Knitted wash cloths.
85 Bed jackets.
162 Suits of pyjamas.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

(Sgd.) Agnes D. Smith, Secretary.

TO-DAY'S WAR NEWS

in Fresnoy (captured by the Canadians Thursday morning), and the trenches which protected it, agree that the enemy, who, as at Arleux, had taken over the defence only a few hours before the assault, had largely sought shelter from the fearfull shell fire to which he was subjected by descendi nginto deep dugouts and to the cellars of houses. Our infantry followed closely behind the bursting shells, and reached the enemy's dugouts before he could emerge. For the occupants of the dugout that meant either surrender at once or a horrible death by the bombing of the dugouts. Some of the Germans holding the trench to the north of Fresnoy did emerge from their dugouts and begin to fight. They speedily discovered that the Canadians, after passing over the wire and trench system, had posted men between the front line trench and the enemy's supports, and cut the Germans on the front line off from help. They were from the Rhenish province of Prussia. Practically an entire company of them surrendered under these circumstances, through officers with them, but, while the greater part of the prisoners were taken in this way, others surrendered only when they could no longer carry a rifle or operate a machine gun. A captured enemy officer said there was not time to bring the machine guns of his company into action before the men were overwhelmed.

What Vimy Ridge and Arleux began Fresnoy has completed. The Hun has been taught that it is a very dangerous thing to despise men who go at winning a battle as if it were their job.

LONDON, May 3.—The official report from British headquarters in France to-night reads:

"Fierce fighting occurred throughout the day from west of Queant to north of Fresnoy, four miles east of the Village of Vimy. The enemy again employed large reserves of men and guns, and delivered repeated counter-attacks practically along the whole battlefront. These hostile forces suffered heavily from our concentrated artillery and machine gun fire, both while assembling prior to the attack and during the actual assault. In the face of obstinate resistance our troops this morning penetrated a sector of the Hindenburg line west of Queant, and have maintained themselves there all day against constant and powerful counter-attacks.

"Further progress also was made in the neighbourhood of Cherisy, astride the Arras-Cambrai bank of the Scarpe, where the positions, which changed hands frequently and were defended with great determination, are now in our possession.

"On the left of the battlefront we captured the Village of Fresnoy and the enemy's positions south and north of Fresney on a front of two miles. We also gained a footing in the enemy's trench system north of Oppy.

"Progress was made at other points, and the fighting continues. In addition to the enemy's severe losses in killed and wounded, we captured several hundred of German prisoners."

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE WOMEN'S PATRIOTIC LEAGUE OF ASHBURNHAM

Past Year Has Been One of Great Activity With the busy Organization —Many Comforts Have Been Sent Overseas to Troops in the Trenches and to the Prisoners of War.

The Women's Patriotic League of Ashburnham held their second annual meeting on May 2nd in their work-rooms at the King George School. The president, Mrs. Harry Adams, presided. In her address, Mrs. Adams regretted that there had been a falling off in the weekly attendance owing to illness and other unfortunate conditions, and hoped better weather would bring all the former workers back again.

After routine business had been disposed of, the following reports were read and adopted:

To the President and Members of the Women's Patriotic League of Ashburnham:

The Women's Patriotic League of Ashburnham is now closing its second year of work. We have had our work-room open every Wednesday afternoon with the exception of the Christmas week.

Our surgical room has been closed since July on account of the quantities of supplies on hand in the hospitals. We were sorry to close this branch of our work as so many seem to lose interest and were not willing to come in the sewing-room, where we have plenty of work for all ladies who will help or if they prefer taking sewing home, we can supply them each week.

We have sent money at different times to the Canadian Field Comforts, Prisoners of War Fund, Belgium and Serbian Relief. We have adopted all the Ashburnham boys who are prisoners, and have sent parcels to other prisoners who were lonely and had few friends.

We have had three paper collections this year. One in May, 1916, one in October, 1916, and one in April, 1917, and a substantial sum was realized from them all.

In October, we packed 151 boxes to send overseas with Christmas cheer. Each box contained—towel, 2 candles, handkerchief, ½ pound of peanut butter, 1 pound of raisins, ½ pound of almonds, 1 pound of Christmas cake, 1 pound of home-made candy, 2 packages of gum, 1 pair socks, Christmas card and a card addressed back to the League.

We have had many interesting letters and cards from the boys, and after listening to the letters telling us how they appreciated the gifts, we feel it is well worth while to do anything we can to make things more comfortable for them.

During the year, we were sorry to receive Mrs. Taylor's resignation as convenor of the Knitting Committee, which was accepted with regret. Mrs. W. Graham was appointed convenor, with Mrs. Wright as her assistant. Owing to Mrs. Gaskin moving from the city, Mrs. Clark was appointed one of the buyers. Mr. G. L. Hay was appointed auditor, to take the place of the late Mr. J. C. Anderson. Mrs. Convrey presented the League with a table scarf and Miss Burnham a wrap, and a nice sum was realized from them both.

Through the kindness of the Boys' Club of Mark Street Church, we had the use of their Rink on January 23rd, afternoon and evening. Mrs. Mein, Sr., kindly opened her home for refreshments and a social hour in connection with the skating party, which was a great success.

Owing to ill-health, Mrs. Craig asked to be relieved from convenor of the Buying Committee. We accepted her resignation with regret. Mrs. Clark was appointed convenor, with Mrs. Hurle as assistant. Mrs. Parsons was appointed to assist Miss A. Erskine with correspondence, owing to illness in the latter's home.

Our One-Cent-a-Day Club, which was organized by Mrs. W. H. Pretty, has been very successful. We were sorry Mrs. Pretty had to give up this work owing to ill-health, as she had spent a great deal of time and energy and deserves a great deal of credit for the successful way she and her helpers looked after all the contributions.

Mrs. G. L. Hay has charge of this branch of our work to raise funds, and is a worthy successor to Mrs. Pretty.

During the year, the following supplies were sent to the Red Cross and the Canadian Field Comforts, in addition to the money we have sent:

3290 Compresses.
1244 Dressings.
6200 Sponges.
6 Surgical cushions.
Old linen in large quantities.
862 Pairs of socks.
52 Gauge suits.
4 Pair wristlets.
550 Swabs.
200 Rolled bandages.
23 Personal property bags.
17 Hot-water bottle covers.
21 Many-tailed bandages.
36 Knitted wash cloths.
85 Bed jackets.
162 Suits of pyjamas.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

An Inside Story Of How Prisoners Are Used By Huns

It was a totally different story up to less than a year ago.

Take the case of the Russian prisoners. They are not allowed to receive any food at all in parcels, but have to exist somehow on what they get from the Germans, and what we can spare them. God knows how the Russians exist at all. The result showed here about a week ago when one of the Russian orderlies went temporarily insane, and the only apparent reason for it was lack of nourishment. The Russian soldiers are forced to work in the German front line, and support trenches. I have seen and talked to dozens of them who were in hospitals, as I came through, who were wounded and broken up by our own artillery.

The medical attention, as a rule, given to wounded prisoners, is a crime. I have known men to lie in bed for days and days, coming in with fresh wounds, and not the slightest attention paid to them, even for purposes of nature, and you cannot imagine the awful condition they get into. If they live through it they are eventually attended to in a way, but the supposed superiority of German surgery is non-existent, as far as I have been able to discover. I laid for three days in bed with only my field dressing on, stiff and dirty with clotted blood. Why I had not a set of complications, God alone knows. It wasn't due to any care or attention on the part of the hospital. As we are here collective punishment seems to be the limit of the Germans' sense of justice. No matter what is done by a single individual we have all to suffer. A chum of mine with whom I have been doing mathematics, is just doing six days solitary confinement for sending in a letter of complaint addressed to a German General.

DEATH OF PRISONER IN GERMANY SADDENED BY DARK UNCERTAINTY

Mr. Alex. W. Archibald has received a letter announcing the death in Germany of his cousin, Private Robert W. Woodburn, of the Argyle and Southerland Light Infantry, who was taken a prisoner last November. A distressing feature of the news indicates that Pte. Woodburn died within a week after he had written to his father that he was in fine condition. The letter from the German camp chaplain was not written until a month after the boy's death. Behind the letter appears to be sinister neglect or worse, on the part of the camp officials.

Dear Mary:—

I've just got me a new ice box. You must get one just like it. Why, the bad air is drained away and there is not a foul odor left. It'll save enough on doctor's bills in one summer to more than pay for it.

The very health of your whole family depends upon having a sanitary refrigerator. Don't wait.

In haste — HELEN.

The collections made by the One-Cent-a-Day Club, since being handed over by Mrs. Pretty, at the end of September last, is the sum of $276.25, being an average of $46.04 per month. The total amount collected from the time this work was started by Mrs. Pretty in June, 1915, down to date, is the sum of $1,213.60. The uniformity of the monthly collections made goes to show the generous spirit of the contributors.

GOVERNMENT IS USING ONE CANADIAN TRACTOR

Eleven Counties Are Using the "Mechanical Horse"—A Harvest Time For Tractor Manufacturers—Good Results Attained at Low Cost

This is the "day" of the tractor—on the ground that "every dog has his day." Even without the press of a feared famine to spur on production, the light oil-burning tractor was beginning to win a warm place in the affection of agriculturists throughout Ontario; a place that was denied it in the West, to some extent, by sad experience with the huge, lumbering and costly machines that were so productive of mortgages there several years ago.

The trend of events, even before the war, was such as would lead farmers in general to look favourably on a light tractor as a means of offsetting the labour shortage, but the extreme conditions which have developed during the last two years have hastened events greatly.

It is perhaps unfortunate that we have had to rely upon U.S. manufacturers, which we excluded with a high tariff, for these tractors. Until this year there has not been, so far as it can be learned, a single small oil-burning tractor produced in Canada. This year the Sawyer-Massey people of Hamilton have put out a small tractor of 10-20 h.p., of which 200 will be manufactured; and a company has been organized at Essex to produce the "Essex" tractor. Both tractors appear this season for the first time, and will have a good try-out.

Some eleven counties have asked for tractors from the Provincial Government, and six of them have received them. The counties applying are: Renfrew, Carleton, Hastings, Peterborough, Welland, Norfolk, Lambton, Essex, Kent, Halton and Waterloo. Tractors are now either operating in or are on the way to the counties of Carleton, Renfrew, Peterborough, Norfolk, Halton and Waterloo. With each machine is supplied a three-furrow plow and a double disc harrow.

Among the tractors in use by the Government are a Sawyer-Massey 10-20 (10 h.p. on the drawbar and 20 on the belt); an I.H.C. Mogul 8-16; a Bull 12-24; an Essex 8-16; and a Case 10-20.

Being a Canadian machine, the Sawyer-Massey tractor is of interest to us. One is in operation on the 600-acre farm of Col. F. E. Osler at Bronte, and appears to do quite satisfactory work under adverse conditions. The tractor appears to be of good design and construction, being a 4-cylinder affair, with four wheels, selling at $1,325 f.o.b. Hamilton.

Drawing a three 12-inch bottom plow, it moves along as fast as a man would care to walk, doing seven acres or more in a 10-hour day. It is a strictly one-man outfit, the plows being Cockshutt self-lifting and lowering, operated by the jerk of a rope, and turns around on a 12-foot headland, just as when horses were used the year before.

Working in heavy clay as it was on this farm, the plow tractors would not finish the lands, but the last several furrows had to be completed by horse, and when there was too much straw in the manure the plows would not turn it all under. At several points the work was ragged and rough, but as the operator gets into his stride he will probably be able to improve the finish of his work.

From the difficulty experienced in turning on a headland on the slope of a steep little hill it was quite evident that the tractor is not ideal for hilly land. Nor is it ideal for stoney or rocky soil. When the plows strike an immovable boulder or rock they will break away from the tractor by breaking a wooden coupling pin, but this seldom occurs, save in bad ground.

The operator of the machine puts the consumption of coal oil, on which the machine operates, at from 20 to 25 gallons in a 10-hour day. The coal oil costs 19c per gallon. The farmer having work done by this Government machine boards the operator, supplies the oil, and pays the Government 35c per hour for the running time of the tractor. The charges do not cover in any way the cost or depreciation on machinery, but merely the wages of the operator.

It does the work of from 6 to 8 horses, harrowing and double discing from 18 to 20 acres in a day. It is impossible to trace the tracks of the tractor in the soil that has been worked over—and the machine seems to operate very satisfactorily in the soft ground. It will not work well, it appears, in soft, mucky soil, but this soil is best left till a little drier, at any time.

While it may be a harvest time for tractor manufacturers it is not being seized to the full. As a result of the unfortunate fact that Canada must depend on U.S. manufacturers for its great supply of these machines, only a limited quantity are available for this Dominion.

Tractor men do not advertise extensively here, claiming that they can only get a comparatively small number of machines for delivery from their head office, and can sell them all. With the development of the manufacturing industry in Canada a greater supply may be available, and there will be less difficulty in supplying the demand, which bids fair to become enormous.

Famous Case Is Revived

Special to the Examiner:

MONTREAL, May 4.—Archbishop Bruchesi, of Montreal, is now named as co-defendant with Eugene Hebert in a court action revival of the famous Hebert-Clouatre marriage case, which has been before the courts of Quebec since 1908. The present new action is to ask the superior court to declare the marriage of Eugene Hebert and Marie Emma Clouatre, solemnized in July, 1901, by Rev. W. Timberlake, a Protestant minister, valid and binding, and to declare a child born of that marriage legitimate, and to declare null and void a judgment rendered by Archbishop Bruchesi in November, 1909, nullifying the marriage under the Ne Temere decree.

Material For C.P.R. Footbridge Is Here - Work Has Begun

Everything comes to him who waits, and it has been a long wait for the C.P. R. Foot bridge. But the iron girders, railing and other material, has arrived unannounced and workmen commenced its erection this morning. The bridge will evidently be fairly wide and will certainly be as solid as bolt and bars can make it. If the C.P.R. has seemed dilatory, it has been none the less sure, and this convenience to the citizens in the south end of the city and in Ashburnham will be greatly appreciated. The footbridge is being adjusted on the north side of the C.P.R. railway, and should be completed in a short time. This accommodation was one of the works of which Ex-Alderman Edgar gave much attention in the Council.

THE WEATHER

The weather still keeps cool but a change is due. This morning the temperature was one degree below the freezing point. Ten years ago today we had a snowstorm and the ground was covered with over six inches of heavy wet snow. The snow plows had to be brought out again, and the sleighing was good for a few hours. The trees at that date were nearing their half-leaf stage.—W. P.

CANNED TOMATOES ARE BARRED

QUEBEC, May 3.—A league of housewives which is assuming the proportions of a nation-wide organization was organized here some weeks ago.

Yesterday, the Supreme Council of the Quebec League ordered the 15,000 members not to use canned tomatoes until the price dropped to two tins for 25 cents. The league also sent a petition to the Federal Government asking that in the interest of the working class, the Government fix a maximum price for potatoes, etc., as was done in Australia, and other countries affected by the war.

At yesterday evening's sitting, the council of the league, received communications from a body of Housewives' League in Winnipeg, asking information as to the organization of a Housewives' League, and suggesting the possibility of a nation-wide league of housewives. The local league hopes such an organization may be effected.

GOVERNMENT WILL ACT IF WHEAT CORNER KEEPS UP

Buying of British Commission Has Effect of Making Prices Soar —Laurier Advises Action at Once—Further Troublesome Questions Asked in Commons About That Potato Scare.

FURTHER ACTION POSSIBLE

OTTAWA, May 5.—D. D. McKenzie, of Cape Breton, called the attention of Hon. Martin Burrell yesterday afternoon to a communication received from the merchants of Sherbrooke. These men relying on the announcement of the Minister of Agriculture to the effect that there was a surplus of a million bushels of potatoes in New Brunswick, Alberta and P.E.I., had made enquiries in the first-mentioned Province. They were informed that there was not stock available. They now desired to know if the Minister maintained his figures, and if so, whether he could put them in touch with the source of supply.

Mr. Burrell replied that he had nothing to add to the statement he had made before, and that his figures were based on authoritative information. He had supplied the figures to the various Provincial Ministers of Agriculture and had advised them to consider the question of supply.

WHITE TALKS ON WHEAT.

Sir Thomas White rose to impart to the House some observations regarding the sensational rise in the price of wheat on the Winnipeg Exchange. In confirmation of his statement Thursday he had learned yesterday from authoritative financial and commercial sources that the "Corner which had occurred on the Winnipeg wheat market had been brought about by the unusually large buying of the British Wheat Commission."

The commission had been purchasing contract grades of wheat and the elevators and other vendors in the ordinary, and he based legitimate, course of business had been selling for May delivery and had found themselves unable to fill the contracts with contract grades. The result had been that the price of wheat had been driven up by the attempt of the vendors to obtain wheat of contract grade for delivery.

FURTHER ACTION POSSIBLE.

It was now suggested that the British Wheat Commission should accept from the vendors to the extent that they were short of contracts grades, wheat of lower grades, having regard in the price to its proportionate value for milling purposes. He had therefore cabled George Perley asking him to take up the matter with the British Wheat Commission. "If, as a result of this cable," said Sir Thomas, "relief is not afforded, the Government will have to consider such further action as may be deemed advisable in the public interest."

"Has it ever occurred to my honourable friend," asked Sir Wilfrid Laurier, "that so long as it is known that the British Commission is buying, there will always be a corner to hold them up, should not some action be taken to guard against that?"

"It has long been known that the British Commission was buying," replied the Minister of Finance.

Weak, anaemic, run-down persons will be glad to know they can be restored back to their former by the discovery of this new called Bonised Phosphorus with Iron.

It is spring time now and every person needs something to build them up. Now you know as well as any doctor will tell you, the curse of spring time is impure blood. It takes many people to their grave, ruins health, makes them weak, runs you down and finally you into physical wreck.

This new drug is a combination of iron and phosphorus. The iron acts on the blood while the phosphorus nourishes and strengthens the nerves. Get it to-day and take two or three tablets of Bonised Phosphorus with Iron after meals and in 5 to 10 days you will be 100 per cent. stronger.

This drug does not act like other iron tonics you have taken, but unlike it does not blacken the teeth, upset the stomach or make you constipated. This new drug is dispensed by one druggist in each city. F. C. Weber dispenser for Peterborough.

Neutrals Shall Not Send Germany Food

Allies Desire to Retain Trade, But Are Firm About This —Serve Ultimatum?—Walsh Would Sever Commercial Relations—More Conferences on Same Subject.

WASHINGTON, May 5.—That President Wilson should be empowered to serve an ultimatum on neutrals of the world, warning them that continual re-exportation of American foodstuffs into Germany would be met with a complete severance of commercial relations, was demanded by Senator Walsh, Montana, on the floor of the Senate yesterday.

The embargo provision of the espionage bill would give the President that power, Walsh said. "It would be a powerful and effective weapon, unless those neutrals changed an attitude which we hold inconsistent with their avowed neutrality."

Balfour, Lansing, Redfield, and other officials conferred on the subject. United States' plans were said to be completely in accord with British and French ideas. Confrerees particularly desire to retain trade with all the Scandinavian countries, but they likewise are determined that no foodstuffs shipped into those countries shall get into Germany.

Trading with the enemy acts also were discussed. More conferences on the same subjects are to be held later.

BALFOUR AT JOINT MEETING.

Mr. Balfour, after a visit to Secretary of State Lansing, went to a joint meeting of British embassy and mission members which took up shipping, food and munitions. Lieut. General Bridges left yesterday for New York. Invitations from all parts of the country are pouring in upon the mission but as yet no final plans have been made.

WILSON MAY CENSOR.

The House yesterday afternoon adopted by a vote of 195 to 183, a new censorship provision in the Spy Bill which gives the President power to censor news, but puts up to a jury the question of wilful violation of the censorship proposition and also the question whether information published could be useful to an enemy.

The influence of President Wilson's approval of the newspaper censorship section of the Espionage Bill failed to have it in the House yesterday and it was stricken from the Bill by a vote of 220 to 167.

Russian Riots Have Subsided; Order Prevails

Meeting Last Night Apparently Smoothed Out the Many Differences Between the Duma Leaders and the Soldiers' and Workmen's Delegates

POPULACE UNITED

Special to the Examiner:

PETROGRAD, May 5 (Via London). After two days of cheering, mutter-ing, jostling mobs surging back and forth in demonstrations that at times approached perilously near to organized riots, the Duma Provisional Government had to-day apparently succeeded in re-establishing itself. An all night meeting last night apparently ironed out many differences between the Duma leaders and the soldiers' and workmen's delegates. Formal report of these deliberations has not been made, but the attitude of the alternatives on both sides indicated that thereafter units. Through all the discussion there ran the instinctive caution against aiding Germany by disorganizing Russia's forces. Extremist agitators who sought to urge complete fraternization with German soldiers were howled down. Nicholas Lenin, recognized as a German influencing agitator, was literally swept from the platform when he tried to speak. The crowd simply wouldn't let him talk. The substance of the orator's remarks appears to be that the populace was not to support any ministry that should enter into secret treaties.

Embargo Placed On Munitions To Two Canadian Ports

The difficulties of ocean transportation are indicated in an embargo announced on munitions at the ports of Montreal and Halifax. This means that no munitions freight may be accepted for these ports until the embargo is lifted, which presumably will be in a short time. But the seriousness of the shipping situation is reflected in this temporary restriction upon a particularly privileged military comomdity. With food supplies munition are accorded a preference, but apparently the dock terminals are piled up with shipments that have been delayed on this side, either because of a shortage of boats or on account of the submarines. This is largely a surmise but seems a reasonable explanttion of the embargo. It is also learned that for the present there are no empty cars being turned over to the munition plants. This is evidently part of the existing embargo.

The failure of the cheese buyers at Kingston to offer a price for the cheese boarded, was probably a result of the uncertainties of overseas traffic.

There was no Board of Trade official quotations on Manitoba wheat issued yesterday. After a first half hour of excited trading no further quotations were posted on these two options. The October option became then practically the only active option, with a little for November. The flour situation is still very unsettled, and a further advance of 60c was made to-day, bringing the first patents up to $15 per barrel.

CATTLE MARKETS.

The general tone of the market all through the week has been steady to strong. The advances made nine to ten days back have been fully maintained, a little added for the best cattle. Receipts, while still light, were nearly a thousand head of cattle better than the week before. The demand, however, has been active, and prices were at no time difficult to hold. the week's receipts have included several loads of extra choice quality heavy cattle, as good as anything seen here during the season. Top prices reached as high as $12.50 to $12.60 and for anything good to choice in the butcher line, steady to strong from $11.50 to $12.00.

Fat cows and bulls have kept in strong demand and firm at recent top prices.

There has been a fairly active trade in feeders and stockers, but particularly for good grass cows.

Calves came in freely, holding good and steady in the early markets, but easing off a little the latter part of the week.

Receipts of sheep and lambs are still extraordinary light, there being apparently very few sheep in the country. Prices are firm and abnormally high.

The long talked-of $17 hog has at last arrived, and during the latter part of the week appeared to be firmly established in his new eminence. Prospects at all events did not look very promising for an early come down. Practically all the hogs received this week have sold on the fed and watered basis.

CATTLE RECEIPTS

Union Stock Yards—Total receipts for the week: 451 cars, with 4,538 cattle, 2321 calves, 14,489 hogs, 207 sheep and lambs, and 709 horses.

Coal Production Menaced By War, Operators Assert

WILKESBARRE, Pa. — The production of anthracite coal is seriously threatened by the call to young men to arms in the war against Germany. It is the contention of the anthracite operators that if the normal production is to be maintained the government must take the initiative in defining a method of operation that will not interfere with recruiting for the army or other branches of the service.

The situation is serious from the fact that for the last year the anthracite mines have operated with decreased labor, the shortage averaging twenty per cent. throughout the entire region. This scarcity of labor is due to the fact that young men have left the coal fields to work in munitions factories, and also because it is the tendency of young men to engage in less hazardous occupations than coal mining.

For the past year there has been decreased production. Operators say that every pound of coal has been taken from storage to meet demands for consumption and that to-day every bit of coal produced is turned over for immediate consumption.

The call for volunteers will further deplete the ranks of young men in and about the anthracite operations, and according to the operators there is no class of men here at present who can take their places. Selective conscription is expected to further reduce the number of young men engaged as runners, drivers and motor drivers in the mines, underground forces that have almost complete charge of transportation.

With the war on the necessity of supplying fuel for ships and fuel for the factories and munitions plants, will increase the consumption, thereby making it necessary to increase the production, despite the fact that the shortage in labor is made the more serious.

To keep up the production under these conditions, the operators say, will necessitate the suspension of the State laws that prevent any one under the age of 16 from engaging in mine work. By the suspension of this law, it is asserted, boys from 14 years and upward can be called upon to do a part of the work that is now done by men of military age.

Old men who are miners and laborers will have to be pressed into service, taking up the work of the young men who go to war. To then keep up the production anywhere near its normal stage will mean, operators say, that the length of the present work day will have to be increased the suspension of the eight hour day rule being necessary until the war comes to an end.

This is what the Kingston Druggists
Say About Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

No one has so good an opportunity as the druggist to find out just what medicines produce the best results. If a prescription or a medicine does not do just what it is expected to do the druggist is first to hear about it.

On this account we appreciate these letters from the druggists of Kingston as the finest compliment that was ever paid to a medicine. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food has won the good will of the druggists because it has so well satisfied their customers that they come back to buy more, and also advise their friends and neighbors to do likewise.

These letters from the druggists back up the splendid tribute which has come from the people of Kingston for Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Mahood Drug Co.

Mr. G. W. Mahood, corner Princess and Bagot Streets, writes: "We have always found Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to be a good seller and to give good results to the purchaser, but since the personal testimonials of Kingston people were published in The Whig our sales have increased very considerably and are keeping up steadily."

The "Best" Drug Store

Mr. L. T. Best, Druggist, 124 Princess Street, writes: "Since the large testimonial advertisements of people that have been cured by Dr. Chase's Nerve Food were published in The British Whig our sales of this preparation have increased very much, as you will have noticed by our recent repeat orders. The demand still keeps up."

T. H. Sargent, Druggist

Mr. T. H. Sargent, Druggist, corner Princess and Montreal Streets, writes: "Our sales of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food have increased greatly during the past few weeks. When I noticed the heavy advertising you were doing I used more space in The Whig simultaneously to let the people know I had a good stock of these goods on hand."

Prouse's Drug Store

Mr. A. Lake, Manager Prouse's Drug Store, corner Princess and Clergy Streets, writes: "We are selling much more of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food than formerly. The special advertising has helped a great deal, especially the personal testimonials of Kingston people."

Hoag's Drug Store

Mr. Frank J. Hoag, Druggist, Kingston, Ont., writes: "I wish to say that the sale of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food has increased almost threefold during the past six weeks, during which time the heavy advertising campaign has been in force."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

Steadily, year in and year out, the demand for this great food cure has increased until the sales have become enormous. And this, after all, is the strongest proof of the merits of any article. People who try it tell their friends of the benefits obtained, and so the good word is passed along.

As a Spring Restorative to enrich the blood and build up the system there is nothing to compare to Dr. Chase Nerve Food. Put it to the test now and you will soon realize why druggists as well as the general public are so enthusiastic in recommending this well-known medicine. 50 cents a box, 6 for $2.50, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

All Irish Put Hand To Plow

REQUIRES FARMERS TO TILL 10 PER CENT. MORE THAN A YEAR AGO—IRELAND'S RECORD.

DUBLIN. — All Ireland appears to be engaged in one vast plowing match. Plows are being drawn by every available type of animals while men and women who never put their hand to a plow before have learned to do the work in the submarine emergency.

The Irish department of agriculture has thrown all its executive machinery into the effort to increase the tillage enormously, and has obtained a decree under the defence of the realm act making a certain minimum percentage of extra tillage compulsory on every farmer in Ireland holding more than ten acres of land.

This novel law requires that every farmer must till at least 10 per cent. of the arable part of his holding in addition to whatever amount he tilled last year, unless he is already cultivating 50 per cent. of his land, which case he is not obliged to do more. There are 350,000 holdings which this regulation applies to, an arable area of 14,500,000 acres.

The department's county committees, which have for years been organized in every county of Ireland, have stopped all other work and their experts and administrative staffs on the sole work of production. They have organized special committees in every parish and are mobilising all the available supplies of seeds, manures and implements. Machinery for saving is to be made to go as far as possible by a system of local exchange.

Few people realize what a tremendous asset Ireland has been to England during the war as a source of food stuffs.

In the year before the war England's imports of foodstuffs from her leading sources of supply were as follows: United States 33,000,000 pounds sterling; Ireland, 33,000,000 pounds sterling; Argentine, [illegible] pounds; Denmark, 31,000,000 pounds; India, 18,000,000 pounds, Australia, 18,000,000 pounds.

The war has disturbed this source somewhat, bringing in supplies from America, but Ireland has also increased her output. Imports of food from that country in 1915, the latest figures available, were a total of 46,000,000 pounds.

BIRDS OF VALUE IN FARMING WORK

AUDUBON SOCIETY ASKS PROTECTION OF FEATHERED FRIENDS IN MOVEMENT TO CONSERVE FOOD SUPPLY.

The increase of bird tenants on farm, garden and lawn in New Jersey is urged by the New Jersey Audubon Society in supporting the national movement to conserve the food supply of the country.

The society directs attention to the fact that to consume several times their weight of grossbeaks with their young during an entire potato patch free from destructive beetles; one half-grown bobwhite devouring 1,186 rose beetles in a single day; a meadow lark consuming more than 30 grasshoppers at a single meal, while grasshoppers are known to consume several times their own weight in hay or grain in a day; the yellow-throated warbler observed catching insects at the rate of two to a minute, or one hundred and sixty a day.

Throughout the summer the birds work no union hours, according to the society, and the importance of looking after their welfare should be realized by all those who may need them as protectors. The putting up of bird houses, the providing of baths and the winter feeding of wild birds, are a few attractions for the feathered protectors.

CLEANING FLUID.

A good cleaning fluid is made of sulphuric ether, two drams; chloroform, tow drams; alcohol, two drams, and oil of wintergreen, 20 drops. Moisten a soft cloth with the mixture and rub vigorously on the soiled spot.

CABBAGE SALAD.

Beat yolks of three eggs with one cup olive oil until it is a ball, adding oil slowly, stir in one cup of sweet milk, have ready a boiler of one-half cup vinegar, hot, add the above ingredients, also one teaspoon of salt, one of sugar, a little celery salt and dash of cayenne pepper. Cook until creamy, beat into two cups of chopped cabbage.

For Your House, the Best Heating!

Canadian Winters make house heating an important problem. Seven months of cold weather and during five of them the thermometer does a jig around "zero." Nothing creates more misery than not being able to keep the house warm. There is only one satisfactory heating [illegible] that is Hot Water. A Hot Water Boiler works with the least consumption of fuel and gives the utmost general diffusion of heat. The steady inflow of hot water direct from the boiler keeps the heat constant. Hot Water Heating is not affected by drafts, winds or any of the erratic eccentricities of Hot Air Systems. You can keep every room in your house at 70 degrees with a King Hot Water Boiler and Radiators. Note the advantages which the King Boiler and King Radiators offer you—(1) Fuel Economy. (2) Quick Heating. (3) Easy Operating. If you want to know what it would cost you to install a complete Hot Water Heating System, ask your architect or your heating engineer, or write us and we will gladly give you the information you desire without any obligation to you.

PROSPERITY OF ITALY AFTER WAR IS BIG QUESTION

ROME, May 4.— The prosperity of Italy after the war depends upon the solution of three great engineering problems, in the opinion of Prof. Luigi Luiggi, president of the Italian Society of Civil Engineers. These three problems, he stated in a great address here are: The reclamation of marsh lands, the irrigation of semi-arid tracts, and the more complete utilization of water power, especially in the production of chemical fertilizers for the soil.

The chief interest of the United States in Prof. Luiggi's program is found in his statement that it will require large sums of foreign capital, some of which Italy hopes to draw from America.

"During the last five years of peace," said Prof. Luiggi, "nearly 100,000 of the best elements of our rural population left their native villages to seek better conditions of labour across the Atlantic, or, worse still, in middle Europe. This excess of emigration is a drawback to the progress of Italy and of the Latin races, as France has no increase at all in her population, while the Teutonic races increase very rapidly.

"To reduce emigration it is necessary to offer to intending emigrants work better paid and in healthier conditions. This can be done by developing the natural resources of Italy, many of which are still lying dormant or are not yet completely utilized.

"By improving agricultural methods, putting in cultivation land that now lies idle—either through excess of water or for lack of it —that is, by draining marshes and irrigating many semi-arid regions, especially in the south, lands now almost sterile would be blessed by the most luxuriant crops. Also hydro- electric power should be utilized better for the production of nitrates and other fertilizers and for developing many industries connected with agricultural products."

WEAKNESS OF ROUBLES.

NEW YORK, May 4.—Russian roubles continue weak, and this condition is giving some concern to Wall Street. When the bloodless Russian revolution was announced, roubles ruled around 29.05c compared with a normal of 51.50. Since then England has taken over financial obligations of Russia in the United States, and has lent Russia additional sums of money. Japan has floated another Russian loan. And the United States has made a 29.05c compared with a normal of drawing account. Roubles, however, have dropped to 28.20 cents, and there appears to be no support in sight. Reports now current plainly imply that all is not well in Russia, and that the German influence has not been eradicated. There was an ominous tone in the statement that Japan would take a hand in the division of Russian soil in the event of Russia's defection from the entente. The lack of detailed news from Petrograd has aggravated the situation.

CAMPBELL & BEST

SOLDIERS OF THE CZAR

RUSSIAN TOMMIES ARE BIG SIMPLE CHILDREN.

Men Are Treated Well; They Give Little Trouble as All Are Intensely Religious and a Favorite Mild Punishment Takes the Form of Making Soldiers Stand in Fixed Position.

THERE is beauty in the simplicity of the moujik, and it is perhaps better appreciated in the wards of a field hospital close to the Russian front than when interpreted, particularly in translation, by Tolstoi.

He is, in fact, about the simplest human animal that has survived the processes of civilization, chiefly because civilization has not succeeded in spoiling him, declares a correspondent in The London Times. From the standpoint of the individual such utter indifference to emancipation is a not wholly satisfactory ideal, but for those who lead him in battle the moujik, with his unquestioning obedience and unreasoning reverence for his czar, is finer material than the more highly trained troops of other states.

He has given more to the war than his betters; himself, his cows, his home. He fights like a lion for the pay of a drudge and his pension, when he returns broken from the wars, would be ludicrous if it were not in the majority of cases coupled with a license to beg alms. His food in the trenches consists of little more than vegetable soup and buckwheat, but of these he gets generous rations, and they are all the variety he knows in peace time.

He is as a rule well treated by his superior officers. Bullies there are in the Russian army as elsewhere, but the average officer looks on his men as so many grown-up children and treats them accordingly in the matter of both reward and punishment. As regards the latter, a favorite penalty is to make the men stand for a couple of hours shouldering his rifle, preferably where he will be seen by the rest, and when it is added that the present writer has within the past week seen this punishment, merely a more severe form of making naughty children stand in the corner before the class, given for drunkenness it will be realized that the Russian Tommy has nothing to complain of. As a matter of fact, he would not complain if he had, for the spirit of revolt is not in him.

The moujik is intensely religious, and both the Orthodox and Roman Catholic services held each Sunday in a field hospital "somewhere in Volhynia" are crowded to overflowing, while, even were it not so prescribed, the men would never dream of ending the day's work without the evening prayer and the national anthem. His religion is so simple and natural that foreigners mistake it for hypocrisy, but it is a part of the man, and he crosses himself as readily when passing one of the graves — now, alas! only too numerous, all over the fighting area—as when the bombs and shrapnel are falling all around. Intemperate he is if given the chance, but existing regulations preclude such indulgence, and he fights quite as valiantly without his vodka, though it was freely predicted that no Russian could do so.

His language is rarely obscene and never blasphemous, and his talk, as the sisters who nurse him through his wounds know best, is as that of a little child. Ignorant he is beyond even the rank and file of other armies, but, though his mind works slowly, he is filled with curiosity and anxious to learn.

He is extraordinarily enduring, not so much in hospital, which he only comes to when his nerve is broken, as in the trenches, where his officers tell wonderful tales of his bravery and indifference to either danger or discomfort. Even when wounded he can be a Stoic, as those realize who have taken him in a motor ambulance over such rough roads as satisfy the authorities in Russia. An occasional groan is the utmost expression of the agony he must suffer when the car bumps over the bad places, and even that is rarely heard.

He goes to the wars, if not eagerly, at least without the least attempt to shirk his part. The Turkish conscripts at any rate in Syria, have a trick of burning out their own eyes with quicklime so as to avoid active service, but the Russian moujik would scorn such evasion. Even lads of ten or twelve years frequently run away to join their fathers at the front, and, when these are killed, they are often adopted by the regiment, figuring in the pay-sheet as non-commissioned officers and doing excellent work in fetching and carrying.

One of these little fellows who could speak German lately won distinction by spending three days in the enemy trenches, disguised in a German uniform cut down to fit his figure, and there picking up such information as subsequently led to the repulse of an attack at daybreak.

Russian soldiers are inspired only by blind devotion to their Czar for whom they would fight against the evil one himself. The moujik will always lay down his life for the Czar unquestionably. He will not ask the reason why. Of such is the kingdom of Russia!

Cork Brick Flooring.

The search for a warm, non-absorbing flooring suited to the needs of horses, cows, hogs, and sheep has led to the adoption of cork brick. The brick, as described in The Popular Science Monthly for February, consists of finely granulated cork and refined asphalt, heated and thoroughly mixed, and then molded under pressure into bricks nine by four by two inches. The flooring is laid in cement mortar over a sub-base of concrete and crushed stones or ashes.

It pays to be good, but the pay often comes as a deferred dividend.

Many a man has money to burn simply because he doesn't burn it.

RUSSIA'S WAR DEBT NEARING $20,000,000,000

"In spite of the tremendous burden of war indebtedness, necessitating the payment of interest charges of over $1,000,000,000 per year, Russia, with the proper co-operation, will be able to solve its financial problems effectively" is the statement of the American-Russian Chamber of Commerce in an exhaustive report on the Russian financial situation.

The Russian national debt, according to this report, on Jan. 1, 1914, was $3,400,000,000; during the first two years of the war, additional loans, covering war expenses were incurred to the extent of $2,511,920,000, and additional loans for $8,300,100,000 will be required if the war closes at the end of the year 1917. Assuming that the war will end in the Fall of this year, the total outstanding Russian indebtedness will amount to $20,908,000,000, which on a 5 1-2 per cent. basis will require yearly interest payments of $1,968,200,000.

The total foreign indebtedness of Russia, prior to the war was $2,223,000,000. During the first two years additional loans were incurred amounting to $2,430,000,000, and the estimated additional obligations which will be incurred, if the war closes in the Fall of 1917, will be $1,944,000,000. The total interest charges on foreign loans and also in connection with municipal, private issues, and other private indebtedness, sea freight, etc., due annually on foreign obligations after the war, will be $461,000,000. To offset these payments Russia has had for a number of years favourable balance of trade. The average yearly value of the excess of exports over imports amounted to $169,000,000, leaving net obligations payable yearly on foreign loans after the war of $292,200,000.

It is evident that, says the chamber, since Russia will not be able to meet her foreign interest charges in payments of gold, when the war is over, it will be unwise to adopt a policy of incurring additional interest payments, and the only solution of Russia's financial problems lies in—first, greatly increasing her export of raw materials, particularly that of agricultural products, and through the orgnization of her timber industry; second, the elimination of all unnecessary exportations, and third, the immediate organization and stimulation of home manufacturing production.

Russia is in a position to supply the world with the bulk of food products by intensifying her agricultural production. She is greatly increasing the quantity and quality of her food production, as well as her supply of meat and dairy products. In view of the general shortage of food products such as increase, it is argued, will largely solve the question of the proper balance of trade after the war.

In addition Russia has 50 per cent. of the world's undeveloped timber area, and is in a position, on account of her natural position and through the organization of her timber industry, to supply the increasing demand of Europe after the termination of the war.

CRUDE THOUGHTS FROM THE EDITORIAL PEN

TWO DAYS.

If we could all follow the example of Robert J. Burdette's life we would be happier. He said there were two days of the week upon which and about which I never worry. Two care-free days, kept sacredly free from fear and apprehension.

One of these days is yesterday. Yesterday, with all its cares and frets, with all its pains and aches, all its faults and blunders, has passed forever beyond the reach of my recall. I cannot undo an act that I wrought; I cannot unsay a word that I said on yesterday. All that it holds of my life, of wrongs, regret and sorrow, is in the hands of the Mighty Love that can bring the honey out of the rock, and sweet waters out of the bitterest desert—that love that can make the wrong things right, that can turn weeping into laughter, that can give beauty for ashes, the garment of praise for the spirit of heaviness, joy of the morning for woe of the night..

Save for the beautiful memories, sweet and tender, that linger like the perfume of roses in the heart of the day that is gone; I have nothing to do with yesterday. It was mine; it is God's.

And the other day I do not worry about is to-morrow. To-morrow with all its possibilities, adversities, its burdens, its perils, its large promise, and poor performance, its failures and mistakes, is far beyond the reach of my mastery as its dead sister, yesterday. It is a day of God's. It's sun will rise in roseate splendour, or behind a mass of sweeping clouds. But it will rise. Until then the same love and patience that holds yesterday and held to-morrow, shining with tender promise into the heart of to-day. I have no possession in that unborn day of grace. All else is in the safe keeping of that Infinite Love that holds for me the treasure of yesterday. The love that is higher than the stars, wider than the skies, deeper than the seas—To-morrow—it is God's day. It will be mine.

There is left for myself then but one day of the week—to-day. Any man can fight the battles of to-day. Any woman can resist the temptations of to-day. O, friends, it is only when the burdens and cares of to-day carefully measured out to us by the Infinite Wisdom and Might that gives with them the promise, "As thy day so shall thy strength be," we wilfully add the burdens of those two awful eternities—yesterday and to-morrow—such burdens as only the mighty God can sustain—that we break down. It is not the experience of to-day that drives men mad. It is the remorse for something that happened yesterday, the dread of to-morrow may disclose.

-:::-

These are God's days. Leave them with Him.

Therefore, I think, and I do, and I journey but one day at a time. That is the easy way. That is the man's day. Nay, rather, that is our day—God's and mine. And while faithfully and dutifully I run my course, and work my appointed task on that day of ours, God Almighty and All Loving takes care of yesterday and to-morrow.

It is her own fault if a woman is unloved and neglected. That is a harsh statement to make, but it is a fact. Mortal man is a weakling who can no more resist kindness than a rose can resist the sun. It is a weak, helpless woman's duty to make herself attractive and pretty in the very face of discouragement. Call it hypocrisy, tact, finesse, or by any other term, but she must turn in the edges and make allies instead of antagonists of the people about her, Spotless neatness, becoming feminine attire, truth, kindness, cheerfulness, love and the loyalty that restrains her from speaking ill of her neighbors, will make many a woman lovely, even though she lacks beauty.

The child who will be most courteous through life is the child who has been treated with courtesy, who has spent the formative years of life in a sweet and genial atmosphere and been molded not so much by military rules brusquely enforced as by the genial influence of serene tempers and the blessedness of good examples.

-:::-

Did you ever stop to think that it was one thing to talk about people, and another thing to have people talk about you? If those of us who use our tongues a little too freely about our neighbors would stop and reflect about the matter and know the great evil that comes from too much talk and tattling, we are sure we would call a halt and gossip no more forever.

Give the young and the struggling a word of encouragement now and then. You would not leave those plants in your window boxes without water nor refuse to open the shutters that the sunlight may fall upon them, but you would leave some human flower to suffer from want of appreciation of the sunlight of encouragement. There are a few hardy souls that can struggle along on stony soil—shrubs that can wait for the dews and the sunbeams, vines that climb without kindly training—but only a few. Utter the kind word when you can see it is deserved.

Waste neither time, money, talent, or opportunity.

-:::-

What is learned in the cradle is carried to the grave.

-:::-

Try to give your children the memory of a sweet and joyous childhood. It will make your memory tender and precious to them long after you have passed from earth, and it will make better men and women. The childhood of their own children will be made happier by it. There is no more sorrowful memory than that of an unhappy, uncared for childhood.

How Alberta Women Reduced the "High Cost of Living"

Even the Women of the Rural Districts United for One Strong and Winning Effort

The history of the fight the women of Alberta put up to offset the increasing cost of living there is an interesting one. Lucy F. Logan tells it in an interesting manner in "Every woman's World" for April. She describes first the activities of the Calgary women, then those of Edmonton, and the United Farm Women of the province. She makes plain the causes for, and results of, clubs formed with this object in view. Of the many incidents quoted by the writer, probably one will serve to demonstrate the power for good these western women have been:

"In the West, copper coinage was practically unknown," says the writer, "the five-cent piece being the smallest coin; and thrifty Easterners, expecting smaller change, were superciliously referred to as being from the "Cent Belt." A petition signed by the allied societies of the Local Council of Women was sent to the Board of Trade, asking for copper coinage. The Board of Trade replied that the retailers said the time was not ripe. But the women of Calgary are resourceful, and imported a supply of coppers from the East and in four months were using them at the market. Shortly after the "Morning Albertan" came down to one cent, the Hudson Bay Store capitulated, and every one had to follow suit—the women had scored another success and the use of copper coinage was established.

"Then they looked into the standardization of Canadian weights and measures, made experiments with seed potatoes, investigated the price of ice, gave their searching attention to the cleanliness and sanitary condition of bake shops, dairies, meat-shops, laundries, and were active in each and every branch of merchandise and work that in any way touched the health of the home and the housekeeper's pocket.

"It was some job! But they did it, these indomitable women of the western city of Calgary!"

It is hard for women with large feet to understand why short skirts are fashionable.

CHOICE RECIPES

SANDWICH PASTE

1 lb. seeded raisins.
2 tablespoons lemon juice.
2 tablespoons orange juice.
1 teaspoon salt.

Wash and dry the raisins. Put through the fine cutter of the food chopper, add the fruit juices and salt and mix well. Pack in jelly glasses. This will keep nicely.

A sweet sandwich for the school lunch box that furnishes some growing material and abundance of energy. Especially good on graham bread and as a companion for the meat or egg sandwich. Cost, 17 cents.

DELICIOUS CINNAMON ROLLS.

When moulding yeast bread for pans save out a little of the dough. Roll this out on the bread-board to about half an inch thickness. Spread with melted butter, sprinkle with brown sugar. Sprinkle with cinnamon and then spread currants, chopped raisins, chopped walnuts or chopped dates over the surface. Roll tightly like a jelly roll. Cut off slices about half inch to an inch thick, place in greased pan and spread melted butter over the tops of each. Let rise in a warm place from ten to twenty minutes. Then bake in a hot oven for about twenty minutes. These are delicious for breakfast with coffee.

ORANGE AMBROSIA.

Peel and remove the edible pulp from four oranges, saving every particle of juice. Then turn into a large mixing bowl, sweeten slightly with powdered sugar, and stand on the ice to chill. When ready to serve, mix with three tablespoons of grated cocoanut and turn into small, wide-rimmed glasses. Pour over each portion two tablespoons of Maraschino cordial and sprinkle the tops with the chopped cherries. Canned cherries and juice may be substituted for the Maraschino variety.

STUFFED EGG SALAD.

Cook the desired number of eggs for twenty-five minutes, cool in cold water, remove the shells, and cut in halves. With a sharp-pointed spoon remove the yolks and mash to a paste. Add to the yolks of each three eggs one teaspoon of chopped pimentos, one tablespoon of chopped parsley, half a teaspoon of chopped chives, salt to taste, and sufficient mayonnaise dressing to moisten. Pack the mixture firmly into the egg whites, cut in slices, and lay on a bed of crisp lettuce leaves. Mash with additional dressing and garnish with capers and chopped pickled beet.

FRIED TOMATOES.

Concerning our favourite meatless dish, I think I can safely give the place of honour to the humble tomato in the fried state, with plenty of delicious cream gravy, says one housekeeper. The grandfather, a wonderful old gentleman over seventy-five years of age, prefers this dish to beefsteak, and the children always ask for a second and third helping of "chicken gravy." Indeed, the flavour is so similar that many cannot detect the difference.

I think nearly everyone is familiar with the fried tomato during the summer months, but how many realize the possibility of serving them in this style the year round? This is accomplished very easily in the following manner:

During the canning season gather firm tomatoes, loosen the skins by running a silver knife over their entire surface, and remove with a sharp paring knife; pack in glass jars, cover with cold water, place gums and tops in position, but do not screw latter down.

If you do not possess a steam cooker put a rack in bottom of wash boiler, set jars on rack, with pieces of cardboard between, so that they do not come in contact. Pour cold water around the jars to within three inches of top of jars, and place over fire. Let water come to boil, then cook tomatoes fifteen minutes. Take out, allow to set five minutes, fill jars with boiling water and screw top firmly in place. These tomatoes may be taken out of the jars at any season of the year, sliced and fried, after having been dipped in egg and cracker crumbs or flour, and a gravy made. We think them quite as good as those fried from the fresh vegetables. Vegetable oil is a good substitute for lard.

CORN FRITTERS.

One cup of corn, two eggs, one cup of milk, one teaspoon of baking powder, salt and flour enough to make a good batter. Fry in spoonfuls in frying pan.

More Men in Berlin Go Out On Strike

LONDON, May 4. —A despatch to Reuter's from Amsterdam quotes the Berliner Tageblatt as saying that 1200 employees of the Berlin Co-operative Society, the 126 branches of which are mostly supplying the working classes, struck yesterday.

Work stopped completely throughout Austria-Hungary on May Day, according to wireless despatches from Berne. All of the Vienna munition factories were left idle while the workers gathered at sixty mass meetings, where the food question and the need of immediate peace, were the chief topics.

Identical resolutions were passed at all the meetings demanding peace without annexations or indemnities. One resolution glorified the Russian revolution and appealed to Russian Socialists to conclude peace with their German and Austrian brothers. A procession of 100,000 men and women marched along the Ring-Strasse and from there to the Prater, Vienna's great pleasure park, where a fete was held. The despatches say that there was no disorder throughout the day.

Spring Cleaning Not a Bugbear These Days

Jean Blewett Contrasts the Dear Stuffy Old Houses of Yesterday With Modern Sanitary Abodes

"Looking through my grandmother's recipe books," says Jean Blewett, in one of her breezy little articles on her own page in this month's "Everywoman's World," I came upon an item pencilled in a clerkly hand at the top of a page which ushered in a new month:

"'April: the house cleaning time.'"

"Naturally this gave rise to a flood of thoughts that had been imbedded in Jean Blewett's fertile mind awaiting an opportunity to present themselves; and consequently they appear in a riot of common sense bedecked in originality:

"Now, they may have been cleaner and cleverer than the modern woman aims to be, those fine housekeepers of a generation or so ago, but were they happier? Somehow one can't help feeling glad that the institution familiarly known as 'the spring housecleaning' is not the formidable thing it was in the days of heavy carpets, elaborate curtains, upholstery, crowded whatnots, feather beds, piecework quilts, and crocheted tidies everywhere. The window cleaning alone took a lot of time, since getting the window shorn of all its frills was like getting a woman out of a fussy ball gown. The accumulated dust of a twelve month had to be shaken from the carpets; after that upstairs, downstairs and in my lady's chamber smelled to heaven of soapsuds, turpentine, and varnish. Nice big, homely abodes, and we loved to be in them on a visit, but not when housecleaning was in operation!

"The modern house, with its bare modern furnishing and decorating, has robbed housecleaning of its terrors. Hardwood floors are a boon, up-to-date beds and mattresses a blessing. The step-ladder men wash and shine our windows, while we are out planning a garden; the vacuum cleaners make short work of the rugs; and so it goes. No 'April, the month of housecleaning' for us. When she comes, this April, with the violet seeds in her hair, when she comes singing, whether we hear her or not, she comes singing:

"'God's garden is this old-young world,
And I, the fickle vagrant;
I am the gardener He sends
To make it fair and fragrant.'

we can just sit and listen and look the while the young rain washes the last stain of winter's covering from the lily-of-the-valley, or the sun coaxes the crocus bud into flower. And isn't life vivid now? There is a thrill in everything, even in old, tired-out hearts. One is gladder in April or sadder in April than in any other month. It is the poignancy of the springtime."

The Latest Paris Fashions

New York, May 5.

Paris fashions have begun to arrive in New York,

Enough of these models have come safely through the perilous trip across the Atlantic to give us an idea of the Parisian decree as to what shall be worn this spring and summer.

Whether the silhouette would be straight, oval or "barrel" is the question that most women have been anxious to have settled. It would be so maddening to find that Paris had voted in favor of the barrel silhouette when you had finally decided upon a straight-line frock.

A Summer Frock of Fine White Voile and Flounsing.

Fortunately the French houses have been in favor of all three silhouettes, so the choice rests with the individual and no one having elected to appear either slender or slightly puffed out around the hips will be in any danger of not being correctly dressed. Certainly the fashions are most accommodating in so far as they allow one the choice of many different styles.

The soft drapery in skirts is a feature much in evidence among the new gowns. There are also some tunics, the lovers of this graceful style will be glad to know. Draping is one of the means of accomplishing the oval silhouette with the skirt narrowing down at the hem and plenty of fulness about the waist and hips.

The Width and Length of Skirts.

There is no rule about the width or the length of skirts, for they vary according to the caprice of the designer. Some skirts are as narrow as a yard at the hem, while others are as wide as three yards. It is just the same with the lengths of skirts. While some reach the ankles, the shoe top length and even shorter is used in other models. Skirts for street wear are for the most part inclined to be narrow. In evening gowns the puffed effect of skirts looped under to a narrower foundation is used to a great extent, and this same effect also appears here and there among the afternoon gowns.

The Revival of Foulard.

As to materials it is particularly interesting to note the revival of foulard, an ideal silk for spring and summer. It is used very freely, especially in the dotted design so well known. Coin dots of all sizes and colors appear in many silks. Satin, taffeta, crepe meteor, chiffon and Georgette are the smart materials of the season for afternoon frocks, and the diaphanous tulles, nets and laces are used for the evening gown. Black and white combinations are used in the development of some of the most charming evening gowns.

Banish Pimples And Eruptions

One of the surest signs that the blood is out of order is the pimples, unsightly eruptions and eczema that come frequently with the change from winter to spring. These prove that the long, indoor life of winter has had its effect upon the blood, and that a tonic medicine is needed to put it right. Indeed, there are few people who do not need a tonic at this season. Bad blood does not merely show itself in disfiguring eruptions. To this same condition is due attacks of rheumatism and lumbago; the sharp stabbing pains of sciatica and neuralgia, poor appetite and a desire to avoid exertion. You cannot cure these troubles by the use of purgative medicines—you need a tonic and a tonic only, and among all medicines there is none can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for their tonic, life-giving, nerve-restoring powers. Every dose of this medicine makes new, rich, red blood which drives out impurities, stimulates every organ and brings a feeling of new health and energy to weak, tired, ailing men, women and children. If you are out of sorts give this medicine a trial and see how quickly it will restore the appetite, revive dropping spirits, and fill your veins with new, health-giving blood. You can get these pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

MARY'S letter is surely a puzzler. She has so mixed up the letters in the names of things she would like Percy to give her for her birthday gift that they spell something different entirely. Sometimes she has even made two or three words out of one name, as in number nine, which is undoubtedly "Diamond Ring."

Each of the names in Mary's letter represents a present that any girl would like to receive for her birthday. You know one of them; now try to solve the remaining names, and when you do, re-write Mary's letter, substituting what you consider the correct names and send your solution to us. PERCY'S PLAN WILL HELP YOU

THE first thing Percy did was to walk through the stores and make a list of all the things that would make nice presents for a girl, so that he could compare his lists with Mary's and see how many names would fit the puzzling words. He was surprised to find the number of nice things one could get for a girl, for very soon his list contained the following: Sewing set, umbrella, wrist watch, silk waist, manicure set, jewel case, kid gloves, lace handkerchiefs, napkin rings, earrings, silver thimble, diamond ring, candy, photo frame, necklace, books, bracelet, slippers, card case, travelling bag, purse, brooch, shawl, toilet set, perfume, flowers, set of furs, lace collar, etc., etc. These suggested presents may help you. Get a pencil and paper and try!

How to Send Your Answers

USE one side of the paper only in writing out Mary's letter and keep it the same in form as given above, merely substituting your solution of the proper names in place of the jumbled ones. The "Creeping Pen"

IT IS EASILY CONSTRUCTED — KEEPS BABY OUT OF THE DRAUGHTS AND OUT OF MISCHIEF.

Instructions how to construct a "Creeping Pen," and its value both to the mother and to the baby, are briefly and clearly mapped out by Kathleen Elisabeth Steacy in "Everywoman's World" for April. The writer explains:

"To the busy mother who must do her own work and care for the baby at the same time, a creeping pen is almost invaluable. She knows where he is, that he is safe, and that he cannot fall and injure himself.

"She goes about her work with a mind free from anxiety and without an ear strained and an eye on the watch for possible mishap.

"But the benefits are not all to the mother—the baby shares. He is not dumped down on a mat, where he catches cold from the draught which is always strong on the floor; he is not deposited in the middle of the bed and told to 'sit still and don't fall off;' he is not obliged to creep along the floor, gathering pins and splinters in his progress; and he does not have to learn to walk by clinging to his mother's skirt as she passes from table to sink, from sink to the range.

"Father can easily make a creeping pen in a few spare evenings, and the cost is small. It should be square, with each side about four feet long, and eighteen inches high. If it is hinged at three corners and latched at the fourth it can be folded together and carried from room to room, and laid aside when not in use. It is better to make it of spindles and a rail like a stair rail, so that the baby may have something to hold to when he tries to stand and to walk.

"It is better, too, if raised a few inches by a flooring of thin, light boards, as this prevents dangerous draughts. This flooring should be hooked to the rail on all four sides to keep it steady and in place and should be covered with something soft; a cork mat is the cleanest and the best, but a blanket or a rug will answer."

DOYLE PROPHET OF PLUNGER WAR

THE HAGUE, May 4.—Sir Conan Doyle was paid a tribute in the German Reichstag as the only correct prophet of the present condition of the European war. The German Secretary of Navy, Admiral Capelle, said that the German Admiral Galster, usually quoted as the original inventor of the submarine war, never even mentioned it. "The only prophet of the present economic war was the novelist, Sir Conan Doyle."

Women are naturally foolish, because they were made to match the men.

POTATO DUMPLINGS.

Grate and press through a sieve enough cold boiled potatoes to measure a quart. Add three beaten eggs, two level teaspoons salt, one teaspoon baking powder. Stiffen with flour until they can be rolled with the hands and formed into dumplings. Have a kettle of hot water ready when rolling them, and drop them into the boiling water. Boil from eight to ten minutes. Remove with a skimmer and pour a quantity of melted butter, in which little squares of bread have been delicately browned, over it. Serve immediately. I prefer using potatoes which have been boiled with the skins and cooled, says one who has tried it.

Enemies of Tea

If tea is left open near oranges, soap, spices, matches, etc., the tea will take on the flavor of any of these articles.

In fact, tea absorbs odors as readily as does butter. This is because of the high temperature at which it is "fired" during the drying process, which makes the tea very sensitive. It thus quickly loses flavor and strength, and goes "flat" if left exposed to odors, dust or air.

To Protect the Consumer

When you buy a package of Red Rose Tea at your grocer's you get the benefit of the great care we take to protect the consumer, as the sealed package is an armor that keeps out odors, dust and air. It keeps the tea pure, clean, fresh and full strength.

The price printed on the package protects you against overcharge. It is the lowest price for which a tea of Red Rose quality can be sold—a price which allows the grocer only a fair profit.

You will enjoy the distinctive flavor, rich strength and splendid economy of Red Rose Tea. TRY A PACKAGE.

Sunday Sermon For Those Who Do Not Go To Church

(By JAMES SUTHERLAND)

Jesus' sermon in the Synagogue on the Sabbath day—at Nazareth.

The same spirit that qualified Christ for the exercise of His prophetical office strongly inclined Him to it. He taught in their synagogues, their places of public worship, where they met, for acts of devotion to read, expound and apply the word to pray and praise. These were numerous and constantly attended after the captivity. He stood up to read. They had in their synagogues seven readers every Sabbath: the first a priest, the second a Levite, the other five Israelites of that synagogue. He read one of the lessons out of the prophets. The reading of the Scriptures is very proper in religious assemblies, and Christ Himself did not think it any disparagement to be employed in it. The book of Isaiah was delivered to Him. He found the place appointed to be read that day and took it for His text. It gives a full account of Christ's undertaking and the work He came into the world to do. He read the words: "The spirit of the Lord God is upon me. All the gifts and the graces of the spirit were conferred upon him, not by measure as upon other prophets, but without measure"—John iii., 34. The Spirit must discover Christ in our hearts, in all His gracious offices. Under His blessed influence we shall perceive the message of the gospel is indeed glad tidings to the poor and humble. He is to preach deliverance to the captives. By Christ sinners may be loosed from the bonds of guilt, and by His spirit and grace from the bonds of corruption. It is deliverance from the worst thraldom. Second, recovering of sight to the blind. He came out only by the word of His gospel, to bring light to them that sat in darkness, but by the power of His grace, to give sight to them that were blind, not only to the gentile world, but to every unregenerate soul. If our prayer be, "Lord, that our eyes may be opened," His answer shall be, "Receive your sight." Third, The acceptable year of the Lord. He came to let the world know that the God Whom they had offended was willing to be reconciled to them; that there is now a time of goodwill toward men. It alludes to the year of release or that of jubilee. It was an acceptable time, for it was a day of salvation. Let sinners attend to the Saviour's invitation when liberty is thus proclaimed. Observe also that Christ came as a physician to comfort and cure the afflicted, to give peace to troubled hearts, to those who were under the wrath of God and to bring rest to the weary and the heavy laden, and to be their Redeemer. He sets at liberty those who are bruised and faint, and inclines and enables them by His spirit to use the liberty granted. The prophets could only proclaim liberty, but Christ, as the one Who had authority, also had the power on earth to forgive sins and set at liberty those who were bound. Then we have Christ's application of the text to Himself, verse 21. When He had read it He rolled up the book and sat down according to the custom of the Jewish teachers. He began His discourse thus: This day is the Scripture fulfilled in your ears. It now began to be fulfilled in Christ's entrance upon His public ministry. It is most probable that Christ went on and showed particularly how this Scripture was fulfilled in the doctrine He preached concerning the kingdom of heaven at hand; that was preaching all the blessings of the acceptable year of the Lord; for many other gracious words proceeded out of His mouth. The eyes of all in the synagogue were fastened on Him. It is good, in hearing the word, to keep the eye fixed upon the minister, for as the eye affects the heart, so, usually the heart follows the eye, and is wandering or fixed as that is. So let us keep our eyes fixed upon Christ speaking to us by His spirit, by His word and by His servants. They all bare witness that He spake admirably well and to the purpose; yet, as appears by what follows, they did not believe in Him. It is possible that admirers of good ministers and good preachers may yet not be true Christians. They admired the gracious words that proceeded out of His mouth,—the words of grace spoken in a winning, melting way. Christ's words are words of grace. Christ's name was wonderful. In nothing was He more so, than in the words of His grace and the power that went along with these words. We may well wonder that He should speak such words of grace to those who reject and despise Him. In derision they said: "Is not this, the son of Joseph, the carpenter? Can anything great or good or worthy of our regard come from Nazareth, from one so mean?" Christ anticipated an objection which He knew to be in the minds of many of His hearers. You will surely say to Me, Physician, heal Thyself. Most of Christ's miracles were cures. They were pleased with Christ's gracious words, only because they hoped that they were the introduction to some wonderous works. Why should not His neighbours and acquaintances have the benefit of his miracles and preaching rather than any others. He answers this objection by a plain and positive reasoning why he would not make Nazareth his residence. When prophets have been sent with messages and miracles of mercy, few of their own country who have known their extraction and education have received them. Some prejudice often furnishes an objection against the humbling doctrine of the cross, and while it is the word that excites their enmity, they will blame something in the conduct or manner of the speaker. Christ declined working miracles or doing anything extraordinary at Nazareth because of the rooted prejudices they had against Him there. He gives examples of two of the most famous prophets of the Old Testament who dispensed favours among foreigners rather than among their own countrymen, no doubt by divine direction. As God by Elijah showed Himself a Father of the fatherless, and a judge of the widows, so He would show that He was rich in mercy to all, even to the Gentles; many lepers were in Israel, yet we do not find that Elisha cleansed them; Christ mentions these instances to show that He dispensed the favour of His miracles according to God's wise appointment, and the people of Israel might have as justly said to Elijah or Elisha as the Nazarenes to Christ: Physician, heal thyself. Christ was persecuted at Nazareth. They were provoked by His noticing the favour God showed to the Gentiles by Elijah and Elisha. If they had placed faith in the gracious words of Christ they wondered at, they would have been awakened by these latter words, to take heed of sinning away their opportunities. But they were angry that He should compare Himself with those great prophets, whom they knew to be the son of Joseph, and compare them with the men of that former idolatrous age. What especially exasperated them was that he intimated some kindness God had in reserve for the Gentiles. Their pious ancestors were pleased with the promise of adding the Gentiles to the church, as we see by many of David's psalms, and Isaiah's prophecies but this degenerate race, when they had forfeited the covenant themselves hated to think that others should be taken in. The doctrine of God's sovereignity peculiarly exasperates proud men. They will not seek His favour in His own way, and are enraged when others are admitted to the favours that they have neglected. They forgot the holiness of the day and the purposes for which they were assembled. They thrust from them the Saviour and His salvation. How justly might He have called for fire from heaven. But this was the day of His patience. Though they knew how unblamably He had for many years lived among them, though they heard such a good report of Him, and had but now themselves admired His gracious words, yet they hurried Him away, to put Him to death. He refrained them so that they could not do what they designed. His work was not done; it was just begun. His hour was not yet come. When it was come He freely surrendered He would have gathered Nazareth, but they would not, therefore their house was left to them desolate. Still is Jesus disdainfully rejected by multitudes who hear the same message echoed from his words, there is enmity in the human heart now as there was then, while they crucify him by their sins, but let us honour him as the Son of God, the Saviour of men, and labour to manifest our ardour and faithfulness, show to others the sincerity of our love. Whibby says that this passage shows the attendance of the Jews at that time, in the synagogue as well as the temple worship and that our Lord was accustomed to join in these public religious ordinances. The synagogue service consisted of prayer, reading the scriptures and exposition or preaching. The teaching and preaching in these services were not confined to the priests and Levites. the portion used by our Lord was appointed for the synagogue worship about the end of August and our Lord may have been called out expressly by the minister to read it according to the forms of Jewish worship.

Yours sincerely,
JAMES SUTHERLAND.

Thousands of Ducks Drown in Net.

LONDON, Ont., May 4.—The gill net fishing tug Thistle, of Rondeau, made a most unusual and unwelcome catch a couple of days ago. When they lifted their nets they found that thousands of ducks must have been diving in the water for spawn and had become caught and drowned. They were brought ashore and found to be about five tons in weight. Some were carried away for fertilizing purposes.

DUMMER FOR ME.

Some love the thronging city best,
And sing its praises loud,
But give me Dummer's peaceful vales
Far from the noisy crowd;
That with the friends, beloved of yore,
If heaven would but bestow,
I would not sigh, for aught, beside,
Of happiness below.

It is not that I lightly prize
The city's boisterous ways,
Or slight the scenes where I have spent
So many pleasant days.
In sooth, 'tis well, in town to dwell,
While whirls the wintry snow,
But my heart will turn to Dummer
When Spring's gentle Zephers blow.

Tho' brilliant with luxuriant bloom,
Gay city gardens be,
Trim lawns, bedecked in verdant sheen
And flowerets, fair to see.
With every beautious charm combined
Ingenious art can show,
My heart still longs for Dummer,
Where the sweet wild flowers grow.

For Nature wears her brightest smile
Of vernal sunshine there,
Enrobeing every dale and down
With verdure, fresh and fair.
Aye blithesome are the warbling notes,
Of birds' songs, on the trees;
The soothing sound of babling brooks
And soft the balmy breeze.

And where ere fickle fate may cast,
In this wide world, my lot,

Two Ways To Acquire An Estate

1—By saving, stinting, sacrificing; fighting the world at every turn, battling the blows of business competition; running the risk of fire, theft, embezzlement and misfortune; skimping your family and yourself may be, and standing only one chance in twenty of reaching Old Age without being dependent upon others for support.

2—By securing a Life Insurance Policy—A Policy which guarantees to pay your Beneficiary at your death, either a definite lump sum or an income every month as long as she lives—an income that is fixed, certain, regular, inalienable, unassailable, untaxable, and which cannot be lost, sold, dissipated, squandered, or mortgaged.

Which is the EASIER and MORE SENSIBLE Way to Acquire an Estate?

Two Ways To Bequeath An Estate

1—By Testamentary Document: Requires an Executor. Must go through legal red tape of Court. Requires Court costs. May require months or years to settle. This kind of Will can be broken or set aside. Property is subject to attachment for debts of the Deceased.

2—By Life Insurance (when the Beneficiary is named): Requires no executor or administrator — you are your own executor, your own administrator. No need of Court proceedings—no expense of Court costs. Does not require time to settle. This is a Will direct which no lawyer can break nor Court set aside. Policy is not subject to attachment for debts of the Deceased.

Which is the SAFER and BETTER Way to Bequeath an Estate?

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A Brave Man Afraid of His Shadow

By F. A. MITCHEL

"Herr Lieutenant," said General Blankor, "I wish you to carry a message to the commander of the Bulgarian forces operating on our right. We are within half a dozen miles of them, and it is necessary that we come together. There is no road leading in that direction, and you'll have to go on foot. But the moon is nearly full, and your way will be lighted. Here is the written message."

Lieutenant Obermeir took the message, saluted and left his superior, starting at once. The general had spoken correctly in saying that the moon was nearly full, but when Obermeir got beyond the tip of the army's wing he looked up to see that a film of mist was spread over it and the sky about it.

"Well," he said to himself, "I shall cast no shadow. Tonight I am not myself. I feel as I did after that last wound when the pluck had gone out of me. In other words, if I should see my shadow it would frighten me."

The country through which he walked was no man's land. It was sparsely settled with peasants, but war had driven most of them away. What else was there was probable, but not certain—that is, a sniper lying in wait for any enemy. One passing would not likely receive a challenge; he would be more apt to receive a bullet. The way, too, was rugged. Nature had not smoothed the country, which was up and down grade, rocky, covered with decayed trees, and, to make it worse, war had filled it with shell holes.

The lieutenant had come to a comparatively level sweep when, looking down on the ground before him, he saw what seemed to be his shadow cast by the moon—such a shadow as the moon would throw covered with the thin gauze that partly obscured it. Turning, he looked up to where the moon should be. It was not there. Turning again, he saw it overhead and slightly before him.

"Surely," he said, "that cannot be a shadow cast by the moon. Shadows are on a direct line with the light that makes them." He looked down in front of him again. There was that dark something, shadow or whatever it was. But it was not well defined. Indeed, it was like a film of darkness. He turned his eyes upward to see what was causing it. There was nothing in the heavens except that pale mist which dimmed the moon, and a line from the moon formed an angle with the shadow.

The warrior trembled.

Why was it that in battle he could stand up against shot and shell without a quiver and here in perfect silence, with not a creature, so far as he knew, to harm him, he was shaking like a leaf in the wind?

In the distance was a light. He blessed it and hastened his pace making straight toward it. The nearer he came to it his fear grew less. And when suddenly he heard "Who comes?" in the German tongue and heard the click of a rifle, instead of fearing a picket might shoot him before he could make himself known he felt brave as a lion.

The lieutenant was taken to headquarters, delivered his message to the general commanding and was about to set out on his return when the officer said to him:

"Why not return with us, lieutenant? We shall move to make a junction with your force at daylight."

Obermeir would gladly have done as the general suggested. But there is a professional pride among soldiers that must be maintained. The lieutenant was afraid of his shadow, but he was more afraid of an imputation of cowardice, not so much from his comrades as from himself. He thanked the general and set off on his walk back to his own command.

The atmosphere had not changed; there was the same mist over the face of the moon. Obermeir would not look for his shadow. Why? He said to himself it would be cowardly to do so. Then it occurred to him that it would be cowardly not to look for it. The moon was now at his back. With a dread he could not control he looked down before him. There was the black thing, denser if anything, than before.

He shuddered.

But he trudged on, trying to make himself think that some peculiar atmospheric condition caused his shadow to be out of place. Many things cause refraction of light. One thing he had often noticed himself. An oar dipped in water will appear to be broken at the point where it touches the surface.

His efforts to explain away the mystery were futile. And had he satisfactorily explained them to himself it would not have helped the burden that weighed him down. The journey homeward seemed longer than his going. This was doubtless that the farther he went the stronger the spell under which he staggered. Yes; he staggered now, his eyes held by an invisible power on the black mass before him, which constantly grew denser and larger, too, till there was no space about him that it did not fill.

At daylight the Germans marched to meet the Bulgarians. A short distance from where the Germans started they came upon the body of Lieutenant Obermeir lying dead in a shell hole. They turned him over to see where he had been hit, but could find no wound.

"Killed by a ball's wind," said the surgeon. "There are many such cases."

They did not know that Obermeir had died of fright, caused, not by an enemy, but by his own imagination.

The Best Habit In The World is the habit of health. The way to get it is to train your bowels, through the liver, to act naturally, at a fixed time, every day.

Take one pill regularly (more only if necessary) until you succeed. Then you can stop taking them, without trouble or annoyance.

This has been the good-health-rule for 50 years.

A FAMILY ORCHESTRA.

Has Your Home One, and, if It Has, Does This Just Fit It?

When two people conduct an orchestra there is plot material. If the two are knit by marriage ties the plot thickens. Endicott and I conduct a family orchestra, he at the piano, I playing second violin. I know more about music than does Endicott; he is more musical than I. I keep the time; he has the temperament. Temperament is more noble than time, but time, I shall always insist, has its place, perhaps nowhere more appropriately than in an orchestra. He at the piano can dominate the situation more neatly than I. In my position among the strings, however, I can more readily organize a strike.

The rest of the pieces are presided over by our children, young people of inflexible spirit and chromatic moods. Sometimes we doubt whether we have our troupe under the rigid control which as parents we might expect to command. The conductivity of an orchestra, says our son Geoffrey, varies with the distance of the blood relationship between artists and conductor. When the children were little we held the pleasant theory that a family orchestra would draw us all close together, standing always as a symbol of our perfect harmony. That would be all right if the harmony would only go to suit us all equally at the same time. As it is our little band, in which observers find so touching a picture of hearthside unity, suggests sometimes all the elements of guerrilla warfare.

WICKED WEAPONS.

Terrible Knives Wielded by the Natives of Hindustan.

The weapon common to every part of Hindustan, so as to deserve the name of the national arm, is the "katar." This is a broad, two edged dagger, the hilt of which is formed something like an H, the hand grasping the crossbar, which is generally double, while the side bars extend on each side of the wrist.

Some katars are made with five blades which unite into one, but by squeezing together the crossbars the blades diverge like the fingers of a hand when the thrust has been given. Other katars are made in sets of two or even three, of diminishing sizes, the blades of the larger being hollow and forming sheaths for the smaller.

Some of the southern Indian katars, known as "death givers," are immense weapons, nearly two feet long in the blade, and the hilts are a mass of fantastic scrollwork and mythological monsters, the cobra with expanded hood figuring largely.

There are also the "bich'hwa," or scorpion's sting, a doubly curved dagger; the "khanjar," a larger form of the same, and the "peshkabz," or hunting knife. But none of these elaborate weapons has about it the terribly "businesslike" look of the Khyber knife ("ch'hura"), with its ponderous single edged, tapering blade and plain ivory hilt.—Chambers' Journal.

Queer Eskimo Custom.

A traveler among the Eskimos of northern Alaska tells of a custom that reveals an odd mixture of superstition and practical shrewdness. When a child is born its parents give it the name of the last person who died in that village, partly in the belief that the spirit of the dead person leaves the grave and enters the child and partly in the expectation that the relatives of the dead person will contribute to its support.

Boiling Alive.

The last instance of boiling to death took place in Persia in 1890. The offender was guilty of stealing state revenues and was put into a large caldron of cold water, which was slowly heated to the boiling point. His bones were distributed as a warning among the provincial tax collectors.

Walking Is Work.

Putnam—Did you walk to work yesterday? Halsey—Yes, and the wind blew off my hat, which landed in an auto, which did not stop; my eyes were filled with dust, and I bumped into a man I owed $10. Hereafter I follow no more health tips.—Brooklyn Standard Union.

The British Cabinet.

It is the inflexible unwritten rule of the British cabinet that no member of the cabinet shall take any note or record of its decisions except the prime minister, and he does so solely for the purpose of sending his written report to the king.

Vivisection.

Preparation of the Hot-Bed in Connection with the Backyard Garden. Successional Plantings

Where manure is scarce, a pit may be dug in the soil having good drainage to a depth of 16 to 18 inches and filled with fresh manure. The frame is then set on this, as in the previous case. This method is used largely by men who lay down several hundred beds each spring, and it gives entire satisfaction.

Vegetable growers who annually lay down many hotbeds haul manure during the fall and winter months and cover the ground in the hotbed yard. This prevents the ground from becoming frozen, and as the season for hotbed making comes this manure is replaced by fresh manure, which forms the heater of the bed. In this way it is not necessary to have so much manure under the frame, ten or twelve inches will be sufficient in this method.

Steam or hot water hotbeds do not require manure under the frame, only around the sides. A flow and return pipe placed at the ends of the frame inside, will give sufficient heat. To use a steam-heated hotbed the yard must be close to the greenhouse and the pipe should run through a continuous row of frames. In some instances with the manure hotbed the manure fails to heat. This can be remedied by opening a hole in the manure and throwing in a pail of boiling water.

Care of Hotbed—As a hotbed is used during severe weather it can be understood that considerable attention is required. Watering and ventilating must be most carefully attended to, and only by this care daily can good plants be grown.

Watering—Water sparingly in the early part of the season, and only on bright days. It is advisable to water with a can which throws a fine spray, only when the plants really require it, and then in the morning. This time is recommended because the plants will have time to dry off before evening, and thus avoid diseases, which come through leaving a moist atmosphere in the bed over night. Some growers who do not use many hotbeds recommend slightly warm water. On a large scale this is not followed, ordinary cold water only being used.

Ventilation—Probably this end of the management of a hotbed is the one requiring the most care and attention. The hotbeds are ventilated by supporting one end of the sash on a small block of wood or by raising the whole side of a sash and blocking it up or by supporting it on the side of the next sash to it. The side or end facing the wind should never be opened. As the season advances the sash are sometimes drawn partly off the frame, and as the warm weather comes the sash is taken off entirely during the day.

Time to Ventilate—Hotbeds should be ventilated every day, some days more than others. On a stormy day it would be out of the question to ventilate very much, but a lath under the cash will give a good circulation of air. On a bright, sunshiny day the sash can be raised up as much as two inches. They should be opened in the morning when the air becomes somewhat warm, and can be left until the afternoon when it begins to get cool again. It should be seen to that the sashes are replaced before night. The question of how long the sashes should be left open must be determined by experience. A thorough circulation of air is essential, but too much cold air will give the plants a check and in all probability ruin the crop. Always ventilate after watering to prevent scalding the tender plants.

Planting in a Hotbed—After the soil has been thoroughly prepared by raking down and all straws and other refuse removed the seeds should be planted. Rows three inches apart and having a depth of one-quarter inch are made by gently pressing a lath into the soil. The seeds can be sown by hand and then barely covered with soil by simply drawing the soil back again with the lath.

Care of Plants—It will be necessary to pull out all weeds as soon as they are seen and they will appear before the vegetable plants. As the plants grow they should be watered occasionally and given plenty of ventilation. Later on, if they commence to crowd in the row, they can be thinned out as necessary. Stirring the soil several times during the growth with the fingers or a hand weeder will be found a good practice.

What Plants to Grow—A hotbed will give a good supply of lettuce, radish, beets and carrots before they can be had from seed sown outdoors. Lettuce and radish can be grown in the same row. Green onions can be secured by planting small onions close together in the row. Young tomato, cabbage, celery, onion, cauliflower and many other plants can be started in the hotbed. These will be far in advance of those grown from seed out of doors as far as earliness is concerned.

The spent hotbed may be used to grow muskmelons. A few seeds may be planted at each end of the bed in the soil, and by keeping the sash on during the night until warm weather comes a good crop of melons of excellent flavour can be secured.

COLD FRAMES.

A cold frame is merely a part of the garden covered with a sash supported on a wooden frame. A cold frame has no bottom heat or any other heat excepting that received from the sun; and otherwise it is the same as a hotbed. The cold frame is used to protect tender growing plants from cold weather. It prevents strong winds from disturbing the plants and protects the plants from severe changes in the weather. It is used more as a middle or hardening stage for the plant before it is taken to the field. It hardens off the plants so that they can stand any ordinary change in the weather which may come after transplanting time. Cold frames are also used along in the season to start young plants, particularly cabbage and cauliflower plants.

Cold frames are usually placed near the greenhouse or in a sheltered position. In some cases the frames are made in the field where the plants are to remain and the frame is removed as the season advances, leaving the plant in its permanent position. They can be protected in severe weather by means of banking up the sides of the frame with earth or manure. Straw or mats may be spread over the sash on cold nights. As the warm weather comes the sash may be replaced by frames covered with cotton. These should be the same size as the sash and should be used as a covering for the plants on cool nights. The cotton will permit a free circulation of air and yet will not allow the temperature to go down too low to damage the plants.

Management—The soil in the cold frame should be a good garden soil fairly light. Many growers transfer the flats with the plants in them from the hotbed to the cold frame, thus doing away with securing soil for the cold frame. Watering should be given frequently to keep the plants growing. Ventilation must be looked after carefully.

SUCCESSIONAL PLANTINGS.

In order to have a fresh supply of vegetables on hand during the early summer months seed may be sown at intervals of a week or ten days until June 1st. This will greatly improve the quality and give a more general run of popular crops. The following crops may be handled in this way: Corn, radish, lettuce, spinach, endive, beets.

When successional plantings are made only a short row should be used for those requiring only a small supply. For the vegetable grower longer rows will be necessary, but care should be taken not to over plant.

Several growers of lettuce on quite a large scale plant a certain amount each week, and in this way are assured of a fresh crop every week or ten days throughout the season. By doing this they do not overload the market at any time and their customers have fresh, well-grown lettuce in constant supply.

Successional plantings are not limited to one crop. One crop may be grown to maturity and harvested, and the ground immediately planted with another crop of entirely different nature. This again may be followed with still another crop in many sections under careful management. Successional cropping is practised by many of the more progressive vegetable growers, and while there is considerable labour attached to this method of vegetable growing the returns per acre are often-times doubled and tripled on small acreages.

Spinach, followed by celery.
Early potatoes, followed by late celery.
Lettuce, followed by turnips.
Lettuce, followed by cabbage.
Lettuce, followed by parsnips.
Cabbage, followed by celery.
Peas or beans, followed by winter radish.

INTER CROPPING OR COMPANION CROPPING.

Where two or more crops are grown on the same soil at the same time it is known as inter cropping or companion cropping. By this is meant that crops maturing at different times are planted together and when one is ready for market it is cut and the other one left until it reaches maturity. Inter cropping is practised on small pieces of land with good success. Larger returns can be had from this method than any other. The land must be practically full of manure in order to grow the crops quickly and not allow them to become starved in any way. Inter cropping practically prohibits horse cultivation and for this reason many vegetable growers do not follow this practice to any extent.

The following examples explain:

(1) Cabbage in rows three feet apart.
Two rows of spinach 8 to 10 inches apart in between.
(2) Early lettuce and beets 10 to 12 inches apart.
(3) Horseradish in permanent rows three feet apart.
Cucumbers in alternate rows 6 to 8 feet apart.
(4) Corn and pumpkins both permanent crops.
(5) Parsnips in rows three feet apart.
Early beets pricked out in between rows.

STERILIZATION OF SGIL.

Many of the fungus diseases which are commonly found attacking various vegetables are carried over the winter in the soil. Some treatment of the soil is necessary to prevent them damaging or ruining the young plants in the seed bed. There are several methods of handling the soil which have given results in the prevention of disease. Some of these methods are practically absolutely certain, while others are not so reliable; yet any methods which will help in some way to prevent some of the diseases which hinder the vegetable grower from harvesting a full crop are worth considering. The methods are as follows: Sterilizing with boiling water, with formalin and sterilizing with steam.

Boiling Water—The most common method of sterilizing soil and the one which many gardeners practice is to thoroughly saturate the soil with boiling water. The soil can be placed in the hotbed in a box or in a pail and a quantity of boiling water poured over it. Most growers follow this method in treating the soil in which they grow cabbage and cauliflower plants; some do it for lettuce, celery and other young plants used for transplanting. The soil can be used the day following if this method is followed.

Formalin—To secure more reliable results some vegetable growers sterilize their soils in the same manner as with the boiling water, excepting that they use one pint of formalin to thirty gallons of water, and use cold water. Thorough saturation of the soil makes this method efficient. One gallon of solution should be used for each square foot of soil. It is a good practice to cover the soil with some burlap or old bags after this application. The soil cannot be used for at least a week with this method unless the season is well advanced.

Steam—There are several methods of sterilizing soil with steam and they are probably the most reliable ways of treating the soil. This method is used more by greenhouse growers and yet a considerable number of growers using hotbeds and cold frames employ this system every year.

VOL. LXV., No. 106 THE EVENING EXAMINER, PETERBOROUGH, SATURDAY, MAY 5, 1917. PRICE TWO CENTS.

President Wilson.—Never have the actions of a U.S. President been watched with more eager attention than those of President Wilson. He has proved himself the right man in the right place, and it can be said of him, if of no other, that he has the courage of his opinions, and when the masses are against him, his patient reasoning soon wins his cause.

The Fish of the Navy and Its Fins.—An unusual picture of a trio of Uncle Sam's underseas craft of the "K" type. Left to right—The K1, K2 and K5. The two planes, protruding from both sides of the bow of the K5 are the elevating and submerging planes. They serve the same purpose as a fish's fins.

A New Photo of a United States Navy Chief.—A new photo of Rear Admiral Benson, head of the Navy General Board, and the man who will direct the activities of the first line of defence of U. S. fleet.

Miss F. L. Stevenson, private secretary to David Lloyd George, and said to be the only woman in the world to hold such a position to the most important man in the land. Miss Stevenson's salary is about £2,000 a year. Her only brother was killed at Givenchy.

Rear Admiral Sims, of the United States navy, who has gone to England to advise with the British Navy Department on the conduct of the war in so far as it relates to the new allies.

The Captor of Bagdad. Major-General Sir F. S. Maude, who was in command of the forces which captured Bagdad. Major Maude is well known in Canada, many years ago having been attached to the staff of the Governor-General.

A new portrait of Gen. J. Franklin Bell, U.S., who succeeds Gen. Leonard Wood, as commander of the Department of the East, with headquarters at Governor's Island. General Bell is a native of Kentucky.

It is an absolute impossibility when publishing a newspaper to avoid referring to "Teddy" Roosevelt every hour of the day. He is everything and everywhere. "A good fellow" and a staunch friend of the Allies is our irrepressible citizen Teddy of the United States. Here he is trying to look unconcerned at the recent New York Flower Show.

An incident on the Somme Front.—Not all the heroines of France have been decorated. Witness this devoted woman, who, after a recent Somme engagement, made many trips into range of German guns, to bring back wounded soldiers—walking cases—to the military hospital in her village.

Lieut-Col. J. Theed Grey, who recently arrived in New York from France, where he commanded the Eleventh Northumberland Fusiliers, which formed part of the British expeditionary force in 1915.

Foe's Counter Attacks Everywhere Repulsed

GERMANS POURING IN NEW DIVISIONS

HUNS ARE USING NEW DIVISIONS IN DESPERATE ATTEMPT TO STOP ALLIES

German Counter Attacks Against Newly-won British Positions in the Hindenburg Line and Against the French Front Are Repulsed With Heavy Losses to the Enemy --French Have Taken 2000 Prisoners and Gain Ground in Face of Violent Resistance.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

PARIS, May 5.—Germany is pouring fresh divisions into desperate fighting along all the Selesons and Rheims fronts, in a determined attempt to stop the French advancing and retaking positions lost in General Nivelle's recent drives, to-day's official statement showed. Four new German divisions—approximately 100,000 men—were called on by the Teutons to aid in their violent counter attacks. The German counter thrusts furnished the greater part of the fighting, but around Monts Cornillet and east of Blond Monts the French again succeeded in gaining ground in the face of violent resistance. Two thousand prisoners were taken by the French during the last two days.

LONDON, May 5.—Field Marshal Haig's report to-day indicated a continuance of the deadlock in the Arras sector, and was devoted to fighting action to the south. "East of La Vergulier we carried out a successful raid at night, taking a few prisoners," he said. "North of Havrincourt Wood we progressed."

The deadlock in the Arras sector was not without fighting, however. Three further German counter attacks were made during the night, the British Commander-in-Chief reported. All were directed against the newly won British positions on the Hindenburg line. The first was broken down in concentrated British artillery fire. The other two passed the barrages, but were driven back from the British trenches after a period of sharp fighting. Progress around Fresnoy, to the south, was also reported by Haig. At Messines, hostile raiders were repulsed.

PARIS, May 5.—(French Official).—Violent fighting in the Champagne, with German counter attacks everywhere checked, was reported in to-day's official statement. The German attacks were made with large numbers of fresh divisions. More than a thousand prisoners have been taken by the French troops in the fighting here.

PETROGRAD, May 5.—Pro German peace agitators are being attacked in the streets of Petrograd by crowds of soldiers and citizens. Numerous clashes have occurred. Shots have been fired and several persons are reported to have been wounded.

Movement To Oust Hollweg and Zimmerman

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

(BY ARTHUR E. MANN)

COPENHAGEN, May 5.—The movement to oust Imperial Chancellor Von Bethmann-Hollweg and Foreign Secretary Zimmermann may be impelled by the knowledge of German peace advocates that there is no chance for serious efforts to end hostilities until these two leaders are out.

Information here to-day indicated a general recognition among the German elements desirous of peace, that Hollweg is their main stumbling block. Zimmermann's replacement by Count Von Bernstorff, former Envoy to the United States, is being agitated, as previous United Press despatches have related, with the idea that he might be able to restore German-American relations. Hollweg is regarded as of the super military type. There is little evidence here that the military aristocracy in Germany, nor the Conservatives, are ready even to talk about peace. But there is widespread discontent among the workers and the Radicals. The ranks of the Progressives are growing daily.

One striking feature of the Radical move in Germany which is arousing great interest here is the absence of any apparent curb by the German Government or the German censorship on Maximilian Harden, the Radical editor. His paper, Die Zunkunft, does not appear to have been perceptibly quieted down by the German censorial activity, and Harden's editorials are more and more violent in demanding complete democracy in Germany.

LONDON, May 5.—Reuter's correspondent at the front in Flanders reports extremely bitter fighting to-day in the neighbourhood of Bullecourt, where the Germans are apparently throwing a heavy weight of reinforcements in an attempt to drive the British back and re-claim the Hindenburg line. Reuters says the British are maintaining positions against all odds, and the Germans are vainly sacrificing large numbers of men at this point.

ANOTHER U. S. LOAN OF $125,000,000.

WASHINGTON, May 5.—The Government to-day announced further loans of 125 millions to Great Britain and France. A 25 million loan was to-day closed with the British representatives, and a 100 million loan to France will be consummated within a few days.

BIGAMIST GETS 7 YEARS IN THE "PEN"

Special to The Examiner:

KITCHENER, Ont., May 5.— Rev. Ernest Harris was given seven years' imprisonment in Kingston Penitentiary and Mrs. Alex. Waumback two years in the Mercer Reformatory by Judge Hanning this morning, for bigamy. Harris made a confession and pleaded for leniency, but was sentenced to the limit.

FIRST MOVE TO CURTAIL POWERS OF GERMAN KAISER

All Decrees Must Be Countersigned by the Imperial Chancellor Who Becomes Responsible to the Reichstag Itself

SOCIALIST IS LEADER

Examiner Special:

AMSTERDAM, May 5.—The first move to curtail the Kaiser's power has been taken by the recently appointed Constitution Committee of the Reichstag, according to dispatches from Berlin to-day. The committee voted to amend the German constitution so that hereafter all decrees and ordinances issued by the Kaiser must be countersigned by the Imperial Chancellor, who thereupon becomes responsible to the Reichstag itself for the orders therein. Philip Schiedemann, Socialist leader, was recently appointed President of the Constitution Committee.

An Ovation For Balfour

Special to the Examiner:

WASHINGTON, May 5.— Never in the history of the United States has such a unanimous reception and tremendous ovation been given a foreign envoy as that accorded Arthur J. Balfour, Foreign Minister of Great Britain, when he addressed Congress this afternoon. In the executive gallery, President Wilson and his party were most enthusiastic visitors and it is not within memory of the oldest congressman, that a President of the United States sat in the gallery of Congress. Mr. Balfour's speech contained a terrific denunciation of German unscrupulousness and despotism. The military spirit of Germany, he said, is such that it lasts through generations.

"It is against this danger," said Balfour, "that free people of western civilization are now banded together. In that cause we shall surely conquer. Our children will look back to this date, secure that their civilization is not adapted on German lines, but on Christian spirit."

FINE WEATHER FOR MAY QUEENS JUST OVER THE HORIZON

Special to the Examiner:

TORONTO, May 5.—General clearing of the weather for all Ontario on Sunday, with higher temperature at most points, is promised by the Observatory officials here to-day, with fine warm weather all next week.

MOTHER'S DAY

'A week from to-morrow will be Mother's Day, so next Saturday we will all be looking for a carnation to wear on Sunday, in memory or in honour of "the best mother in the world," as we each devoutly believe our own to be.

The Playground Association will again have for sale plenty of first-class carnations, and will offer them for sale at several centres and on the streets.

If you require a number, leave your order early in the week, and be sure of assisting the best, as these orders will be filled first.

'Phone 551 when leaving order.

PTE. BERT McILMOYLE.

Pte. Bert McIlmoyle, who enlisted in January, 1916 with the Apsley platoon of the 93rd Battalion, and was transferred to the Canadian Mounted Rifles at the front, has been wounded, his name appearing in to-day's list. Pte. McIlmoyle's next of kin, resides at Southey, Sask.

To-day's addition brings the total of Peterborough and immediate district casualties since April 9th up to 122, of which 40 have been killed or died of wounds.

Pte. Lou H. Elliott, who went overseas with the 93rd Battalion and was transferred in a draft to the 21st Battalion, has been invalided to England suffering from bronchitis, and is now in the Special Canadian Hospital at Buxton. In a letter to his wife Mrs. L. H. Elliott, 495 Sherbrooke street, he has great praise for the treatment he is receiving in England. His letter says in part: "I must say I had a nice trip up here. There were three of us. We left Bromley at 10 a.m. and went to St. Pankhurst Station at London. There we were met by two Red Cross women. They took us to a place where we had a swell dinner and from there they took us to our train and arranged for a special apartment, brought us some books to read and blankets to keep us warm, gave us two packages of cigarettes, two packages of gum and a bar of chocolate. When we got to Buxton we were met by the ambulance. That is the best I have been used yet.

Buxton is a fine place and a grand hospital. It is the last place where you get your board before going to Canada if unfit. At the other place they classed me D.I., which means fit for France in six months, but they may change their minds here. There are special mineral baths here and electric baths. I have no idea how long I will be here or where I will go next. I am getting tired of being around. It is about 200 miles from where I was and as cold as winter. There is about three inches of snow on the ground.

I am on the third floor in this big place, a very nice room with four beds in it, and mine was presented by the Bell Telephone operators in Toronto. It is some bed, all white cloths and much better than a shell hole, you can bet."

"Our battalion was in at Vimy Ridge when I came out, right where this last push was made."

A gentleman in Cincinnati employs two negroes to work on his rather extensive gardens, which he personally oversees. One morning Sam did not appear.

"Where is Sam, George?" he asked.

"In de hospital, sah!"

"In the hospital? Why, how in the world did that happen?"

"Well, Sam he been a-tellin' me'y mo'nin' foh ten yeahs, he gwine to kick his wife 'cause o' her waggin'."

"Well?"

"Well, yestiddy, she done orahheah him. Dat's all."

OFFICIAL STATEMENT

LONDON, May 5. — French troops in a new offensive along the Aisne have captured the village of Craonne and the first German line on a front of two and one-half miles north-west of Rheims.

Craonne is at the eastern end of the Vauclere plateau, the scene of much desperate fighting recently, and its possession by the Germans placed a salient in the French line paralleling the Chemin-des-Dames and the Aisne River. The French not only straightened out their line and gained a strategic position for a further advance on the Vauclere plateau, but also took more than 700 prisoners.

Advancing north-west of Rheims on a front of two and a half miles, the French carried the first German line and took 600 prisoners. Craonne is six miles north-west of Berry-au-Bac, which Berlin gives as the western extremity of the French attacking line north-west of Rheims. Berlin asserts that the French attack was repulsed between Berry-au-Bac and Brimont, about six miles north of Rheims.

The text of the statement reads:

"During the day in an operation splendidly carried out we gained possession of the village of Craonne and several points of support east and north of that locality. The number of prisoners accounted for up to the present is 650.

"To the north-west of Rheims, after a heavy artillery preparation, we started this morning an attack, in which our troops have captured the first German line on a front of four kilometres. We have taken about 600 prisoners, including eight officers.

"In the Champagne the artillery fighting has been violent all day in the region to the south and south-west of Moronvilliers. There is nothing to report from the rest of the front."

The afternoon report said: "The night was marked by great activity of the artillery on the front north-west of Rheims. In the Champagne we made new progress in the wood west of Mont Cornillet, and repulsed a grenade attack on one of our small posts. Intermittent artillery fighting occurred south of Moronvilliers.

SURPRISE ATTACKS AT VERDUN.

"On the left bank of the Meuse (Verdun front) two surprise attacks on the German lines, one at Dead Man Hill and the other in Avocourt Wood, enabled us to take prisoners. West of Dead Man Hill we checked a German attack promptly. In Lorraine patrol encounters occurred near Embermenil and Domevre.

"Our pilots brought down five German aeroplanes. Three enemy machines which were reported to have been damaged in the course of engagements on Wednesday were in reality brought down. A German aviator threw down several bombs in the region of Dunkirk. No harm was done."

IRISH QUESTION IS NEARER SETTLEMENT THAN EVER BEFORE

Although All the Difficulties Have Not Yet Been Overcome and There May Be Another Failure Before Thing is Brought to a Conclusion

DIFFERENCES THAT EXIST

By T. P. O'Connor

LONDON, May 5.—There is no doubt in the mind of any thinking man that the Irish question is closer to-day to a settlement than it ever has been before, and that not a great deal of time will now elapse before it will be adjusted. Nevertheless, not all the difficulties have yet been overcome.

Several weeks ago I made a prophesy, and I am more certain now than I was then, even, that it will be fulfilled. I said then that there would be another failure to settle the question, and that after that failure there would come a final act that would bring the entire thing to a conclusion. If the preliminary failure is made, as I believe it will be, it will came because of the differences that exist between the two Irish parties, especially because of the apparent impossibility of reconciling the Ulsterman and the Orangemen, though want of proper firmness on the part of leaders in dealing with all sides will not be without its effect.

Appeals from Everywhere.

Appeals to Great Britain to yield to Ireland the freedom for which she has shed so much of her blood and given so largely of her treasure, are coming from all parts of the civilised world. Especially strong are the appeals from America, free herself and jealous for the freedom of other countries, where it is not impossible that the great government of the United States, now in conference through her highest officials with representatives of England, may take up the question. These expressions of strong desire that Ireland shall be permitted to govern herself, coming at a time when the whole world is engaged in a desperate battle against serfdom, while they have a certain influence on a part of the British Empire, leave both Ulstermen and Orangemen cold—even untouched.

Some Orange organs in Belfast have answered the appeals from America with scorn, and have not hesitated, even, to descend to insult in their fatuousness. They remain immovable up to the present in their demand that six counties be the portion excluded from the home rule that is bound to come, and soon. They are not willing to ask the inhabitants of these counties, by a plebiscite, what are their own views and desires as to their political destinies. A review of the conditions in these counties would readily explain why. Their demand involves the exclusion from the Irish parlia-

WIN-THE-WAR CONVENTION.

There is evidently something wrong with Canada in relation to the work necessary to win the war. Canada has done well, nobly well, in sending soldiers to the front whose splendid gallantry and fruitful sacrifice should be an inspiration to those who are at home equally called upon to do their part—a part as essential as fighting in the ranks. But things seem to have come to a standstill. We need more soldiers, but recruiting has come, virtually, to a humiliating halt. Even the call to enlist in the Canadian Defence Force constitutes no appeal to our young men who for some reason are not aroused by deeds of their fellow Canadians on the battle front, which would almost inspire the dead to emulation and action.

This condition of governmental and popular apathy and inaction has stirred the patriotic to action, not men in authority but true patriots, who seek at once to discover the causes, and devise means to overcome them, and inspire and arouse not only a nation-wide determination to work to winning the war, but a nation-wide co-ordination of effort. The movement has been originated by men who realised that leadership must be found in Canada for a win-the-war campaign. And it was felt that this leadership must be in accord with the spirit of democracy, which demands that the people must do things for themselves; leadership that will represent every section and element, and every province of our Dominion—to develop national unity, the indispensable condition of success.

A national war convention of representative Canadians, a thousand men and women from all the provinces, will assemble at Montreal on May 23rd, 24th and 25th, to take counsel together; as to the position and duty of this country in relation to the war. There will meet representative men and women from all parts of the Dominion with doubtless widely divergent views on national non-essentials but all animated by a common desire to discover the basis upon which Canada as a national unit can throw her united and effectively directed energies into this war, with the object—and result—of winning it.

A foregathering of the clans, with the object of national unity for national service, will help to obscure, allay and kill the political, racial, religious rancours and distrust, that have done so much to deaden the effectiveness of appeal in the interest of this war.

Nothing can be so effective to heal breaches, to wipe out petty differences, and kill prejudices founded upon mutual misunderstandings than personal contact and conference under the inspiration and stimulus of a common citizenship, a common cause and a common danger.

When all dividing causes are removed—fused in the melting pot of a common ambition and object—there must be room for the full play of unhampered patriotic spirit in practical evolution of policy that will centre national resolve and national effort upon the best measures and means of directing all the potential resources of Canada, in manhood, material, in mind and heart, to the work of winning this war.

This movement must not be regarded as a matter of sentiment, but a real practical answer to an urgent need. We need it to stir us all to a realization of the supremely serious character of the situation: to impress our people with a sense of the fact that we at home are as much at war as the Canadians who are fighting and dying on a foreign soil, but as really for our defence and safety if they were shedding their blood on our own soil.

The win-the-war convention will burn into our consciences a fuller realisation of the fact that at the present moment Canada is not doing her part at home; that those who live here in peace and present safety, with smug acceptance of the security others of us are dying for, are not proving ourselves worthy of those who die.

THE GOVERNMENT AND HIGH FOOD PRICES.

Governments are created to do things for the people that give them the power. They are provided with the money, means and the executive machinery to do what is needed to be done in the interests of the people.

Governments are charged with the duty—in a general way—of seeing that a dollar will buy approximately a dollar's worth of food, or other living commodity, and not fifty or sixty cents' worth. We have had high prices come down upon us for a long time. Seven months ago—last November—the Government stirred in its sleep, roused itself long enough to pass an order-in-council respecting food prices, and then went sweetly off to sleep again; for nothing effective has been done under the order-in-council, by which the government eased off all responsibility under its provisions, upon the municipalities, with no organisation or machinery, such as the government possesses, to deal with the high and mounting food prices.

High price oppression seems to be controllable, yet a minister of the government tells us there are a million surplus bushels of potatoes in Ontario above food and seed needs. With that assurance, if the minister is right, it seems wicked to have to pay $1.00 a peck for potatoes. Australia has shown that a government can in the peoples' interests deal effectively with high prices for food.

Instead of putting, as our indifferent—in a double sense—government does, the responsibility upon the municipalities, the Australian government assumes the responsibility and acts up to its assumption—

Under the Australian War Prosecution Price Regulations passed in July, 1916, a commissioner is appointed for each State of the Commonwealth, and a federal commissioner co-ordinates the work. It is provided that the commissioner in any State may recommend that a certain article of food or any other commodity may be declared a necessary commodity under the regulations. Evidence is then taken under oath as to the cost of the raw material, the average cost of distribution, existing wage awards, freight charges and all the factors which govern the actual cost of production and distribution. On this evidence the commissioner then recommends a price, wholesale and retail, at which the commodity is to be sold. With regard to goods imported, the importer is required to produce the original invoices.

By New Year last the Commonwealth of Australia had already succeeded in fixing the price of a large range of commodities, "without subjecting the trading community to any material hardship." Flour sells in Queensland at $9.45 a bag, and in South Australia at $9.95 a bag. (In Winnipeg it is now selling around $6.65 a sack.) Butter all over the Comonwealth sells at 36 cents a pound. Other items on which the prices have been fixed include bran, bread, bacon, biscuits, cheese, cocoa, hams, infants' foods, jam, milk, meats, oatmeal, rolled oats, rice, soups, and the number is being added to every week. Investigation is also being made into boots and shoes.

Australia does something, and tells us—shows us—how to handle the food price situation, as it showed our Nationalist-ridden government how to build and have a national—a home—navy. All our government has done is to pass a useless order-in-council, which is worth than useless, since on the authority of the city solicitor of Montreal, it actually protects price "boosters" by repealing the section of the Criminal Code that makes price manipulation a crime.

The government platitudinously urges the people to greater production and permits manipulation of prices that raises the price of seed potatoes to $5 or $6 per bag, and compels the people to pay unduly high prices; wasting money that could be used for other purposes, in aid of winning the war.

We are told we must not criticise the government—it is unpatriotic when they are crushed with the responsibility arising from the war. But what will you do when the government is neglecting to protect the people in their greatest interests, adequate food supply, at possible prices? And in the greater production campaign, one of the most important elements in the war, is the war campaign that seeks to consolidate national sentiment and procure national coordination.

What Australia has done and is doing, our government can do, and if our government doesn't do it, it is to blame, and will be blamed.

PERHAPS.

Yet it is not likely that the reasons for free wheat are entirely political and economic. Canadians probably feeling less disdainful, more friendly, toward their brothers in arms than they did toward the thirty second cousins that they considered us during our note-writing era.—Buffalo Express.

SALAD DRESSING.

Melted butter the size of a walnut, tablespoon flour, 1-2 cup sugar, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1 egg well beaten, heaping teaspoon mustard, 3-4 cup milk, 1-2 cup vinegar.

Mix melted butter with flour, stir in the mustard, salt and sugar, add beaten egg and milk, blend well and add vinegar slowly, stirring thoroughly. Cook and stir until thickened.

THE WEDDED FLAGS.

Hang out the stripes and stars!
They faced each other fearlessly
In two historic wars.

But now the ocean circlet binds
The bridegroom and the bride;
Old England, young America—
Display them side by side.

High up from Trinity's tall spire
We'll fling the banners out;
Hear how the world-wide welkin rings
With that exultant shout.

Forever wave those wedded flags.
As proudly now they wave!
God for the lands His love has blessed
The beauteous and the brave.

But, see! the dallying wind, the stars
About the cross has blown;
And see again the cross around
The stars its folds has thrown.

Was ever sign so beautiful,
Hung from the heavens abroad?
Old England, young America,
For freedom and for God.

—Harry Kelman in Philadelphia Ledger.

The Relation of Canadian National Unity To Our Helping Win This War

A National War Convention of representative Canadians from all parts of Canada is to meet in Montreal on the 23rd, 24th and 25th of May.

One thousand men and women will gather from all the provinces of Canada to consider the position the country is in with relation to the war—to discuss the situation in an effort to bring about that national unity which in the opinion of every patriotic person, ought to exist during these great days. At a time when all the people as individuals are moved as never before by a common national impulse, it is proposed that people from all the provinces shall meet together, and in honest conference decide upon plans of common action throughout Canada as regards the war, so that those who live may prove themselves worthy of those who die.

Representative men and women from all the provinces will attend this National Convention, bringing together, no doubt, many differing views, but all animated by the one ruling purpose—to discover the basis on which Canada as one united country can throw her energies into the war. It is believed that it will be found that the political and other distrusts which impede national action will be dispelled in honest conference, and that the voice of the country will find earnest expression.

Canada has now been at war for two years and nine months. Twenty thousand Canadians have already made the supreme sacrifice, that we who have remained behind may enjoy, unmolested by Prussian tyranny, the liberties built up through long generations by the two greatest liberty-loving races in the world. Is it not our duty to sink all petty differences, adjust conflicting views, and get together in support of the young men who on land, sea and air are giving their lives? A country that has such men ought to deserve such service as theirs.

One thousand men and women from all the provinces of Canada will meet in non-partizan Convention in Montreal on the 23rd, 24th and 25th of May, to consider ways and means for uniting the whole country on a win-the-war policy.

Advises The Use Of "FRUIT-A-TIVES", The Famous Fruit Medicine.

MR. ROSENBURG
589 Casgrain St., Montreal.

April 20th, 1915.

"In my opinion, no other medicine in the world is so curative for Constipation and Indigestion as "Fruit-a-tives". I was a sufferer from these complaints for five years, and my sedentary occupation, Music, brought about a kind of Intestinal Paralysis—with nasty Headaches, belching gas, drowsiness after eating, and Pain in the Back. I tried pills and medicines of physicians, but nothing helped me. Then I was induced to try "Fruit-a-tives", and now for six months I have been entirely well.

I advise any one who suffers from that horrible trouble—Chronic Constipation with the resultant indigestion, to try "Fruit-a-tives", and you will be agreeably surprised at the great benefit you will receive". A. ROSENBURG.

City Pays For Broom Stock Boys Stole From Yard

Concrete Tank Ordered For Storage of Road Oil—Committee Appointed For Restoration of Court House

City Engineer Parsons reported to the Board of Works last night that a concrete road oil tank with a capacity of 10,000 gallons would cost $520.

"We haven't anything in the appropriations for this," cautioned Ald. Weir.

Ald. Stratton—"We paid $30 demurrage on oil cars last year. The interest on $500 at 5 p.c. is $25. We can save by building a tank at that rate."

Mr. Parsons stated that the city had a three inch pump and could use the cement mixer's motor to empty cars of oil and fill the street sprinkler. The tank should be built and dried for use within six weeks.

Some one advanced the query as to what would happen if the oil that has been ordered arrives in the meantime, but apparently that is a contingency the city will have to meet as they did last year.

City Pays the Account.

The last was heard of the payment of a bill for $33 for a shipment of broom corn which the city had ordered and White Bros. had delivered at the city yard, but which eventually disappeared. Mr. H. Evans stated that small boys had carried it off. Mr. Parsons contended that the liability for the broom rested with the carters and that they should not have left the shipment in the yard until it had been duly received by a city employee. The city had paid the bill and the Board decided to let it go at that. A motion was passed to prevent providing for the future that the railway companies deliver none of the city's goods to carters without an order from a civic official.

"When we get the motor truck we can do our own delivering," said the City Engineer.

J. J. Turner & Sons were given permission to erect a nine inch brick wall at the east and south of their factory and put a roof on it.

J. E. Emmerson presented his claim that the sewer connection at 277 Park street was improperly laid.— Action was deferred.

Court House Committee.

W. A. Anderson, of Otonabee, chairman of the County Council's Special Building committee was present in regard to the restoration of the Court House.

93rd Signs on Streets.

Ald. Worth moved, seconded by Mayor Duffus, that the City Engineer consult with Col. Walker regarding the illuminated street signs of the 93rd Battalion, and if the military authorities have no further use for them that the Engineer have them removed.

City Employee Injured.

A letter was read from the City Engineer reporting that on April 11th Walter Wood, employed by the city, had his left foot injured by a manhole top falling on it.

Ald. Weir was instructed to prepare a box for the Board of Works car and that a cheque for $493 be issued to the Ford Motor Car Co. to pay for it.

Mr. Wm. Henry wrote applying for the position of sewer foreman.

Mr. Parsons reported that the sewer connection to G. L. Hay's house on Hunter street east was properly laid on the street.

Mrs. J. Halpin, Hunter street, wrote that in 1915 the work of blasting ice in the creek had damaged the sidewalk. The Engineer was asked to report.

Water Mains.

The Utilities Commission gave notice of their intention to lay water mains on the following streets, Prince, from Aylmer to George; George, from King Edward to Prince; and Parnell street.

The Engineer was instructed to proceed with the construction of the board work approaching the new C. P.R. footbridge.

Gas Main Extensions.

The Hydro-Electric Power Commission gave notice of its plans to lay gas mains on the following streets:

Union street.

Bethune, 150 ft. south from London.

Stewart, Charlotte to Simcoe.

Stewart, Townsend to Rink.

George, Smith to Argyle.

Argyle, George to Sunnyside.

Sunnyside street to Nicholls Hospital.

King, Rubidge to Reid.

Lane east of Aylmer, between Murray and McDonnel.

Perry, Stewart to Park.

Albert, Park to Alfred.

Alfred, Albert to Chamberlen.

Layfayette avenue.

Jackson avenue.

Elm street, 800 feet west from Park.

Park, Brock to Murray.

Romaine, George to Lock.

George, Romaine to King Edward.

Lock, south from Romaine.

The Engineering Department was reminded to consider the probability of this work when repairing streets.

"No use grading up street," said the Mayor, "only to have them torn up again."

Floor Hunter Street Bridge.

Instructions were given for the reflooring of the Hunter street bridge and the examination of the bolts and braces in the structure with authority to renew those that appear worn and weak.

T. E. Wade, 87 London street, applied for the position of foreman on sewer construction.

R. J. G. Sutherland presented an account for $11 covering the opening of a sewer blocked under the street by roots of trees in front of W. Might's residence, George street. Mr. Parsons was ordered to report.

Gillespie's Garage

New Auto Headquarters For the Studebaker and Maxwell Cars, on Aylmer Street

Peterborough is an ideal place for motor cars. The number of licenses reported for this city will soon be at the thousand mark. New garages are springing up, and "Bowser" tanks are being plentifully planted. Some portions of the city streets are excellent for auto driving; and more are not; but, all the same, the motor car business is booming in Peterborough.

Aylmer street can now boast of a new garage at No. 378, to be known as Gillespie's Garage. It will be the local service station for the two well-known cars Mr. Gillespie is the agent for—the Studebaker and the Maxwell. The new garage will be equipped for motor accessories and repairs, as well as for storage purposes. The building is just now undergoing its final touches of completion, and will prove quite a new accession to this section of Aylmer street.

DESCRIPTION OF TRENCH WARFARE

Woodville Scout Who Has Frequently Visited Peterboro' Writes Interesting Letter

Below will be found an interesting story of trench warfare in Flanders, as described by Scout A. E. Staback, of Woodville, a son of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Staback, and a nephew of Mrs. P. Glover, Ashburnham:

Somewhere in France, March 7.

Dear Sister,—Having a few spare moments, I am going to write a few lines. I have had an attack of trench fever and am at present at the Corps Rest Station. I am better again and expect to be back with the battalion in a few days.

You asked me to give you a sketch on trench life, but I do justice to the subject would not pass the censorship, so I am going to tell you a bit about trench warfare.

The grades of warfare that have been developed since the present war began may be regarded as a series of elaborations and counter elaborations of the problem which begins as a line of trenches behind wire, containing infantry with rifles and machine-guns. Against this an infantry attack, with bayonets, after shrapnel fails. This we call Grade A. To this the offensive replies with improved artillery, and particularly with high explosive shells, instead of shrapnel. By this the wire is blown away, the trench weakened, and the defender held down as the attack charges up. This is Grade B. But now appear the dug-out elaborating, the trench and the defensive battery behind the trench. The defenders, under the preliminary bombardment, get into the dug-outs, and emerge as fresh as paint as the attack comes up. Obviously there is much scope for inventions and contrivance in the dug-out as the reservoir of counter-attacks. Its possibilities have been very ably exploited by the Germans; also the defensive batteries behind, which have, of course, the exact range of the captured trench, concentrate on it and destroy the attack at the moment of victory. The trench falls back to its former holders under this fire and a counter attack. Check again for the offensive. Even if it can take it, it cannot hold a position under these conditions. This we will call Grade A 2, a revised and improved A. What is the retort from the other side? Obviously to enhance and extend the range of the preliminary bombardment behind the actual trench line, to destroy or block, if it can, the dug-outs and destroy or silence the counter-offensive artillery. If it can do that it can go on. Here it is that the aeroplane comes in. From the ground it would be practically impossible to locate the enemy's dug-outs, secondary defence, and batteries. But the aeroplane takes us immediately to a new grade of warfare, in which the location of the enemy's secondary trenches, guns and even machine-gun positions becomes a matter of extreme precision—provided the offensive has gained the command of the air and can send his planes freely over the enemy's lines.

Then the preliminary bombardment becomes of a much more extensive character; the defenders' batteries are tackled by the overpowering fire of guns they are unable to locate and answer; the secondary dug-outs and strong places are battered down. a barrage fire shuts off support from the doomed trenches, the men in the trenches are held down by concentrated fire from all arms, and the attack goes up to hunt them out of the dug-outs and collect the survivors. Until the attack is comfortably established in the captured trench, the fire upon the old counter-attack trench goes on. This is the grade—grade B 2—to which modern warfare has to-day reached, and which is at present being launched on the western front. The appearance of the attack only increases the offensive advantage. There at present warfare rests.

There is, I believe, only one grade higher possible. The success of B 2 depends upon the completeness of the aerial observation. The invention of an anti-aircraft gun which would be practically sure of hitting and bringing down an aeroplane at any height up to 20,000 feet would restore the defensive and establish what, I think, the final grade of trench war, A 3. But at present nothing of the sort exists, and is not likely to for a long time. The only grade of warfare that will finish this war will be a steady offensive for six or eight months, which will completely smash the enemy's fighting powers, and so cripple him from any further attempts of the kind for many generations to come.

This sketch, after reading it over, merely deals with an offensive trench war-fare, and some other time I shall tell you about defensive trench warfare. I have a little write-up I made on two motor trips in Winter France, which I will go over again and send you in a few days.

I remain, your affectionate brother,
"Kelly."

Bathe Internally And Keep Well!

Nature has mightily equipped us all, old and young, to resist disease—but she requires that we give her a chance.

We give her no chance if we permit the Lower Intestines to be more or less clogged with accumulated waste. Yet that is a universal condition to-day, as is proven by the number of laxative drugs that are consumed.

You can help Nature in Nature's most effectual way by Internal Bathing, and in an easy, non-habit-forming way keep the Intestines as sweet and clean as Nature demands it to be for perfect health and surer defence against contagion. Over half a million keen, bright, healthy people testify to its results.

Mrs. C. G. M. (name on request) of Strathroy, Ont., writes:

I am pleased to have this opportunity of testifying to the merits of the J. B. L. Cascade. I have been using it now for a year with satisfactory results. I am an old woman, but my health is so improved that I have a renewed lease of life. You are at liberty to give my address to anyone privately who may desire to write to me regarding the Cascade.

Just call at Warne Drug Co., Peterborough and request free booklet, "Why Man of To-day is Only 60 Per Cent. Efficient." The most efficient device for Internal Bathing. The "J. B. L. Cascade" will also be shown and explained to you if you so desire. If you prefer, write for Booklet to Dr. Chas A. Tyrrell, 163 College street, Toronto.

MYSTERY REMAINS

Shock and Loss of Blood from Fractured Skull but how did he Touch Wire?

GUELPH, May 4.—The Coroner's jury empaneled to inquire into the death of Norman Paul of Toronto, an employee of the substation at Georgetown of the Toronto Suburban Railway, who died in Guelph a few hours after an accident, found that he came in contact with a live wire, death being caused by shock and loss of blood from a fractured skull. How he came to be in a position to touch the live wire will ever remain a mystery. He was not supposed to be near one, but it is believed that he was cleaning up, and either by standing on a bench or by climbing up in some other way to dust the regulator he lost his balance or accidentally his arm came in contact with a high tension, and he was thrown to the cement floor. Mr. Paul was well spoken of by all the witnesses, and there was general regret at the accident.

WOMEN'S AILMENTS

Come From Heart and Nerves

Young girls budding into womanhood, who suffer from pains and headaches, and whose face is pale and blood watery, will find Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills build them up.

Women, between the ages of 40 and 50, who are nervous, subject to hot flushes, feeling of pins and needles, smothering feeling, shortness of the breath, palpitation of the heart, etc., are tided over the trying time of their lives by the use of this remedy.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills have a wonderful effect on a woman's system, making pains and aches vanish, bringing color to the pale cheek, and sparkle to the eye.

The old, worn out, tired out, languid feeling give place to strength and vitality, and life again seems like living.

Mrs. Alfred Winter, Castor, Alta., writes: "I should like every woman who is suffering from nerves or heart trouble to know how much Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills have helped me. For two years I kept a hired girl and was doctoring all the time. After having taken four boxes of your pills I am able to do all my own work. I would especially recommend them to women between 40 and 50, as at that time they are more liable to be far from well. One of my neighbors knows how they helped me, and she is now using them."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c., or three boxes for $1.25, at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

TO SUMMARIZE: During the days just preceding menstruation a woman should take a general warm tub bath. From the onset of menstruation and during the entire course the woman should take a hot Sitz bath several times a day. The greater her heaviness, discomfort, or pain the more frequently she should bathe.

By reason of the close nervous connection between the lower bowel and the uterus, constipation is an important source of menstrual trouble. Probably it is the most important cause of diseases of the uterus, tubes, and ovaries. An overfilled large intestine can cause a feeling of heaviness in the pelvic organs. When to this is added the heavy feeling due to a congested uterus, the sense of heaviness is liable to pass from the bounds of discomfort into the realm of painful or difficult menstruation.

Part of the preparation for menstruation consists in proper attention to the bowels. While the use of cathartics is not approved of, if it is necessary a dose of rhubarb, cascara, or even oil should be taken. In most cases of moderate constipation a warm water enema will suffice. Some women have an idea that purgatives and enemas should not be given during menstruation. This idea is wholly erroneous. It is much more important that the bowels should be kept open during menstruation than at any other time. If there is any reason for its use there should be no hesitation in taking a warm water enema and repeating it as often as desired. In fact, the effect on the uterus of warm water in the lower intestine is to stimulate that muscular rhythm which makes for ease and comfort.

The drug which I use for a uterine tonic is quinine. It is far superior to gin or any other alcoholic beverage as a regulator of the pains and discomforts of menstruation. I use quinine as a part of the preparation for menstruation of all patients. I advise that two grain capsules be kept at hand and that they be taken rather at random, according to the degree of discomfort. Quinine answers all the purposes of alcohol, with, perhaps, the exception of rapidity of action. It is much more constant in its effects, much more lasting, and gives a permanent tone. I regard it almost as a specific.

Emotions and all outside stimuli play an important role in the menstrual behavior, especially emotions based on sex affairs. Fright, fear of pregnancy, and desire for pregnancy play a great part in irregularities. Fatigue, when through the emotions, is more responsible for dysmenorrhea and menorrhagia than work, long hours, or unsanitary surroundings of the worker. Emotions have their value, especially vital emotions, and should not be annihilated, but trained and checked. In fact, work—hard work and plenty of it, if the worker likes it or finds through it a means to an end—is the paramount factor which will finally obtain for woman the unconscious control of her physical forces and add to her energy for the mental and cultural side of life—of which man has no monopoly.

A correspondent, after reading the foregoing, writes to the paper as follows:

"I was much interested in your series of articles regarding preparation for menstruation and give my experience. For years I had stayed home from business one or two days each month, stayed in bed and felt miserable. Not long ago I was given a considerable increase in salary, but was told that these absences from the office were inconvenient, and it would be appreciated if I would try not to absent myself.

"I decided that I would try to adjust myself so that I need not be away from the office during these periods. I started in by taking a good physic several days before the menstrual period. I forced myself to go to the office and found that by keeping on my feet and being as active as possible I felt better.

"I decided to bathe once a day during the period, and found, to my surprise, that the baths made me feel better instead of injuring me, as I had been taught to believe. It is now almost a year since I have been away from the office during these periods. I follow the above plan and it has worked, and I shall add some of the suggestions contained in your articles and think I shall be helped even more.

"My mind is occupied with my work, and even if I do not work up to full efficiency, I am at my place of business, earning my salary, and feel better than when staying at home in bed with the hot water bottle."

HOUSES ARE SCARCE IN THE SOUTH WARD

Manufacturers Find It Difficult to Hold Men or Bring in Additional Labour on Account of the Housing Problem "Rents Are Too High" Say Manufacturers.

The scarcity of houses in the south end of the city has reached an acute stage. The problem has been somewhat intensified by the industrial expansion of the past two years. Manufacturing plants located in the south end of the city find it difficult to employ men owing to the scarcity of houses. A few of the manufactures who were queried in regard to the matter, expressed themselves in the following terms:

ARE PROPERTY OWNERS.

Mr. G. Gladman, of the William Hamilton Company—"I think we are exceptional inasmuch as most of our employees own their own houses, also for the reason that we are not bringing in much labour. From what I can learn houses are pretty scarce."

RENTS TOO HIGH.

Mr. James Hamilton, of the Peter Hamilton Company, Ltd.—"We have had no difficulty so far as the housing problem is concerned. One thing I do know, and that is some of the rents being asked workingmen, are absurd. They cannot afford to pay them."

NOT EFFECTED.

Mr. J. W. Worth, of the Bonner-Worth Company, Ltd.—"We are not effected by the housing problem as we employ mostly female labour."

MEN REFUSE TO COME.

Mr. E. G. Patterson, of the Canadian General Electric Company.—"We find it difficult to get men on account of the housing problem. Men want to know what house rents they will have to pay before they decided to come to Peterborough. In many cases they refuse to come owing to the high rents and the scarcity of houses."

TERRACE CONSTRUCTION.

Mr. W. R. Breyfogle, of the De Laval Dairy Supply Company—"We have had four or five families that we have been unable to locate owing to the scarcity of houses. In one case we had to store a man's goods in the factory. A solution of the problem would be the erection in the south end of the city of a number of terraces. This would save walls and reduce the cost of construction. Each house would have about five rooms. They would be near the river and the occupants could have plenty of fresh air and all the advantages that go with being outdoors. Each of the houses should contain all conveniences and should net ten per cent. on the investment. Owing to the present high cost of construction, terraces should be considered. They could be made pleasing in appearance and would include provisions for a garden both back and front. The high cost of building material will prevail long after the war. The high prices are not going to slump down as soon as the war is over. There is too much to be done. Industrial expansion is impossible unless some means are adopted to accommodate the workingman. The first thing a prospective manufacturer does when he comes to the city is to look into the housing conditions. If he finds them inadequate he will naturally go elsewhere."

TWO CLASSES OF TERRACES.

The foregoing in a general way, summarizes the situation. In advocating the construction of terraces, Mr. Breyfogle was careful to differentiate between terraces that are outwardly pleasing in appearance as well as comfortable to live in, and terraces that are an eyesore to the community. Peterborough has both varieties.

"John, I, too, am going to scrap some old 'machinery,' install new, and make my workshop efficient."

"Yes? And what's the new equipment?"

"A gas range that has big capacity built into compact space; that has everything at the right height to work without stooping; that burns the economical real 'blue flame'; and has an oven with glass front so you don't waste heat and spoil a cake just to see how it's doing."

"A millennial dream, Margaret."

"No, indeed! Mrs. Naybor has one—a McClary's." 35

ment of the counties of Fermanagh and Tyrone, though in them the people are for home rule by a decisive majority. If the question were placed before these counties, and the result determined by their vote, there is no question but that they would stand, as they have always stood, for release from the British Crown. Two of the other counties are Derry and Armagh, where the Orangemen are in the majority, it is true, but by such a small percentage as to justify the hope of the minority that they also would be carried away by the flowing tide that is in favour of home rule, and an early settlement of the vexed question.

The Chief Delay.

The chief delay at this juncture is the Government making a statement of its proposals is largely due to the vain efforts of Lloyd-George to break down this obstinate Orange attitude of opposition. The Premier seems to be unable to appreciate that these people are irreconcilable, and that all he can do, and all time can effect, will have no good result. Some say that Carson is to blame for the delay, and that to convert him is Lloyd George's chief difficulty; but this is an erroneous supposition. Carson is just now too much absorbed in his own difficulties, and those of his department, too intense in his determination to win the war and to impress upon every good patriot that this is his first duty, to push the Ulster claims, even, beyond the absolute necessities of the case.

On the other hand, he is too closely bound to the Orangemen not to feel that he is bound to stand by whatever demands they may make, even though he may consider them unreasonable. Again, while Carson's presence in the ministry is not vital to Lloyd George's position there, which now depends mainly upon Unionist support, might be seriously menaced if Carson should resign. The difficulty on the other side is that there is still violent unrest in Ireland, partly due to the continuation of the resentment which produced the rebellion a year ago, and partly to the very slow dying down of the anger created by the executions that followed it. There is still a further difficulty in that partition in any shape or form has grown more than ever distasteful since the negotiations of last July. The idea of partition, also has found strong opposition in a new group of young Tories who are one of the strongest of the new forces on the side of home rule.

Apart, therefore, from the insistent necessity there was for him to go to France to consult the leaders over there on the war. Lloyd George must have found not a little relief in leaving the question behind him, and getting a little breathing time in which to discover a means for escape from the morass of the difficulties that surround him.

A Change in the Act.

Whatever may be the immediate result, there will certainly be a change made in the finance Home Rule Act, which enlarges enormously the liberties originally conferred. By that act Ireland's increased war taxation has freed her from a deficit of 2,000,000 pounds, which she owed annually to the Imperial Exchequer, representing the difference between the cost of government and the yield of the Irish taxes. This balance being against Ireland, the result was that there was imposed in the Home Rule Act great restrictions against Ireland controlling her own finances. With the disappearance of this deficit, naturally, the restrictions must also disappear, and so the new proposals will confer practical and physical autonomy in fiscal matters.

The Ulster problem, however, remains unsolved. Escape may be found in county option, bringing about a plebiscite, which would certainly result in the excluded territory being limited to four, perhaps even three, counties. This, or any other form of partition, however, cannot be approved, cannot be accepted, by the Irish party, unless three conditions arise. The first of these is that it shall be imposed upon them by the overwhelming voice of the Imperial party. The second, that it shall be made clear that the expedient is merely temporary, and the third that Irish opinion shall indicate clearly a readiness to allow their representatives to try this unpromising experiment.

Thus, it must be apparent, the situation remains difficult and uncertain; but I am convinced that the world forces, especially the strength of American unanimity, will compel an early settlement. Nevertheless, the friends of Irish liberty and of cordial cooperation between America and the Allies, ought not to relax their efforts to induce the warring parties to close for all time this disastrous controversy.

"The Whip" Sensational Motion Picture Thriller

The big audience which saw the sensational film play "The Whip," at the Grand Opera House last night, got a good many thrills in the course of the wonderful picture. Although not on as large a scale as "The Birth of a Nation," "The Whip" is more exciting than that famous film, and last night's audience enjoyed every minute of the picture which is an elaboration of the Drury Lane melodrama of the same name.

"The Whip" has all the elements of a sensational film success. There is action galore, a logical and well connected plot, a pretty love story, a pair of "villianous" villians, and a series of thrill after thrill. The photograph throughout is wonderful.

The feature is a most realistic railway accident, in which the Saratoga Express, going a mile a minute, crashes into a freight car. The collision is said to be the limit in realism, and incidentally the most costly single scene in the history of filmdom. With the aid of the effects behind the scenes around the picturesque Saratoga equally exciting is the smashup of a racing automobile while a race between a fast train and a motor car thrilled the audience. The scenes around the pictures give Saratoga race track and the running of the Saratoga handicap are wonderful and the reproduction of a big fox hunt a splendid piece of photography.

"The Whip" will be repeated tonight, and there should be a capacity audience to see this wonderful film story.

Laugh When People Step On Your Feet

Try this yourself then pass it along to others, it works!

Ouch ! ? ! ? ! ! This kind of rough talk will be heard less here in town if people troubled with corns will follow and simple advice of this Cincinnati authority, who claims that a few drops of a drug called freezone when applied to a tender, aching corn stops the soreness at once and soon the corn dries up and lifts right out without pain.

He says freezone is an ether compound which dries immediately and never inflames or even irritates the surrounding tissue or skin. A quarter of an ounce of freezone will cost very little at any drug store but is sufficient to remove every hard or soft corn or callus from one's feet. Millions of American women will welcome this announcement since the inauguration of the high heels.

A TRIBUTE TO PTE. W. J. CARRUTHERS

The above is a portrait of Pte. William J. Carruthers, of Peterborough, who went overseas with the 80th Battalion in beginning of 1916, and who died of wounds at No. 33 Charing Hospital, France, April 11th, 1917.

Private Carruthers, after reaching England, chose the most dangerous part of modern warfare. He served in bomb throwing at the front, was a scout in the forward intelligence part of the lines, and was for some time charged with the duty of placing fresh troops in the strategic and most dangerous sections of the line. Many who knew of his work, wondered that he had not even previously been the victim of the sniper bullet. His letters to his home, and to his many friends aways showed that when he chose to enlist he was then in the game to play it to the end. His quiet Christian spirit, his affectionate love for home and native land, developed the character and courage of the true soldier that held fast under the hardship of military service, and that gladly made the supreme sacrifice in death for the noble cause to which he had so freely given his life. His place is vacant in home, Sunday school, Y.M.C.A. and church, but he still lives in the memory of loved ones and friends as a splendid type of our Canadian Christian young manhood. He with many others has fallen as the corn of wheat, to die; but not to abide alone. The future home, church and national life of our people must gather the fruitage in the larger day of the world's history, yet to be written when war will be impossible and world brotherhood the law of nations.

The accompanying is a resolution passed at a special meeting of the Trustee and Quarterly Boards of the George street Methodist church, Sunday, April 22nd, 1917:

To Mr. and Mrs. George C. Carruthers:

The Trust and Quarterly Boards of the George street Methodist church, Peterborough, deeply deplore the death of your beloved son, William J. Carruthers, at the battle front in France. In deepest sympathy they tender you their respectful condolence in this, your dark hour. Just attaining his early manhood, a year ago he volunteered his services in defence of his country, and in defence of liberty, justice and honour. It was an heroic act—a hero's sacrifice even unto death. He is not lost, God who planted the noble motive accepts the offering. Let his name be graven in the list of noble Canadians who have died for their country; and let the page of history that records the deeds of her immortals be to all Canadians the proudest record in their nation's story and an inspiration to all future generations. On behalf of the church:

R. G. Peever, Pastor.

D. W. Dumble, Secretary.

A WEAK CHESTED BOY.

"My daughter suffered from inflamed eyelids and croupe on her head," writes Mr. H. W. Lear, Port Planford, Nfld. "The child was in a bad state and suffered greatly. The doctor failed to help her and on recommendation of a friend I used Dr. Chase's Ointment, which made a complete cure. With a grateful heart write you this letter."

Anniversary Services Of St. Paul's Church Will Be Held To-morrow

Rev. R. B. Cochrane, M.A., of Toronto Will Conduct the Services—It is Eighty-three Years Since the Formal Organization of the Congregation Took Place.

The anniversary services of St. Paul's church will be conducted to-morrow by the Rev. R. B. Cochrane, M.A., of Toronto. Mr. Cochrane is a son of the late Dr. Cochrane, minister for many years of Zion church, Brantford, and one of the most outstanding figures in the Presbyterian church in Canada. Mr. Cochrane's first charge was Knox church, Woodstock. He has been in his present field of labour, College street Presbyterian church, for two years, and during that time has proven himself a worthy successor of his distinguished father. He has preaching gifts of a high order, and the members and adherents of St. Paul's church may look for a profitable day on the occasion of their anniversary.

ST. PAUL'S CHURCH.

It is eighty-four years since the Rev. J. M. Roger, first minister of the congregation, and for forty years its pastor, arrived in Peterborough and began to minister to the spiritual needs of the Presbyterians in the community. The formal organization of a congregation did not take place until the 12th of October of the following year, 1834. A grant was made of a lot on which to build a church in 1835, and in 1836 a substantial stone church was erected on the site on which St. Andrew's church now stands. The congregation has had only three ministers in the 84 years of its history, Rev. J. M. Roger, who ministered to them 42 years, Rev. Dr. Torrance, who served them 31 years, and the present minister, Rev. R. Pogue, who is now in the tenth year of his pastorate. The membership of the congregation is over one thousand, while 430 families claim St. Paul's as their church home. Some idea of the work which the congregation is doing may be gathered from the amount of money which it raised last year for all church purposes and for Missions and Benevolences. The financial summary, as given in their annual report, which is just published, shows a total of $19,320 for the year 1916. The only indebtedness on the property is $6,600. The managers have asked for an offering to-morrow of $1,600 and they fully expect to receive this amount.

Peterborough Y.M.C.A. Is Second For Canada In The Hexathlon Contest

The results of the Boys' International Hexathlon athletic contest have just been published. In this event the Peterborough Y.M.C.A. made a very fine showing, standing in ninth place and second in Canada As the local Association is in Class "A" in the competition this is a fine record. 6407 boys competed altogether in Class "A". Peterborough's team consisted of 108 boys.

New York Association won the Class "A" competition, with 21,767 points; the next highest Associations were:

Hamilton, Ohio.
Chicago, Illinois.
Honolulu, Hawaii.
Morristown, N. J.
New York City, (Bronx Union).
Toronto, Ont., (West End).
Houston, Texas.
Peterborough, Ont.
Buffalo, N. Y., (Central).
Eau Clare, Wis.
Atlanta, Georgia.
Toronto, (Central Department) finished fifteenth, and Hamilton, Ontario, thirty-second.

The Class "A" competition includes all Associations with a boys' membership over 250. Many larger cities are in Class "B" owing to the fact that the boys' membership is not 250. London, Ontario, is one of these cities. This fact speaks well for the membership of the local Association. 2868 boys competed altogether in the three classes and 82 associations.

HONOUR ROLL WILL BE READ

The names of the men overseas from All Saints' Church will be read at the service to-morrow evening. The object is to remember them individually and to give their relatives and friends an opportunity of joining with the rest of the congregation in prayer for each. The Rector will preach a sermon appropriate to the occasion.

Prayers Next Sunday For Lusitania Day

NEW YORK — Telegrams urging prelates throughout the United States to call for special Lusitania memorial prayers and sermons in their churches next Sunday have been sent out by the American Defence Society. Monday next will be the anniversary of the sinking of the Cunarder, in which 114 Americans lost their lives.

Telegraphic appeals were sent, among others, to Cardinals Farley, O'Connell and Gibbons, the Right Rev. Daniel Tuttle (presiding Bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Church), Bishop David H. Greer, several Roman Catholic Archbishops, and John R. Mott, Secretary of the International Committee of the Y.M.C.A.

Its Easy To Peel Off All Your Freckles

The contrast between the freckles and the clear skin usually is so great that no bleach can be more than partially successful in obliterating the disfigurements. Ordinary mercolized wax is far better; it literally peels off the freckles. Get an ounce of it at the nearest drugstore and to-night spread on enough to completely cover your face, remove in the morning with warm water. Repeat daily until every freckle has disappeared.

Rough, blotchy, pimpled skin, also common at this season, may be entirely gotten rid of by this same method, without discomfort or inconvenience. The effort is decidedly worth while, the new complexion obtained being so clear, smooth and youthful.

If bothered with wrinkles or crowsfeet, bathe the face in a lotion made by dissolving an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half pint of witch hazel. This is the most effective and quickest acting wrinkle treatment known. It is perfectly harmless.

Girl Severely Bitten By Dog

Dr. C. H. Amys, the Medical Officer of Health, was called to McMartinville yesterday afternoon to attend a little girl who was severely bitten by a dog. A portion of the flesh was torn out by the animal. Steps have been taken to round up the dog and have it confined for the prescribed period for rabies.

FRECKLE-FACE

SUN AND WIND BRING OUT UGLY SPOTS—HOW TO REMOVE EASILY.

Here's a chance, Miss Freckle-face, to try a remedy for freckles with the guarantee of a reliable dealer that it will not cost you a penny unless it removes the freckles; while if it does give you a clear complexion the expense is but trifling.

Simply get an ounce of othine — double strength—from any druggist, and a few applications should show you how easily it is to rid yourself of the homely freckles and get a beautiful complexion. Rarely is more than one ounce needed for the worst case.

Be sure to ask the druggist for the double strength othine as this is the prescription sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freckles.

Auburn Woollen Mills Gives Ten Per Cent. Raise To Employees

Also Prepares Land and Gives Potatoes to the Men as a Contribution to Greater Production Movement

The Auburn Woollen Mills Company has joined the greater food production movement in an extensive and practical manner by which the plan to provide a considerable supply of potatoes for their employees. The company has taken the field immediately east of the factory, between it and the Golf Links, has plowed and harrowed the three and one-half acres and is purchasing the seed which it is giving free to the employees who desire to take advantage of this offer. An employee of the factory stated that the land appeared to be of the best quality for potato growing, and that already twenty-five men had taken hold of the scheme determined to put in the crop and cultivate it. The preparation of the land has been in progress during the past week, and the seed is expected to arrive within a short time. There is no doubt that the lot will produce ordinarily favourable conditions a far greater crop than the present twenty-five men will require during the coming winter. In fact this employee expressed the belief that there might be sufficient for most of the families represented at the mill. This, however, will depend upon the season and the size of the crop.

SALARIES INCREASED.

The company has also the salaries of all the employees increased ten per cent. This advance applies to the heads of the department in addition to all the help, and is only one of a series of increases that have been made during the past two years. Some of the employees have had their wages raised four and five times and have been as busy practically to the capacity production of the factory.

Ministers Approve Sunday Work

GALT, May 5.—The question of securing temporary partial suspension of the Lord's Day Act to permit townspeople and farmers to work in their gardens and on farms on Sundays to help in the increased production campaign, came up at the board of trade meeting tonight. Representatives of the ministerial association were present and expressed their sympathy with the suggestion that people work on lands Sunday afternoons. A resolution endorsing the suggestion was passed and a copy will be forwarded to the Dominion government.

Meeting Of The Finance Committee

Committee Recommend the Sale of $90,000 Worth of Debentures

At a meeting of the Finance Committee yesterday it was decided to recommend to the Council that the Committee be given authority to sell $90,000 Hydro Electric debentures to pay for last year's sewer construction. Tenders will be asked for for the sale of the debentures.

City Solicitor Gordon advised that the lot belonging to D. W. Dumble, south of Smith street, and wrongly described as south of Edinburgh street, cannot be sold for arrears of taxes. It was decided the arrears should be written off.

An account from Crown Attorney G. W. Hatton, for $38.65, for cases in the police court, under the Ontario Temperance Act will be referred to the City Solicitor for his opinion.

Hospital Reports.

Reports from the hospitals on indigent patients, were read:

Several accounts were read. The Chairman will examine and report for payment for funds. A bond for the tax collector will be procured from Hill, Weddell and Co.

The City Clerk was given authority to purchase a wide carriage typewriter for Utilities and City Clerk's office.

A cheque for $583 will be issued to Mrs. Helen Francais on account of interest on arrears of taxes. Through a misunderstanding her taxes were paid May 1st, instead of before that date.

GENUINE LEATHER

Studebaker bodies are upholstered with genuine leather, and it is of high grade quality—the same that you find on cars costing from $500.00 to $1000.00 more than Studebaker cars.

It is soft, pliable, durable, fast-colored, and it will not work off, scale, crumble or check. We describe this leather to you because it shows the quality of material that Studebaker uses in the construction of its car.

Expense has not been spared to cheapen the car in any particular. It is distinctly a high-grade, fine automobile. Your comfort, your safety, your pride, have all been considered in the design and construction of both the FOUR and SIX.

$3,900,000 ONTARIO'S WAR TAX, BUT HAS SPENT $4,100,000

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

TORONTO, May 5.—Provincial Treasurer McGarry announced to-day that the Provincial government had up to January last, collected three million nine hundred thousand of the one mill war tax on municipalities, and had spent four million one hundred thousand, including one million to Canadian Patriotic Fund.

Many Citizens Are Co-operating For Potato Growing

There are many indications that the public is gradually rousing itself to the urgency of becoming producers this summer. A partial list of the more ambitious schemes, most of them cooperative, is as follows:

18 acres of potatoes by W. J. Oke.

4 acres of potatoes by the Auburn Woollen Mills employees.

30 acres, probably all potatoes, by employees of the C. G. E. Co.

1 acre, mostly potatoes, by six employees of the Bell Telephone Co.

In addition to these activities the Brinton Carpet Company's land has been cultivated in preparation for planting. Mr. Brank was out of the city to-day and it was unknown whether vegetables or grain would be planted. There are at least six or seven acres in the lot.

The Henry Hope Company have broken up a field of considerable acreage, and this, too, will be sodded for and by the employees.

This is a fairly encouraging summary, but it should be larger. There is in some quarters a narrow attitude expressed in the following incident. A man who had reported his garden plowed said he had it all ready for seeding.

"I suppose you will plant it in potatoes," said a friend.

"What kind of nut do you take me for," was the answer; "buying seed at $5 a bag when I can get a cellar full next winter for 50 cents a bag?"

Men who have their fingers on the market pulse fail to see much amelioration of the potato situation for the next year or two. If the United States has a big crop and the duty is removed it will help the Canadian market, but this is doubly hypothetical.

One citizen said this: "If Walter Oke thinks it worth while planting eighteen acres, I want to put in a piece of a lot anyway."

Said another: "I've come to realize that if I produce five or six bags I won't have to buy them, and some one else can get them. The price may go down, but I hope it does, for I shall feel that I helped to push it down. I'd like to see potatoes down to $1.00 a bag next winter, but I haven't any hopes of it. I am going to feel better with a hoe this summer than I did with my "driver" on the links last summer. I am going to feel better physically and morally, because I see that this is really a duty."

Around the city, these afternoons, women are seen in all directions out in their gardens with spade and fork, bending over the freshly turned earth. All this work should bring the desired result of increasing the production of vegetables.

Chemong Bridge Not Repaired Until Next Week

BRIDGENORTH, May 5.—The Chemong bridge will not be restored until some time next week, owing to the amount of repairs that are required to make it safe for traffic. There is a large number of young cattle and colts to go to the ranches that cannot be got until the bridge is repaired. James Grant, the caretaker, is making all the haste he can, but labour is very scarce.

Andy Jobe, our popular Postmaster, has invested in a Ford car. It will be a great convenience for him to run to the city for supplies.

The residents of the Village are not making much headway with the gardening as it is nearly impossible to get a team to do the plowing. Some are spading their gardens.

Potatoes are scarce and high-priced. Some are wondering where they are going to get seed.

The spring is late and cold. As a result the farmers are not making much progress in getting their seeding done. No heat and no sunshine, every day a dull day.

On account of the cold and windy weather this spring the lunge got in and out again as there was no chance to do any spearing, and, as the water is keeping high it is good for the spawn. If the water goes down and it is left on dry land the spawn never hatches.

Wallace Nichols, while working in Bradley's saw mill, come in contact with a circular saw, and the result [illegible] his arm. Dr. Mann attended his injuries.

New Song By Mr. Dela Fosse and Mr. Huycke

The following words, written by Mr. F. M. Dela Fosse, who has contributed, from time to time, to the columns of the local press, have been set to music by Mr. Asa Huycke. The subject will explain itself. The song is being copyrighted and is in process of publication:

TO A FALLEN HERO.

In glory thou has passed, my noble brother,
On foreign soil thy form lies cold and still,
Where, thick as leaves, amid the stench and smother,
Lads staunch and true as thou, the valleys fill.

No more we'll hear thy laughing lips deliver
The British jest, the sally fraught with glee,
Thy voice is silent as the silent river
That bore thy spirit to the tideless sea.

Tears unavailing flow, and heart-strings tighten,
For women weep, and strong men bow in pain;
Yet, through the clouds, soon shall the morning brighten;
For, steadfast soul, thou has not fought in vain.

Whilst countless thousands, rich, or wise, or clever,
Their selfish years lived out, unloved, depart;
Yet, thee, nor wrack nor ruin shall dissever
From the warm love that stirs thy country's heart.

Ham Canapes.—Take slices of bread half an inch thick, cut into rounds with a biscuit cutter, brown on both sides in melted butter. Put some cold cooked ham through food chopper, season with white pepper, moisten with a little milk, mix well, spread on the friend bread. Sprinkle over with grated cheese and bake in hot oven until cheese is melted. Serve on hot platter. Garnish with slices of hard boiled eggs.

U. S. SHIP BILL GIVES PRESIDENT THE WIDEST POWERS

Special to the Examiner:

WASHINGTON, May 5.—Yielding to international pressure for ships, even more ships, the Administration prepared its new bill, authorizing President Wilson to take over all ship yards in the country and materials used in the construction of vessels. It will be introduced in Congress on Monday, Senator Fletcher stated to-day.

Fletcher's bill, according to the author, is the most drastic of its kind ever presented to Congress. It will empower the President to commandeer not only all ship yards, but steel, lumber and everything else entering into the construction of the ships. The work itself will eventually fall into the hands of the government Shipping Board as directing head of the great work. Gen. Goethals will be in charge of the actual construction work.

Safe By 10 Feet

Mr. and Mrs. Hilford Have Narrow Escape When "Rochambeau" is Nearly Torpedoed

Mr. A. J. Johnston this morning received a telegram from his son-in-law Mr. Hilford telling of their arrival in Spain on their way to Sierra Leone, Africa.

They sailed from New York on the French liner, Rochambeau. The cable message says "safe by ten feet" which evidently shows they escaped being hit by a torpedo by a very small margin. From Spain they take boat at Cadiz for the remaining half of their journey.

"THE GREEK SLAVE"

The advance announcements for the production of the famous musical comedy, entitled "The Greek Slave," are in circulation. The 24th and 25th of May have been fixed as the dates of its rendition, in the Grand Opera House. The public will be again indebted to Mr. R. J. Devey for the presentation of this spirited musical treat—he having generously undertaken the task on behalf of the Canadian Kitchener League, for the benefit of whose funds the proceeds are to be applied. The Peterborough Operatic and Dramatic Company will be represented by 70 performers in this production.

Find Way To Stop The Subs.

Special to the Examiner:

NEW YORK, May 5.—A practical means of successfully combatting the submarine menace has been found, W. L. Saunders, Chairman of the Naval Consulting Board, announced here to-day. The plan is based on experiments which have been in progress for some time. It is known that Thomas E. Edison and many other distinguished scientists have been working on this problem night and day for some months.

TRY A LITTLE SALTS IF KIDNEYS AND BLADDER ARE TROUBLING YOU

SALTS FLUSHES KIDNEYS WITHOUT INJURY; ALSO NEUTRALIZES URIC ACID, ENDING IN BLADDER IRRITATION.

Kidney and Bladder weakness result from uric acid, says a noted authority. The kidneys filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder where it often remains to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread, the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very profuse; again, there is difficulty in voiding it.

Bladder weakness, most folks call it because they can't control urination. While it is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful this is really one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Get about four ounces of Jad Salts from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast; continue this for for two or three days. This will neutralise the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs, which then act normally again.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary troubles caused by uric acid irritation. Jad Salts is splendid for the kidneys and causes no bad effects whatever.

Service That Develops Capacity To Serve

Is the Church of to-day capable of more and better work than it has accomplished in the past?

It is important for us to decide whether the work is to be what it should be, or whether we will just let it drift.

Permitting the social barque to drift down stream insures flabby ideas and weak morals.

A hard pull against the current will develop manhood, and increase the qualities for harder tasks.

Unless the world to-day takes its responsibility seriously and works earnestly, there is calamity ahead.

The weaker things of the world must be drilled into a great working force for the doing of bigger duties.

Foolish ideas must be reorganized into something worth while in order to help in accomplishing the great tasks before us.

To take hold of the responsibility of the present and make it stand out for future good should be the thought uppermost!

Carelessness and indifference will produce weakness and inability; being awake to the need and stirring in our deeds, insures better qualities of endeavor and better results.

The worth whiles of life must be marshalled into a mighty force to battle with the evils of the day.

Drilling our talents and appreciations into something constantly higher and better will produce that which is satisfying.

Each day declares its own need; and each man, facing that need, is certainly able to perform his own part.

What can we do to make life better in the community if we neglect the possibilities of sharing in all that is good?

How can we lift the community to a better standard if we are careless of the standard already recognized?

The Church is the going concern through which the efforts of to-day will benefit the children of to-morrow.

Those who realize this need will respond to the responsible work of development to a large usefulness.

We need the Church because of what it means to us; we must stimulate the same appreciation in others.

To-day is the day of effort: the time of trial; the hour of accomplishing. How are we helping in the big task?

There never was a better time for activity. There never was a better place for personal work. The Church wants YOU!

"God hath chosen the foolish things of the World to confound the wise; and God hath chosen the weak things of the World to confound the mighty."

LITERARY & RAMBLES

THE BATTLE OF DORKING

Comparatively few of the present generation have heard of the once famous article that appeared in Blackwood's Magazine entitled "The Battle of Dorking." It was considered for some time to have been the work of Colonel Hamley, a well-known military writer of the period, but finally it was discovered to have been written by Sir George Chesney, at that time (1871) President of the Royal Engineering College at Cooper's Hill, Staines. The article is a remarkable one from the fact that it so closely foretold the means by which Germany would attempt to vanquish England. It sold at first in sixpenny pamphlet form and considerably more than 100,000 copies were sold. It was an attempt to awaken England from her dream of security and it certainly did succeed in making a very large number keenly alive to a sense of the coming danger. But it did not succeed in making Mr. Gladstone anxious. On the contrary, he inveighed against it in the bitterest terms, saying that such publications made England ridiculous in the eyes of the world, and tended to the expenditure of public money. In a speech at Whitby, he declaimed thus: "Let this old England, let this United Kingdom place her trust in Providence." Later on at Greenwich, being still worked up by the furore that the book was creating, he declared that he regarded such writers with less toleration than if they had been disseminating small-pox or the cattle plague. "It would be less criminal," he said, "to perpetrate the monstrous atrocity of spreading a contagious disease than to suggest that foreign powers may, perhaps, entertain designs incompatible with peace." Some of us may think, not altogether without reason, that a man who could be so blind to the short-comings of human nature as exemplified in potentates and governments, as to deliberately leave England an easy prey to their cupidity, was not altogether the man to whom her destiny could be safely entrusted, and that it could not have been entirely without reason that Lord Palmerston once passed this dictum upon him, "That young man will ruin England and die in a mad-house."

It is interesting to note that the Spectator of that day upheld the writer of the Battle of Dorking and said that there was nothing impossible in the picture that he had conjured up, but that instead of torpedoes being the weapons by which England's fleet would be brought low it would probably be by barrels of nitro-glycerine thrown by catapults on to the decks of the war-ships.

The account is presumed to have been passed about 1925, and the action to have taken place about fifty years before, that is, about nine years after the Franco-Prussian war, at which time the writer thought Germany would consider herself strong enough to make her bid for world—is well worth reading. The Library is lucky enough to possess two copies of Blackwood's Magazine containing this article and they are, of course, at the service of anyone who would care to read them.—F.M.D.

CLOSING WEEKLY MARKET LETTER

A Week's Lapse of Time Has Brought Wall Street Face to Face With Hugeness of War Problem

A week's lapse of time has brought Wall street face to face with the hugeness of the task which confronts the country in its war against Germany. The first section of $2,000,000,000 of the great war loan was announced over night and stocks began to fall off on evident liquidation, preparatory to taking the new bonds. Bankers privately spoke with some misgivings as to the task then they said it was bound to be a great success. Already the response from the country has been considerable and there seems to be no doubt that it will be over subscribed. Under such circumstances the effect on sentiment should be decidedly favourable, and it should help the stock market. Meanwhile Congress will hurry through war legislation and we shall soon know the amount of the taxes. These things out of the way, there will be room for a moderate forward movement in stocks. The basis for such a market lies in a measure in the enormous expenditures for supplies. These will benefit a great many concerns. The latest information is that good prices will be paid and that our government is preparing to act in unison with the Allies in such purchases. The United States, it appears, will be the buying agents. Thus, there will be no confusion, but all proceedings will be along similar lines. One motive in adopting this course is to do as little as possible to disturb business. Success in financing the war depends upon keeping people cheerful and optimistic. Taking this view, we think it is only a question of a short time before stocks will begin to move upward.

Freight Rates.

In due time the railroads are expected to secure a moderate advance in freight rates and this should help sentiment, but the market leaders, for the time being, will probably be in the industrial group. The steel stocks will be obvious leaders. These companies' plants are expected to be taxed to their utmost capacity. With increased traffic the railroads will undoubtedly make a much better showing a little later. The position taken by the Interstate Commerce Commission with regard to minimum dividend rates was generally regarded as insuring the present dividends of railroads. If so, this should be distinctly reassuring. At current prices, railroad stocks are relatively cheap. The remarkable annual report made by Union Pacific this week and the Atchisons estimate of earnings go far to show the reserve strength of the great systems of the country. The expected increase in traffic should have the effect of building up good surpluses from which, in due time, stockholders will benefit greatly.

The money market showed a firmer tendency this week on account of the government financing, but rates will probably not work much higher. The Banks are expected if necessary to avail of re-discounting privileges from the Federal Reserve bank. In the event of favourable developments in the International situation moderate firmness in money would not deter many persons from buying stocks. We look for a gradual improvement in the securities market and would use any setbacks to buy.

County Children Are Working On Farm

Throughout the schools of the county quite a number of the children in the upper classes have been withdrawn for work on the farms. A meeting of the Entrance Board will be held shortly to decide who should be promoted in order that those who will have to write for their entrance may have sufficient notification.

GOLF

The links are now getting in good shape and may be played over at any time. The club house will be open to players on Saturday, May 12th. Names will be taken for a number of proposed new members. From present indication, the Golf Club presents a very successful season this year.

BOWLING

Last night, at the Water Street Alleys, the Grocers took two games out of three from the C.G.E. The C.G.E. took the first game from the Grocers by a margin of 132 pins, but in the second game the Grocers won out by 2 pins and the third by 12 pins. Ostram was high man for the Grocers with a total of 500, and Bishop, Fielder and Somerville topped the 500 mark for the C.G.E. Hard spares were pulled off by Ostram, Gillespie and Fitzpatrick for the Grocers, and Jardine and Bishop for the C.G.E. By winning two out of three games, the Grocers are now second in the League standing.

The following are the scores:

LATE WESLEY TODD.

(Lindsay Warder.)

The sad news reached Lindsay Friday that Mr. Wesley Todd, of Millbrook, had passed away as a result of burns and electric shock received recently at Trenton. News reached Lindsay in the morning that the young man was progressing favourably, but later in the day a 'phone message brought the sad news that he had succumbed to serious burns received.

The late Mr. Todd was a very intelligent young man, highly respected by all who knew him, and of a very bright, humourous disposition. He was about nineteen years of age and was a loyal member of the Orange Order, under whose auspices the funeral services will be held.

The late Mr. Todd was a frequent visitor to Lindsay and was here with the Orangemen on February 16th last. He has two brothers working on the local branch of the Hydro-Electric, who together with the sorrowing parents, have the sincerest sympathy of their many Lindsay friends.

The funeral will take place from his late residence at Millbrook on Saturday afternoon at 2:30, the services being under the Orange Order.

TARNOW GOES HOME TAKES FLOCK WITH HIM

NEW YORK, May 5.—Count Adam Tarnowsky Von Tarnow, the unreceived Austrian Ambassador to the United States, sailed yesterday afternoon for his homeland on the Holland-American liner Ryndam, accompanied by over two hundred diplomatic and consular representatives of the central powers, who had assembled in New York from cities of the United States, from Cuba, and from China, waiting for arrangements to sail on a ship which would be given safe conduct by the entente allies. They were carefully protected at the pier by a large force of secret service and Custom House men.

The Ryndam is expected to stop at Halifax for examination there by the British authorities, as in the case of the ship which took home the German Ambassador, Count Von Bernstorff. France and England have promised safe conduct to the party.

Petition For Municipal Coal Yard Under Way

A petition embodying a request to the Council to establish a municipal coal yard has been circulated among the employees of the Canadian General Electric Company during the past few days. One of the men who had signed it stated that by the time it had made the circuit of the shops it should bear a large number of names. It is understood that this petition will be presented to the Council, probably on Monday night.

The reported uncertainties of the coal situation and the doubtful prospects for next winter have left a pronounced uneasiness among workingmen. Not only is the coal outlook unpromising just now, but the wood situation is even worse. The reserve supply of mill slabs is decidedly limited, and the usual cutting of hardwood has been extremely light. Several wood dealers have intimated that present prospects for next winter are very discouraging, and the whole fuel situation seems to need control or direction for those persons who are invincibly improvident and at the same time would not have the means to pay high prices if they should materialize.

WOODSTOCK FIRE DEPT. IS IN SORRY PLIGHT

Resentment Felt Against Four Men Who Went Out Wednesday.

WOODSTOCK, May 4.—The situation in the Fire Department continues to be unsatisfactory. Up to the present attempts to secure permanent firemen to replace the four who went out on strike on Wednesday night, have been unsuccessful, and the Fire Chief has had to resort to temporary expedients in order to maintain a reasonable degree of preparedness for eventualities. A call man is now sleeping on the premises, a voluntary fireman is also doing night duty, and one other man has been engaged temporarily. So that there are now seven men on the premises at night. Considerable indignation is being expressed against the four men who left, and court action against them has been suggested.

Sub. Disguised As Fishing Boat Had 5-Mile Gun

HOOVER REPORTS BELGIAN DEATHS.

LONDON, May 5. — American citizens landed during the last few days from vessels which have been sunk by German submarines, tell remarkable tales of the strenuous exploits of the U-boats. In one case three undersea boats appeared simultaneously alongside of the ship, one being a submarine cruiser 300 feet long, and the others old-fashioned submarines with a length of about 120 feet.

In another case a German submarine wore an elaborate disguise of a fishing boat. This submarine carried a gun which had a range of nearly 5 miles.

In at least two cases the crews of vessels sunk by submarines were rescued from open boats by a passing ship only to suffer a repetition of the disaster when the ship on which they had taken refuge fell a prey to an underwater boat.

TURKS THREATEN MASSACRE OF JEWS IN PALESTINE

LONDON, May 4.—Serious news of threatened massacre of the Jews in Palestine has been received by the Jewish Chronicle. The paper says: "Not alone has hunger and disease so preyed on the Jews in Palestine that thousands are literally starving without the possibility of obtaining food, but the Turkish Government appears to have entered upon a course of calculated brutal ruthlessness against our people. The Turkish Governor, Djemal Pasha, has proclaimed his intention of the authorities to wipe out mercilessly the Jewish population of Palestine, his public statement being that the Armenian policy of massacre is to be applied to the Jews."

AT THE ROYAL

There will be a twelve reel programme presented at the Royal Theatre to-night. The manager says it is sure to draw and to delight capacity houses. The latest drama picture, "Bullets and Blue Eyes," is a heart-breaking love story, in which all leading star actors take part. Then there are several two-reel comedies that are laughter-producing and mirth-provoking. A pretty drama, "Unmasking a Rascal," and two other productions fill the bill. The show is what other large theatres charge 50c. and 75c.; but the usual trifling prices prevail at the Royal. The five-reel drama, "Bullets and Blue Eyes," is one of the best picture films shown, and was much admired by the audience last night.

BALFOUR GREETED BY A WILD DEMONSTRATION

British Envoy Cheered as He Enters the House of Representatives—Minister Vigorously Denounces Germany in a Great Speech—"Free Peoples of the World Are United"

WASHINGTON, May 5.—While the President and Mrs. Wilson in the gallery were joining in the applause, the House of Representatives this afternoon staged one of the most spectacular, wildest patriotic demonstrations in its history in greeting British Foreign Minister Arthur J. Balfour.

The reception given Balfour came as a climax to the manner in which members of the British and French missions, now in this country, have been received elsewhere.

Representatives, Senators, allied and neutral diplomatic representatives and just plain citizens, who packed and jammed the galleries, joined in the wild greeting to Britain's Foreign Minister.

As the demonstration progressed, President Wilson left his seat in the gallery to go to the House floor. There he shook hands with Balfour amidst renewed cheering. The British Foreign Minister addressed the House, bitterly denouncing Prussian autocracy and paying tribute to America's entrance into the war which, he said, must be completed successfully to the allies and America if democracy is to live.

Balfour attacked German savagery as the House cheered, and President Wilson applauded vigorously.

Germany, Balfour declared, is "remorselessly and unscrupulously" carrying out its appaling object to dominate the civilization of mankind. He confidently predicted that "the free people of the world will surely conquer."

The President and the British mission—Balfour, Major-General Bridges, Admiral De Chair, and other members—arrived at the capitol at 12.25. Balfour and his party were taken immediately to Speaker Clark's office, where British Ambassador Spring-Rice and House leaders were awaiting them.

PRESIDENT APPLAUDED FROM GALLERY.

The President and Mrs. Wilson and Mrs. McAdoo went to the executive gallery—perhaps the first time a President has gone into the gallery of the House.

Then some member looked up and saw him. The member started applauding. The House, slow to realize that the President was a spectator, finally began cheering. The President rose in response and stood until the House quieted for a moment before the arrival of the Balfour party.

The House rose again and cheered, as Balfour, on the arm of Chairman Flood of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, walked to the Speaker's desk, shook hands with Speaker Clark, and stood before the members.

Balfour's entrance was greeted with the usual House announcement by the doorkeeper:

"The Honourable, the British Mission to the United States."

That tilted the lid. When the cheering concluded, Clark announcing: "I present to you the Right Hon. Arthur James Balfour, Secretary of State for Foreign affairs for Great Britain."

The cheering was renewed and redoubled as Balfour bowed to the House and then began an appeal to America to help the "free people of the world to down Germany's military despotism."

The President applauded at every opportunity. The speech concluded, he disappeared. Members believed he had gone back to the White House. A cheer from the back of the Chamber greeted the President's unexpected entrance on the floor of the House.

FREE PEOPLES UNITED.

Followed by a dozen secret service men, the President walked down the main aisle of the House, mixed up with 400 Congressmen, and awaited his turn to shake hands with Balfour and his confreres.

As he shook hands with Balfour, the President leaned over and whispered a greeting to him. He shook hands also with the other members of the mission, and left the chambers amid cheers to take Mrs. Wilson from the executive gallery.

"Mr. Speaker, Members of the House and ladies and gentlemen," said Balfour, "Will you permit me on behalf of my friends and myself to express our deepest and sincere thanks for the reception given us to-day.

"All of us feel the greatness of the honour, but I think to none of us can it come home so closely as to one who, like myself, has been for forty-three years in the service of a free assembly like your own.

"I rejoice to think that a member, a very old member, I am sorry to say, of the British House of Commons has been received here to-day by this great sister assembly with such kindness as you have shown to me and to my friends.

"Ladies and gentlemen, these two assemblies are the greatest and the oldest of the free assemblies now government great nations in the world. The history indeed of the two is very different. The beginnings of the British House of Commons goes back to a dim historic past, and its full rights and status have only been conquered and permanently secured after centuries of political struggle.

GREAT MOMENT IN HISTORY.

"Your fate has been a happier one. You were called into existence at a much later stage of social development. You come into being complete and perfected, and all your powers determined, and your place in the Constitution secured beyond a chance of revision, but though the history of these two great assemblies is different, each of them represents the great democratic principle to which we look forward as the security for the future peace of the world. All of the free assemblies now to be found governing the great nations on the earth have been modeled either upon your practice or upon ours, or upon both combined.

"Mr. Speaker, the compliment paid to the mission from Great Britain by such an assembly, and upon such an occasion, is one not one of us is ever likely to forget; but there is something after all even deeper and more significant in the circumstances under which I have now the honour to address you than any which arise out of the interchange of courtesies, however sincere, between two great friendly nations.

"We all, I think, feel instinctively that this is one of the great moments in the history of the world and that what is now happening on both sides of the Atlantic represents the drawing together of great and free peoples for mutual protection against the aggression of military despotism.

"I am not one of those, none of you are among those, who are such bad democrats as to say that democracies make no mistakes. All free assemblies have made blunders, sometimes they have committed crimes. Why it is, then, that we look forward to the spirit of free institutions and especially among our present enemies as one of the greatest guarantees of the future peace of the world? I will say to you, gentlemen, how it seems to me.

GERMANY DENOUNCED.

"It is quite true that the people and the representatives of the people may be betrayed by some momentary gust of passion into a policy which they ultimately deplore, but it is only a military despotism of the German type that can through generations, if need be, pursue steadily, remorselessly, unscrupulously, and appallingly the object of dominating the civilization of mankind. And, mark you, this evil, this manace, under which we are now suffering is not one which diminishes with the growth of knowledge and progress of material civilization, but, on the other hand, it increases with them.

"When I was young we used to flatter ourselves that progress inevitably meant peace, and that growth of knowleige was always accompanied as its natural fruit by the growth of goodwill among the nations of the earth. Unhappily we know better now, and we know there is such a thing in the world as a power which can with unvarying persistency focus all the resources of knowledge and of civilization into the one great task of making itself the moral and material master of the world. It is against that danger that we, the free peoples of western civilization have banded ourselves together.

"It is in that great cause that we are going to fight and are fighting at this very moment side by side. In that cause we shall surely conquer,

THE PEOPLE ARE EATING POTATOES WHICH SHOULD BE RETAINED FOR PLANTING

According to Present Prices the Food Value of Rice Purchased For One Dollar is Equal to That of Potatoes Costing Two Dollars—It is Economy to Cut Good Sized Potatoes—Potato Production.

The average yield of potatoes per acre in Ontario in 1916 was 58 bushels. The next lowest yield in the last thirty-five years was 76, and the average annual yield for the whole period, 114 bushels per acre. Considering both yields and prices of seventeen different farm crops, those which gave the greatest returns per acre in Ontario in 1916 were as follows: Potatoes, $76; turnips and other field roots, $76; beans, $63; husking corn, $59; and fall wheat, $38. It will be seen that the highest returns were obtained from the cultivated crops.

According to present prices, the food value of rice purchased for one dollar is equal to that of potatoes costing two dollars. Rice can be used as a vegetable to take the place of potatoes. Seed potatoes are exceedingly scarce and people throughout the Province are eating potatos which should be retained for planting. Those farmers are wise who retained their potato crop for seed purposes even though they were criticized for not bringing them to market. I would suggest that those having seed potatoes for sale, beyond local requirements, advertise in local, agricultural or daily papers.

GOOD SEED.

In normal years, it is economy to cut good sized potatoes in sets varying from one ounce to two ounces each. In the average of ten tests conducted at Guelph in five years the following average annual yields per acre were obtained from good sized potatoes cut into pieces of different weights as here indicated: Two ounces, 150 bushels; one ounce, 130 bushels; one-half ounce, 100 bushels; one-quarter ounce, 96 bushels; one-eighth ounce, 79 bushels; and one-sixteenth ounce, 87 bushels. Small potatoes are frequently produced from scrubs or from diseased tubers. The potatoes produced in Ontario in 1916, however, were exceptionally free from rot and were unusually small owing to the growth being arrested by unfavourable weather conditions. Potatoes did not thoroughly mature last autumn, and immature potatoes are inferior for table use but make excellent seed. At this particular time, therefore, potatoes, the size of hens' eggs or even smaller, might be used for seed to good advantage. These could be cut into pieces even as small as one-quarter ounce each and could be planted in rows twenty-eight inches apart with the pieces twelve to fifteen inches apart in the rows. They should be planted the same day that they are cut. Where good seed is unobtainable whole potatoes not more than one-quarter to one half ounce in size might be planted with the prospect of receiving moderate returns. It would be an advantage to spread out the small potatoes in a warm light room for two or three weeks to allow them to sprout before planting.

PLANTING TIME.

The usual time for planting potatoes for best results is from the 15th to the 25th of May. Potatoes do well on sod land. If it is impossible to get the land ready before the time mentioned, the sod might be plowed to a depth of about four inches and the potatoes planted in every third furrow; after which the land could be rolled immediately and then harrowed to press the soil around the potatoes and to conserve moisture.

According to present indications, the acreage of potatoes will be less than usual this year.

With the possibility of a famine in food materials, great care should be exercised by both the farmers and the city gardeners in growing the crops of highest value, in using the best seed obtainable and in economizing labour.

FALL WHEAT IS DOING FAIR

The organization of the Resources Committee is very interested as to what other provinces in the country are doing regarding food production, and, as a result of enquiries from Nova Scotia, a letter has been received by the committee.

In Nova Scotia the matter of farm labour, supply of fertiliser and the fix ed prices of agricultural products was taken up. Regarding the first there is a great shortage of labour, and the schoolboys have been given a month's leave to help on the farms. The labour in the mining industry is also very short. As for the fertiliser, some 100 tons were obtained from Montreal, but this was not near enough. Regarding the fixed price for products the committee thought this was a Dominion matter, and should be regulated by them and not by the province. For instance if potatoes were $4 a bag in Nova Scotia and $1.50 a bag in New Brunswick, Nova Scotia would be flooded with potatoes from New Brunswick.

CATTLE DECREASING

Emphasis was laid before representative live stock men by the Resources Committee at their meeting yesterday of the great need for farm labour. It was pointed out that the number of cattle was decreasing steadily, due to the high cost of fodder. Many of the farmers are now keeping their heifers for milking and breeding purposes. The farmers are willing to pay married men who will go on farms from $450 to $600 a year, with cottage and a plot of ground, and even inexperienced help is accepted.

FALL WHEAT FAIR

The report of the Department of Agriculture regarding crop conditions this week shows that the fall wheat, which was more or less set back by the heaving due to the frost, is picking up nicely, but in some places it was ploughed over and being re-seeded with barley. Clover was injured by the frost, and in undrained lands and old fields it is not looking good.

VEGETABLE GROWING BOOMING

Vegetable growing is booming, judging by the planting and seeding already done. Early potato planting is being rushed, but the seed is scarce and dear. Fruit trees are doing well.

Regarding live stock the district representatives say that cattle are being sold off rapidly, and that fodder of all kinds is scarce, and this keeps up the price of beef and pork.

The acreage of land ploughed is well up to the average and seeding well advanced. Notwithstanding a shortage of labour a good deal of spring grain is being put in, especially barley and oats.

ELECTROCUTING ANIMALS.

(Indianapolis News.)

Considerable sentiment against the use of electricity as a means of putting unwanted animals out of the way is growing up among members of humane societies in various parts of the country. The popular belief now is that animals when electrocuted suffer intense agony. Members of the Humane Society of Kansas City, Mo., have been conducting a wide intelligence campaign in which opinions of persons familiar with electricity and experienced in handling it were obtained. These people firmly believe that electricity inflicts pain, it is said, and strenuously advocate the adoption of some milder way of putting animals to death.

KINGSTON GETS 1,000 BUSHELS OF POTATOES AT $2.60

There is one citizen who is undismayed by the high price of potatoes. When the Quaker Oats Company purchased several car loads for their employees he bought ten or twelve bags at $1.85 and has left more than will be required to plant his garden and meet the new crop.

Kingston Gets 1,000 Bushels.

The Greater Production committee of Kingston has purchased a car load in Winnipeg and will have one thousand bushels for sale to-morrow. They have cost about $2.60 a bushel and the committee will decide the price and method of distribution.

Haldimand Gets Seeds.

Cayuga and Dunnville have each obtained 800 bags of seed through the Deputy Minister of Agriculture. Two cars were sent to Haldimand county at $3.75 per bag f.o.b. Montreal, and one car of Delawares from New Brunswick was placed in Dundas county at $4.47 f.o.b. Morrisburg.

Apparently these sales have been made direct to the farmers who will distribute them among themselves. But if they had to be handled through the regular channels of trade the price to the consumer would approximate $5.00 a bag.

Two More Cars Coming.

Enquiries throughout the country leave the impression that a reduction of prices before the new crop affects the market is unlikely. Mr. W. J. Oke has several cars expected in a few days, one of them Delawares. The Dakota Reds that arrived a week ago have disappeared from the retail grocers' shops, and from most accounts have been well received. They are a large, firm potato and many-eyed. The Delaware is a good producer, but does not come in until a week or ten days later than the Irish Cobbler.

SAYS HOT WATER WASHES POISONS FROM THE LIVER

Everyone should drink hot water with phosphate in it, before breakfast.

To feel as fine as the proverbial fiddle, we must keep the liver washed clean, almost every morning, to prevent its sponge-like pores from clogging with indigestible material, sour bile and poisonous toxins, says a noted physcian.

If you get headaches, it's your liver. If you catch cold easily, it's your liver. If you wake up with a bad taste, furred tongue, nasty breath or stomach becomes rancid, it's your liver. Sallow skin, muddy complexion, watery eyes all denote liver uncleanliness. Your liver is the most important, also the most abused and neglected organ of the body. Few know its function or how to release the dammed-up body waste, bile and toxins. Most folks resort to violent calomel, which is a dangerous, salivating chemical which can only be used occasionally because it accumulates in the tissues, also attacks the bones.

Every man and woman, sick or well, should drink each morning before breakfast, a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, to wash from the liver and bowels the previous day's indigestible material, the poisons, sour bile and toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and freshening the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

Limestone phosphate does not restrict the diet like calomel, because it can not salivate, for it is harmless and you can eat anything afterwards. It is inexpensive and almost tasteless, and any pharmacist will sell you a quarter pound, which is sufficient for a demonstration of how hot water and limestone phosphate cleans, stimulates and freshens the liver, keeping you feeling fit day in and day out.

Recalls May Weather of 32 Years Ago

LINDSAY, May 4.—"I remember the year, 1885," said Mr. John Maunder, yesterday, to a reporter, "and we had snow on the first day of May that season. I was attending the spring horse show on the last day of April, being more of a horse enthusiast then than now, and came home from the grounds pretty well chilled. On awakening next morning I found the ground covered with snow several inches deep and the weather assuming a distinct winter appearance. The snow fall remained for eight days, and the farmers were busily employed around the township digging drains to let the water escape when the warm sun had melted it away. The season was a backward one. Hay was an excellent crop, but the grain developed more straw than head, so the latter was scarcely an average crop. The weather of to-day does not surprise me, although it is none too pleasant," said Mr. Maunder, "and I wouldn't object to the weatherman turning on a little more heat on the ground floor."

Hull Gives 1181 Majority Votes For Prohibition

OTTAWA, May 3. — By the overwhelming majority of 1,181 prohibition was carried in Hull to-day. The total vote cast was 3,793, one of the largest in the history of the city. There were 2,487 votes polled by the temperance followers. The city will not go dry until May 1 next year, owing to a technicality in delaying to advertise the polling.

On April 20 the voting was commenced, and it is alleged that the liquor interests arranged the balloting so that May 1 would pass with the hotel licenses still in force, and they would be assured of at least another year's business. According to the system of voting, if half an hour passed without a vote the polls were automatically closed. This half-hour came at 12.30 this afternoon. It was near midnight when the count was completed.

Look For Immediate Effect.

Seven hotels and three liquor shops will be cut off. Although licenses have been granted for the year commencing May 1, 1917, supporters of prohibition believe that the Quebec Provincial Government, in view of the overwhelming vote, and the conditions that exist as regards Hull and the proximity to the capital of the Dominion, will immediately rescind the licenses and grant immediate prohibition.

Aylmer, up the river a few miles, went dry May 1, so that to-day's vote wipes liquor from the environs of the capital.

CHINA GAINS BY ITS WAR WITH GERMANY

Secures Relief from Hun Claim of $135,000,000.

ALSO REGAINS STRATEGIC POSTS.

End Put to Vicious Campaign Financed by Germans in Pekin.

A Tokyo correspondent of the London Daily Express, writing before the break between China and Germany on the question "If China declares war on Germany, what then?" said:

It will be a financial war. China is a tribute-paying country. At the present moment she pays to Germany, and has paid since the war began, £6,000 sterling every day of the year. This is made up partly of payments on account of the inquitous Boxer indemnity of 135,000,000 silver dollars extorted by Germany, and 6,600,000-dollar indemnity of Austria, partly of interest on German railway loans, and partly as the proceeds of Germany's partnership in the quintuple loan group.

The Boxer indemnity is a particularly obnoxious transaction, lacking even military justification, for the German naval squadron left Wilhelmshaven on August 10, 1900, but the Peking Legations were relieved on August 14. This "debt" is secured on the Chinese Maritime Customs. China's premier security. If it were extinguished China could at once borrow its equivalent and thus meet the terribly pressing need of her infant Government for money. Incidentally it would clear out of the Maritime Customs the 120 Germans who are now employed there.

China would also resume possession of the valuable German and Austrian concessions at Hankow and Tientsin, and legitimately recover 4 valuable part of her territory. War would automatically break the Chino-German treaties of commerce, and when peace was restored China would be in a position to treat with Germany on equal terms, with no fear of being compelled to insert a most favoured nation clause in her new treaty.

These are substantial and tangible gains which can be stated in the precise terms of commerce. The Chinese Government, however, is perhaps most keenly alive to the moral advantages which would accrue from her being directly represented at the peace conference. If she participated as an ally in that great settlement, she might reasonably expect to be assured of her full integrity and independence.

German Conspiracies Spoiled.

The advantages from the Allies' poit of view are equally tangible. This £6,000 a day cannot be sent to Berlin, but it forms a useful war fund in the hands of the German Minister at Peking, Herr Hintze, and oils the wheels of all Germany's machinations in the East. Some of these we know. There have been efforts to wreck the Siberian Railway and to ship arms to India. A gigantic press campaign is conducted throughout the whole Far East, from Shanghai. The United States Government in the Philippines and the Dutch government of Java are perpetually in alarm lest some of the German vessels interned in their harbours should escape on a raiding career.

Where did the funds come from which enabled the eight German ships in Honolulu to get up steam when President Wilson's speech foreshadowed a rupture with Germany? Who provided the "consideration" which induced some person or persons to set fire to the auxiliary cruiser Geier in a Pacific harbour at the same date? Who pays the expenses of the two hundred German "commercial agents" who passed through Shanghai in 1916? A suspension of payments to Herr Hintze would throw some light on those mysteries.

Will be Aid to Russia.

Russia would at once benefit, because if China departed from her neutrality her ports of entry would be opened for munitions, and the appalling congestion at Vladivostock would be relieved, Darien, which is in railway communication with the Siberian line would at once become available, and goods could also be landed at Tientsin, railed to Peking, and conveyed thence to the Russian railway by camel caravan. This antique method is in daily use, and though it is dear and slow, it is perfectly practicable, and would give substantial relief to the overworked Russian transportation system.

From the British point of view there are the important consequences which would follow the expulsion of the Germans. The effect on the Mahometan populations of Asia would be marked. All intercourse between China and India takes place through the Chinese Mahometans in Western China. These Moslems look to Turkey for leadership, and their Turkish teachers arrive bearing German passports. The Mahometan schools in Western China are actually called Enver Pasha's schools. This state of affairs is a danger to China and a menace to India.

China has three important arsenals which could play a part in the munitionment of Russia. Her metal supply includes copper, zinc, and antimony, and, in fact, she controls more than half the total antimony production of the world.

A bread mixer is one of the greatest conveniences a housewife can have.

Suffered With Heart For Ten Years

Would Scarcely Breathe

There is nothing that brings with it such fear of impending death as to wake up in the night with that awful sense of smothering. The uncertain and irregular heart action causes the greatest distress of both mind and body.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are the only remedy that can give prompt relief and effect a complete cure in cases of such severity.

They strengthen and invigorate the heart, so that it beats strong and regular, and tone up the nervous system so that the cause of so much anxiety becomes a thing of the past.

Mrs. M. O. McCready, Wapella, Sask., writes: "I am not much of a believer in medicines, but I feel that it is only right for me to let you know what your wonderful remedy has done for me, and in a very short time, too. I had suffered terribly with my heart for nearly ten years, could scarcely do any work, and would nearly smother at times. I had many remedies, some only relieving me for a time. I got a box of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills and felt so much better that I kept on using them, and can truthfully say I feel like a new woman.

"I would advise anyone with heart trouble to use them."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c, or three boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

BRITISH TANKER SUNK.

PHILADELPHIA, May 5. — The British tank steamship Britain Sun, owned by the Sun Oil Co., of this city, and leased to Great Britain, has been submarined and sunk, probably in the Mediterranean, according to a cablegram received here by Howard M. Pew, president of the company. The crew was saved.

The British Sun was built in 1909, and was 8,600 tons measurement. She is said to have been one of the finest of her class, and was valued at $2,500,000. Last summer Great Britain took her for war purposes.

VEGETABLE CROQUETTES

One cup of tomatoes, little onion, cloves, little sugar, salt and paprika. Cook twenty minutes and strain. Add two tablespoons of butter, cooked with a little cornstarch until smooth. When boiling hot, add one egg, beaten slightly, pour out to cool, cut in shape, form, crumb and egg. Will fry in hot fat.

FELL IN A FAINT.

Mrs. Edwin Martin, Ayer's Cliff, Que., writes: "Before using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I was in a terrible condition. Dizzy spells would come over me and I would fall on the floor. I could not sweep without fainting. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food has so built up my system that I can wash and do my housework. Your medicine cured me when doctors had failed."

ALBERTA'S WHEAT CROP WELL OVER 50 MILLION BUSHELS

A CLOSE SECOND TO THE GREAT YIELD OF 1915, ACCORDING TO C.P.R. ESTIMATE.

CALGARY. — A computation of the grain movement of the province since September 1, 1916, has just been compiled by the Canadian Pacific Railway General Superintendent's office in this city. It indicates that a total of 54,000,000 bushels of all grain were transported by that company alone within this province since September 1, 1916, or since the new crop came in.

Of the total of 54,000,000 bushels of all grains, 35,000,000 bushels were wheat, while the great bulk of the remaining portion was oats.

Taking these figures as a basis, it seems not unreasonable to suppose that the wheat production for the last season was at least well over the fifty million mark which would make a close second to the great yield of the previous year

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A Sketch of Twin Brothers

By F. A. MITCHEL

It is sweet and melancholy to go back in memory to our homes where we were youngsters. We did not realize how happy we were or at least how happy we should have been. I was one of twins, Tom and Jim. I was Tom. When Jim and I were between fifteen and sixteen we were like one person. And yet one seeing us together would never have considered us as such. We were always quarreling or seemed to be quarreling. With others it would have really been quarreling; with us there was no quarrel at all. We were speaking in a language we both understood perfectly.

I remember waking up one morning and seeing Jim at the dresser putting on a shirt that I had kept laundered to wear on an especial occasion.

"What in thunder are you doing?" I yelled.

No answer.

"You bleakety-blank robber, if you don't put that shirt back in the drawer I'll get up and break every bone in your body!"

Jim had the shirt on and was tying my best cravat around his neck.

I launched anathemas and threats without number, but they availed nothing. Jim went out with my appropriated toggery, and I turned over for another nap.

When we were about sixteen Jim became enamored of a girl exactly our age. I remember that she wore her hair in a number of beautiful curls. There was something bewitching in her tossing them aside when they got in her way. Just as soon as Jim lost his heart to her my wardrobe became especially subject to his depredations.

I had a weakness for jewelry. I had saved my money and bought a gold locket, which I used for a fob. The watch at the other end of the ribbon was an old one in a silver case. It was of no use except for an excuse to display the trinket at the other end. One day I missed my locket. I didn't see how it could have been stolen, because nothing else in the house had been missed.

The next time I saw Jim's girl what was my astonishment to see my locket suspended to her neck. Jim had—stolen it? No; he had simply appropriated it as common property between brothers. He knew very well that I would see it on his girl and would know that he had taken it. There is nothing like stealing about that. It is simply claiming one's own.

There must have been the dawn of manhood in me, for when I was about to blurt out that the locket belonged to me I restrained myself. I took a much more honorable way—so I considered it—to repossess myself of my property. I asked to be permitted to examine the locket, and when it was handed to me I declined to return it.

Lucy—that was her name—upbraided me and called upon Jim, who was present, to secure the return of her treasure. Jim was in a fix. He took me aside and offered me a scarfpin and a plated gold chain if I would let the matter stand for awhile as his gift to Lucy. I told him that if he would add a red cravat of his that I coveted I would condone his offense and leave the locket in his girl's possession. Making a virtue of necessity, he yielded to my flinty terms, and I returned the locket to Lucy.

That was many years ago. I have forgotten what became of the locket, but it is my impression that it never came back to me, though Jim changed his girl very soon after his stopping my mouth with his pinchbeck jewelry and a well worn necktie.

Then came my turn to get a girl. I wish I could feel toward a woman today as I felt toward that girl. Phoebe was her name, and I considered her radiantly beautiful. I have since seen a picture of her taken at that time, and I have been surprised to see that she was red headed, freckled and snub nosed.

I invited my girl to go to ride with me. Unfortunately I did not keep my intention from Jim, and the day I drove up to the house of my ladylove he drove up there, too, with a chum of his in a rattletrap two wheeled gig.

"Go away," I said to him.

He laughed at me.

I threatened and begged. He was not to be moved. I went into the house and brought out Phoebe. This being the first time I had ever taken a girl to ride, I suffered with a painful embarrassment, but the presence of Jim and his friend was positively horrible.

Phoebe saw them and realized what they were up to, but pretended not to notice them. When I drove away they followed me, but after awhile they turned on a different road.

I inwardly resolved that when I returned I would kill Jim. Yes, I would kill him! If I were hanged for murder I would die in a good cause. But Jim knew well enough the storm that would burst upon him and kept out of my way till my rage had cooled. When I saw him next he was sitting on the porch under our bedroom window. Going to the bathroom, I filled a bucket of water, carried it to the window and dropped the contents on my recent tormentor.

My affection for Phoebe proved as short lived as my resolution to commit murder. I don't remember any ending; it simply slipped away into oblivion as other matters of great moment at the time pass out of our lives. As Jim and I grew older our outward treatment of each other changed. But our inward feeling was the same.

WAS SO BAD HAD TO STAY IN HOUSE

All skin diseases such as eczema or salt rheum, itching or burning rashes, eruptions, ulcers, boils, pimples, etc., are all caused by bad blood, and while not usually attended with any fatal results, may sooner or later develop into some serious blood trouble and the entire system become affected.

Burdock Blood Bitters, that old and well-known remedy, will cleanse the blood of all its impurities, and by this means cure all skin diseases and other blood troubles.

Mrs. Ernest Andrews, Hamilton, Ont., writes: "My face was covered with eczema and was so terribly bad I had to stay in the house. I had ten different doctors but got so tired of their treatment that I went and bought a bottle of Burdock Blood Bitters, and it helped me, so I kept on taking it. Now I am cured, and have a lovely skin.

"People who used to see me when I was so bad and see me now will not believe it, but I always tell them that nothing cured me but Burdock Blood Bitters."

CAPT. VON RINTELEN ACCUSED OF TRYING TO STIR UP JAPAN

VETERAN PRESIDENT OF A. F. OF L. TAKES STAND IN CONSPIRACY TRIAL.

NEW YORK.—Plans of Captain Franz von Rintelen of the German navy to embroil this country in war with Mexico and Japan, and the ineffectual efforts of Former Representative Frank Buchanan to enlist the support of Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, in a project to prevent the manufacture and transportation of munitions in this country, were brought out in the conspiracy trial of these two men and six others here to-day. The defendants are charged with fomenting strikes designed to disrupt the Entente Allies' munitions trade in this country through the activities of labor's national peace council, of which Mr. Buchanan was the first president.

GOMPER'S TESTIMONY.

Mr. Gompers testified that he advised Mr. Buchanan that his plans were foolhardy; that they were in conflict with the interests of labor as represented by the American Federation of Labor, and that he warned Buchanan against associations with Herman Schultels and Henry B. Martin. These men are defendants, and are members of labor's national peace council.

The testimony as to Rintelen's activities was given by John J. Hammond, an advertising agent, who said Rintelen engaged him to carry on a pro-German publicity campaign. Rintelen proposed to spend $25,000 for this purpose, he said, but spent only $7,500, becoming discouraged as to the success of his plans to arouse sentiment in favor of the German cause in this country after the sinking of the Lusitania.

STIRRING UP JAPAN.

Mr. Hammond said he gave up his work for Rintelen when he learned that he was doing all in his power to bring on war between the United States and Mexico, and Rintelen believed it was only a matter of time before German diplomacy would embroil this country in war with Japan. Rintelen's purpose, he testified he was told, was to bring on strikes, so as to break up the munition traffic.

Rintelen described troubles in Mexico, which he expected Huerta, former dictator of Mexico, to stir up, as his trump card, Hammond testified.

Witness declared that he called the activities of Rintelen to the attention of the American government, and continued for some time to meet Rintelen and listen to his plans under the direction of the officers of the department of justice.

CURIOUS CRAFT USED BY BRITISH ON THE TIGRIS

BAGDAD. — In their successful advance on Bagdad the British used some of the queerest craft in the world to navigate the Tigris.

These included the heavy teak-timbered craft which the Arabs described as "chias," and of which ship carpenters attached to the force built 180. These craft carry about 40 tons. They have short, stubby masts and just a bit of sail. Larger craft of similar design are called "saffara."

A total of 320 boats of these types were used for freight in the advance on Bagdad. These queer craft kept in touch with the advanced base throughout the operations northward from the Persian gulf.

Other craft used incuded the "bellam" of canoe, ranging from over 100 tons down to the tiny craft of three quarters of a ton which carries Basrah to be described as "The Venice of the East," the "mashuf," a hollow, wedge-shaped craft for navigating the reed mazes of the great marshes; and the guffah, a round basket, four feet deep and from four feet to nine feet in diameter, made of palmfrond ribs, held together by juniper nettles.

GRAVE SITUATION IN BELGIUM.

NEW YORK, May 5. — The German U-boat menace has made the food situation in Belgium and northern France one of extreme gravity, the mortality among adults in the industrial districts having been multiplied by three during March and April, according to Herbert C. Hoover, who has arrived here on an American ship. Mr. Hoover said he would go immediately to Washington to take charge of the government's food control programme.

DOMINION TIRES are GOOD tires

A Tire for Every Kind of Service

NOBBY TREAD CHAIN — DOMINION PLAIN

The test of the road has convinced the great majority of Canadian motorists that from whatever angle you look at it, DOMINION Tires are the best "buy".

We who view them from the inside know that there is more value—more tire mileage at less cost per mile—in DOMINION Tires than is put in any other tire.

Motorists who judge them by performance know that the secret of mileage must be built right into them, or they could not possibly give the service they do. The amazing growth in DOMINION sales shows clearly that Canada is fast approaching unanimity on this point.

As no one type of tire can possibly suit all needs, we make —

The Big Four

Nobby Tread — 90% puncture proof. Gives maximum mileage and practical freedom from punctures and other annoyances.

Dominion Tread — A thoroughly dependable anti-skid. Has the most rubber where there is most wear—on the tread.

Chain Tread — The suction of the cup-shaped links grips the road—prevents skidding—and gives remarkable traction.

Plain Tread — The basis of all DOMINION Tire value. Serviceable and economical, for mileage is built right into it.

Whatever car you drive—wherever and however you drive it—there is a DOMINION Tire perfectly adapted to your needs—the one tire it will pay you best to buy.

BALFOUR GREETED BY WILD DEMONSTRATION and our children will look back to this fateful date as the one from which democracies can feel secure that their progress, their civilization, their rivalry, if need be, will be conducted, not on German lines but in the free and friendly spirit which really befits the age in which we live.

"Mr. Speaker, ladies, and gentlemen, I beg most sincerely to repeat again which heartily I thank you for the cordial welcome which you have given us to-day, anad to repeat my profound sense of the significance of this unique meeting.

CONGRATULATED AFTER SPEECH.

Mr. Balfour gave a cordial greeting to every member as the line filed by. A number of members told him how much they had enjoyed his speech.

"Did you like it?" he asked smilingly.

"Very much," they answered.

"Thank you so much," he replied.

To another he confided that he was a little nervous. "I was a little nervous," he said, "although I have been speaking all my life."

While the members were passing he turned to Speaker Clark and asked where the President's gallery was. The Speaker told him and adjusting his glasses he surveyed it for a moment.

Representative Jeanette Rankin introduced a little girl to Mr. Balfour.

"I am so glad to have this pleasure," said the British minister.

General Bridges, who was all smiles through the reception, kissed one of the little girls who accompanied a member, and remarked that "it is a little difficult to combine business and pleasure,"

Out in the corridor was an old man, 86 years old, who had come all the way from Lake City, Minn., to catch a glimpse of the British statesman.

The members cheered again as the party left.

On motion of Republican Leader Mann the proceedings which were in recess, were ordered printed in the Congressional Record.

Has Cured Your Neighbours And It Will Cure You

Look Into This Evidence for Dr. Chase's Nerve Food From Your Own Town People

PETERBOROUGH, Ont., March 15.—It is only natural to doubt reports from people at a distance and who are unknown to you. If you have felt this way about what you have read in regard to the great good being accomplished by Dr. Chase's Nerve Food you do not need to doubt any longer.

Every day we are publishing in this paper reports from people right here in Peterborough who have been cured by Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, some recently and some years ago. When you have read these letters look these people up and inquire into their cases. Every one of them is glad of an opportunity to help others suffering as they did.

Miss Catharine Scully, 517 Sherbrooke St., Peterborough, Ont., writes: "Some time ago I was suffering from a run down condition of the system. I was nervous, could not sleep, and lost my appetite. I used to have severe headaches that became almost unbearable. I tried several remedies and Doctors' medicine as well, but they did not help me. Finally I became so weakened in condition that I was scarcely able to walk. It was then that I first tried Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. I used one box, and detected an improvement, so I continued the treatment until cured. I am in good health now, can eat and sleep well, and do not have those terrible headaches. I give the credit entirely to Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and can say it is a splendid remedy. If anyone suffering as I did would only try this treatment, I know they would not be sorry."

Mrs. Leether, 108 Lansdowne street, Peterborough, Ont., writes:

"About three months ago, I found myself in a run down condition, due no doubt to the fact that I had been working long hours. I was also troubled occasionally with headaches and pains in my back. Upon the advice of a friend, I began the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. I found the very first box benefitted me, so I continued the treatment until now I feel greatly improved and more like my former self."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, a full treatment of 6 boxes for $2.50, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. Do not be talked into accepting a substitute. Imitations only disappoint.

GIRL-WIFE ROMANCE MAY BE ENDED NOW

Asserting that his 17-year-old bride who before her marriage was Miss Jean Bergener, daughter of Gustavus Bergner, a wealthy brewer of Philadelphia had been kidnapped by her father and made a prisoner in a small apartment at the Ritz-Carlton Hotel, R. Bertrm Bew, the 19-year-old husband ,obtained a writ of habaes corpus which directs that his wife be given to him immediately or that some good reason be advanced for holding her.

For two days Bew maintained an almost constant vigil in front of the hotel. Nearby he had a powerful motor car in readiness to whisk his wife away as soon as she appeared on the street.

Once he saw two women emerge and walk to Broad street station, where they boarded a New York express. Bew followed, thinking they were his wife and mother-in-law. He rode all the way to Trenton only to find he had made a mistake. Finally he decided to resort to the law.

Mr. Bergner late in the afternoon accepted service of the writ. He described his son-in-law's action as "nonsensical."

"My daughter is not being held as a captive," he said. "She simply became tired of married life and came voluntarily to my apartment in the Ritz, and told me she wished to return. I told her she might stay if she desired. There was no compulsion about it. This charge is all nonsense."

Friday has been fixed as the time for the hearing. The proceedings are expected to be very brief. The girl will be asked if she wishes to go back to her husband. If she answers "no" Bew will be defeated. If she should change her mind about matrimony by that time, she will leave court on her husband's arm.

The Bews' married life began less than a year ago, quite as spectacularly as it now appears to be ending. The couple eloped from the neighboring homes of their wealthy parents in Avalon in an eighty horse-power motor car. They eluded detectives from Baltimore, Washington and this city and finally succeeded in reaching a secluded town in Tennessee.

Although the Bews and the Bergners have been neighbors, they never have been friendly. Consequently the growing friendship between the pretty heiress and young Bew was not looked upon with pleasure. The girl was sent to a school on the Main Line, in the hope that she might forget her infatuation in her studies. But young Bergner was not to be outdone. He promptly matriculated in a nearby school, so that he could see his sweetheart often.

It was on one of these visits that the elopement was planned. They arranged to visit their parents at the same time at the earliest opportunity and elope from Avalon. They made the visit and met the evening after their arrival at an appointed place. Miss Bergner brought her clothing and jewelery, and Bew waited with a motor car. They disregarded all speed laws and arrived at Broad street station in time to catch the 12.15 train for Bristol, Tennessee. They had made the trip from the shore in just one hour and forty-two minutes.

Detectives were put on the trail as soon as the elopement was discovered, but because of the uncertainty as to the direction they had taken, little progress was made. Nothing was heard until a telegram from Bew telling of their marriage arrived.

After a time the elder Bew relented and invited the couple to visit him at Avalon. They did. Later, the father and son co-operated in a business deal in Florida. It is said they had a disagreement which culminated in a verbal battle.

The bride took her husband's part, and the upshot of it was that the couple left Florida and came North.

Bew became a selling agent for a real estate company, and achieved marked success. He and his wife resided with friends in Haverford. Recently, however, business is said to have slumped.

One day Bew returned to his Haverford home and was told his millionaire father-in-law had come there in a motor car and stolen his wife. The virgil in front of the hotel and the legal action followed.

AGED WOMAN

Run Down and Feeble—Made Strong by Vinol.

So many people in Peterborough and vicinity are in Mrs. Wickersham's condition we ask you to call at our store and get a bottle of Vinol, and if it fails to benefit we will return your money.

In her eighty-second year Mrs. John Wickersham, of Russellville, Pa., says: "I was in a run-down, feeble condition and had lost flesh. A neighbour asked me to try Vinol, and after taking two bottles my strength returned; I am gaining in flesh, it has built up my health and I am feeling fine for a woman of my age, so I get around and do my housework."

The reason Vinol was so successful in Mrs. Wickersham's case was because it contains beef and cod liver peptones, iron and manganese peptonates and glycerophosphates, the very elements needed to build up a weakened run-down system and create strength.

Right here in Peterborough we have seen such excellent results from Vinol that it is a pleasure to know it is doing so much good for old people in other parts of the country.

Saturday Wheat Market Quiet

WINNIPEG, May 7.—The opening of the market Saturday was quiet, and apparently trade, so far as possible, will await the new list of spreads, which it is expected, will be ready for Monday.

Wheat Interests Nervous.

CHICAGO, May 7.—Wheat prices Saturday showed a tendency to advance owing more or less to the lightness of stocks and to the absence of hedging sales. It was said the holdings of foreigners were sufficient to make it difficult to buy on any substantial scale without materially affecting values. Much nervousness continued to be shown regarding developments at Washington as to Government control of prices. Opening quotations, which ranged from 1 cent off to 2 1-2 cents up, with May at $2.75 and July at $2.20 to $2.21, were followed by a decided general upturn and then a moderate reaction.

TEN DONT'S FOR THE MAN WHO SUCCEEDS.

Bishop Charles Bayard Mitchell, of St. Paul, speaking in Chicago, advised his hearers to "See yourself go by." If you want to get a good look at yourself, here are ten things to avoid:

"1. Don't think you see yourself in a mirror. You will see only the outside, and your right ear will be on the left side of your head.

"2. Don't imitate. It's awful to hear that there are scores of young men trying to walk like Charlie Chaplin. Be yourself.

"3. Don't expect anybody else to do your job. God never made anybody like you. One of you is enough.

"4. Don't worry about your health. I have a friend, given up to die at 22, with one lung. He will be 93 on his next birthday.

"5. Don't wait for dead men's shoes.

"6. Don't lose your nerve. When God has a tremendous task to perform he usually takes some man and overloads him with egotism so he will tackle the job.

"7. Don't think yourself a failure too soon. Lincoln was a mediocre lawyer who won distinction because he was honest.

"8. Don't be a misfit. It's a tragedy to see a blacksmith trying to be a statesman, as we have witnessed in our country's recent political life.

"9. Don't stop until you have found your place. It was a great day when you struck this planet and it will be a great day when you leave it. But it's a much greater one when you find out why you're here.

"10. Don't try to make duplicates of yourself. Parents make a mistake when they try to bring up their children to be like themselves."

BAD START IN THE WEST.

Seeding is Late, and the Seed is None Too Good.

SASKATOON, Sask., May 3.—Seeding began at the University Experimental Farm yesterday, just two weeks later than in 1916, and four weeks later than in 1915.

The crop this year threatens in certain districts to be between 40 and 50 per cent. of its usual bulk, due to the fact that the seed grain which is being used, is deficient in germinating power.

WHAT COLLIE SAID TO SPANIEL ABOUT THE DOG BY-LAW.

Hello, said Collie to the Spaniel,
Through a knot hole in the fence,
Our Council have amended our by-law,
To run at large now, is a serious offence.

Of course, said Collie to the Spaniel,
We don't blame our Council at all,
But one of our sex, up in Elm street,
Who bit a dear child so small.

He paid the penalty for his biting,
Which we considered just and right,
He was dispatched with a bullet to yonder,
Where no one else he can bite.

Just the same its a corker to be tied up here,
For another's crazy trick,
With a chunk of rope around our neck,
About two and a half inches thick.

To sneak out now would be dangerous,
As the pound is staring us in the face,
To stay there for forty-eight hours or more,
Looks to me, like going the pace.

Our masters, too, will be up against it,
Should he allow us to run at large,
He'd be soaked $50.00, or six months,
In Castle Nesbitt, where he would be taken in charge.

So cheer up Spaniel, old boy, the time will soon roll on
When once more we'll be free,
To run around the streets in town,
Our long lost friends to see.

TIRED OUT KIDNEYS

Kidney troubles are so fruitfully common because the kidneys are so easily upset by overwork or excesses in eating and drinking. Once ill-effected put by whipping them on to renewed effort but by awakening the action of the liver and bowels by the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. This rests the kidneys and makes them well. Backache and urinary disorders then disappear.

GERMAN WOMEN UNDERPAID.

Employers Cut Expenses by Giving them less than Male Workers.

In an article written for a recent number of the Sozialistiche Monatshefte, Max Quark, a member of the Reichstag, goes into details regarding the problem created in Germany, by the steady increase in women's work in industry, and cites data to prove that the German employers are taking advantage of the situation to reduce the cost of production by paying women much less than men doing the same work This is largely due to the failure of the women to join the labor unions, which in turn is attributed to the fear of the men workers that after the war the women may continue to hold their jobs, and thus displace union men returned from the front. Also women hope that they may soon abandon their present occupations for more congenials tasks at home.

Deputy Quark points out that as late as last October the daily wages of women in the mining districts ranged from one mark eighty two pfenninge to 2.71, compared with a range of 4.18 to 4.90 for men doing the same work. At the normal rate of exchange a mark is worth 23.8 cents. The women firing the boilers in Konigshutte get 30 pfenninge an hour as against 38 1-2 for the men. For painting the iron part of bridges men get from 36 to 40 pfenninge an hour, while the women receive only 22. Even in piece work the women get less. For cutting one hundred horseshoe calks, women get only 16 pfenninge against 24 for men workers. In Sollingen, the women bolt and rivet turners make only 30 marks a week by doing the same work for which the men are paid 42.

AN OLD RECIPE TO DARKEN HAIR

Sage Tea and Sulphur Turns Gray, Faded Hair Dark and Glossy

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is musty and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You will get a large bottle of this old time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients for about 50 cents. Everybody uses this preparation now, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger. Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

AUSTRALIANS WIN SPLENDID VICTORY

French Have Taken 29,000 Prisoners Since April 16th

Australian Troops Forge Ahead A Mile Into The German Lines

Great Hole in Hun Front is Being Successfully Maintained Against All German Counter-attacks---Riencourt is Hemmed in and Bullecourt is Almost Entirely in British Hands--French Continue Their Drive, Victoriously Repulsing All German Counter-attacks and Holding in Check a Tremendous Foe Offensive in the Champagne.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, May 7.—Australian troops in a great dash this morning pierced the Hindenburg line to the depth of one mile on a broad front. All counter attacks were repulsed. Riencourt is not enveloped, and there is hand-to-hand fighting in Bullecourt streets which is now nearly entirely in British hands.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN THE FIELD, May 7.—Australian troops forged ahead a mile into the German lines early this morning. At the moment of cabling this great hole in the German line is being successfully maintained against all enemy counter attacks.

The penetration of the German front thus achieved in around Riencourt. The Australians began their drive at dawn. Their whole salient was pushed forward yard after yard, to a mile in depth, in the face of violent resistence.

Riencourt is now hemmed in by British troops to the west, east and south. The Riencourt attack was part of a general progressing movement achieved on the right flank early to-day. Many prisoners were taken.

PARIS (French Official), May 7.—Germans were unable to regain the territory taken on a wide front Sunday by the French troops and are losing many hundreds of men in vain counter attacks. Twenty-nine thousand prisoners have been taken since April 16th.

On Sunday evening and Sunday night, the official statement said, the Germans violently counter attacked following one of the heaviest periods of artillery bombardment to which the French have yet been subjected. The German attacks covered regions of Soissons and Chemin des Dames, where four fresh divisions, approximately 40,000 men took part.

The heaviest of all attacks centred on Craonne, the Vauclere Heights, Cerny, Hurtebise and Froidmont Farm.

"Everywhere," the War Office said, "the French maintained their positions, victoriously repulsing all German masses which were smashed by our artillery and sustained great losses.

"On the rest of the front the French repulsed many counter-attacks and cleaned up enemy trenches near Sonvaux and east of Montsel."

LONDON, May 7.—Continuous German counter attacks since Saturday have failed to shake the grip on the Hindenburg line around Bullecourt, and in the face of this unending pressure the British improved their position by drives of their own. Field Marshal Haig so reported to-day.

"Early this morning," he said, "there was sharp fighting on the Hindenburg lines east of Bullecourt. Our position was improved and we progressed west of the village, taking a number of prisoners. South of Oppy a hostile bombing attack attempted after artillery preparation, was successfully driven off."

PARIS, May 7.—Twenty-nine thousand German soldiers have been captured by the French forces since General Nivelle's great drive started April 16, the French official statement announced to-day. The War Office in thus reporting the tremendous success achieved in the French "push" said the offensive was continuing to-day, with the French "everywhere victoriously repulsing counter attacks." In the Champagne, the statement said, a tremendous German counter offensive had been completely held in check the French continuing to retain all ground gained.

CANADIANS CAPTURE IMPORTANT SECTOR

Surprise Attack Sunday Morning Was Completely Successful—Canadians Have Taken 5000 Prisoners Since Drive Began

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

(By Stewart Lyon, Special Correspondent of the Canadian Press.)

CANADIAN HEADQUARTERS IN FRANCE (via London), May 6.—By a surprise attack early this (Sunday) morning, the battalion holding that part of our front immediately south of the Souchez River captured an important sector of the enemy front line and support trenches some distance to the east. The whole region southwest of Lens, where the ground was gained, is dotted over with ruins of mining villages, and almost every house has been transformed into a miniature fortress by the introduction of machine guns operated from the shelter of strong emplacements. The gunners who hold these posts do not surrender—they die at their places beside their guns, fighting to the end. Germany still has men of that type, and they sell their lives for the utmost prices they can exact.

ALL THE OCCUPANTS CAPTURED.

It was to avoid as much as possible the concentration of machine gun fire on our attacking forces that the enemy's trenches were rushed. The assault was completely successful. Our men went in with bombs and bayonets and cleared the trenches after a sharp fight. The occupants, one officer and 33 men, were captured. Possession of this ground was regarded by the enemy as so important that twice during the night he counter-attacked. Both efforts failed, and the German losses are known to be heavy.

The ground won improves our position.

The systematic burning of everything of value in and around Lens continues from day to day. The enemy seems likely to stay long enough to make good his boast that nothing of France's most prosperous mining region will be left but a smoking waste when he goes.

CANADIANS CAPTURE 5,000 HUNS.

An earlier despatch from Mr. Lyon said:

Certain comments in the Canadian press regarding recent operations of the Canadian troops in France, and which especially underestimate the probable casualties, make it necessary to say that the corps is taking its full share in what history will record as one of the greatest battles of all time, and accepting its losses as part of the inevitable price of victory.

Friday and Saturday I traversed the region behind the battle line from Bapaume to Arras, thence north to Vimy Ridge, a distance of almost thirty miles. Everywhere guns were being operated at high pressure.

The enemy's retaliation, as shown by the showers of earth spouting up on the hillsides and by the puffs of bursting shrapnel on the skyline, is far greater than when the battle of Arras began on April 9th. He has lost guns, and has probably made good his loss only by supreme effort, but that effort has been made, and the testimony of the men in the thick of the

OUR MUSICAL PAGE

The Examiner gives to its readers to-day a music page, and this feature will continue to appear every week. We have long appreciated the refining influence of music upon the community. We have always upheld every proper movement for the advancement of musical cultivation and musical taste. But these have been public matters, appealing collectively to groups that assemble in public places to give ear to pleasing sounds. Without in the least lessening our great interest in musical affairs of a public nature, or the space which we give to their interests, we now propose to enter the home, where not only the ear but the hand and the voice enter into a combination to make as well as to enjoy music. There are few homes in Peterborough without music in some form, and there are few where there is not an interest in the general subject of music and a desire to keep abreast with its progress and to have the news that pertains to it. It is in response to that interest and that desire that The Examiner inaugurates its weekly musical page. It is not a page for musicians exclusively, but for all who have a love for music, who are concerned in its cultivation and advancement and who want to know what is going on in the musical world, and that takes in almost everybody.

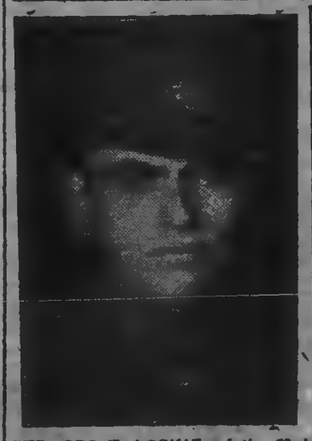
The Siegfried Line Is Penetrated By French



PTE. GEO T. LOCKIE, of the 93rd Battalion, who is officially reported wounded.

Cleared Last German Off the Craonne Plateau and Captured 6100 Prisoners — One Army Corps Alone Takes 1800 and Captures a Front of Three Miles

WILL BE NO LET-UP

PARIS, May 6—With renewed vigor the French returned to the attack on the defences of Laon and made excellent progress. They cut a salient of four miles from the Siegfried line, and on a front as large cleared the last German from the Craonne plateau reaching the dominating heights beyond. During the day more than 6,100 German prisoners were counted, which makes the total of 7,100 since the present offensive started. One French army corps alone took 1,800 prisoners and captured a front of three miles almost in its entirety on the Siegfried line.

This victory was accomplished, however, only by breaking down a German defence stubborn beyond description. In fact, it may be doubted whether many days of more intense fighting ever have been seen. On the whole front of 40 miles and more there was an incessant battle, in which French attack and German counter-attack alternated.

Against the French, as he has against the British, von Hindenburg threw in many fresh divisions. The French identified four new units on small sections of the front. Wherever a point in his line was threatened the German commander threw in reserves in fierce efforts to regain lost positions. It is authoritively stated that the Germans counter-attacked yesterday more violently than at any time since the French offensive started

"Will such a struggle continue?" a Havas correspondent asked one of the French commanders.

NO LET-UP, IS RESPONSE.

"Yes," was the reply. "To-morrow and the next day and so on until we get a decision."

The French seemed yesterday well on their way to that decision. For the first time the War Office announces officially the capture of parts of the Hindenburg line, which the French have now penetrated as the British penetrated it. And the French cut into that famous line exactly as the British cut it—at its point of junction with the old line.

In the region north-east of Soissons between Soissons and Laon, the French stormed a salient of the Hindenburg trenches along the national highway from Paris to Maubeuge, which passes through Laon. The attack was divided in two parts and each part progressed.

Immediately began the German counter-attacks. The grey lines came on and on, almost unceasingly, with the exhortations of their officers to retake the Hindenburg trenches ringing in their ears. Each attack was caught by the French artillery and great gaps were blown in the formations. Then the remnants that had managed to penetrate the barrage were wiped out by the swishing French machine-gun fire.

ADVANCE ABOUT CRAONNE.

To the east about Craonne the French infantry set out to reap all the benefit from the capture of that important position, and did it. The plateau, including the whole Vauclero position except the forest, was overrun by the blue-grey troops. They did not stop until they had reached the hills that look down upon the

MUNITIONS PLANT IS BADLY WRECKED BY BIG EXPLOSION

One Man Killed and Two Others Fatally Burned When One-third of Plant of Tennesee Company Is Destroyed

TROOPS ARE INJURED

KINGSPORT, Tenn., May 7.—One-third of the mammoth munitions plant of the Federal Dyestuffs and Chemical Co., was destroyed here early to-day by a terrific explosion. Professor Allen Here On Saturday

Attended a Conference in Connection With the Resources Committee

Professor Allen of Toronto University, was in the city Saturday on behalf of the government, looking into the local work of the Organization of Resources committee. A conference was held with Mr. Aylmer, the president, Mr. Wearing, the secretary, and Mr. G. A. Gillespie, M.P., who has handled a bureau for bringing together farmers and city men willing to work on farms. It was shown that a good many men had gone out to farms as a result of the work of the committee. It was also decided that the secretary should write every minister in the country urging that a sermon on production be preached next Sunday. Rev. R. G. Peever of George street church, and Rev. J. R. Webb, of Murray street church, have already preached sermons along this line. Professor Allen reported a hearty desire on the part of the Provincial government to co-operate with the farmers in the matter of increased production.

Shell Orders Are Lessening

The report that orders for eight and nine-inch shells are to be summarily stopped on May 31st was declared to be incorrect at the Imperial Munitions Board. Some time ago it was officially intimated and published that manufacturers might expect a falling off in orders owing to the greatly increased capacity of the munition factories in England and the difficulties of transportation. By the end of June the orders for this class of shell will be determined gradually. They will be tapered off, and may run till September. The view of the Munitions Board is none too favourable towards manufacturers, who are far behind in their deliveries.—Monetary Times.

THE GREAT ADVANCE

RAILWAY NATIONALIZATION.

Public ownership of public utilities has come into high and general favour; but the proposal to nationalise—publicly own—two great transcontinental railway systems, involving an assumption of financial responsibility of about 7 1-2 million dollars, seems worth thinking over twice by a population of only seven and a half million people.

The taking over these railways is a staggering proposal, but is perhaps possibly the best thing we can do, in the national interest. It is a choice between two evils. These railways are virtually bankrupt, and if left to their own unaided efforts will pass into the hands of receivers and Canwill stand to largely lose the sums she has lavishly conferred upon them. Of the estimated $20 millions cost of the Canadian Northern, the people of Canada have contributed $98 millions. The Grand Trunk System and the Grand Trunk Pacific, financially, hope lessly intertangled, and the Intercolonial Railway, already owned by the country, are in a similar position as to help and need of more help, and are embraced in the national assumption and amalgamation.

Every year the country is called upon to extend extensive aid, counted in millions, to other people's property. Public aid has been so lavish in respect of these railways and another railway that the total of the people's money tied up in them amounts to nearly a thousand million dollars. Beyond this, the national obligation arising from the assumption of these lines will be comparatively small. It is estimated that the annual liability of the government to meet interest charges for the first few years would be twelve and a half million dollars, a small sum compared with the "help" we still have to give from time to time to keep these railways on their feet. But we should own the roads, and under proper management earnings might be applied to lighten the financial burden.

The most hopeful aspect of the proposal is that the Commission includes in its recommendation, the entire removal of the management and operation of the acquired railways from political control, which means political bedevilment—government ownership, but commission management. The Intercolonial—a government-owned railway, under political control, has always been a bill of expense—a school of scandalous political exploitation—a railway failure, as far as paying its way, largely, if not wholly due to political control. With the political element—the brakes—removed; with adequate financial backing and working capital, with needed equipment supplied, with business methods applied, it is possible that the country might get approximately adequate value from its huge "investments." At the worst there would be perhaps loss in operation for a time but that loss could not be anything comparable to the amount the country would have to pour into the "sink-hole" to keep the railways out of bankruptcy and the loss of the immense sums the country has tied up in them.

The question is an immense one and seems too large for a country of our population to entertain. But Canada has in the past three years done well many things, which four years ago would have been ranked with the impossible.

The question in its broad aspect seems to be reducible to this. Shall we continue to lavish millions on these railways or take possession of them, put them on their feet, and run them on business principles in an effort to gain a little salvage out of the wreck? The situation created is one for statesmen to deal with—for statesmanship in its highest character, without partizan alloy.

OFF TO A GOOD START.

In view of the announced visit of the Duke of Devonshire to Peterborough, the city council issued instructions to have the streets through which the vice-regal progress should be made, in his tour of the city, put into as tidy and good order as possible.

That was a wise order, for it was not only due to our own self-respect, but to the sharp eye for roads His Grace is known to possess. He is a judge of good roads and a keen observer. In opening the Good Roads Congress at Ottawa early in April, the Duke, among other things said:

"I have not had opportunity to see many roads in Canada, but those I have seen have filled me with admiration; not for the roads, but for the skill of the driver and the strength of the vehicle."

So it was wise on the part of the city fathers to tidy the streets in anticipation of His Excellency's visit; but it is doubtful if a little pharisaic cleansing of the outside of the cup and platter would have fooled him very much.

This emphasizes an important thing. Hospitality and regard for the city's good name was involved in the partial street tidying plan; but it only brings to mind the shortcomings of the city council, the lack of policy in regard to everyday good roads in the interests of the citizens.

It is a fine thing to have a few fairly good streets for the visit of a vice-regal guest for a few hours, something that would be provided all over and every day if the council realised the importance of good streets for our tax-paying citizens; for auto owners, and the owners of other wheeled vehicles, who have to use our streets the year round. If it is a good thing to have good streets for a few minutes in deference to the Duke's bones, and his keen eye, it would be a better thing to have fairly good streets all the time in deference to the welfare of the tax-payers.

Though Devonshire has cancelled his visit, his proposal to come and see us has evidently had a good effect. Our street department has been stirred up, and are at this moment "on the job" and are off to a good start.

The streets are being cleaned and in a more speedy and economical way than ever before, and with better results. The employment of the grading machine not only rapidly collects the winter's deposits in what the farmer would call "windrows," but the grader serves the double purpose of levelling and smoothing the driving surface of the street, but opens the gutters and provides or helps provide the first consideration in gravel or macadam street building and maintenance—good surface drainage.

So excellent are the results from the use of the grader in improving street surface and providing drainage, that it seems it would be a good practice to employ it for a similar purpose at intervals throughout the open season.

The work of the grader and the men that clear away the winter's rubbish reveals the streets in a fairly good condition; something that has been helped on the streets where oil has been used. Another justification for oiling the streets, and another proof of its excellent effects is afforded. Not only does the oil keep down dirt, but it preserves the street surface; but if the quality of the oil is good its benefits are evident after a hard winter, as can be seen on all the oiled streets this spring.

Another benefit of the use of oil is that the streets have to be put in fairly good condition to justify the application of oil with the best results.

The oil preserves the surface by resisting the entrance of water, and, conjoined with good surface drainage, by well-opened and kept-open gutters, makes more lasting the life of the street surface in good condition.

The extensive use of the grader this spring, and the excellent results that have followed, show that with a street fairly well constructed, the work of keeping it in fairly good usable condition is so easy that there is little excuse for allowing streets to deteriorate by neglect.

With the continual use of a dump cart to fill depressions that develop, as fast as they appear and before they are gouged into deep holes; with occasional consolidation by the steam roller the grader, which used skilfully corresponds to the log-drag, used with such satisfactory results on earth roads in the country; then an occasional consolidation of the steam roller, and we should have at comparatively small cost, roads that would delight the hearts of the auto drivers or the driver of other vehicles.

Something like this done before every application of oil, with some local care in exceptional cases, and we shall have far better streets for less expenditure of money.

The Board of Works has made an excellent beginning this year and if they keep it up—if they provide dustless streets and otherwise good streets, they will make their "calling and election sure;" for they will appeal to the women vote which will probably "cut a good deal of ice" next January.

GENERAL SMUTS IN LONDON.

That must have been a thrilling demonstration in London yesterday, when representatives of South Africa, Newfoundland, and India had conferred upon them the freedom of London. The ceremony was emblematic of the unity of the Empire, and a tribute to the spirit in which the free nations under the British flag are fighting for the old cause of liberty. To Germany it must seem a miracle that a representative of the Dutch of South Africa should have made a speech so full of loyalty to the British flag and to British principles, and so full of encouragement and inspiration, as that made by General Smuts. But General Smuts, like President Wilson, and like the leaders in India, in Canada, and in every other country outside the iron domination of Germany, realizes that human liberty is at stake, and that the greatest force for the preservation of human liberty is the British Empire. Instead of the disintegration of the British Empire, the war has proved its crowning justification. The greatest of all the miscalculations made by Germany is that such a scene as that in London yesterday would be possible when the Empire was in need of the help of her stalwarts from overseas.—Montreal Herald.

Present Need of Adequate Handling Of the Business of Government

Canada, in the most crucial period of the war, is drifting aimlessly like a ship without a rudder. The country is without leadership and without a policy. The Government of the day might as well be located in Timbuctoo so far as the intelligent direction of public affairs is concerned. While Sir Robert Borden and Hon. Robert Rogers are delivering speeches in England and prancing about on Imperial hobby horses, at home the conduct of the war goes from bad to worse. There is no recruiting, no intelligent lead regarding national service, no adequate attempt to face the problems of food production, and no effort to organize the enthusiasm of the nation, which is clamouring for action. The government of Canada, especially at this time of war, is a business that demands the unremitting attention of stateamen fired by a jealous regard for the honour and good name of their country, and seized of the gravity and magnitude of the world-conflict, in the successful prosecution of which Canada has pledged her last dollar and her last man.

How stands Canada in this third year of war? Recruiting depots might as well be closed up. Outside the aviation branch, recruiting for overseas forces has practically ceased. Had the Militia Act been put into force a stimulus would have been given to overseas recruiting. Thirteen thousand Canadian casualties at Vimy Ridge and after, and no men to fill the gaps! Can men responsible for this collapse in the mobilization of man-power be regarded as safe guides for Canada at this crisis? This is no party issue. It is not a fight between Liberal and Conservatives and of Liberals who of the people of Canada are not fixed on Ottawa or on the ballot box. The fight is between Germany and the civilized world. The sons of Conservatives and of Liberals who are facing death on the battle-front are united by a single purpose and moved by a common will. No lines of party cleavage separate them as they go into action against a common foe. It is as Canadians they hold the unbroken line. It is Canada that is in this war, and in it to the end. It is as a nation that the fight must be carried through to decisive victory. Who will say that Sir Robert Borden and his colleagues represent the war-spirit of Canada or that they give voice to the true sentiment of the nation?

The breakdown of the Borden Government in the conduct of the war arises from two main causes. From the beginning the War Government of Canada has been a dividing, not a unifying, influence in the country. When war broke out an opportunity arose to solidify the nation, to mobilize all the forces of the Dominion behind the Government. The leader of the Liberal party pledged the support of his followers in any action the Government might take calculated to carry the war through to a triumphant close. The spirit of the people beat high in face of the insolent challenge of Germany. All the country needed was a statesman at the helm, and a Government honest of purpose and swayed by but a single thought; the desire to serve Canada and the cause for which she stood. The people asked for leadership, and got "Hon." Col. Allison. They asked for clean administration, and found corruption and graft in high places. They asked for unity and found the Cabinet a nest of warring intriguers fighting over war contracts. They asked for a vigorous prosecution of the war, and got rifles that jammed in action. They asked for statesmen and got Hon. Robert Rogers. They asked for a business-like, efficient Government, and now, after two and a half years of war, find the Cabinet hopelessly at sea in regard to pressig problems that call for immediate solution.

The failure of the Borden Administration is due to the absence of statesmanship and the lack of moral stamina. The country demands a Government that will govern. In everything that affects the successful prosecution of the war, and the welfare of the people on whom the burdens of war already press heavily, the Borden Government has signally failed to express the national mind. —The Globe.

Mr. R. Hicks Favours Municipal Coal Yard As Proposed

"We haven't accepted an order for coal since the first of May," said Mr. Robert Hicks of the R. Hicks Coal Co., Ltd. "We are delivering coal, in fact we have our own and borrowed teams working, but this is on orders accepted in April at $9 a ton. We are filling these orders because they were actual contracts with citizens. We couldn't foresee the sharp upturn in the market. However, we have, since May 1st, done what we could to let people who were out of coal have small quantities within the limit of our supplies. They have to carry it away because we have all we can do filling the orders we took at $9."

Mr. Hicks stated that he expected to get new shipments, but not at the April price. He added that he had duly advertised coal for sale in April, had sold it throughout the month and had enough orders to keep the teams busy for several weeks. "The people are trying to buy in a few days what they ordinarily buy in the summer season," he told a man who wanted eight tons and was told he couldn't get them now. The situation was abnormal. It would probably grow more acute, but within thirty days the whole character might change and the price grow less.

Mr. Hicks strongly advocated a municipal coal market if the city could arrange it satisfactorily. Some such means seemed to be necessary to meet the demands of the city during the next year. This question will likely be introduced at to-night's meeting of the Council. The petition circulated at the C.G.E. works has been largely signed, it was stated, and it is known that at least one of the aldermen has a suggestion to present to the Council.

RUSSIAN COMMUNITIES TO BUY AND SELL SHOES

OTTAWA, May 6.—Russian municipalities are about to engage in the boot and shoe business, according to Mr. C. F. Just, Canadian Trade Commissioner at Petrograd. Mr. Just reports to the Trade and Commerce Department that a number of cities are arranging to import boots, shoes and rubbers in order to supply their people with footwear at reasonable prices. The City of Moscow is the market for 400,000 pairs and other cities will make purchases on the same scale. Mr. Just states that the Russians will be glad to deal with Canadians if the goods can be procured here at satisfactory prices.

DOG CATCHER HAS NOT YET BEEN APPOINTED.

Council is Delaying the Effective Working of the New By-law by This Neglect to Complete the Scheme.

One of the items the Council should deal with to-night is the immediate appointment of a dog-catcher. The net has been prepared, the pen is ready, but the city has been slow to take the final step of naming an official to enforce the by-law it passed several weeks ago.

The absence of dogs from the streets has evidently pleased the great majority of citizens, who find the new conditions more than satisfactory.

ENGLAND'S OLDEST FARMER 100TH YEAR

On a peaceful old fashioned farmstead in Cornwall I have discovered (writes a correspondent of the London Chronicle), probably the oldest farmer in England. This is Mr. William Mugfur, of Golant, who is in his 100th year. When I called on him a day or two ago he was in the garden watching one of the farmhands tilling the soil.

"Walk about all right?" he repeated. "Lor' bless 'ee, yes. I was at Lostwithiel Cattle Market a little while ago, and I go to church every Sunday—at least, I go to church in the morning and to chapel in the evening."

He travels about by train unaided. He is a little deaf but otherwise in possession of all his faculties. He dresses without assistance, and even shaves himself. Holding up his hand, he was proud to show how steady it was. The war interests him intensely. He can read the newspapers with the aid of spectacles.

"I have been a very hard worker in my day," he said, "but it hasn't hurt me. If you want to live to a good old age you mustn't live too fast. And eat plenty of salt—I believe that is a good thing." He does not smoke much, and only takes anything alcoholic in moderation.

Mr. Mugfur is not a great advocate of women on the land. He admitted they were "handy," for certain farm work, and expressed the opinion that farmers would not have them if they could do without.

Swedish Royalties Preparing To Flee

LONDON, May 7.—An Amsterdam despatch declares that the danger of a revolution against the present Government and royal family of Sweden is so great that two warships have been placed in the anchorage opposite the royal palace to be available if the King and Queen are compelled to flee.

The situation in Sweden is very serious. Every day the attitude of the Government and its sympathy with Germany are resented more vigorously by the people. Sweden is also influenced by Norway, which is moving fast toward war against Germany.

HOME WARRIORS

(By C. N. MESERVE)

General Secretary of the Peterborough Y. M. C. A.

Appended is a patriotic story for boys and published in "Pleasant Hours," April 28th. The story was written by Mr. C. N. Meserve, General Secretary of the Peterborough Branch of the Y.M.C.A. Mr. Meserve is also the author of "The Elephant's Holiday," the "Meserve Personal and Family Account System," etc. The following story is entitled "Home Warriors." It reads as follows:

A special train in two sections, filled with soldiers, was standing at a station in eastern Ontario. All were on board but Lieutenant-Colonel True, who was behind the baggage room door, earnestly talking to a young boy dressed in khaki, who had been the battalion mascot for the past six months.

"No Percy," said the officer, "we are not taking fourteen year old boys to the firing line as yet, not even as buglers."

"But, sir," insisted Percy Barnes, almost guilty of insubordination, "I am strong and well, can give all the bugle calls, and get along well with the men, and with brother Bob in the trenches, sister Bess doing a man's work in the bank, and mother at Red Cross work, I just must do my bit, too. Oh, Colonel, can't you——"

The boy's pleading was interrupted by the noisy entrance to the baggage-room of the battalion sergeant-major, dragging a second boy by the arm. The newcomer was about the size of Percy and the boys were apparently acquainted, for they exchanged looks of sympathy and understanding.

"Found this kid, behind some boxes in one of the supply cars," tersely explained the sergeant-major, "and brought him to you for orders."

"Well, what have you to say for yourself, my lad?" demanded the colonel.

The boy quickly came to "attention" when addressed by the officer, and saluted.

"Sir, my name is Fred Harris, son of Pte. James Harris, of B Company, No. 3 platoon, who is leaving with you to-day. Dad has never been away from home a night since I can remember; he has been my chum, and taught me to swim and play ball, and since he enlisted he has shown me the military drill. Dad said that I have the making of a good soldier in me, so I wanted to go along with him. I am thirteen years old, and can do 'most as good work as a man."

The colonel looked from one boy to the other and said, "Well, you are two very ambitious youngsters. Do you expect to kill giants in France, with slings and pebbles, as David did at another place, in Bible times? However, the Almighty knew how to use David, and He may place a higher value on the services of our boys of to-day than some of us realise. We are all in the war, boys; even Percy's mother and sister are helping, and you can do a great deal right here in Canada to bring victory. We must mobilise our boy power at home, and then we can fully mobilise our man power for the firing line. Boys, you have the right spirit, so if the age limit holds you at home, be good soldiers, and do your 'bit' here. I must go now. Good-bye and good luck."

The colonel stepped aboard the train which slowly pulled out, leaving amid the excited crowd, two disappointed boys: Percy Barnes, the little recruiting sergeant, as he had been called by the men of the departed battalion, a fatherless boy, but full of grit; and Fred Harris, just now hard hit by the separation from his father, his first and best loved chum. The boys united by a bond of sympathy unknown in their friendship of the past, walked down the street in silence, until they came to Percy's house, where they threw themselves down by a maple tree for mutual consolation.

"What do you know about that?" asked Fred.

"Can you beat it?" replied Percy. "I wonder what the colonel meant by doing our bit at home."

"Dunno; but I can't knit socks and I don't want to fuss around the house," said Fred.

"Well, I won't be a slacker," asserted Percy.

"But what can we do?" demanded his companion.

Mrs. Barnes interrupted the conversation at this point by calling to Percy. "Please run down to the store and order a bushel of potatoes." Her son dutifully started to obey, saying "Come on, Fred."

Soon the boys returned, reporting that the grocer had said that potatoes were becoming quite scarce and very dear.

"Everything is going up in price," remarked Mrs. Barnes. "I hope our food supply won't give out. Germany has been using food cards for some time but we are better provisioned than she is, and must continue to be. The best fed soldiers will win, other things being equal, for they say soldiers fight on their stomachs. We certainly have more idle land that should be cultivated than has Germany, but who will do the work."

While Mrs. Barnes was speaking, the boys were applying her remarks to their big problem, "How can a boy do his bit at home?" Percy gave a long whistle, and said, "Oh, I see now! 'Every little bit added to what you've got make, just a little more.' My bit is to add a little bit to the crops grown in Canada. I am just eating now what the other fellow produces. I am going to raise my own rations, and fight Germany with potatoes. No trouble to find land begging to be tilled—why, even our own garden has not been worked since our father died. Its only crop lately ha been weeds. I can fight weeds. Come on in, Fred, the water is fine."

Fred looked thoughtful, but not enthusiastic, over the suggestion.

"I never did any gardening," he objected. "If it were carpentering, now—I learned something of that from Dad."

"I'm not much of a farmer, either," answered Percy. "But lots of men are digging trenches in France who did no harder work than measure dry goods before the war."

"Oh," said Fred, "I'm not afraid of hard work. The job I would like would be to make shells, but I guess there would be no chance for boys of our age in that line. I suppose your mother is right when she says that a soldier must have his eats or he can't fight. If spuds will help win the war, I'm game to raise them if you are."

Like Caleb and Joshua of Old Testament times the boys' first move was to spy out the land, their second, to possess it. Each one had a small garden spot at his home, which he determined to work, but they were looking for harder tasks, and larger fields to conquer.

Together they called on Mr. Jones, a member of the Provincial Parliament, and a manufacturer, who had an acre plot near his factory, which was awaiting the time when he should enlarge his buildings. The boys enthusiastically outlined their plans to him and readily won his consent to their having the free use of his piece of ground. He also generously offered a quantity of manure that had accumulated around his shop stables, if the boys would have it removed. Fred borrowed an old horse and a single wagon from a relation, and with a little work they soon had the land well enriched, and ready for plowing.

The only work that they were obliged to hire down in connection with their whole enterprise, was the breaking up of the soil by a team and plow, owned and operated by a teamster, who did garden plowing on the side. Their mothers loaned them money to pay for this, and for their seed potatoes, and the planting was accomplished after school and on Saturdays, the boys working together most agreeably, Percy taking the lead as he was one year older than Fred. They decided on potatoes as their one crop, thinking it better to specialise than to try a variety of vegetables. When a vacation time came they made up a schedule that allowed them to have a run to a near by river for an early morning swim, and gave them their evenings for canoe trips or swimming in the friendly old stream. Still it took a soldier's courage and fortitude to see their gang depart without them on a camping trip up the lake, and to resist the temptation to loaf under the trees, but they constantly reminded themselves that they were doing their "bit," and were helping to win the war.

It was hardly encouraging to hear the farmers say that it was an off year for the potato crop, and hoeing was new work, and hot, hard work, but they soon became accustomed to it, and made sport of the effort. Percy would often start a spurt when hoeing a long row, and call back to Fred:

"Come on, the Germans are after you." Or Fred would strike an unusually big weed and throw it into the air, yelling, "Look, Percy, I got the Hun that time."

Later in the season the real battle came on, for their field was attacked by a numerous foe; platoons, companies, battalions, brigades, divisions, army corps and full armies of persistent and greedy red bugs.

"Now for the powder," said Percy, as he mixed the lime and Paris green.

"Yes, and some liquid fire," added Fred as he dumped a panful of bugs in blazing coal oil. So the bugs went down to defeat, as did everything else that undertook to discourage or defeat their one great project.

Nineteen sixteen was a poor potato year for many in Ontario but the tubers nursed by the boys, flourished like flowers in a conservatory, and the yield was even better than normal. The acre piece, together with the two small garden plots, produced one hundred and fifty bushels of as fine potatoes as ever cheered the heart or pleased the taste of any native of Ireland. The boys finished the season in the front trench by digging and marketing the whole crop themselves.

The potatoes sold at a good price, for the average yield of the year was low, so the boys had the advantage of being at the top of the market with a good crop to sell. Expenses were first met, and the boys felt well repaid when they divided $175 between them. Each boy made a contribution to welfare work for soldiers overseas, and put the rest in the bank to be used for clothes and other expenses during the year.

No soldier ever enjoyed a victory more completa than that which was realised by the two boys who had done their "bit" at home, as the next best thing to going to the front.

"We're real soldiers now," said Fred. "Let's write the colonel that we've won our first engagement.

One winter afternoon Fred called in at the Barnes home to show Percy a letter just received from his father, "somewhere in France."

Pte. Harris said:

"Dear Son:

"Your work with Percy Barnes this year makes me more proud of you than ever. We have played enough games together to know what team work means, so while you and I are widely separated, still each is playing his part in the same game; I in the field and you at the home base. Remember, team work will win.

"Best regards to Percy.

"Much love from your father."

While this letter was being read by a strange coincidence, the mail carrier left two other letters, addressed jointly to Percy and Fred.

The first one was from Lieut.-Colonel True.

"My dear young soldiers," he began, "your letter reporting the great success of your potato campaign received. You really should be mentioned in the Canadian despatches. You have shown good grit and I trust that the men of Canada will see that boy power can do much to keep the home machinery in motion and that nothing stands in the way of their having a share of the glorious and final victory to be won by the soldiers of the king.

"Congratulations from

"R. U. True."

The other was from Mr. Jones who was in Toronto just then.

"Dear Percy and Fred:

"One of the problems that the Ontario Parliament is called upon to solve during the spring of 1917, is how to interest boys to take the place of men in agriculture, at least for the period of the war.

"Unknown to you, I took the liberty of reporting to the Ontario Department of Agriculture the success you met with in working my vacant piece of land. I have held you up not only as an example of patriotism, but to illustrate what the boys of our province can do when they undertake a thing.

"I want you to come to Toronto as my guests for the opening of the Provincial Parliament in February, and while you are here, I'd like you to tell your experiences in the cultivation of potatoes to the men in the Department of Agriculture, which is going to commence a great campaign to induce boys to produce vegetables in backyard gardens and on vacant lots, and also to work on the farms.

"Sincerely yours,

"John Jones."

After reading these letters, Percy looked at Fred, and Fred looked at Percy, and they both looked at a map of Canada hanging on the wall. Each face showed a determination to play the game through, for, as the boys agreed, when speech returned, "It's up to us, and the other 999,998 boys of the Dominion to help win the war."

IN MEMORIAM.

In memoriam of Mrs. Alex Reid, who departed this life April 22nd, 1917:

A precious one from us is gone
Her pain and suffering past;
And all her work on earth is done;
She is numbered with the blest.

Dear sister, she has gone to rest,
We miss her from our home,
She's gone to dwell where angels dwell,
Where sickness ne'er can come.

Her relatives far and near may meet
To spend a social hour,
But sister's face will not be there
To meet us any more.

But she has learned to trust a Friend,
Who is a friend indeed;
And leaning on His mighty arm,
She trusted him to lead.

And many times when tempted
No doubt she heard Him say:
"Fear not, for I am with thee,
And will be all the way."

Calm she sleeps in Jesus now,
The warfare it is past,
The battle fought, the victory won,
And she is crowned at last.

Her lot was cast midst trouble,
And oft her heart made sore,
As one by one her loved ones
Passed to the other shore

But now she's crossed the river,
Her face no more we'll see;
A starry gem she'll be.
But in the bright forever

Heaven retaineth now our treasure,
Earth the lonely casket keeps.
And the sunbeams long to linger
Where dear sainted sister sleeps.

Peaceful be thy silent slumbers,
Peaceful in thy grave so low;
Thou no more will join our number,
Thou no more our sorrows know.

Yet again we hope to meet thee,
When the day of life is fled;
And in heaven with joy to greet thee,
Where no farewell tears are shed.

Oh the hope, the hope so sweet,
That we soon in heaven may meet;
There we all shall happy be,
Rest from pain and sorrow free.

—SISTER.

MILITARY NEWS

OTTAWA, May 3.—Sir Edward Kemp, Minister of Militia, in reply to a series of questions by Mr. F. F. Pardee in the Commons this afternoon, admitted that the number of recruits for the home defence army is so far small. Sir Edward said that the exact figures are not available, and he added that it was not in the public interest to submit an estimate of the probable number of men that would be in training in the militia camps by June 1st next. The Minister was somewhat vague in his statement that it was "necessary to maintain armed forces within Canada for the maintenance of law and order and to meet emergencies, the exact nature of which it is impossible to foresee."

It is understood that the total enrolment for the Defence Force has been only a few hundreds. The scheme of voluntary enlistment for a home defence army does not seem to meet the requirements of the situation. Meanwhile the recruits of last winter for the Expeditionary Force have been, for the most part, sent overseas, and recruiting at present is hardly keeping pace with casualties at the front. However, as Sir Edward Kemp said in the Commons three days ago, any scheme of compulsory military service "has not been considered."

The Bobcaygeon Independent says:—Captain W. W. Boyd tells, in a recent letter of an exciting time he had in satisfying the German airmen that Britain must rule the air as she does the sea. He writes:

"I have been very busy lately—flying every day that flying is possible. Some of the other observers have been away on leave, and a couple of others are missing, so the remainder are kept busy.

"I have been in one air scrap. You know all machines are now armed with machine guns for defensive as well as offensive action. We were up directing the fire of some heavy guns and were flying fairly low, about 3,000 feet. As I was looking for Hun scouts I was gazing around the sky and had hold of my machine gun, watching a fight going on about 4,000 feet above us, between about ten fighting planes of each side. Suddenly one of our fighting planes rushed over us, going down, pursued by a Bosche. We got in behind them and the Bosche turned on us but was not high enough to dive, and I fired on him until he veered off and made for Hunland. Our fighting plane managed to land but both pilot and gunner were wounded. Undoubtedly we just managed to save them and were lucky to get away ourselves. We only had two bullets in the machine. One cracked a cylinder of the engine and the other through the tail of the plane.

"Just now the Huns are very bad and their "Archies" wonderfully accurate, so flying is not as pleasant as it might be.

"My flight commander, Delhage, was at Castle Bromwich with Laurie. Delhage is of French extraction, but was living in Canada before the war."

Captain Boyd went overseas in May, 1916, as a lieutenant with the 39rd Battery, and with another battery to which he was transferred went through the Somme offensive last summer. He received his promotion to Captain in England, and early this year, he having been instructed under active service conditions, he entered the Flying Corps as an observer. His brother, Laurie, of whom he speaks, is an aviator in India, while still another brother, Mossom de G., is attached to the 252nd Battalion, at Lindsay. His sister, Miss Shiela, is working in a munition factory in Toronto. One brother, Mr. G. Cust Boyd remains to attend to The Mossom Boyd Company's affairs, and is a busy man, for they extend to the Pacific.

Mr. Teddy Firth, only son of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Firth, left this morning for Toronto, to report for duty with the Royal Flying Corps.

Mrs. R. Wilshaw, 189 Edinburgh street, has received an interesting letter from her husband, Pte. Jas. Wilshaw, who went overseas with the 59th Battalion and was transferred to another Canadian battalion at the front. Writing on April 15th, he says:

"We certainly had some fight two days ago and will be in another one two days from now. We captured 1,170 prisoners, 165 field guns, 107 machine guns and quite a few hundred wounded prisoners. You can bet we gave Fritz something for his trouble. It was a rotten sight to see the dead that were lying there. Talk about dead Germans, lots of them, some with heads off, some cut in half. I had a couple of chums beside me killed. I thought my turn had come but luck was on my side. You can bet I said my prayers all right.

Co. Sergt. Major Jones of the 252nd Battalion, Lindsay, formerly of the 247th Battalion, spent the week end in Peterborough.

HE WAS KILLED IN FRANCE.

Pte. F. Birdgenaw, No. 195013.

The following lines were written by Pte. Daniel Birdgenaw of the 21st Battalion, Somewhere in France, in memory of his brother, Pte. Frank Birdgenaw, who was killed in action some time ago:

He fell at his post like a soldier brave,
He answered his Majesty's call.
He sleeps far away in a hero's grave,
For his country's cause he did fall.

Somewhere in France he gently sleeps,
The dear one one of my heart,
Little we thought that we so soon—
So sadly soon—should part.

Years may pass, dear brother,
But your face will never fade,
For we love still as dearly
Though you are in a silent grave.

In the bloom of life death claimed him,
In the pride of his manhood days;
None knew him but to love him,
None mentioned his name but in praise.

Through the coming years I will miss him,
But whenever my heart does ache
Sweet will be the consolation
That he died for his country's sake.

In a letter to a friend in the Examiner, Pte. Dan. Birdgenaw states that he is quite well and plugging hard to bring the war to a finish.

The following letter was received by Mrs. Stephen Scott, Young's Point, Ont., from her son, Pte. Nicholas Scott, who is now with the 18th Battalion in France:

Somewhere in France,
April 4th, 1917.

My dear Mother,—Here I am again as large as life and twice as natural. Well, mother, it is quite a while now since I wrote you before, but still such things will happen some time. I never had much news to tell you, but have a little now. I had a big day and night with Will Scott last night. He is fine. Just the same old Will. We certainly had a great chat about poor old Chandos. Roy Coons was with us too. He is a sergeant now. I met a whole bunch of the old boys this time out. Charlie Dywire, the post's lad. Bert Watly and a great many more, but have not met Oswal yet. I had a letter from Sam Dunk. He is all right again. I also had one from Jack Gifford. He is still in England.

Well, mother, I received another one of your great parcels yesterday. Many many thanks for them all. It is not very long ago since I got two: one was in a round tin box, the other was in a cardboard box. The cake was a little broken, but I tell you it went good just the same. The one I got yesterday was in a long tin box. It was certainly in great shape.

Well, mother, I have been getting the old Examiners all O.K. There is some nice letters in them from the boys at the front. I suppose you are all moved up on your new farm. Tell father to not work too hard. I may be home to help him dig the potatoes yet. Hope you are not worrying about me, for I am just the same little boy, and as happy as can be, for I know I will come home safe some day, and, if not, I will have done my bit, and that's what I always wanted to do, do or die.

Well, mother, I was over with a bunch to see old Fritz, and I tell you he gave us a pretty hot reception, but not any better than we gave him. I was the only 93rd boy out of our company that was over. There were three out of B Company, and only one of them was wounded. There was eight out of our company went over. Six of them were wounded, D. Mallick and myself being the two lucky ones, but I have been very lucky ever since I enlisted.

Well, mother, I think I will soon have to close for this time, thanking you again for all your lovely parcels and the money also. With kindest love to all, I remain your loving son,

Pte. Nicholas Scott.

Mrs. A. Ringer, 478 Aylmer street, whose husband, Sergt. Arthur Ringer, of the 93rd Battalion, was reported seriously wounded recently, has received the following letter:

No. 4 Ward,
13 General Hospital,
Boulogne Base,
April 15.

Dear Mrs. Ringer,—I saw your husband at the above hospital yesterday afternoon, and he asked me to send you a line to let you know how he was. He was wounded on Easter Monday by shrapnel in the head and leg, and arrived here ten days ago.

He is getting on well and when I left was hoping to be sent over to England. He will let you know his address and how he is on arrival. He also sent his love to you and the children.

Yours faithfully,
M. R. RAMSAY, Visitor.

Pte. R. Morsity, 195583, Royal Canadians, who enlisted in the 93rd Battalion was invalided from France in April and is now going on well in the Northamptonshire War Hospital, Duston, Northamptonshire, England.

Mr. Jas. Hatcher, 130 Stewart street, has received the following letter from Major J. C. Davidson:

110 3 Can. Stationary Hospital,
B. E. F., France, April 18, '17.

Mr. James Hatcher,
139 Stewart Street.

Dear Mr. Hatcher,—I am very sorry indeed to see that your fine son, Pte. Harold Hatcher, 93rd, was killed in January. I got to know Harold pretty well, beginning when he was in the orderly room and I used to see him every day. He was a nice, clean, reliable boy, and I liked him very well. He told me about your having a severe illness, and getting better. I am sorry that we have lost him. Your family has certainly done a splendid part for the Country and Empire. I do hope your other boys will come home. We shall be proud of Harold's spirit and sacrifice, even though our feelings are sad.

With deep regret for you and Mrs. Hatcher,

Faithfully Yours,
J. C. DAVIDSON,
Chaplain, 3.

P.S.—Please accept endorsed memorial card. You must live near my friend, Mrs. J. Menzies. Please give her my warmest remembrances if you see her.

JOINS PRODUCTION MOVE.

Mr. George Ball Advocates Attention to Poultry Now.

Mr. George Ball hied himself to a hardware store this morning before opening his tailor shop and armed himself with a stout, new, hoe. "The hoe was always a symbol of honest toil and production," he said, "but never more expressive than to-day. We are coming to realize that "in hoc signo, etc," and the more people realize that it is up to them the sooner will they join the hoe brigade and take the place of the men in khaki who would have been on the land. By the way, the people should not forget the little hen in the production scheme. The chicks hatched now should help a little next winter in lightening the meat bill."

PETERBORO' IS TO BE THE SITE OF FINEST CEREAL PLANT IN THE WORLD

Plans Are Now Being Prepared Under the Supervision of Mr. Robert Stuart—The Development of the Quaker Oats Industry—Mr. Stuart Looks For a Wonderful Business Revival.

"The City of Peterborough, Ont., is to be the site of the finest cereal manufacturing plant in the world, according to plans now being prepared under the supervision of Robert Stuart, treasurer of the Quaker Oats Company of Chicago. The proposed structure will take the place of the building recently burned to the ground by a disastrous blaze in which a number of employes lost their lives.

The Quaker Oats industry has developed into one of immense proportions in recent years, and the Canadian branches have kept pace with the busy plants in the States. An extensive factory in the flourishing city of Saskatoon, Saskatchewan, caters to the growing needs of patrons in the Canadian West.

Last week Mr. Stuart received a delegation of Peterborough citizens, including Mayor J .J. Duffus, and Aldermen A. A. McIntyre, A Weir, ex-mayor, W. G. Morrow, and City Solicitor G. N. Gordon. They came to discuss the new Quaker Oats plant, the completion of which will give Peterborough a foremost place on the continent as a breakfast food producer.

Mr. Stuart told the Peterborough men incidentally that he looks for a wonderful business revival, both in the United States and in Canada after the war. He foresees a legitimate industrial boom to cope with, which will strain the man-power of America.

Mr. Stuart is a vigorous champion of President Wilson, and believes that the shirker and the traitor are not far removed from each other these days, when duty is the keynote of Americanism. He is well remembered by readers of this paper as a generous contributor to worthy causes—notably the Western Relief Fund for soldiers' dependents, the Scottish Old People's Home Funds and the Western British American Relief Fund.

Mr. Stuart was born in Oxford County, Ont. He received his early education in the public schools of his native province. At the age of 21 he emigrated to the States and immediately entered upon a long career of continuous industry and substantial achievement.

Mr. Stuart started the manufacture of Quaker Oats 44 years ago. He was a pioneer in his field, and he encountered all of the trials and obstacles incident to uphill endeavor in every big enterprise. But he persevered with Scots-Canadian pertinacity in the face of many drawbacks, and in due time abundant success crowned his efforts.

To-day the Quaker Oats Company gives employment to an army of thousands of workers in the United States and Canada; and its wholesome product, which Mr. Stuart and his associates aim to make more and more nourishing and appetizing, has become the favorite dish of its kind in all countries. Six large plants and several smaller factories are in constant operation, and the rapidly growing demand for Quaker Oats keeps steadily increasing its amazing output and its phenomenal sales breaking all known records and making this company the largest cereal food manufacturer in the world.

Mr. Stuart is a Dipector in the Canadian Bank of Commerce; the Canada Life Assurance Co., the Canadian Elevator Company of Winnipeg, which is one of the most successful organizations in Canada, and other Canadian institutions.

Associated in business with Mr. Stuart are his two sons, one of whom, John Stuart, is vice-president of the Quaker Oats Company.

CONSERVATIVE SUPPORTS THE LIBERALS FOR FOOD DICTATOR

OTTAWA, May 4.—The high cost of living broke into Parliament yesterday, and the result was the warmest debate of the session. G. W. Kyte, of Richmond, was responsible. He moved the adjournment to propose that the Government take action to prevent further undue increase in the price of flour to correspond with the price of wheat, and to regulate manipulation of the price by speculators. Before the smoke cleared away, along towards midnight, most of the best talking talent on both sides of the House had got more or less frenzied, the Speaker's voice had worn thin calling for order and W. F. Cockshutt, Conservative member for Brantford, had made remarks that brought down on him the sarcastic wrath of the Solicitor-General.

Kyte's Radical Programme.

Mr. Kyte took as his text the $1.20 overnight advance in flour, and argued that it was not caused by any scarcity of wheat. He blamed it on the failure of the German Chancellor to make a peace speech. He charged that only a rumour was necessary to raise the price of flour, and its rise was accompanied by higher cost of the other necessaries. He predicted $20 flour, despite the fact that there was 81,500,000 bushels of wheat in Canada and no export on account of the submarines. He suggested that the Government commandeer all the wheat, and, if the millers would not grind it at reasonable prices, take over the mills and operate them for the people. In answer to W. H. Bennett, he said the farmers, as producers, deserved consideration, but he would commandeer from any person who did not show more consideration for the people than the speculators do.

Cockshutt Bolts.

Archie McCoig, of West Kent, opened the evening session with a suggestion that free agricultural implements were at least part of the cure required. Then W. F. Cockshutt furnished the real sensation. He bolted. He, a Conservative, jumped right over the traces, and supported the proposition made by a Grit. Moreover, he didn't do it in any half-hearted way. Just listen to a few of his statements:

"The day is very near at hand when we must have a food dictator for Canada."

"I would be glad if the Government would tell hotels they must limit their bills-of-fare."

"These kid glove methods that have been in vogue so long will not do much longer. I say this in regard to recruiting as well as to the control of foodstuffs."

In a Fool's Paradise.

"This Government or some other government will have to deal with this question. We have been living in a fool's paradise. Our sacrifices are as nothing compared with those of the boys in the trenches."

"Every country that professes to have a Government is controlling its food supply."

Along about here Hon. Thomas Crothers turned and whispered to Hon. Arthur Meighen. He whispered too loud, and in a moment Mr. Cockshutt turned on him.

Not Afraid of Big Stick.

"I hear my honourable friend ask how much I would reduce the price of ploughs," he vehemed. "I am quite ready to sell ploughs at any price my honourable friend fixes. I have had nothing to do with the manufacture of ploughs for years. I will not be held up by the big stick being held over me."

Mr. Cockshutt closed with an appeal, "that the heroism that is in the boys at the front be shown in ourselves by the sacrifices we must make."

Newsprint vs. Flour.

There were other contributors to the low cost of oratory. McCrea, of Sherbrooke, opined that "if the Finance Minister can make us furnish newsprint to the publishers at a cent a pound less than it costs to manufacture, he ought to be able to do something in regard to flour." Turriff of Assiniboia, thought that with a surplus of 1,000,000 bushels of potatoes in the country and spuds selling at $4 a bag, the law of supply and demand was not in working order.

"The Log of The Caesar"

AN EVENTFUL VOYAGE

Interest in the U.S.S. Caesar sent with a Christmas' cargo to the starving people of Syria is revived by the receipt at the Navy Department, of the log of that historic cruise. It contains a thrilling story of adventure and anxiety ending in a delay at Alexandria, Egypt, which partly destroyed the romance of the enterprise, but has not diminished the prospect of ultimate success. Beginning its voyage with a slight collision in New York Harbour, the Caesar encountered a near hurricane in the middle Atlantic. So severe was the northwester that the vessel was compelled to turn and face it more than once. The supply of oil stored on the deck was thrown overboard to calm the sea: 250 tons of fresh water were pumped out of the tanks and finally the screw became fouled by a nine-inch hawser which was being dragged astern to steady the vessel. One sailor was washed overboard, but was saved through the presence of mind of an officer. Other members of the crew were badly injured from being thrown about so that upon arriving at the Azores it was necessary to restow the cargo and to give the men some rest and liberty. The remainder of the journey was uneventful until Alexandria was reached on January 19, where it was found to be impossible on account of the German submarine menace to proceed to Beirut and discharge the cargo. An examination of the cargo by Lloyd's agent revealed that little damage had been done, all being covered by insurance.

While the American Committee is considering the sale of the stores in the Caesar's hold, which can be affected at any time at a greatly increased valuation, it is possible that these stores may be held ready for delivery the moment the way is open. Need for food will become so great that promptness of action will be an important consideration when the time comes. In case of sale the proceeds will, of course, be cabled for use locally in the affected regions.

UNITED STATES MAY DROP THE PLAN TO BUILD WOODEN SHIPS

WASHINGTON, D.C., May 5.—It seems practically certain now that the plan to build a huge fleet of wooden ships in this country to meet the emergency caused by German submarines will be abandoned without being given a trial. The man who is supposed to undertake the work, Colonel Goethals, who built the Panama Canal, gives no indication to his stand, but shipping men and marine engineers are now said to be almost unanimously against going further with the project. The supply of season timber on hand with which to build wooden vessels of the approved type is inadequate and very few of these could be turned out with the speed necessary to success of the object.

The only alternative, that the ships be built of green timber, would be an experiment and it now develops that experts refuse to recommend it. The vessels speed would necessarily be slow and so an easy prey for the submarine and the lowness above the water line would be a disadvantage if it came to using guns.

According to gossip there may be trouble soon between the Council of National Defence and some members of the Administration. The Council is composed of several "big" men in business life. Howard E. Coffin, the aviator expert, Bernard N. Baruch, a leading figure on Wall Street, Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore and Ohio Railway, Julius Rosenwald, head of Sears, Roebuck, and a great many other equally important men are giving their time gratis to the Government service in an effort to speed up war preparations.

LESS FLAG-WAVING, MORE PRACTICAL PATRIOTISM, CRY

NEW YORK, May 5.—"Practically patriotism" is going to be the slogan of business America. Serious-minded men feel that there has been more than enough flag-waving and anthem-singing, and that what is needed is action. To this end, commercial associations and business bodies throughout the country are organising their forces, and have already made plans that will, if followed out, lead in the right direction of conservation of supplies and increase in productive force.

It has been hard to bring the average American to believe that this country faces any sort of possibility of a food shortage, but the Secretary for Agriculture has at last convinced many leaders of public opinion that this contingency is not a remote one, and that it will become a certainty unless they organize to compass its avoidance.

The Merchants' Association of New York has taken the lead in a "practical patriotism" campaign which it is hoped will be extremely productive of good results. Following is an outline of the method by which the organization proposes to aid in augmenting the nation's food supply:

It is circularizing hundreds of thousands of business firms, pointing out that unless (1) America's production of staple food products is greatly increased during the present season, there will be grave danger of a famine next year; (2) that there is already a great scarcity of farm labour and that the production of food cannot be sufficiently increased unless the needed labour can be provided; and (3) that it can be obtained only by transferring men from factories to farms during part of the summer.

It also points out that in every factory there are able-bodied men, born and brought up on farms, capable and experienced in farm work, and that the most practical patriotic service the employers of these men can do for their country is to aid these men in getting back to the farms for a few weeks as needed.

The fact that such men earn more in factories than they do in farms is emphasized, as well as the consequent necessity of assuring them of approximately their present earnings, in order to induce them to go to the farms for a while.

CROP SEASON VACATION.

The Association suggests that the employers can do this by contributing the time of some of their employes in the form of a vacation under pay in whole or in part for a brief period during the crop season. It is pointed out that self-interest dictates this course, for the reason that short crops and excessive food prices will tend to increase labour costs greatly, while an abundant food supply will aid in keeping wages at a normal level.

It is further suggested that employers should enrol such of their employes as are experienced in farm work, able-bodied, and willing to work on farms, for, say two to four weeks at such times as may be designated, and that the employers should give such employes leave of absence for these periods and pay former position on their return from them in whole or in part, with a guarantee of re-employment in their former position on their return from the farms.

Mrs. A. Bowskill Receives a Letter Concerning the Death of Her Son

The following is a letter received by Mrs. A. Bouskill, 20 Balmuto street, Toronto, formerly 473 King street, Peterborough, from Lieut. R. I. McGill, 8th Canadian Battalion, France, regarding the death of her son, Pte. Victor Bouskill, who was killed in action on March 28, 1917:

France, March 30, 1917.

Mrs. A. Bouskill,
473 King street,
Peterborough, Ont.:

Dear Madame,—In sympathy with your recent trouble I write you, to volunteer information which you have probably not yet received.

You have no doubt had official notice by this time of your son being killed in action on March 28th 1917, and I can realize just how badly you feel under the great shock and surprise, when I stop and consider how my own mother would feel if she were to get a message stating that I had been killed.

Your son, V. M. Bouskill, No. 413089 was in my platoon since coming to France on Oct. 30, 1916, and I always found him a smart, willing and cheerful soldier regardless of what hardships he had to contend with, and I join you in mourning his death.

I always feel that it would be a terrible blow to my mother if such a thing were to happen to me, and I am sure your boy felt the same way and that his only fear, while under fire, was the thought of his mother, and I am sure that after all it is our mothers, wives and sweethearts that endure more than we do out here.

I know it is terrible when you receive the news, as I remember my sister receiving the same kind of a message when her husband was killed and how badly she felt, but after all if you had your wish your boy did just what every mother who is proud of her son would have him do, and that is to die to put down what is wrong and uphold the right, and I am sure it is a great relief when one looks upon it in that light.

He was almost instantaneously killed and did not suffer any pain. We had a very nice funeral for him today, conducted by a Church of England minister. I am sorry I cannot let you know just where he is buried, the censor will not allow it, but I will write you in the near future and tell you the town. Meantime I will be glad to give you any information I can, if you write to—

SCIENTIFIC RESEARCH

TORONTO, May 7.—The progress of scientific research in its relation to industrial development was the main theme discussed in the annual report of the Royal Canadian Institute which was read on Saturday night before a full gathering of members in the assembly room of the institute at 198 College street. The idea of directing the application of scientific methods to manufacturing and agricultural industry has been the main objective of the Institute for the last four years and the result of the past twelve months of work would indicate that the movement has been given an impetus by the work of the Institute and the needs of war, which assures it a permanent place as the dominating factor in the commercial expansion of the country.

The growth of the Industrial Research Bureau, for instance expanded during the year to the point of including various scientific, manufacturing and financial interests, whereas it was formerly confined to members of the Institute Council.

Lieut. Millburn's Last Letter To His Parents in Smith

The following is the last letter Lieut. Noble Milburn of the 93rd wrote to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. T. Milburn of Smith township, before his death in action just previous to the engagement at Vimy Ridge:

Dear Mother,—Here it is April 1st and I suppose you are having nice spring weather now. I was sorry to hear of Uncle Thomas' death; there seems to be a lot of trouble at home. I hear of so many deaths. I was very much pleased to see so many of my old boys the other night, I guess I told you in my last letter. At any rate I saw nearly all the Indians and they are looking well. Albert Ball, young Manning and Vic Sweeting, along with a lot of others.

It was the first time we were ever near the 18th and 20th battalions and a lot of them are there. We also met the old 93rd officers, Eastwood, Worth, Watt and Capt. Marling, who has come to the 2nd Battalion. He is looking well. It is fine to meet the old bunch again. At present we are in support, but move a few yards nearer the front to-night. We have very good trenches here and good dug-outs and the troops are very comfortable, so we have no complaints.

Last night I had a working party out up the line, and saw one of the fine barrages which our artillery put on at times. My they are active and it is wonderful how accurate their guns are and how many there are of them. As Lloyd George said at one time: "We will put them wheel to wheel." The British are a wonderful race and what has been accomplished by the Canadian and British manufacturers in the short space of time is marvellous. When one thinks that some thirty months ago we had very little ammunition or artillery and now——

I wish the parcel post of the Army was a little better. I have not received your parcel yet, and another one which was sent Feb. 15th has not been seen. However, we may get them yet, as one of my Christmas parcels just arrived a week ago.

Now I must close for this time. Trusting you are all well. I will write again in a few days, so good bye.

NOBLE.

Dr. Burritt E. Kelly, cousin of the deceased lieutenant, wrote the following letter of consolation to Mr. and Mrs. Milburn:

April 7th, 1917.

Dear Uncle and Auntie: I send you my deepest sympathy in the loss of your brave son. It will be of some comfort for you to know he was buried in a military cemetery with military honours. It is hard for me to write these kind of [illegible] I see such men [illegible] Noble was [illegible] officer and [illegible] ing alive at all. I was [illegible] to attend his funeral and [illegible] the Last Post was [illegible] stood at the salute, this surely was a man. His men worshipped him as they always do anyone who leads them like he did. I felt sorry for Lieut. Hughes, who seemed to feel it most of all. Soldiers stood with tears in their eyes about the grave; he surely was respected.

I have registered two parcels containing his watch and a few trinkets which were in his pockets, and again I tender you my deepest sympathy. In a little while I will be able to send you the exact location of his grave.

Yours,

valley of the Ailette, the moat that protects Laon from the south and divides the main plateau into almost equal parapets.

Here, too, the Germans made the most bitter attempts to stop the French, and here also the attempts failed. In spite of the most strenuous defence, followed by counter-attacks once the position was lost, the French did what they had set out to do.

The advance made Saturday followed a night of terrible fighting, when the Germans strove mightily to offset the French gains of Friday. All through the night the whole front of the French offensive from Soissons to Auberive, along the Aisne and in the Champagne, was in continuous action.

Around Craonne the fight was of great violence. The town itself and the surrounding positions were attacked in force, but the Germans never got near the outskirts of the town they had lost. Near Rheims strong German reserves were thrown into the fight, but the French heavy guns, as well as the field guns and machine-guns, got their range, and the only result was a field piled with Germans dead.

FRENCH OVERLOOK PLAIN

By the capture of Craonne the French have won the most important victory since the beginning of their offensive on March 26. The town stands like a sentinel at the end of the Chemin des Dames, which slopes gently down below Cerny and dominates the entire Vauclero plateau between the Aisne heights and Leon, which lies north-west, about ten miles away. It looks down on all the ground along the valley of the Aisne as far as the bend in the river near Neufchatel, eleven miles to the east.

TO-DAY'S WAR NEWS

battle is that the enemy's artillery and machine gun services are still the most formidable. His infantry will not face the bayonet, but can be bound to say that the bulk of the men captured on the Canadian front are a husky lot in the main, with an admixture of weedy lads not yet full grown. Over five thousand prisoners have passed through the Canadian Corps cages since the battle of Vimy Ridge, of whom eighteen are officers and 436 are men taken at Fresnoy on Thursday. The total number of prisoners on the Western front during April and May to date is about 20,000.

AMSTERDAM, May 7.—Confidence that all German battle fronts will "continue invincible" was expressed by the Kaiser to-day in a congratulatory birthday message to the Crown Prince, according to Berlin advices.

A BERLIN REPORT.

BERLIN, via London, May 7.—Complete repulse of strong French attacks between Fort De Malmaison and Braye was announced in to-day's official statement. WILL MAKE CONCERTED EFFORT.

PARIS, May 7.—Allies' greatest concerted effort to stamp out the German submarine menace is being planned with an American naval officer in the conference on ways and means. He is Admiral W. S. Sims.

On authority of a high British official attending the conference during the past week, the United Press is authorized to state to-day that the American Navy will play a great part in this organized co-ordinated plan.

LONDON (Bulletin), May 7.—Despatches this afternoon intimate that the British are to-day fighting well within the Town of Bullecourt, but the Germans are putting up a terrific resistance.

NEW YORK, May 7.—The Herald to-day publishing stories from the battle of Arras tells how a wounded Canadian corporal with three privates entered a long subterranean trench, after covering the Germans within with their grenades, they found themselves in a long underground dormitory, from which the four through the German idea that they were the advance party of a whole company, captured and took to the rear one hundred and three German prisoners.

LONDON, May 7.—The Pall Mall Gazette says that powerful labour organizations have informed Premier Lloyd George that unless a satisfactory settlement of the Irish question is quickly made the Government may be compelled to reconsider their position.

Sir Julian Byng Congratulates Canadians

Special to the Examiner:

LONDON, Eng., May 7.—Lieutenant-General Sir Julian Byng, commanding the Canadian Army Corps, has issued an order heartily congratulating the officers and men in his command for their brilliant work, since the inauguration of the Vimy Ridge offensive April 9th, declaring that these successes could be obtained only by troops whose courage, discipline, and initiative stand pre-eminent. Between the Vimy Ridge capture and the taking of Fresnoy, says Sir Julian, eight German divisions have been met and defeated by the Canadians. Five thousand prisoners were captured by the Canadians, sixty-five big guns and howitzers as well as 226 machine guns and mortars. Sir Julian predicts a continuance of this potent successes by the Canadians.

Householder Chased By Drunk With Axe

Early Sunday Morning Fracas on Jackson Avenue

Alonso Yorke pleaded not guilty to having been drunk in a public place early Sunday morning when he appeared before Magistrate Dumble this morning. P. C. This man stated that Yorke had driven him out with an axe Proceeding to Jackson avenue, P. C. Blade found Yorke in command of the situation, cleared for action with coat and vest thrown to one side, drunk and his head bloody, but unbowed.

"Ten dollars and costs, $13.75 altogether and in default of payment, 15 days in jail," was Magistrate Dumble's decision as he passed on to the next case.

FIVE MINUTES' PRAYER DAILY AT 12.30 FOR AID.

Feature of Salvation Army's Annual Self-Denial Two Weeks.

The annual special two weeks' of self denial and prayer in the Salvation Army for the Dominion of Canada starts to-day. A very heavy programme has been mapped out for the coming two weeks.

The special feature of this week's programme is that at 12.30 each day for five minutes every Salvationist and friend will engage in prayer no matter where they are for the great Home and Foreign Missionary work of the Army, as well as for the world-wide struggle all are so much interested in.

Adjt. McElhiney will speak to-night at the Temple on the "Remarkable Answer to Prayer." On Wednesday night, "Why Our Prayers Are Not Answered."

Every Salvationist in Canada, and it is hoped many others, will join with them these two weeks in supplicating the throne of grace for special intervention at this time of the hand of Providence.

Surely it is time every community awakened to the seriousness of the situation and unitedly made its heartfelt appeal to the Ruler of the Universe, humbling themselves before Him that the awful carnage may close and comfort and consolation may come to the broken hearts of both friend and foe.

Voice of The People

Correspondence under this heading, containing or involving attacks on individuals or violent or extreme statements, must to secure insertion, be signed with writer's real name, the owner of which thus assumes the responsibility.

Peterborough, May 6, 1917.

Dear Sir,—I was pleased to note the opinions of manufacturers on the housing problem. As a landlord and also a practical builder I can say the sole reason that houses are scarce is that they cannot be built to insure a reasonable interest on investment unless a much higher rate of rent prevails.

One manufacturer would allow the owner a profit of 10 p.c. I would be quite satisfied with 7 p.c., and have not succeeded in clearing 6 p.c., and would be willing to place my rentals in the hands of a civic commission that would guarantee me a return of 7 p.c. clear.

One firm has no trouble because a large proportion of their men own their own houses. This is the real solution of the housing problem. Another firm states it cannot get men to come here yet it is a well known fact that same firm has discouraged men owning their own houses. If a man wanted a "raise" he must be in a position to get out if occasion required. As far as residence property is concerned the landlord's path is not a rosy one in this city, and tenants would be better satisfied if they knew the facts.

Yours truly,
LANDLORD.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—In your Saturday edition an announcement appears of a proposed petition to the Council by the employees of the Canadian General Electric for a municipal coal yard.

This subject not only concerns C. G.E. employees, but every resident of this city.

The coal question is one that needs immediate attention not only for the coming winter, but for present needs.

A municipal coal yard under proper management, distributing coal to people irrespective of their position in life, providing they are willing to pay for it, would be a boon and a blessing.

The following incident may further interest in this matter:

Last Saturday morning a woman asked for a quarter of a ton of coal from the so-called largest dealer in this city and was told by the clerk in the office, that they had no coal and could not take any orders. Yet just previously and in her presence, a well-known man of the city, ordered and paid for a number of tons to be immediately delivered. Afterwards the woman was able to obtain the enormous amount of one hundred pounds at the rate of $10 a ton, providing she carried it home herself. She had it taken home on a toy waggon by a little boy and girl.

The point is this, why should one person be allowed to store up coal for the coming winter, at a time when it is supposed to be so scarce for present needs and the small buyer has to almost beg for a hundred pounds at a price verging on usury.

Perhaps some of the readers of your esteemed paper can solve this problem for one who has been similarly treated by the same dealer.

INQUIRER.

CONVICTS WILL FARM.

KINGSTON, May 7—Arrangements are being made to have penitentiary convicts till 25 acres of ground in the west end of the city, in connection with Kingston's greater production scheme. The ground is not far from the Portsmouth prison.

FLOWER NOTES

Prospect of Scarcity of Bulbs Next Fall and Spring—New Pansies and Roses in the City

Restricted shipping explains the dearth of imported shrubs from Holland this spring. The Woolworth store, for example, usually made a special sale of rose bushes, but they are offering nothing this year, and other dealers are practically in the same position, although they have some bushes for sale.

The tulip beds in Victoria Park have made good progress in spite of the unfavourable weather. The flowers should be unusually fine this spring for the reason that the bulbs were of the best exported from Holland. Germany, Russia and other European countries received no supplies last fall, and as a result the bulk of their shipments came to America. But the greatly curtailed shipping is expected to prevent the arrival of new supplies this year. Hence, citizens who have followed the practice of throwing away their bulbs are advised to save them for the fall planting this year. The prospects for new stocks are not bright, although an effort is being made to develop them in California and British Columbia.

The Peterborough Floral Company's display of mammoth pansies on Saturday attracted the attention of flower lovers. They are extremely large in bloom and of rich colours.

Mr. Wm. Young, Chamberlain street, has added to his rose beds quite a number of varieties of roses, including the following that should be of interest to local rosarians—Hoosier Beauty, Phelia, White Madame Cochet, Madame de Vatry, William Allen Richardson, Miss Alice de Rothschild, Rhea Reid, Mrs. George Shawyer, General MacArthur, Lady Hillington. Some of these are familiar bushes among local rose lovers, but others may be new varieties to them, and should therefore be of interest. Mr Young has developed a splendid Marechal Noil with several extensions of from fourteen to fifteen feet in length and laden with buds that are about to bloom.

Citizens are reminded of the Horticultural Society's options which should be chosen now. Over two hundred applications have been received already, considerably more than at this time in previous years. Although the time calls for practically exclusive attention to the production of vegetables, the citizen who is interested in a flower garden will not waste the moments he devotes to it. In fact the best gardener is usually the man who grows some flowers and thereby forms an intimate association with the soil.

MUSIC IN THE HOME

GOOD MATERIAL FOR CANADIAN CITIZENSHIP.

Out in the Toronto suburbs lives an English family whose estimate of the worth-while things of life is too worthy to be overlooked.

Coming to this country some five years ago, the father secured work in a shop, and by steady plodding has managed to keep his family comfortably, at the same time putting some money by towards the purchase of a little home. Then their daughter reached the age at which it was advisable to have her start taking music lessons, the family income was not sufficient to afford the expense of the music teacher's fees. But rather than see her daughter grow to womanhood handicapped by the lack of a musical education, the mother commenced to go out to a limited number of places to do light housework.

She still has regular places for two or three half-days a week, her remuneration for which is devoted solely to her daughter's musical advancement. Ambition of such a kind cannot be praised too much. It is a splendid ingredient in Canadian character.

A REMARKABLE MUSICAL MEMORY.

Arthur Middleton, the eminent bari tone of the Metropolitan Opera Company, New York has one of the most remarkable musical memories known in the entire profession. He sings more than fifty oratorios without notes, and can recall both the words and the music of any one of them, even though he may not have sung it for years. It is not, of course, so surprising in the case of "The Messiah" and "Elijah," as Mr. Middleton has sung all told, in nearly 400 performances of these works, but it is phenomenal to remember with equal facility an oratorio in which he has sung but twice.

WHAT NOW BECOMES OF RUSSIA'S NATIONAL ANTHEM.

The abdication of Czar Nicholas of Russia raises the question of the fate of the Russian National Anthem. Will it just die a natural death, or will the music of it be associated with other words? It is generally conceded that among the Canadian masses of all the national airs the music of the Russian National Anthem is one of the most popular and inspiring.

It was composed by Alexis Feodorovich Lvov, who was born in 1799. An account of what led to the production of this work appears in Lvov's own memoirs, which in brief is this: "In 1833, I accompanied the Emperor Nicholas on his journeys to Prussia and Austria. On returning to Russia, I was informed that the Sovereign had expressed a regret that we Russians possessed no national hymn, being moreover tired of the English tune which had been used for a stop-gap for a very long time, he commissioned me to make an attempt to write a Russian anthem.

"This momentous duty seemed likely to prove difficult of accomplishment. In recalling the British anthem 'God Save the King,' which is so imposing, the French song, so full of originality, and the Austrian hymn of which the music is so touching, I felt and fully appreciated the necessity of accomplishing something which would be robust, stately, stirring, national in character, something worthy to reverberate either in a church, through the soldiers' ranks, or amongst a crowd of people, something which would alike appeal to the lettered and the ignorant. This problem absorbed me and I was perplexed by the need of fulfilling all these needs.

"One night, on returning to my quarters at a very late hour, I composed and wrote out the tune of the hymn on the spur of the moment. Next day I went to the poet Joukovsky and asked him to suggest some words; but he was by no means musical and had a lot of trouble in adapting them to the minor close of the first cadence.

"When the hymn was ready, the Emperor expressed a desire to hear it, and came to the Court Chapel, accompanied by the Empress and the Grand Duke Michael. I had assembled the whole choir, and it was supported by two orchestras. The Sovereign ordered the hymn to be played over several times, and asked to hear it sung without accompaniment; then he had it played by each orchestra in turn, and finally with the united body of performers. His Majesty then said to me in French, 'It is really superb,' and then and there he commanded that the hymn be adopted for the Army.

"The Sovereign graciously presented to me a gold snuff-box adorned with diamonds, as a mark of the Imperial pleasure."

BRINGING A NOVELTY.

Miss C. C. Caulfield, of New Zealand, is in New York with a novelty. She purposes introducing to American attention the native music of the Maoris, which, she believes, is more adaptable to the ear of civilized people than the Hawaiian music which has created such a craze in the United States. Miss Caulfield is one of a group of twelve girls who have been giving concerts in Australia and New Zealand for the Red Cross funds. It is not stated what are main characteristics of the Maori music. Little has been written of it in the standard works.

PATRIOTISM AND PRODUCTION

Mr. B. F. Poirier, organist of St. James' Church on St. Denis street, Montreal, has been specializing in Canadian compositions. Last season he gave a series of recitals in which none but Canadian music was heard, and they proved most popular. He has resumed the practice this spring, and on the 13th instant began a new series. In a letter to the press of his city he says: "Having at heart the purpose of seeing our composers taking a more active part in the line of serious music production, I will continue for an indefinite time the recitals, performing whatever I have collected so far in Canadian works."

MUSICAL VICTORIA.

There is perpetual musical activity on the Pacific Coast cities. Within the last few weeks of the season four churches of Victoria has been giving special musical services. At St. Andrew's, under the direction of Frank J. Sehl, Rossini's Stabat Mater was presented with G. Jennings Burns at the organ, and with a group of especially fine soloists. On Good Friday night the Metropolitan Methodist Choir, under Mr. H. A. Donaldson, gave Spohr's "The Last Judgment," a work always popular with church choirs because of its rich melodic content. The First Presbyterian Church choir has in preparation for performance on May 8th Haydn's "The Creation." The choir will be augumented for the occasion, and Mr. Jackson Hamby will be at the desk. Stainer's "Crucifixion" was heard in Holy Week at Christ Church Cathedral under Mr. J. D. Watson.

How Seized Liquor Is Disposed Of

What disposition is made of the liquor seized under the Temperance Act? This question is sometimes asked by citizens who notice the reports of the seizures from time to time. The liquor is given to the two hospitals which, at present, have all the supplies they require. Hence they do not need the case Inspector Stewart confiscated through an Express Company, on Friday. An eight gallon keg of ale was taken at the same time, and the consignee has asked for the return of the empty keg. But the contents have yet to be disposed of, and a conference on that point was held with Magistrate Dumble at the police station this morning.

Haven't you any friends you could invite in?" Mr. Dumble jested with the Inspector. The formal confiscation was made out and Mr. Stewart is writing to the Department for instructions. The case of whiskey is also being held until official advice is received from Toronto.

The Funeral Of Mrs. John Erskine

The funeral of Mrs. John Erskine took place this afternoon from her late residence, Ashburnham. The service was conducted by the Rev. Robt. Pogue of St. Paul's Presbyterian church, of which Mrs. Erskine was one of the oldest members. The pallbearers were Judge Roger of Cobourg, Mr. J. D. Collins, Mr. E. H. D. Hall, Mr. R. B. Rogers, Mr. Adam Hall and Mr. Jas. McNeil, Keene. The mourners were Mr. Robt. Erskine and Mr. John Moore of Marcellus, N.Y., Mr. James Scott and Mr. B. E. Bull, of Toronto.

ANNIVERSARY SERVICES OF ST. PAUL'S CHURCH WERE HELD YESTERDAY

Rev. R. B. Cochrane of Toronto, occupied the pulpit in St. Paul's church yesterday morning and evening, and Rev. R. Pogue took charge of the services in College street Presbyterian church, Toronto, the occasion being the anniversary of the local church. Very large congregations heard Rev. Mr. Cochrane at both services, and his sermons were live, enthusiastic messages.

The anniversary music was particularly splendid. In the morning the congregation were favoured with a solo by Miss Dorothy Allan, and Miss Gertrude Stevens and Mr. Arthur Milton took the solo parts very acceptably in the anthem. Mr. Douglas Carlisle sang with exceptional effect in the evening, and at both services the choir's efforts were excellent and thoroughly appreciated.

In the evening the Rev. Mr. Cochrane took for his text the 34th verse of the 19th Chapter of St. John, in which Christ, when questioned by Pilot as to whether or not he was the King of the Jews answered, "Sayest thou this thing of thyself or did others tell it thee of Me?"

In the text we have Christ's challenge to the individual. Last words are always precious, and the words that Jesus spoke under the shadow of the cross are most significant. The agonies of Gethsemane were over, the betrayal was past, the mock trials had taken place and now the fairest and meekest prisoner that ever stood in a court of justice faced Pilot. Two of the charges Pilot passes over as senseless. With the third he confronts Jesus, who up to that time had refused to answer any of his questions. But Pilot's querie, "Art thou the King of the Jews," rouses him and He answers, "Sayest thou this thing of thyself or did others tell it thee of Me."

He answered with a question that searched Pilot through and through. The Judge became the judged. His question threw up the challenge to Pilot to be (1) True to himself, (2) To be his real self and (3) To be a decided self. Every one of us to-day is confronted by the Lord of Lords with the same question. Every one of us stands as a separate entity before God. We have separate lives to live separate destinies to fulfil, separate purposes to work out.

HUGHES RETURNED IN AUSTRALIA

SENATE STILL DOUBTFUL.

Premier Says no Attempt will be Made to Enforce Conscription.

MELBOURNE, Australia, May 6.—The earliest returns from to-day's elections indicate that the Nationalists, of which Premier Hughes is the leader, have won several seats in the Lower House, and are assured of a majority there. The complexion of the Senate has not been determined by the first returns.

Premier Hughes was re-elected to the House.

The campaign previous to the elections was the most bitter in a decade. Officials of the Labour party, of which Premier Hughes formerly was leader, split recently on the question of conscription, which Hughes strongly advocated, and the party machine disowned him. The Premier with some other Labourites, who still supported him, formed a coalition with the Liberal party, whose leader is Frank Cook, and took for their slogan the phrase Win the War. The Hughes-Cook coalition stood for the strongest possible Australian war policy, and in opposition to the official Labour party. Australia was not represented at the Imperial conference in London because Premier Hughes was unable to attend owing to the political situation. Much bitterness arose in the campaign by charges against Premier Hughes that he offered a bribe to Senator Watson of New South Wales to obtain his support.

The election was the first Federal Parliamentary election held since Hughes became Prime Minister more than two years ago. Mr. Hughes sought re-election to the House of Representatives from the electorate of Bendigo, a famous gold mining centre. He had represented the workmen's quarter of Sydney, but he was opposed there this year by a strong union organization.

Premier Hughes in campaign speeches said that his party stood openly and frankly for the Empire. He declared that the Government would not attempt to enforce conscription, but that if national safety demanded it the question would again be referred to the people.

Price of Bread Has Advanced To 20c. Influenced By Flour

Bread advanced this morning to 20c. a large loaf following the recent sharp increases in the price of flour. When the price moved up from 16c. to 18c. a loaf it was then stated that even at that price the market was strong, and that the top had not been reached. Since then flour has soared even beyond the expectations for that period, until the market to-day is from $15 to $15.20 a barrel.

At this price, the bakers state that this morning's increase barely leaves a profit, in any case a scant one. According to their figures of the cost of doing business the flour that enters into a three-pound loaf is worth 17 1-2c. This does not include the cost of labour and materials, but merely the cost of the flour. They state that the consumer will readily understand how little the profit is at that rate, and one prominent baker plainly stated that the big dealers in flour and many millers have made immense profits in the handling of Canadian grain within the past year.

Fruit A Cheap Food And Seasonable Too

"The people do not seem to realize," said Mr. W. J. Oke to-day, "that one of the cheapest foods at the present time is fruit. Oranges, bananas, pineapples and lemons are not only particularly seasonable, but they are really cheap in comparison with meat, bread and potatoes. I can't think of anything better with the return of the warm weather than fruit salads, and citizens will find that this is considerably less than other foods they are buying and probably less beneficial."

Mr. Oke stated that new Florida potatoes are selling in Chicago at $9.50 per barrel of ten pecks, and in Toronto at $3.50 per hamper, containing three pecks. Local potatoes that are not sold before May 24th or the end of the month will remain on the holders' hands. Consumers will not pay high prices for old stock when the new is coming on to the market.

Counter Attacks Were Repulsed

Special to Examiner:

LONDON, May 8.— Fresh German guns again smashed Canadian positions yesterday. All attacks repulsed with heavy losses. Canadians took some prisoners. Two thousand German prisoners were left in the Allies' hands when their counter attack failed.

MANY CASES OF RHEUMATISM NOW

Says We Must Keep Feet Dry, Avoid Exposure and Eat Less Meat.

Stay off the damp ground, avoid exposure, keep feet dry, eat less meat, drink lots of water and above all take a spoonful of salts occasionally to keep down uric acid.

Rheumatism is caused by poisonous toxin, called uric acid, which is generated in the bowels and absorbed into the blood. It is the function of the kidneys to filter this acid from the blood and cast it out in the urine. The pores of the skin are also a means of freeing the blood of this impurity. In damp and chilly, cold weather the skin pores are closed, thus forcing the kidneys to do double work, they become weak and sluggish and fail to eliminate this uric acid which keeps accumulating and circulating through the system, eventually settling in the joints and muscles, causing stiffness, soreness and pain called rheumatism.

At the first twinge of rheumatism get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts; put a tablespoonful in a glass of water and drink before breakfast each morning for a week. This is said to eliminate uric acid by stimulating the kidneys to normal action, thus ridding the blood of these impurities.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and is used with excellent results by thousands of folks who are subject to rheumatism. Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia-water drink which overcomes uric acid and is beneficial to your kidneys as well.

Made Germans Surrender Three at a Time and Marched Them Away

Bombed Dugout Filled With Enemy—Corporal, in Charge of Three Comrades, Was Wounded Early in Fray

EXPLORED THE DUGOUT

NEW YORK, May 8.—The New York Herald published the following special despatch from London, dated Sunday: "In thirty or forty years from now, back in some towns in Canada, a grizzled veteran of the great war will be sitting on his front porch or in the lobby of the Imperial hotel repeating the story of how he, with three comrades, captured 108 Germans in one lot during the battle of Arras. To make the story more interesting he will add that he was a corporal in one of the Canadian regiments and that he was wounded, and very weak from exhaustion.

Got After the "Strays."

After the British artillery completed pounding the first-line German trenches with heavy explosives, and lengthened its range to spot the retreating Germans last Easter Sunday morning, the infantry, Canadians and English "Tommies," started out to do their part.

The Canadian corporal was well in the front van. He carried four grenades as well as his rifle, but had not gone far before a sniper's bullet stung his arm.

"Ouch! he exclaimed, but kept on, unmindful of the pain and the loss of blood. A Canadian private was at his side. In a few minutes, stumbling their way over huge shell holes and broken wire entanglements, they came to the opening of a German dugout, with winding steps leading down into blackness. It seemed as though the artillery had missed this altogether.

"I'll toss one of these grenades down there for luck," the corporal told the private. "It'll make it merry for any of the Huns that may be in hiding there."

There was a terrific explosion and a great gust of smoke. The Canadian leaned over peering into the darkness to see what happened.

To their surprise they heard voices muffled but unmistakably German.

"Let's go down there," said the private.

Explored the Dugout.

"Sure," replied the corporal, "but get some help first. They may overwhelm us."

Just then two English "Tommies" came along. The corporal, who was growing weak from his wound, explained the mission and the "Tommies" agreed.

At the foot of the stairs they found themselves in a dugout of unusual size. They had no electric flash light, but one of the party had a bit of candle which he lighted. The flickering flame dazzled their vision for a minute or two, but presently revealed a subterranean passage leading around a curve. The party followed it carefully.

Suddenly at the end the candle revealed the full interior of the refuge. There, against the back wall, were huddled a large group of Germans, evidently stricken with terror. They said nothing. The British soldiers stopped, and the corporal stepped forward.

"If one of you fellows budges," he said in plain English, "I'll blow up the whole — lot."

"We're through," said one of the Germans, as all of them put their hands above their heads.

Surrendered Three at a Time.

The Corporal did some hasty thinking. He could see plainly that he and his party were well outnumbered although he did not know at the time that the ratio was twenty-five to one. Then he hit upon a scheme.

"Advance three at a time," he commanded, "lay down your arms, and pass out. You're my prisoners. If one of you make a false move I'll kill you all with this grenade. Ready, now—the first three."

The procedure was repeated thirty-three times and then the party was taken up the stairs and back to the British lines as prisoners. There were ninety-nine German privates and four officers.

When the Corporal got back to the British lines he collapsed from loss of blood. He was taken to a field hospital and brought to London a few days ago. The wound is not serious and he will be out again in a few days.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Union Stock Yards—Receipts, 144 cars, with 3,109 cattle, 370 calves, 1,508 hogs, and 49 sheep and lambs.

Yesterday's receipts included some of the choicest loads seen here this season, as farmers are now sending out their stable-fed cattle. One extra choice load topped the market at $12.65. At the same time it was a slow market and trading seemed to drag very heavily. Handy choice butcher were all right and steady, but the heavyweight stuff suffered and prices were off ten to fifteen cents. A lot of cattle were left over.

Cows and bulls were firm.

Sheep and lambs firm.

Calves steady to strong.

Hogs steady.

The U. S. Loan How It Compares With The Others

Most Americans remember from their school days that the cost of Civil War to the North was three million dollars a day. The sum seemed tremendous and indeed it was for those times. Very likely in proportion to the population and the wealth of the day, it was as great as the sums expended by the European governments in the present world war. Still it sounds small in comparison with the thirty millions or more expended by the British government every day.

And now comes the American government with plans to raise five billion dollars as a long time loan, besides two billion dollars more in the form of treasury certificates for a short period. To this is to be added another large sum raised by new taxation. How long these sums will last no one can say. Should they all be expended within one year it would represent over twenty-five million dollars a day, Sundays included.

The wealth of the United States has been estimated as in the neighborhood of two hundred billion dollars, or, roughly speaking, thirty times the amount of this loan. Germany, with a population of about two-thirds that of the United States and with a wealth considerably less than one-half that of the United States, has now floated six different loans aggregating approximately seventeen billion dollars. One cannot help wondering how soon her ability to raise additional sums will end.

What makes the contrast between the American government and the German government the more striking is that up to the present time Germany has done practically nothing to raise by taxation the money needed to pay the interest on her huge loans. Not far from one-fourth of the last loan must have been used to pay interest on the sums already borrowed.

An interesting feature about the national indebtedness of nations is brought out by the Encyclopaedia Britannica. It is pointed out that the only two countries on the face of the globe which have made a practice of paying in the piping days of peace the indebtedness incurred in times of stress are the United States and Great Britain.

When the Civil War ended the government's debt was two billion seven hundred million. Twenty-five years later, the two billion had been wiped out, leaving only the seven hundred million. When the Napoleonic war, in 1812, ended, the British debt was four billion four hundred million dollars. Eighty-five years later it was three billion one hundred million, and that, too, in spite of the fact that in the interim one billion eight hundred million had been borrowed.

The real total reduction, therefore, during that period was three billion one hundred million dollars. While Great Britain and the United States were redeeming their obligations on this tremendous scale, all the other great countries of the world were piling up new debt.

When the present war broke out, France had a larger debt than any other country. Her credit, however, was excellent and the debt was owed entirely to her own people, from whom she was able to borrow at a low rate of interest.

And well might her credit have been good. In the one hundred and twenty-five years from the time of the French Revolution to the outbreak of the war, she had had no less than nine different changes of government—consulate, empire, monarchy, empire, Bourbon monarchy, Orleanist monarchy, republic, Empire republic. But no single one of these governments, whether republic, consulate, empire or kingdom, ever for a minute thought of repudiating the debt of its predecessor, even though that debt was incurred in an endeavour to prevent the new government from coming into existence.

This record of the American government, of the British government and the French republic, is one of which every believer in democratic government can be proud, for it shows that democracies pay their debts with greater faithfulness and greater promptness than have monarchial countries or Empires.

RUSSIANS MUST FIGHT AND NOT FRATERNIZE

Gen. Gurko Issues Order Prohibiting the Unauthorized "Armistice."

PETROGRAD, May 8, via London.—General Gurko, commander of Western front, has issued an order declaring that the fraternizing with the enemy troops must be stopped. He declares that such fraternizing, which has become a common practice, enables the enemy to learn Russian military dispositions and also, by causing a lull on the Russian front, leaves the Germans free to concentrate forces against the British and French.

General Gurko warns the troops that if the fighting comes to a standstill in France the Germans will throw all their forces against the Russians, who, lulled by promises of peace, would not be in readiness to repel the attack. He says that three divisions of Germans have already been transferred from the Russian fronts and that others are following, including artillery and aircraft.

The order concludes with an ardent appeal to the troops, in the name of the emancipation of enslaved nations, to do their duty toward Russia and her allies. It says: "Write the first pages of the history of new, free Russia with blood if need be."

Representatives of the Belgian and Serbian embassies have published an appeal to the Russians recalling the sufferings of their respective countries, and asking the Russians not to leave them to their fate. The council of deputies has voted support of the Russian "loan of freedom" by a large majority.

HARD COAL

The Boston Journal of April 27th, had the following:

The output of anthracite coal at the mines for the month of March was the largest in the history of the industry, according to a statement issued last night by United States Attorney Anderson, who declares that there is no real reason why coal should not be sold in New England at a reasonable price, or at any rate at a price much lower than many consumers are now paying. Mr. Anderson said:

"The condition of the local coal market is again becoming artificial, panicky, hysterical. Apparently buyers are indulging in the foolish practice of bidding against each other, with the natural result that sellers put up the price, both to make profits and to check demand.

"I have good—I think adequate — reasons to believe that if people will wait, keep cool and stop hoarding, their reasonable wants for coal will be supplied at much less than the current prices."

Congressman Tinkham yesterday filed in the National House of Representatives resolutions adopted by the Massachusetts General Court urging Congress to take such measures as may be necessary under the commerce clause of the Federal constitution to regulate the price at which anthracite coal may be sold by mining companies and their agents.

Toronto Victim Of Savagery Of Cuban Negroes

Other Canadians Had to Flee, Too.

NEW YORK, May 8.—Charges that Cuban negro rebels are burning and pillaging the homes and properties of foreigners in the districts of Palmarito, Bayate and Mirana, Oriente Povinces, were made by 24 American and British refugees who arrived here Sunday. They predicted that there will be massacre of the white residents remaining unless the United States intervenes, and asserted that the Cuban Government is powerless to cope with the situation. (Most of the refugees escaped with only the clothes they wore.

The story of Francis Brake, who escaped with his wife and five daughters, was typical. Absolutely destitute, they were not allowed to land, and their cases will be taken up by the British Consul, as they are natives of Canada. The Salvation Army also is expected to aid the family, as Brake's nineteen-year-old daughter Mabel is a member of the Quebec Salvation Army Corps, and has appealed to the local corps for aid.

Brake explained that although he lived with his family at Paso Estancio, within 31 miles of Santiago, he was at the mercy of the rebels.

"Paso Estancio, where I worked on a sugar-cane plantation, can best be described as a seething turmoil of disturbance and unrest," he said. "The rebels, who were secretly organized long before the rebellion, swooped down upon us and burned our homes. We were driven from the plantations at the points of bayonets and ordered to vacate Paso Estancio altogether within 24 hours."

"I have lived in Cuba for eight years, and have seen many demonstrations and uprisings. The last rebellion is by far the most serious of all. The rebels, taking us by surprise before we could offer resistance, made us captives, sacked our houses and then burned them.

"While the negroes were beating us about with their guns I found an opportunity and ran into the dark. Falling over a small hand-car near the railroad, I hid in the bushes near the tracks until darkness came, and though the rain that night and the hot sun the next day I pumped my way at the hand-bars until I reached Santiago."

Rheims Cathedral Now Merely A Shell

PARIS, May 7.—Deputy Lanoire, of Rheims, said that the famous cathedral of Rheims, which has been the target for repeated German bombardments, is now no more than a house of cards, and that the fall of a pillar perhaps would lead to the crumbling of all that remains of the edifice. The whole quarter surrounding the cathedral, the deputy said, is in ruins. The bombardment Thursday was extremely violent and the Hotel de Ville caught fire. A number of nearby buildings were destroyed, and blazes were reported in eleven other streets.

ZONE THERAPY. — In my last issue I told you about the successful treatment by osteopathic specialists for catarrhal deafness. Possibly I may have misled you into thinking that this method is quite new. Such, however, is not the case as the methods have been in use by some of the osteopaths since 1900, but it is only during recent years that osteopathic specialists have been devoting all the time and energies to Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat work and I predict even greater success in the future for all drugless physicians, because of a system that is still in the experimental stage and known as Zone Therapy.

Like many other successful means of relieving human suffering Zone Therapy is largely the result of accidental discoveries. To the unthinking person the fact that a great discovery is the result of an accident is sufficient to belittle the skill or the science of the discoverer. Now, as a matter of fact the same condition or accident may have occurred many thousands of times but the alert or trained mind did not take advantage of the obvious benefits to be derived by applying the principle involved. Water has been running down hill ever since mankind has existed and before that, but the use of the power generated by that process was not utilized by man until within comparatively recent years.

Electricity has always existed, but man has not always used it; zones of influence throughout the human body have always existed but it was an accident that caused a keen observer to connect the pinching of certain finger joints to the almost instantaneous cure of a headache, or of another finger to the cure of earache or pain in the eye.

By a careful system of experimentation the system known as Zone Therapy has been worked out far enough to effect cures in many so-called cases of incurable conditions and in many people, not all, anyone may so inhibit the actions of the sensory nerves that teeth may be drawn without the least sensation of pain and many surgical operations can be performed while the patient calmly looks on without feeling the least physical disturbance.

One of the greatest benefits yet derived from this discovery is the immediate cure of whooping cough. This seems an incredible statement because the physician has always pronounced it a hopeless field of endeavor, and have simply let it "run its course," and as a result whooping cough has to its credit almost as many deaths of children as any other disease of childhood that I could name.

In Zone Therapy there is found to be ten wireless, or so far as our knowledge of the physical body goes, a nerveless system of influence on each side of the body corresponding to the five fingers and five toes on each side, making five zones on the right side and five zones on the left side, and these appear to run in perpendicular lines. The line corresponding to the thumb and great toe is nearest to the navel, mouth, nose, etc., in front, and to the spinal column in the back. A series of five lines about an inch apart —beginning about one inch to the right or left of the spine and down the entire length of the body, would approximate the zones of influence. A highly organized person that was suffering with earache, to illustrate, in the right ear, applies to a doctor that is familiar with Zone Therapy. The doctor simply seizes the ends of the ring finger, in some cases where the trouble is deeply seated, both the ring and middle finger of the right hand, and presses firmly for from three to five minutes, and the pain is gone. The treatment may or may not need to be repeated several times during the day.

It would take all the pages of a good sized book to tell you of the many ways in which Zone Therapy may be used. Sometimes the pressure is made on the fingers or the toes and sometimes in other places. In whooping cough, for instance, a certain spot in the throat. For certain kinds of headache, pressure on certain places in the roof of the mouth will give immediate relief. Physicians of known reputation and standing have reported the cure of serious swelling in the neck and breasts through the careful application of Zone Therapy, while complete relief from the pains of neuralgia and aggravated Neuritis, and other stubborn difficulties have readily yielded to Zone Therapy.

I anticipate lots of new business for the manicure and chiropodist on account of the discoveries and future application of Zone Therapy.

CLUB NOTES.

Dear Doctor: Would you please tell me what to do for my husband? He has bowel trouble; will be constipated for two or three days and then when the bowels move will pass considerable mucus. Would like to know what causes the feces to form in balls.

Thanking you in advance for a reply, I am, Mrs. F. M.

(Answer) Your husband's condition would indicate catarrh of the bowels, aggravated by severe constipation. The simple charcoal, magnesia tablets which I have frequently referred to should be used by him; also the Compound Gentian. In some cases of that kind it is also advisable to use mineral oil for several months. When there is severe constipation and the colon is packed with fecal matter the ileocecal valve, which is a very sensitive portion of the intestines, will in attempting to force fecal matter into the colon, be forced to close quickly, because it finds that the colon is full; thus only small portions of the fecal matter are passed from the smaller intestines into the colon and evacuated at the time. There is also but little moisture in the colon and the result is the feces is formed into small hard balls. The proper thing to do in cases of this kind is to use very thorough enemas of tepid water every night before retiring until the colon is thoroughly cleansed. The enemas should be kept up every night unless there has been a thorough evacuation of the bowels during the day. He should begin the use of the enemas at once, and also begin the use of the Compound Gentian and Dyspepsia Tablets. These will effect a cure while the enemas will afford the relief which is so necessary at the present time. Conditions such as you describe frequently result in appendicitis; therefore your husband should lose no time in using the enemas.

WHEN YOU CAN'T SLEEP

YOU SHOULD USE
MILBURN'S HEART and NERVE PILLS

Sleeplessness is caused by the nervous system becoming deranged.

Perhaps too much worry has gotten on your nerves, perhaps you have overworked yourself, or have been excessive in your use of tobacco, but whatever the cause, the nervous system must be built up again before restful sleep can be assured.

Those whose rest is broken into by frightful dreams, nightmares, sinking and smothering sensations, who wake up in the morning as tired as they went to bed can have their old, peaceful, undisturbed, refreshing sleep back again by using Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills.

Mrs. John Sloan, Haley Station, Ont., writes: "Over a year ago I was very nervous. I could not sleep at night, and I would faint at the slightest fright. I tried several doctors, but they did me practically no good. I noticed your advertisement, and immediately tried Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and I am proud to say they cured me."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c a box or three for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

St. Thomas Man Was Electrocuted

Accidentally Touched Live Wire When Working in Hydro Station.

ST. THOMAS, May 7. — Sydney Smith, an employe at the city Hydro-Electric sub-station, this city, was electrocuted yesterday morning. The unfortunate man was dusting off some insulators behind the switchboard and was standing on the cement floor when in some unaccountable manner he touched a live wire carrying 16,000 volts. He was killed instantly. One finger was burned off and one of his shoes was burned to a crisp. A hole was also burned in the cement floor. The deceased had been in the employ of the Hydro about six months. He is survived by his widow and two sons.

JUST FOR TO-NIGHT.

Backward, turn backward, Oh time, in thy flight;
Take me to Canada, just for to-night.
Far, far away, from the noises of this war,
Where machine guns rattle and big guns roar;
Back where it's peaceful, quiet and serene;
Away from the trenches and all that they mean.
Back where, instead of the shriek of the shell,
We hear peaceful noises and know all is well.

The memory of home is in my mind now,
As I sit dreaming, I oft think of how
My mother caressed me and called me her boy;
What does she think now of her own pride and joy.
His fighting for freedom, for home, and for right,
And the Kaiser is fighting against him for might.
That's why I wish, while through trenches I climb,
That I could but reverse the great hand of Time;
And while I am writing these lines that I might
Return to thee, Canada, just for to-night.

Just to be home, just for one peaceful night;
Away from the worries and trials of this fight;
Away from the culture; away from the crime;
Away from the trenches; away from the slime.
Must I keep dreaming and longing in vain,
To stroll down the path with my sweetheart again.
And once more to love, and be loved as of yore;
Oh, God! isn't that what you gave us love for?

Could I but to-night as the big guns roar,
Knock and be welcomed at mother's front door;
Be kissed once again by those dear lips so rare,
And once again fondle the now silvery hair.
See Dad on the door-step, enjoying the breeze,
With two little kiddies claiming his knees.
Then would I flee from this ghastly sight,
And return to thee, Canada, just for to-night.

No honour that's gained on the battlefield here,
Can compare with the love of the ones we hold dear;
Their true love embodying all that is best,
Take me back, Father Time, to my home in the West;
Away from this land that is barren and cursed,
Where the bold lust brings out in man all that is worst.
Oh, just for to-night, to be back home again,
Where is peace on earth and good will to all men.

Oh, God, who is watching dear Canada's best
Instil in us courage to fight the good fight;
And at length knew the triumph of right over might;
And as I sit penning this very poor theme,
I wonder if Time, like an e'er flowing stream,
Will ever turn back in its merciless flight,
And take me back to Canada, just for to-night.

FIRST 10,000 OFFICERS.

Plans For Training Them in United States Now Made Public.

WASHINGTON, May 5.—A full outline of plans for training the first 10,000 officers for the first 500,000 troops raised by selective conscription was made public yesterday by the War Department.

After three months' instructions at the training camps the 10,000 officers for sixteen infantry and two cavalry divisions will be selected on merit from the total of 40,000 and assigned to regiments which [illegible] to the colonel a mounting [illegible] other 30,000 men [illegible] qualified will be commissioned Officers' Reserve Corps and called out for duty as needed.

BILL TO TAKE OVER ALL U.S. SHIPYARDS

WASHINGTON, May 7.—Yielding to international pressure for ships, the Administration prepared its new bill authorizing President Wilson to take all shipyards in the country, and materials used in the construction of vessels. It will be introduced in Congress Monday, Senator Fletcher stated Saturday.

Repairs on the three Hamburg-American lines, Pennsylvania, President Lincoln and President Grant —the worst damaged of the interned Teuton ships—will cost $250,000 each the shipping board said to-day. One hundred and twenty days is set as the outside limit for repairing all of the damage to vessels.

Fletcher's bill, according to the author, is "the most drastic of its kind" ever presented to Congress. It will empower the President to commandeer not only all shipyards, but steel, lumber, and everything also entering into construction of the ships.

The work itself will eventually fall into the hands of the Government Shipping Board as directing head of the great work.

General Goethals will be in charge of the actual construction work.

The new shipping bill is another of the measures bound to draw the fire of those in the Senate opposed to "centreing of autocratic power in the hands of the President." But little doubt is held that the President will substantially have his way in the matter. A bill authorizing him to commandeer all ships in the country is now before Congress. This measure, combined with the new bill will place the entire shipping industry in the nation entirely at the executive's disposal.

NO PAIN AT ALL! CORNS DO LIFT OUT!

"No humbug! Apply few drops; then lift corns off with fingers."

Just think! You can lift off any kind of a corn or callus without one twinge of pain or soreness.

A Cincinnati man discovered this ether compound and named it freezone. Any druggist will sell a tiny bottle of freezone, like here shown, for very little cost. You apply a few drops directly upon a tender corn or callus. Instantly the soreness disappears, then shortly you will find the corn or callus so loose that you can lift it right off.

Freezone is wonderful. It dries instantly. It doesn't eat away the corn or callus, but shrivels it up without even irritating the surrounding skin.

Hard, soft or corns between the toes, as well as painful callouses, lift right off. There is no pain before or afterwards. No soreness or smarting. It is truly astonishing. It always works. No humbug or foolishness. Genuine freezone is only sold in these small bottles, packed in a little sealed wood case, bearing a yellow wrapper. Beware of imitations.

RAIN AND COLD COST CLUBS OVER $100,000

Major Leagues Alone Have Lost Enormous Sum by Bad Weather.

NEW YORK, May 6. — With six postponements in the two big leagues Saturday, a total of fifty-one games have been postponed since the opening of the season on account of the rain, cold or wet grounds.

It is estimated that major league club owners have lost through the medium of postponements a total of more than $100,000 in gate receipts.

During the last week major league ball has been a very scarce article. In the last six days with 45 games of ball scheduled in the two leagues, just half of the games have been called off. The total for the season shows 24 postponements in the National League and 27 in the American.

Although most of the postponed games can be played off in double-headers, the efficiency experts figure that a "bargain bill" is never played at a profit. Col. Charley Ebbets, President of the Dodgers, figures that a postponed game means a loss of close to $4,000 in gross gate receipts. Major leaguers in both circuits are unanimous in declaring this is the most disastrous season baseball has seen in years.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

An Episode In Petrograd

By ELINOR MARSH

Billy Oglethorpe was in a casino in Petrograd where the high dignitaries of the capital were wont to "buck the tiger," and, since he had unlimited means, he won a pile of money. Sitting opposite him at the table was a very pretty woman, who was observant of Billy's winnings. Presently she said something to a man sitting near her. He arose and went out. After awhile he returned and whispered something in the lady's ear which appeared to agitate her profoundly. Then came two men who touched the lady on the shoulder. With despair written on her countenance she arose and was about to accompany the men from the casino when she turned and cast an imploring glance at the American. Then she turned and went out with the men.

Billy hurriedly scooped together the pile before him and followed her. At the door the men put her into a carriage and before getting in themselves slipped a pair of handcuffs on her. She had just time to give Billy one appealing look when the carriage was driven away. Billy called a cab and, slipping a handful of rubles into the coachman's palm, told him to follow the carriage and on no account let it get out of his sight. Then he got in the cab.

The carriage drew up before a house that might have been a dwelling or might have contained offices. The lady was taken from the carriage and escorted between the two men into the building and the door was shut behind them.

The young American was uncertain what next to do. The Russian revolution was then on and many arrests were being made. Quite likely the lady was a revolutionist. Billy accounted for the circumstances attending her arrest as follows: While she was watching Billy win money she had been casting furtive glances at the entrance of the casino. Doubtless she was fearing arrest. She had sent the person with her out to see if there was danger. He had returned and informed her that government officials were without. This accounted for her agitation. Such was this very natural explanation of what had occurred, and Billy was satisfied with it.

He did not see that he could do anything in the matter until the next day. So he went to his hotel and to bed. But slumber did not come. He was haunted by that appealing look.

The next morning he went to the house where the woman had been taken and stood looking at it for some time. Presently the object of his interest came to a window. Billy was standing where she could not very well help noticing him. When their gaze met she gave him that same imploring look. Billy pointed to the door, meaning "Shall I enter the house?" The woman shook her head, meaning "No." Then she went away from the window, but soon returned and, folding a bit of paper, she raised the sash and dropped it on the sidewalk below. Billy crossed the street, strolled past the house and, as he did so, stooped and picked up the paper, which he read.

He was informed that the writer was implicated in the revolution and would be sent to Siberia. She would much rather be executed, she said, for not even death could be as horrible as Siberian exile. The missive closed with this statement: "Only one thing can save me—money. The police may be bribed, but, alas, it would require an enormous sum to tempt them!"

If money would save her she was as good as saved, for money was nothing to Billy. He had heard that graft pervaded all officials in Russia and was not surprised at the lady's statement. Taking his winnings of the night before, more than 50,000 rubles ($25,000), he marched boldly up to the house where the captive was held and rang the bell. The summons was answered by one of the men who had arrested the lady. Billy tipped him the wink and was admitted. Then he said that he would pay a large price for the freedom of the prisoner. The man listened without reply till Billy offered 50,000 rubles. The man said that he must divide with many others and the sum would not go around. Billy finally closed with him for 80,000 rubles.

It was arranged that Billy was to call for the prisoner that evening in a closed carriage. She would be released, and he would pay the money. At the hour appointed Billy called. The lady, veiled, appeared at the door and, accompanied by one of her captors, went to the carriage. She raised her veil so that Billy could see her face, and Billy handed the man a roll of bills. Then the pair were driven away.

The lady's gratitude was Billy's reward. She asked to be taken to a house, where she would remain concealed till she could escape from Russia. Billy was granted permission to go there to see her the next day.

Billy made the call, but did not gain admittance. He surmised that the lady had found it expedient to change her quarters.

He did not see her again for several years. Meanwhile he had been to America and various other countries. His second meeting with her was in the Casino at Petrograd. She was betting high. Billy asked who she was. The person he asked replied with a shrug of the shoulders.

Billy concluded that he had been victimized.

Accepting the Inevitable.

A man is known by the manner in which he accepts the inevitable. The wisest and happiest man is the one who looks into the future and discerns the inevitable at the greatest distance. Such a man then goes out, meets the inevitable at least halfway, slaps it on the back, takes it by the hand, envelops it with his aura and asks it to stay to lunch.

The miserable of earth are those who are continually trying to dodge the inevitable. Perhaps they shut their eyes when they hear that it is expected, or oftentimes they jump into bed and pull the clothes over their heads. The madhouses are full of people who have quarreled with the inevitable so much that neither polite society nor impolite will have anything more to do with them. Some of them will not admit that there is such a thing as an inevitable even after it has come and gone.

The first lesson parents should teach their children is that whenever any one wants to give them the inevitable they should accept it instanter.—Life.

DEFEATED BY A WOMAN.

Montana Aspirant for Congress Suicides on Undertaker's Steps.

ELKHART, Ind., May 7.—Despondent over illness and crushed in spirit by his defeat at the primaries by Miss Jeanette Rankin, Congress woman from Montana, Col. Jacob E. Crull, of Round Up, Montana, is dead —a suicide. He drank muriatic acid while sitting on the steps of an undertaking establishment here Saturday.

"I'm heart-broken," was all Crull would say at the hospital before death Saturday afternoon. Crull was 56 years old and unmarried. Thirty years ago he left this section, where he spent his boyhood, and went west to find his fortune. He began the practice of law, served one term in the Montana Legislature and was appointed a Colonel on the Governor's staff.

Had Violent Coughing Fits

Looked Like Consumptive

Mrs. Mary Wheten, North Forks, N.S., writes: "Having taken five bottles of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, during the past few weeks, to relieve a chronic cough and general throat trouble, allow me to express my unbounded satisfaction and thanks as to its sterling qualities. A short time ago I became subject to violent coughing fits at night and directly after rising in the morning. I began losing weight, and all my friends cheerfully informed me that I was going into consumption.

"After taking the 'Dr. Wood's' I am pleased to relate that the cough has entirely disappeared and I have since regained the lost weight. I have no hesitation in recommending Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup."

There are many imitations of "Dr. Wood's" on the market so see that none of these so-called "pine syrups" are handed out to you when you ask for "Dr. Wood's." It has been on the market for twenty-five years, is put up in a yellow wrapper, three pine trees the trade mark, price 25c and 50c.

AYS PERIL IN RUSSIA IS WORKMEN'S COUNCIL

GREENWICH, Conn., May 5.—William English Walling, one of the foremost Socialists of America and an authority on Russia, said to-day that the suggestion of his name as one of the members to be appointed for the Russian Mission to be headed by Elihu Root, was unwise. He does not consider that any Socialist should be sent, holding to the view that a labour union representative would be preferable. He believes that he can do more by staying at home to combat the arguments of the pro-Germans in the Socialist Party in America.

The Russian problem is explained in the following statement made by him:

"Many of the newspapers entirely misconceive the Russian danger. They doubt if the majority of the Russian people is supporting the Council of Workmen's and Soldiers' Deputies, which seems to be running the country in place of the Duma and the Provisional Government. This statement wholly misses the real danger.

"The peasants control the voting power of the nation and compose at least 90 per cent. of the army. The workmen, on the other hand, absolutely control the output of ammunition and military supplies, as well as the railroads, by which not only the supplies, but the food which the whole nation must be fed from, must be transported.

"It is then absolutely necessary to conciliate the Council of Workmen's and Soldiers' Deputies. Fortunately that body has been enthusiastically supporting the Provisional Government in the last ten days, but it has not ceased its work of disorganising the army for a single moment. Moreover, it stands practically unanimously for the peace terms advocated by the pro-Kaiser Socialists of Germany and Austria ever since the beginning of the war; a return to the status quo existing before the war, and 'no annexations, no indemnities.'

"Our American editors ought to awaken to the fact that the danger in Russia is military, and not political, and it is pressing. No matter how much we may doubt the wisdom of the Council of Workmen's and Soldiers' Deputies it would be insanity and suicide for the Entente and the United States to refuse to recognize its power."

BLACK FRIDAYS.

First of These Financial Terrors Came in London in 1745.

Several of the great financial panics of the past have commenced on a Friday, and this has given rise to one of the pet superstitions of the stock exchanges and bourses of the world—that the sixth day of the week is fraught with ill omen for those engaged in financial operations.

The original "Black Friday" occurred Dec. 6, 1745, in London. On that date tidings reached the metropolis that the pretender, Bonnie Prince Charlie, had reached Derby with his forces. Londoners immediately made preparations to fly from the city, and a panic prevailed. It was on that occasion that the Bank of England had its closest call in its long history. The citizens were anxious to take their money with them, and the Bank of England was besieged by an army of depositors. The bank escaped bankruptcy only by the expedient of placing "dummies" in the line to impede genuine depositors and by paying bona fide depositors in small coins, thus consuming much time.

The first "Black Friday" of latter day financial history was in 1866 and was due to the failure of one of London's largest banking houses. Three years later Wall street had a "Black Friday," due to an attempt to engineer a corner in gold. The worst of all "Black Fridays" was that of 1873, when on Friday, Sept. 18, it seemed that the whole financial structure of the new world had crumbled into ruins. —Exchange.

The Enduring Friend.

A misty memory—faint, far away,
And vague and dim as childhood's long-lost day—
Forever haunts and holds me with a spell
Of awe and wonder indefinable;
A grimy old engraving, tacked upon
A shoeshop wall. An ancient temple, drawn,
Of crumbling granite, sagging portico,
And grey, forbidding gateway, grim as woe;
And o'er the portal, cut in antique line,
The words—cut likewise in this brain of mine—
"Wouldst have a friend?—wouldst know what friend is best?
Have God thy friend; He passeth all the rest."

So older—older—older, year by year,
The boy has grown, that now, an old man here,
He seems a part of Allegory, where
He stands before Life as the old print there—
Still awed, and marvelling what light must be
Hid by the door that bars Futurity;
Though, ever clearer than with eyes of youth,
He reads with his old eyes—and tears, forsooth—
"Wouldst have a friend?—Wouldst know what friend is best?
Have God thy friend; He passeth all the rest."

—James Whitcomb Riley.

* * *

Love Him and keep Him for thy friend, who when all go away, will not forsake thee, nor suffer thee to perish at the last!—Thomas A. Kempis.

Life is an education in love, but the education is not complete till we learn the love of the eternal. We are sometimes driven out not knowing whither we go, not knowing the purpose of it; only knowing through sheer necessity that we have no abiding city, or home, or love, or life; and seeking a city, a home, a life, a love that hath foundations, all our intimacies are but broken lights of the love of God. Because they are shot through with the spiritual, they prepare us for something more permanent. We were born for the love of God—if we do not find this we have missed our chance and can only have at the last a desolated life. But if through joy or through the sorrow of life, through love or the want of it, we have been led into the friendship of God, we have awakened to the fact that we can never be alone to all eternity. Friendship with God it the great fact of life. Religion is not an acceptance of creeds, or a burden of commandments, but a personal secret of the soul to be attained, each one for himself. It is the experience of the nearness of God, the mysterious contact with the Divine, and the consciousness that we stand in a special individual relationship with Him. Communion with God comes, through Jesus Christ. The power of Jesus is not limited to the historical impression made by His life. It entered the world as history, it lives in the world as a spiritual fact to-day. We offer Christ the submission of our hearts and the obedience of our lives, and He offers us His abiding presence.

To know ourselves ever before a living presence, taking Him with us into the market place, into our business, into our pleasures, to have Him as our friend in gains or loses, in success or failure, must be a source of strength, lifting life to a higher level. The friendship of God is bestowed without money and without price, and is open to every heart responsive to God's great love.

GIRL "BELL HOPS" IN GOTHAM HOTELS

NEW YORK, May 7.—Sweet soprano voices will soon chant the familiar bell-boy cries of "Call for Mr. Smythe" in New York hotels if the male help continues its rush to the colors.

One big hotel has started looking for girls to fill the places of two "bell hops" who have changed their livery for Uncle Sam's khaki. Hotels expect a famine in male waiters also.

Some checked suits are made smart by reason of their white braid bindings.

"THEY SAY."

"They say"—Well, suppose they did.
But can they prove the story true?
Suspicion may arise from naught
But malice, envy, want of thought;
Why count yourself among the "they"
Who whisper what they dare not say.

Billy Sunday Talks to Women

Flatbush (Brooklyn) and the National Sabbath Alliance made Billy Sunday's Tabernacle in New York look Thursday afternoon as if it were a bright sunny day outdoors. There were more persons in the great building than on any other afternoon. The Flatbush delegation, the largest body which has up to now visited the Tabernacle, came fully 5,000 strong, practically all of them women and most of them wearing new spring hats, which they had to be asked to remove in accordance with Billy's rule.

Beginning his sermon the evangelist told the members of the National Sabbath Alliance that for thirty years he had fought for Sunday observance as steadfastly as he had against the saloon.

"I've got a sermon on the Ten Commandments," he added, "which tells what I think about it. We've no room here for those who come with their ideas of a Continental Sabbath. That kind of Sabbath does not go in this country.

Sunday explained that God did things in his own way, saying:

"Jesus tells you to go plant your crops in April, and if you don't you'll starve. Plant, if you want to, in January, but look where you'll get off. I preach Christianity; if you don't like it you can stay away. If you don't care for revivals I dont care a picayune for you. I don't want to know you."

Billy complained about the laxity of the clergy, exclaiming: "Why, if God had to wait till all the ministers were in accord to save you souls, New York would be in hell in forty-eight hours!"

The sermon chiefly related to the story of Martha and Mary and the raising of Lazarus from the dead. Quoting Scripture, Billy said:

"Then Martha, as soon as she heard that Jesus was coming, went and met Him, but Mary sat still in the house."

"I'm glad to speak for Martha," said the evangelist. "She was my favourite. I imagine she was a sort of a northwest wild woman, kind of snappish and always on the job.

"Mary was one of those dreamy kind — one of those sort of soda cracker, peanut butter, gelatine and pimento sort of women.

"Martha was a beefsteak, baked potatoes, apple sauce with lemon and nutmeg, coffee and whipped cream, apple pie and cheese sort of woman.

"So you can have your pick, but I speak for Martha. So the churches have a lot of Marthas and a lot of Marys—merely bench warmers. Hurrah for Martha!

"But, you say, didn't Jesus tell Martha that she worried about little things? Yes. Jesus went up to her house with His twelve disciples one day and Martha was in the kitchen. So you see all have to work in different departments. Praying is all right, but some have to cook so you can eat.

"So Martha was getting dinner, and poked her head in the door where Mary was sitting and said:

"'Mary, carest thou not that I serve alone?'

"Wouldn't it make you tired if you were doing all the work and had your hands all over dough, and the sweat rolling off as you cooked the potatoes, if your big, lazy sister was sitting doing nothing? Then Jesus said:

"'Tut, tut, Martha, thou carest for too many little things.'

Sunday awoke a burst of laughter by assuming the role of a neurotic high-strung, contrary woman: "No, I shall not go near the tabernacle. . . . It would be beneath my dignity."

"You go it wrong, sister," he burst out. "I never saw a revival begin any other way than to have a lot of knockers. Nothing good ever began with the majority."

Worry and Trouble Broke Down the Nerves

At a Time in Life When the System Could Not Stand the Strain—Dr. Chase's Nerve Food Came to the Rescue

PETERBOROUGH, Ont., March 16. —There is a special message in this letter for every woman reader of this paper. It refers to the critical time in every woman's life when the strain on the nervous system is unusually severe and when she is most likely to develop nervous prostration or some form of nervous trouble.

Because it helps over this trying time and leaves the nervous system strong and healthy, Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is most highly esteemed by all women who have tested its value.

Mrs. Esther Vass, 9 Brown street, Browntown P.O., Ont., writes: "At the age of forty I was not feeling well, and suffered from sleeplessness, nervousness, headaches, and was in a generally run-down condition. I had gone through a lot of trouble, having lost my husband previously, leaving me with quite a large family. Just about this time I was troubled with the change of life. I had tried doctors' medicine, but it did not seem to help me. I read about Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, so decided to try it. I got some and took it, and found they did me a great deal of good. I took them regularly, according to directions, for four years, with splendid success. At that time I felt like a new woman—this medicine had carried me over this critical period, relieved me of nervousness, helped me to sleep well and gave me a splendid appetite. Now I am 61 years of age and feeling fine. If at any time I feel that I need a tonic I take a box or two of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, with splendid results. I might mention that I have also found this treatment good for relieving palpitation of the heart."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food 50 cents a box, a full treatment of 6 boxes for $2.50, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. Do not be talked into accepting a substitute. Imitations only disappoint.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

LADY'S SHIRTWAIST.

By Anabel Worthington.

Even the woman who gives the least thought to clothes is aware of the fact that Fashion intends to remain in a kindly mood toward the separate blouse for the entire winter season. This garment has stood the test for practical everyday wear and as well for wear on semi-dress occasions—it is a boon to the woman who has to make a good appearance on a very small allowance.

In the illustration an exceptionally dainty blouse is shown, No. 8,068. Either one or two materials will give an effective model because the design is "catchy." It adds to the fascination of the blouse to have the fronts extended in tab effect and crossed just below the line of the bust, as pictured. The fronts are faced above the closing so that if the collar is rolled low the revers will be in matching tone. The sleeves are easily full and gathered into cuffs that are trimmed to match the collar.

For practical purposes butcher's linen and handkerchief linen will give a neat waist that will not be harmed by making frequent trips to the laundry. Chiffon cloth and satin is a combination very popular for afternoon waists; silk and voile is another effective combination. Remembering that a pattern means is quite at your disposal at this time. Try it and be convinced.

The waist pattern No. 8,068 cuts in sizes 36-42. To make in size 36 requires 1⅞ yards 36 inch material and ⅝ yard contrasting goods or 2¼ yards all one material.

To obtain the pattern send [illegible] to the office of this publication.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 10 cents, or 2 for 25 cents.

Times Square Loses "Little Old Lady"

Mrs. Bridget Boyle, "Newsy" For Eight Years, Stricken While Selling a Paper

Persons whose custom it has been to buy a newspaper from a smiling old lady seated beside a pile of papers outside the Broadway entrance of the Times Building in New York were disappointed and curious when they missed her "Thank you, sor"; "Thank you ma'am," for, rain or shine, every day for the last eight years she had been a familiar figure. Inquiry at the subway kiosk news stand revealed to her regular customers that Mrs. Bridget Boyle, 78 years old, the friend of every newsboy in Times Square, had succumbed to an hemorrhage in the rush hour Monday night while handing a paper to a customer, had been rushed to the Polyclinic Hospital in a private automobile, and had expired on the way there.

The simple story of the hardships endured by Mrs. Boyle because of her pride was told in part by Pat McDonald, famous weight thrower of the police department, who had been traffic policeman for ten years at Forty-third street and Broadway; Johnny Gannon, proprietor of the subway kiosk news stand north of the Times Building; Daniel Barry, successor to McDonald at the Forty-third street traffic post; several of Mrs. Boyle's patrons, and lastly by her own sister, Mrs. Mary Ann Dunn, 80 years old, who sobbed by her coffin in a little two-room flat in the rear of 313 West Forty-fourth street.

Thomas Boyle, husband of Mrs. Boyle, had been a boilermaker, afterward a general labourer, and had helped to erect the building outside which his wife later eked out a meagre existence. At 70 Boyle's sight failed, and he could no longer work to support his wife and her sister, whose own husband had been long since dead. Something had to be done at once. Neighbours yesterday related the argument which took place when Mrs. Boyle determined to suport the three. Mrs. Dunn offered serious objection, asserting that, as the older, it was her duty to assume the burden, but she was too feeble to undertake the work.

Mrs. Boyle started selling newspapers outside the Times Building with a capital of 15 cents. This she managed to increase to several dollars by the end of the first week. Instead of regarding her as a competitor, the fifteen or more newsboys in Times Square realized her plight, and aided her in every way they could, so that they were able to say yesterday that she made as much—sometimes—as $2 a day.

It is said on good authority that Mrs. Boyle was offered a pension by several charitable persons, but this she refused with thanks. Later the circulation manager of a newspaper heard of her plight and threw as much business in her way as he could, personally buying as many as twelve papers from her every night "for the dozen children who would not let him read his own when he reached home." If Mrs. Boyle had known that these papers were later slipped back on the pile surreptitiously by a newsboy she would have been indignant, as she would not accept charity from any one.

One of the tragedies in her life was the death of her only son. He had been a clerk in a downtown office, and had helped his father support the family. He died shortly before Boyle became blind. Boyle himself lingered for six years, and died three years ago. It is related that his funeral expenses were paid by his wife, but this so drained her savings that she was forced to borrow her rent for a short time.

"Oh, if I could only have gone out in her place," sobbed Mrs. Dunn. "But I know it is the Lord's will."

ARTIST RECRUITS.

German Students Advised to Get Posts as Draughtsmen.

By Canadian Press.

COPENHAGEN, May 5. — German artists are the latest recruits demanded by the German war machine. The German Academy of Arts has been notified that artists will be subjected to compulsory enrollment under the national service law. The academy advises its members to get under cover by volunteering for suitable avocations and suggests that manufactories need draughtsmen.

TRY THIS IF YOU HAVE DANDRUFF

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely and that is to dissolve it. This destroys it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive, and four ounces is all you will need. This simple remedy has never been known to fail.

WORKERS WANT PEACE IF JUNKERS DO NOT

Chancellor Von Bethmann-Hollwegg and Foreign Secretary Zimmerman so Regarded.

COPENHAGEN, May 7. — The movement to oust Imperial Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollwegg and Foreign Secretary Zimmerman may be impelled by knowledge of German peace advocates that there is no chance for serious efforts to end hostilities until these two leaders are out.

Holwegg the Stumbling Block.

Information here indicated general recognition among the German elements desirous of peace, that Hollweg is their main stumbling block. Zimmerman's replacement by Count von Bernstorff, former envoy to the United States, is being agitated, as previous United Press despatches have related, with the idea that he might be able to restore German-American relations. Hollweg is regarded as of the super-military type. There is little evidence here that either the military aristocracy in Germany or the Conservatives are ready even to talk about peace. But there is widespread discontent among the workers and the radicals. The ranks of the Progressives are growing daily. Austro-Hungary is particularly affected by a big popular movement of the radicals for peace.

No Curb on Harden.

One striking feature of the radical move in Germany which is arousing great interest here is the absence of any apparent curb by the German Government or the German censorship on Maxmilian Harden, the Radical editor. His paper, Die Zunkunft, does not appear to have been perceptibly quieted down by German censorial activity, and Harden's editorials are more and more violent in demanding complete democracy in Germany.

Harden's friends here declare he will demand a constitutional Government in Germany as the only method of obtaining peace, realizing with other radicals that a serious affort impends with the Conservatives and the military autocracy dominating the government.

Germans Still in Dark.

The German censorship still continues almost impenetrable, nothing as yet has been published in Germany about former ambassador Gerard's speech at Boston recently charging that Grand Admiral von Tirpitz in the Reichstag urged that Germany attack America weeks before the actual break came between Berlin and Washington. The charge created a sensation here, and news from Germany was eagerly awaited.

WHY RUSSIA HAD TO HALT IN WARFARE

Amazing Revelations of Graft and Treason in High Quarters.

BATTLESHIP THAT NEVER WAS BUILT.

Millions Wasted and Thousands of Men Killed as a Result.

The Russian Revolution has made plain many things which have hitherto been hidden from the British public. We know that the Russian armies were forced to retreat from Galicia and Poland in 1915 owing to the lack of munitions, but no official explanation of the shortage has hitherto been issued. Hence the following few extracts from the American, Mr. John Reed's "War in Eastern Europe" (published in the Sunday Times of London) may possess some interest:

"At the most serious epoch of the Russian retreat last summer, when whole divisions were annihilated because of the lack of ammunition for their cannon, I met an Englishman who had come to Russia three months before with a shipload of shrapnel. He said it was still at Archangel because he would not bribe the railway and ordnance officials to ship it to the front."

Traitors in Commands.

"A French shell manufacturer of Moscow contracted to furnish several million shells for the Russian artillery. Many carloads were sent to the front, but when they arrived it was found that they were left behind on the retreat and the Germans used them with entire success. Summoned before an investigating commission, the Frenchman produced his specifications, drawn up and signed by the Minister of War, General Soukomlinov. Now, General Soukomlinov had been a comparatively poor man before the war, but after the commencement of hostilities he began to buy large blocks of Petrograd real estate, and it was freely said by people on the inside that he had been simply selling military secrets to the Germans."

"From time to time other officers dropped in—all were astonishingly frank about the situation.

"Yes, we are failing back like the devil. It is mostly because we lack munitions, but there are other things—Graft, Disorganization——"

A lieutenant broke in: "Do you know the story about Colonel B? He had a bad record in the Japanese war, but when this one broke out he was appointed chief of staff to General Ivanov. It was he who forced the beginning of the retreat from the Carpathians when Ivanov was absent he ordered the retreat of an entire army corps, exposed the flank of the next army. There wasn't any reason for it. People say he is insane. However, the thing was hushed up, and he became Chief of Staff to General Dimitriev, and did the same thing over again! You'd think that would finish him. Ah, no. He had powerful friends in Petrograd, and now he is Chief of Staff to another General."

Flour Sold to the Enemy.

There were a commission of officers sent by General Dimitriev to discover the whereabouts of seventeen million bags of flour which were lost.

Now, seventeen millions bags of flour if assembled would loom as large as the city of Poughkeepsie; yet it had vanished. It seemed that the Russian government had bought, caused to be ground and packed the seventeen million bags as a provision for the South-western armies for the year. The flour was shipped from Kiev to Tarnopol, a distance of 230 verats, along a line of railroad, crossed only twice by other lines, and yet, within that 180 odd miles more than 30 trainloads had absolutely disappeared from the face of the earth.

"But where can it have gone?" I asked.

The grizzled colonel shrugged his shoulders and smiled. "We have reason to believe," said he, "that it was sold to the Roumanians, and then shipped into Austria." He sighed. "Such things will happen."

A Mythical Battleship.

"Graft in Russia is on such a naively vast scale that it becomes almost grotesque.

"During the Japanese war the French Government sent fifty batteries of .75 guns to the Russian army. They were registered having passed the frontier, but strangely enough they never officially arrived in Russia. Six months later a French military officer in Brazil signalled to his Government the presence of several Creusot .75 field pieces. Since every gun that leaves the Creusot works is registered, the company officials were puzzled, because no guns had ever been sold to the Brazilian army. Upon comparing serial numbers, however, they turned out to be the ones shipped to Russia in 1905."

"I have another story from the Russian representative of a foreign shipbuilding concern, who told me of a battleship which he personally designed for the Russian Government at that same time. The plans were accepted, the steel contracted for, an army of working men assembled at Odessa, and in the course of time it was reported that the battleship was ready for launching. The governor of the province personally broke a champagne bottle over her bow, and a month later she put to sea on her trial trip. Then news came that the battleship had sunk somewhere in the Black Sea. Someone was suspicious, an investigation was ordered, and it developed that the battleship had never been built at all.

It is a new idea to fasten a frock down the middle of the front with ribbons tied into bow knots.

ECZEMA ON THE HEAD.

Mr. Peterson, South Bay, Ont., writes: "For years I suffered a sore of eczema on the head. I tried many different doctors, giving each a fair trial, but the disease grew worse and spread to my arms. I got Dr. Chase's Ointment, and it immediately relieved me. I give you my name cheerfully. I want other sufferers to know about this splendid Ointment."

WHEN CLERGYMEN SPEAK

in favor of a remedy, it is safe to conclude that the remedy has more than usual merit. Clergymen who have used Zam-Buk have found it so excellent, that they have not hesitated to give their opinion.

Amongst them is the Rev. A. D. McLeod of Harcourt, N.B., who, in a letter written recently, refers to the remarkable popularity which Zam-Buk enjoys in the homes of the people of his parish. "Really," he writes, "I know of nothing that can compare with Zam-Buk! Having charge of an extensive mission, I meet with many sick and afflicted people, and have been amazed at the good which Zam-Buk is doing daily. For bad ulcers, old wounds, eczema, and skin diseases of all kinds, the healing powers of Zam-Buk are simply marvellous. For piles, also, it is excellent. I have known Zam-Buk give almost instant relief, and am confident if Zam-Buk were kept in every home it would save many a doctor's bill."

For injuries, Zam-Buk is equally good. Nothing ends pain, stops bleeding and draws out soreness so quickly. Being highly antiseptic, Zam-Buk prevents wounds from festering.

CRIMINALS NOT WANTED.

Sir Edward Kemp Deprecates Release for Army.

OTTAWA, May 7. — The following official memorandum was issued last night: "There seems to be a growing tendency throughout the country where men found guilty of certain crimes have been remanded for sentence or allowed to go on suspended sentence in order that they might enlist and appear in uniform.

"Sir Edward Kempt strongly deprecates this course of action in the case of crimes of serious nature, as he does not believe that such men would make dependable soldiers, and, moreover, he does not consider that they would be welcomed in the ranks."

Rheumatism A Mystery

Some diseases give immunity from another attack, but rheumatism works just the other way. Every attack of rheumatism invites another; worse than that, it reduces the body's power so that each attack is worse than the one before.

If any disease needs curing early it fore it is worthy of special notice, any disease that physicians find more difficult to treat successfully. When a medicine does cure rheumatism therefore it is worth of special notice. Medical authorities agree that the blood becomes thin with alarming rapidity as rheumatism develops. Maintaining the quality of the blood, is therefore, a reasonable way of preventing and combatting rheumatism. That it works out in fact is shown by the beneficial effects which follow the treatment of rheumatism, acute, muscular and articular, with that great blood tonic, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

That thousands of people who have taken Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for their rheumatism, have been cured, is a fact beyond dispute. That rheumatism does not return as long as the blood is kept rich and red is equally true. If, therefore, you are suffering from rheumatism in any form you should lose no time in giving Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a fair trial.

You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

ANOTHER LULL ON THE BRITISH FRONT

The French Repulse Foe's Counter Attacks

Strong German Counter Attacks Completely Stopped By French

Huns Made Assaults Around Vauxaillon and Along the Chemin Des Dames But Were Repulsed--Another Temporary Lull As Far as Infantry Actions Are Concerned is Reported on the British Front Where the Artillery Has However Been Very Active.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

PARIS, May 8.—(French Official).—Strong German counter attacks around Vauxaillon and along the Chemin des Dames ("Ladies' Highway"), in the vicinity of Pantheon and Corny, were completely repulsed, to-day's War Office statement reported. Violent artillery combats continued during the night on the Plateau Vauclerc and in the region of Craonne.

SPIRITED FIGHTING ALONG LINE.

North of the Vauclerc Plateau a surprise attack enabled us to capture the main German position and take 90 prisoners. South of Berry-au-Bac there was a spirited engagement, which resulted to our advantage. The number of prisoners we took at this point was 120. North-west of Prosnes we captured a field fort.

East of Mont Haut we took prisoners and inflicted losses on the enemy. Grenade fighting occurred in Avocourt Wood and near Chambrettes.

LONDON, May 8. — Another deadlock appeared to have been temporarily reached to-day in the fighting along the Hindenburg line positions held by the British. Field Marshal Haig's report omitted mention of any major fighting actions during the night and early morning, recounting a great number of raids on both sides, scattered along a wide frontage.

"The enemy artillery was active at intervals during the night at a number of places, particularly between Fresny and Loos," the statement says. "Ours replied. In the neighbourhood of Neuve Chapelle and Fauquissart we made successful raids. North-east of Armentieres a small enemy party raided our lines yesterday evening, and after hand-to-hand fighting, were driven out, leaving a few dead. A few of our men are missing. South of Armentieres another enemy raid was repulsed."

GERMANS CLAIM RECAPTURE OF FRESNOY.

LONDON, Eng., May 8.—A German official statement late to-day claims that German troops have retaken Fresnoy, one of the points of the Hindenburg line taken on May 3rd by Canadian troops. This town is five miles from Lens, and since its capture by the British the Germans have carried a fearful weight of reserves against the Canadian defences there in an endeavour to recapture it.

The German official statement claims the capture of 200 prisoners and two machine guns in the recapture of Fresnoy.

(BY WILLIAM PHILIP SIMS)

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN THE FIELD, May 8. — Fighting was still going on violently to-day around Bullecourt. At the time this despatch is sent the Germans were vigorously assaulting that portion of the Hindenburg line held by British troops on the south-west border of the village itself. Big bodies of German troops were massed in the south-west part of the village for this attack. But it has so far proven fruitless. During last night a violent German counter thrust at a British sector north-east of Fresnoy succeeded in gaining the enemy a little ground. But despite the superiority of the attackers in numbers, they did not attain their evident objective, the ousting of the British from their trenches.

ROME, May 8.—Kaiser William had a narrow escape from an assassin's bullet while motoring in Berlin, a despatch to the Corriere D'Italia asserted. An unidentified man fired three shots at the Kaiser's car, two of them striking the tonneau, the third going wild. He was arrested. The despatch said the police were silent on the incident.

The greatest precautions have always been taken to guard the Kaiser from attack. When he is at the front he lives in a bomb-proof house without any insignia thereon by which hostile aviators might learn of his whereabouts. Circumstantial stories have told of special precautions taken during his frequent automobile trips, such as an extra car made up to resemble a baggage automobile, in which the Kaiser actually rides, while preceding it in his gorgeous decorated automobile, with a dummy resembling the Kaiser sitting inside. The newspaper Corriere D'Italia is the clerical organ in Rome.

HUNTING PEACE PLOTTERS IN GERMANY.

COPENHAGEN, May 8.—The German Government started peace talk for its own ends, but now it is confronted with a distinct and decided growing movement among its people for peace, which it is taking measures to repress. Private advices received from Germany to-day showed this new development in the German Government's peace "plotting." They detailed an Empire-wide hunt for "peace spies." The hunts have been transferred from the civil authorities and placed in the hands of the military government with rewards offered for arrests of peace propagandists.

WASHINGTON, May 8.—Solemnly warning against the menace of the submarine, Arthur James Balfour, head of the British Commission, to-day told the United States Senate that this danger, even as others equally great, will eventually be overcome, and the "cause of justice and right will prevail in the world."

Deeply moved by the warm demonstration accorded him, the British statesman groped hesitatingly for an expression. He spoke of the trials and wonders of England in the first two and a half years of the war and said: "With fine faith in the future, it will nevertheless require every man and woman in this country to throw their efforts into the scale of justice and right. This is already being done, will be done further and further—and eventually success will crown our efforts."

The tall figure of Balfour was greeted by scattered hand clapping, which grew into a spontaneous outburst as Lieut.-Gen. Bridges entered.

SEVEN GERMAN BALLOONS DESTROYED BY THE BRITISH

Three Set on Fire by Incendiary Shells--Two Struck Down by British Planes and Other Two Destroyed in Their Hangars

BIG DAY FOR FLYERS

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

(By Wm. Phillip Sims).

With the British Armies Afield, May 8.—British aeroplanes to-day shot down seven German balloons in a resumption of a vigorous aerial offensive by the British flyers. The weather was clear and especially favourable for fighting in the clouds. Three of the German balloons were set afire by incendiary shells while far aloft and fell flaming to the ground. Two more were struck down by British planes while hovering close over the German lines. In the case of the other two, the British airmen, careless of anti-aircraft gunfire, slipped up to the hangars and dropped explosives on the "sausages" which were not yet loosed for flight.

Dr. McCullough Disapproves of Sanitary By-law

Peterborough's revised sanitary by-law has met with the disapproval of the Provincial Board of Health, in particular the financing of the work.

Dr. J. W. S. McCullough wrote the Council as follows:

"In the opinion of the Board it is advisable that the collection of night soil should be a municipal tax borne the property benefitted and collected in a like manner with other municipal taxes. The collection of night soil should not be at the discretion of the householders or solely at the discretion of the Sanitary Inspector. The collection should be at regular intervals as necessitated by the nature of the receptacles without special reference either to the householder or sanitary inspector. It would be quite proper, however, to reserve the right for the sanitary inspector to order such additional removal as may be deemed necessary."— Referred to Property committee.

JOHN V. KETCHESON DEAD.

Progressive and Prosperous Farmer in Hastings, a Staunch Liberal.

BELLEVILLE, May 7.—John Vandewater Ketcheson, one of the best known and most prosperous farmers in Hastings county, died at his home near Phillipston, in his eighty-sixth year. He took great pride in live stock, and was always at the forefront in dairying. When under-draining was an almost untried novelty he laid miles of drains on his farms. He was one of the largest land-owners in the county, and established all his five sons on large farms. He was a staunch Liberal in politics. Mayor Ketcheson of this city is a nephew.

CAPT. HILL KILLED IN TRYING TO AID HIS WOUNDED COMRADES

Peterboro' Officer Left Comparative Safety of Battalion Headquarters to Help Wounded Men and Was Caught By Shrapnel--Welcome Break in Long List of Local Casualties---To-day's General Military News.

The manner in which Capt. Harold F. Hill of Peterborough met his death at Vimy Ridge is described by Capt. Hamilton Munro, another local officer, in a letter just received by his brother, Mr. Reid Munro, and which reads, in part, as follows:

April 15, 1917.

"I am sorry to say Harold Hill was killed on the first day of the battle. He was Adjutant of the 38th Battalion, and as that is not exactly a combatant job I did not expect anything would happen to him. In order to make sure, however, I looked up the 38th this p.m. When I went into the hut where their Orderly room was held, I found another chap acting as Adjutant, and felt uneasy; asked for Capt. Hill, and this officer said "He is a casualty." I said "wounded," and he said "no, killed." It is certainly too bad. The account he gave me of how it happened, was to this effect: Harold, as Adjutant of the Battalion, was in the Battalion headquarters, which were in a tunnel. He did not go with the Regiment when the attack was made, but remained with the Colonel. After they got away he went out to have a look around, and saw some wounded men whom he went to help. This chap said that when Harold came back the Colonel jumped on him for going out, but he had, apparently, seen some badly wounded man and this was on his mind, so he slipped out again without saying anything and didn't come back. As a matter of fact it was only by questioning men who had seen him pass that they had an idea where he was. They found him two or three days later. He had been hit in the neck and shoulder by shrapnel.

If Mr. Hill would like anything done which I may be able to do, I will be very glad to do it, although there is nothing I can think of, you might ask him. As a matter of fact the Colonel of the 38th will be writing to the Hills or may have done so; he is slightly wounded himself, and will inform them fully as well as do anything there is to be done.

April 17, 1917.

Dear Uncle and Auntie,—At last I am trying to write you a few lines, which I hope will find you both keeping in the best of health. I suppose you got the card from me saying I had been wounded. It was on the 9th at the start of the great battle of Arras, which I am sure you will have been reading about in the papers. I got it in the lower part of the left of my leg from a large [illegible] the flesh being torn off the outside of the leg for a depth of nearly four inches so you will see it was a pretty severe wound, but not dangerous, so long as it is kept clean, and so far they have just managed to get it clean. Of course it is very painful and I'm afraid it will be a long time before I will be able to walk again, but really I was lucky, for the poor fellow next to me was blown almost to pieces by the same shell and his body acted as a shield, which no doubt saved my life. Oh, well it's all in the fortune of war and we were doing greater work.

I arrived in England last Friday and am being well looked after. My oldest brother was wounded last week, but I don't think it was anything serious.

Well, dear old uncle and aunt, I must try and tell you more about it another time, for it is hard work writing lying on my back. I will write to you again before long and now I must close with my best love to you all.

From your affectionate nephew,
ERNEST COOK.

MUNICIPAL COAL YARD CONSIDERED BY THE COUNCIL

Fuel and Potato Supplies May Be Investigated If Committee Recommends That Action

LAST NIGHT'S DISCUSSION

The Fire, Water and Light committee was delegated by the Council last night to consider the question of purchasing coal, wood and potatoes and report their recommendations to the Council as soon as possible. Subsequent and specific action will depend upon the general deliberations of Ald. Dobbin's committee. It may follow that the Council will investigate the coal situation in Peterborough, calling the local dealers to submit their books and statements of their supplies and other intimate information respecting their businesses.

Mayor Duffus introduced this extremely vexing question of fuel and food supplies, stating that he had received many complaints from citizens who alleged that some coal dealers had supplies but would not sell them.

Mr. Walter Oake had offered to turn potatoes over to the city at cost price if that would help the people.

Ald. Smith — Look into the bread question at the same time. I am told that the bakers have met on Saturday nights and raised prices. I claim that action is illegal. The price of flour does not warrant the high price of bread.

Co-operate With Dealers.

Ald. Dobbin proposed that the city endeavour to secure 3,000 tons of coal for those residents who buy in small lots. The wives of soldiers would thus be assured of coal which could be distributed by the Patriotic Fund committee. It would help relieve the situation which promised to be acute.

First Car Received.

"We received a car of coal to-day, the first since March 20th. We have taken orders for 500 tons at $9 a ton and must deliver at that price, no matter what we pay for it. If other dealers have sold out their supplies how can they be expected to sell that coal to others ordering now? You can get trust coal at Buffalo but the price is a great deal higher than the jobbers' coal. I don't see how the city can secure supplies when the local dealers can't. We are telephoning every day. Hicks, Fitzgerald and Scott have gone to Buffalo, but they couldn't get it in any quantities. If the people would be calm for a while the situation might right itself. We have been guaranteed the same tonnage as last year and hope to take care of our customers. The big bulk of the coal will come in July and August. We are charging $10 a ton for stove coal, but are not selling any.

Mayor Duffus— I cant understand

Peterborough Boys Tell of Vimy Battle

Interesting Letters From Local Soldiers Who Were in the Thick of the Fighting When the Canadians Beat the Huns.

SOME EXCITING INCIDENTS

In a letter to his mother, Mrs. White, 496 Cambridge street, Corporal Harry White of Peterborough gives a vivid account of the charge of the Canadians at Vimy Ridge. In part he says:

Somewhere in France,
April 15, 1917.

My Dear Mother,—Just a few lines to-day to let you know that I have come through the big advance safely so far. We (our battalion) went into the trenches on Sunday night a week ago, and over the top early Monday morning, and we were in the trenches and his lines till yesterday, so you see I have not had a chance to write before. I sent a card off yesterday. I know how anxious you will be.

Well, mother, I hope these few lines will relieve your feelings, and don't worry. I will come through all right as I knew I would. When our barrage opened up that morning I climbed up over our trenches and started for the German trenches. It came to me that I was going to come through all right. I felt nervous at first, I saw one of their machine gunners throwing bombs my way, and all around. He was my first. He was wounded at my first shot, and then he threw up his hands—a way all those devils have when you corner them—but it was him or me, or maybe some of our fellows, so he got a second. That was in the German first line. In the second line one came at me with a bayonet and I, by good luck, was quicker, and that made my second man. In the German third line there was a little scrapping, and I got a bomb into a bunch. I am boasting of seven Germans that day. We had to take four lines, and we did, you bet. That is where luck was with me. I had just jumped in what was left when something hit me in the back, spun me around and threw me on my face. A pellet had hit me, going through a part of my equipment, overcoat, right through sweater and two shirts and was lodging in my undershirt. It never cut me. I had a small bruise for a few days, but it is all right now, I think, and I did not forget to thank Somebody Higher for an inch more would have taken me out to Blighty or across. But I thank God, He has brought me through safely so far, and I am sure I will be in at the finish as well as I am to-day.

Bert had bad news before going over the top. He had a letter from his sister saying his father was drowned on a hospital ship that was torpedoed lately. He was one of the crew. Bert feels badly about it. He was hit, himself, with a pellet, and got a little cut, but stayed with the battalion.

CANADIANS THERE AND HERE.

Yesterday's despatches reported that General Sir Julian Byng, commanding the Canadian army corps, has issued an order heartily congratulating the officers and men in his command for their brilliant work since the commencement of the Vimy Ridge offensive of April 9th. He declared that these successes could be obtained only by troops whose courage, discipline and initiative stood pre-eminent. Between the capture of Vimy Ridge and the taking of Fresnoy Sir Julian Byng says eight German divisions (about 200,000 men), have been met and defeated by the Canadians, five thousand prisoners captured by Canadians, sixty-five big guns and howitzers, as well as 250 machine guns and mortars. Sir Julian predicts a continuance of these potent successes by Canadians.

This is something to stir both pride and shame. We are proud to the roots of our hearts of the splendid glory of achievement the Canadians are bringing to Canada; and we should be, and some of us are, ashamed of the little we are doing at home to back our soldiers. Since April 9th, when the Canadians began their great spring offensive, between 14,000 and 15,000 Canadians have been put out of action—killed, wounded or missing; and in the corresponding time the enlistments to fill the ranks and keep up the fighting strength, have hardly been a third of the number of Canadians soldiers put hors de combat.

Yet the government is not taking any steps to stimulate recruiting, or even promote the enlistment of a defence force to permit the sending of every enlisted overseas soldier overseas. In the matter of recruiting this should be the innings of the government. So far it has permitted private organizations and individuals to virtually monopolize the work of keeping the recruiting game going, without taking any effective official interest. How are we to get enough soldiers to redeem Sir Robert Borden's pledge to contribute 500,000 Canadian soldiers to the fighting lines in Europe, where the battles of our national existence are being waged? There are certainly ore than 100,000 men of military age and fitness left in Canada. How are they to be got at? The government opposes conscription, because it would have a bad taste in the voter's mouth at a general election. If the government is afraid of the political results of conscription, that is no reason for hesitation. The winning of this war is more important than the fate of a dozen governments. A coalition government, with conscription as a plank in its platform, has been elected in Australia. Is it not possible in Canada to drop party considerations for the rest of the war? Is it not possible for Canadian public men to be big enough to join in the formation of a win-the-war cabinet, whose sole policy would be to win. Then the responsibility for conscription would rest on no political party, and when the war is over, if the country has not learned wisdom, party divisions could be resumed, and both parties begin again on equal terms.

HIGH PRICES FOR THE NECESSITIES OF LIVING.

It is an entirely banal statement, to say that the prices of food are exceptionally high. We all know it—feel it in our pockets—every day. The poplust is the real test of good government, or bad government, of efficiency or failure. We know the prices are high and we know that government control, rightly exercised, as in Britain and Australia, can ease the situation and supply at least a partial remedy.

High food prices, evidently produced by combinations and greedy storage and hoarding, are no new thing. More than six months ago deputations waited upon the government and asked it to deal with the situation, as it had the power and administrative machinery to do.

They asked for bread, and got a stone, in the shape of an order-in-council. By this order the government tried to shove the responsibility and the expense upon the shoulders of the municipalities—upon virtually the suffering people themselves. The order authorized municipalities to make an investigation, and report the results at Ottawa, where the decision rests as to whether action shall or shall not, be taken. That is to say, after a committee of aldermen, who have enough to do to attend to their legitimate business, has pried into the affairs of their neighbors, aroused ill-will and resentment in the community, at a time when we are trying to pull together for a Greater Peterborough, is simply to report it—has no power to act—after all possible investigation, the municipality can learn no more than it knows and suspects now—that prices are unrighteously high, and that combination is the cause. The municipality only do nothing except arouse ill will among neighbors. No matter what it finds out, it can do nothing—it must report its results of its findings to Ottawa, and probably have the matter shelved for six months more, without the government taking action. The government is the only body with the power to deal with the high price situation; it has the power to take the bull by the horns, and do something.

Six or seven months ago the government knew of the situation. Instead of shouldering responsibility, and taking action, the government weakly yielded to the deputations, who in their desperation, didn't know just what they wanted, only relief for the public. Instead of giving this relief—the government gave the municipalities the authority to make investigations without the power to give effect to their findings. The body which has the power, if it had the will, to deal with the whole situation, is the body to do the investigating, and not ask municipalities to do the work, to ask neighbours to pry into the business of other neighbours, instead of deputing government officials—strangers to the locality, who would know nobody, and had no personal interest to influence the discharge of their duty; only to find the facts and act upon them as the law provides, without having to report to anybody, with the possibility, and almost certainty, of long delay.

The call upon Mayor Duffus, as head of the council, to act under the extraordinary circumstances of the frivolous order-in-council, and the fact of any action being fruitless for immediate relief, betrays a double partisan object to embarrass a civic official and to shield a minister from blame for neglect of an obvious government duty. The evil of high prices is not in spots, but universal over the Dominion, and Dominion-wide government action is called for—not a little scratching of the surface here and there by municipalities, but vigorous government action, such as the government should have taken long ago.

What Australia has done, Canada could and can do. And what our cousins on the other side of the world have done to deal with the high price situation and creation is told in an article produced on this page. Let it be read, and the public will see the difference between a government that acts and a government that shuffles its responsibility upon municipalities, without giving them the power to do anything effective and conclusive.

AS TO POTATOES.

The Dominion Minister of Agriculture was asked in the House on Tuesday, where was the large surplus of potatoes he had announced as having discovered by researches he had made. His reply is an astonishing thing, and is worth quoting from Hansard as a splendid example of how not to do things:

Hon. Mr. Burrell (Minister of Agriculture): The condition of the potato industry is briefly this. When we heard of reputed shortage (mark the phrase) and a scarcity in some parts of the country, I communicated with every Provincial Minister of Agriculture in Canada to ascertain as closely as he could the conditions in his own province. This was at the end of February, the nearest as we could ascertain a conservative estimate put it (the result of publicity) at about one and a half million bushels surplus over and above seed requirements of the whole country. The surpluses were chiefly in the provinces of Alberta, Prince Edward Island, and New Brunswick. In some other provinces shortages were reported, and other provinces were not quite sure. We checked up the figures at the end of March by following all the exports (!) from the country and again up to the 15th of April, and from the time we estimated the amount of potatoes in the country, up to April 15th, about half a million bushels were exported, leaving—if our estimate was at all correct, and it was based on the information I have indicated—about one million bushels surplus in the country. Of course that may be only approximate. I might also say to my hon. friend, that a summary of all the replies I received was sent to each Minister of Agriculture in the different provinces, in order that he might know the exact condition throughout the country, together with the suggestion that it might be advisable for those Ministers whose provinces were likely to be short, to watch the situation as closely as possible with the idea of doing what they could to supply the needs of their own province.

What on earth could provincial ministers do to supply the needs of their own province, when the Dominion minister was permitting the export to foreign countries of half a million bushels of potatoes from the provinces where there was a surplus? Exports were even permitted from Ontario.

The Dominion government is fond of shoving its responsibility on other shoulders—it put the problem of dealing with the high price problem upon the municipalities, without giving them the power to do anything effective. It put the potato question upon the provinces, which had no power such as the Dominion government possesses to prevent shortages by preventing potatoes leaving the country. Under the circumstances, isn't it fair and reasonable to ask Hon. Martin Burrell, Minister of Agriculture, who says there is a surplus of 1 million bushels of potatoes in the Dominion, to "trot them out." The people demand a "show down."

How Australia Handles Gambling In Food Articles

Did 3 Years Ago What is Not Done Here Now—Controlling the Food Supply Situation

We told recently of the effective manner in which Australia has tackled the problem of the high cost of living. Since then some further information has come to hand as to the way in which the various States in Australia are helping in the good work. For instance, the government of New South Wales created a Necessary Commodities Control Commission, with power to fix the limit of almost everything not strictly luxuries. This was no radical measure devised to hamper and annoy private rights. It was entirely due to the greed of the food speculators. Just after war was declared Australia presented an almost exact parallel to the situation recently obtaining in many big centres in Canada.

The commission was given control over gas and fuel, over all articles of food or drink and all ingredients used in the manufacture of such articles, over any goods which the commission might persuade the government to place under its control. Fine or jail—or both—awaited such speculators as might defy the commission's daily issued bulletins giving the maximum prices of necessities. The same penalties threatened all who might withhold supplies. Having made the law the government showed from the outset that they intended to have it enforced to the full. The day before the first price fixing bulletin was issued the following prices were asked for various commodities: Wheat, $1.26 a bushel; flour, $56.01 a ton; bread, about to be raised from seven to nine cents for a two-pound loaf. After the issue of the bulletin the prices dropped to: Wheat, $1 a bushel; flour, $46.37 a ton; bread, ordered to remain at seven cents for the two-pound loaf. The speculators held four hundred thousand bushels of wheat for immediate shipment to London. The government seized it out of hand. It was then that the speculators were finally unhorsed and put out of action. About three million bushels of wheat, held for market rigging purposes, were released by the panic-stricken corner operators. After that price fixing went out of fashion in New South Wales. In Canada 87,000,000 bushels of wheat are said to be held in the elevators because when the British Government wished to buy it a horde of speculators stepped in and began to rig the market. And rigging the market has occurred in almost every other commodity. Price-boosting can be stopped. Australia has shown the way. When is Canada going to follow the good example?—Montreal Herald.

Muzzled Dogs On Leash May Exercise On the Streets Now

The emergency dog by-law has practically dissolved into the old regulation; a dog catcher has not yet been appointed and the Council's first burst of determination to protect the general public has seemingly fallen before private complaints in an obvious disguise. The old by-law permitted dogs on the street only on leash. With the rabies outbreak they were to be quarantined for ninety days and the wanderers impounded. Last night the Council decided to lift the quarantine on dogs that were muzzled and on leash. This amendment, Ald. Stratton stated, would provide for the exercise of the animals. Another cobble for the flooring of the eternity of good intentions!

Ald. Duncan objected to the change, stating that the city should not take any chances, and Ald. Smith said he had seen tagless dogs roving the streets that should be rounded up by the police.

"They say"—Well, if it should be so,
Why need you tell the tale of woe?
Will it the bitter wrong redress,
Or make one pang of sorrow less?
Will it the erring one restore.
Henceforth to go and sin no more?

ELM STREET CHANGES ITS NAME TO BROCK CEDAR NOW MURRAY

The following changes in the names of city streets were effected by by-law last night:

Cedar to Murray street.

Brown to Auburn street.

Reid, between Wolfe and Sherbrooke to Park street.

Park between Wolfe and Sherbrooke to Harper street.

Park Lane, between Sherbrooke and Bolivar streets, to Harper street.

Princess to Gladstone Avenue.

Elm to Brock street.

Ald Saunders and Ald. Langford headed an amendment that the change of Elm to Brock street be dropped for the reason that these streets were not in immediate or obvious alignment. They favoured the changing of Elm street to any other, but out of all the war names that might have truly raised Elm street to a new estate, Kitchener, Haig or otherwise, none were suggested. Elm thus becomes a mere unnatural "jog" in Brock street. But anything will satisfy the residents who want to forget the word Elm and its associations as quickly as possible. With the new baptism, the street expects a complete regeneration in its physical appearance. The residents claim that the old street had been, perhaps, unduly besmirched in and out of police courts and press. An expected psychological effect should derive from the dignified and venerable name of Brock clothing the street that afforded material for unkind jests and occasioned apologies from the residents who incautiously admitted residence thereon.

G. T. R. TOO NOISY.

Ald. Duncan Says Citizens Complain of Unnecessary Shunting at Night.

The G.T.R. will be asked to provide facilities for watering their engines at the siding below Ware street. The would obviate the noisy movements of the trains at night, Ald. Duncan stated, instead of the present custom of cutting the engines off at the siding running to the station for water, returning again, and finally coming through with the freights, all the time clanging bells and blowing off steam. The Company will be asked to abate the nuisance they create in the daytime as well as night.

BELLEVILLE LACKS BREAD.

Half the Bakers Quit Business, Rest Can't Supply Demand.

BELLEVILLE, May 8.—The bread situation is very serious in Belleville. More than half of the bakers have gone out of business because of the high prices of flour and scarcity of labour, and the remaining ones cannot supply the demand. Nearly every night there is a bread famine here.

MR. SUNDAY WINS 12,000 RECRUITS FOR LOCAL OPTION

Smashing with both fists, Billy Sunday gave booze and sin hard blows in the Tabernacle on Washington Heights and brought his day's struggle with the devil to a dramatic close, when, leaping from the green carpeted platform to his plain pine pulpit, he stretched out his arms and yelled:

"Never anywhere have I seen a finer fight made by any official than your Governor, Charles Witman, is making to-day up in Albany against that dirty, inIquitous whisky ring, which is seeking to crush him."

The twelve thousand shouted applause. "He is fighting the fight of the people, and every man worth the name in this city ought to get into the fight and help him," Mr. Sunday continued, waving his arms. Then he asked how many of the audience would take a stand with the Governor in the local option fight, regardless of politics, and "go through with it." Nearly every man stood, and the roar made the rough boards rattle.

His Answer to Critics.

Not a minute later Mr. Sunday was back on the pulpit again, this to his critics:

"When I am through with you, old New York, you may take me out on the Brooklyn Bridge and tie a stone around my neck and dump me over, but every man of you will have to say, 'There goes a man who preached what he believed.'

"I have taken more scoffings, more sneers, more vile remarks and had my life threatened from one end of the country to the other by that God forsaken, black hearted gang of booze hitters because I have come out uncompromisingly against them. But there is no one that will reach down lower or reach up higher to help a man out of the pits of drunkenness than I."

Mr. Sunday preached three sermons. In the forenoon there were 499 trail hitters, and in the afternoon 1,081 marched down to shake the evangelist by the hand. The evening trail hitters numbered 1,032. The attendance for the day was placed at about 26,000, a marked falling o" from last Sunday. The services for afternoon and evening were for men only, and Mr. Sunday preached his sermon, "Hot Cakes Off the Griddle."

Lieutenant-General Nelson A. Miles, U.S.A., retired, and August Belmont were on the platform. The audience gave a cheer for General Miles. Mr. Sunday made an appeal at the afternoon service for naval recruits and advised young men to go to the tents across from the Tabernacle and put down their names.

"Some say the war means the failure of Christianity," he said. "No, it means the failure of men who are not Christians."

Three men were carried out in the evening while the evangelist was telling in plain terms of the results of a life of sin and vice. One man shouted "You shouldn't talk that way." "Put him out," the audience cried, and nearly every man was on his feet. "I'll do the talking here, friend," Mr. Sunday shouted. "If you don't like the way I am preaching, beat it."

The evangelist was in good physical form. His fine physique showed under the test of the three sermons. Telling of his baseball triumphs, he "slid home" across the platform and landed on a press ban on his stomach. There was a time in his life, he said, when nobody would trust him to hold a dog on a street corner for fifteen minutes. He told of the lives of the old baseball crowd with which he travelled and how one after the other went to pieces under "booze." He ended the stories by asking:

"Who won, they or I?"

In Love With "Old New York."

Mr. Sunday made it plain at his morning service that he had fallen in love with "Little Old New York." After he had criticized "the tango lizards" and "the lounge lizards," he said:

"You never looked at a man who ate less, slept less and worked harder than I do. But I have been sleeping better here than in any other city for a long time.

"You are a cracking good bunch here. I hate to think of the day when I shall have to say good-by."

One of these who "hit the trail" on Sunday morning fainted soon afterward. He was carried to the hospital but it was found locked. No physician could be found and no nurse was in sight. Finally volunteers got the hospital door open, and administered first aid. The man explained that he had been "a heavy drinker" for years and that it was the conviction which suddenly came to him when shaking hands with Mr. Sunday that he would have "to cut out the booze," which caused him to faint.

500 INVENTIONS TO SUPPRESS THE U-BOAT

NEW YORK, May 7—W. Saunders chairman of the Naval Consulting Board, announced here that the board had forwarded to Washington plans for dealing with the submarine problem, which, it was believed, had solved the problem successfully.

"It looks as though the submarine problem has been solved," Mr. Saunders said, "not only in theory, but on the strength of practical tests on the Atlantic coast."

Mr. Saunders added that 500 inventions for U-boat suppression had been submitted for consideration of the Board, and experiments with many of them justified, he believed, the assertion that a plan had been found by which the submarine peril could be eliminated.

Mr. Saunders was unwilling to go into further details of the Board's experiments, all data on the subject having been forwarded to Washington, but he said the public had a right to be informed of the progress made toward nullifying the depredations of the German undersea craft.

Mr. Saunders, who has been chairman of the naval consulting board about two months, supplemented his announcement by saying that while the submarine problem cannot be considered in reality to have been solved until the U-boats have been destroyed, nevertheless numerous experiments had been made along the Atlantic with highly encouraging results and which led the Board to feel confidence that the solution had been reached.

EDISON IS BUSY.

Saunders said that he did not know of any single invention made by Thomas A. Edison, president of the Board, which would end the submarine peril, but clearly intimated that Edison was engaged in experiments that promised to be successful.

Saunders emphasized the fact that no announcement had been authorised by the Navy Department and that he was expressing his personal opinion

SAWMILL BURNED.

Blaze at Bewdley Village Believed to Have Been of Incendiary Origin.

PORT HOPE, May 8.—This morning about 2 o'clock at Bewdley, a village at the head of Rice Lake, the sawmill with all its machinery and a large quantity of logs and lumber, were destroyed by fire. The mill was owned by ex-Mayor T. B. Chalk, of Port Hope, and the loss is partially covered by insurance. Circumstances indicate that the fire was of incendiary origin and an arrest in the matter may be expected any day.

FARMERS' SONS ARE WANTED BACK HOME

Are Urged to Give Up Their City Positions

According to information furnished the officials of the War Production Club, who have just completed a survey of the local labor situation, there are thousands of farmers' sons in Toronto possessing a general knowledge of farm work who would be of untold value to the farmer this year. They are to be found in all lines of business. The individual with little or no experience who has been rejected by the military authorities as unfit for active service, and sent to the farmers, has demonstrated in hundreds of cases that he was not only willing to learn but anxious to make himself efficient as a farm laborer. It was ascertained that while a large number of young men with farm experience had been released for service in connection with the campaign for the greater production of food stuffs there were still many available men who might conveniently be permitted to abandon their city vocations to go on the farm.

The farmers are fully alive to the seriousness of the situation and are doing all that they can to increase their acreage under cultivation this year, notwithstanding the scarcity of labor. On the other hand there are to be found a few farmers who are indifferent and apparently fail to grasp the importance of producing greater crops than ever before.

ONLY A FEW INDIFFERENT FARMERS.

Mr. E. F. Trimble, Secretary of the War Production Club, stated that the percentage of indifferent farmers was comparatively small, the argument advanced by these being that "the less we produce the higher the prices; so why produce?" Mr. Trimble said that the possibility of famine was not bothering certain others, who declared to representatives of the club that they had no reason to worry, as they were in a position to take care of themselves. This was a most unfortunate state of affairs, and anything but patriotic in a time when the farmer especially was afforded an opportunity of making himself one of the greatest assets of the nation—outside the soldier in the trenches. The farmers generally throughout the province had responded to the plea for greater production with a spirit of wholeheartedness, and although the appeal came late to have a very appreciable effect on this year's grain acreage, yet it would have a marked effect on the acreage for later crops, such as roots, corn, buckwheat, etc.

CITY MAN FOR COUNTRY.

"To produce greater crops the man from the city must go to the assistance of the farmer," added Mr. Trimble. "Many employers have adjusted their affairs in workshops and commercial establishments so as to make it possible for their employees to render temporary assistance on the farm, while some have given permission to scores of employees to remain with the farmers until the crops are garnered. Just now we are between seasons. The great demand for short-period men will be in June, July and August. The class of help furnished the farmer has surprised the tillers of the soil. Professors, school teachers, ministers, lawyers and men of many other walks of life have answered the call of the farmer for assistance. The response of the citizens has been magnificent.

PLANS TO CULTIVATE SUBURBS.

At to-day's conference of the War Production Club which will be held for the purpose of preparing plans for the cultivating and cropping of thousands of acres of vacant land on the outskirts of the city, the directors will make an appeal to the employers of all classes of labor to release all the employees possible to take positions on farms. The conference will be held in the assembly hall of the Toronto Board of Trade quarters in the Royal Bank building. Besides many grants of land already placed at the disposal of the War Production Club, by different realty concerns, the F. B. Robins Company have promised to release all their available property for food production purposes. Upwards of 2,500 acres of vacant lands have been assigned to the club with promises of at least an additional two thousand acres from various sources.

BANK CLERKS FOR THE FARM.

The Provincial Farm Labor Bureau reports that two young men now employed in a bank in Toronto, have given up their positions and are leaving next Saturday to do their "bit" on the farms, and to help increase the production. Numerous others have asked not to let one part of their acreage go unplanted this year when such men as these are giving up reliable positions to do their share. Many other young men leading similar positions in all lines of business are daily signifying their intention to get out on the farm. The Provincial Farm Labor Bureau is co-operating with the farmer and the helper in order that both may be satisfied and a greater amount of food be produced.

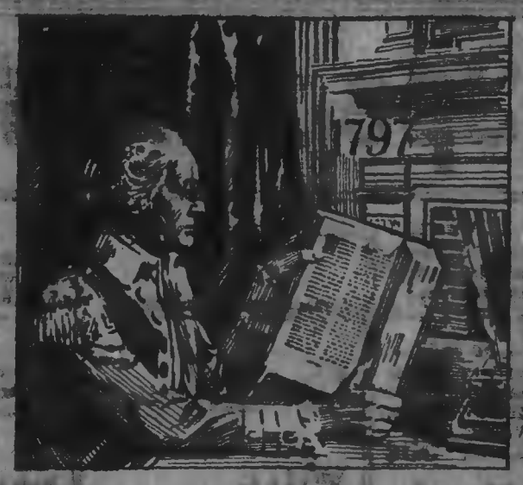
MISS E. M. COUGHLIN

Pharmacist—347 George Street Phone 836



THE FIRST PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES owned and used The Encyclopaedia Britannica, 3rd Edition, in its original leather, unwieldy form, printed on old-fashioned THICK PAPER which necessitated a large, awkward book that had to be supported upon a table.

THE 28th PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES has the advantage of using The Encyclopaedia Britannica, 11th Edition, which contains 28M more reading matter, but is printed on thin INDIA PAPER and is as easy to hold and read as a magazine.

IN 1797 the stage coach traveling between Philadelphia and New York took two days to cover the ninety miles. In 1917 the Pennsylvania Railroad Express, over practically the same route, makes the run in two hours.

In 1797 it meant a four-hour drive by horse and carriage from Perth to the Golf Club at St. Andrew's. In 1917 you can easily motor over the same twenty-five miles under the hour.

In 1797 a sailing vessel often took three months to make the voyage from New York to Liverpool. In 1917 the Mauretania can make the same trip in just over five days.

There is just as much difference between The Encyclopaedia Britannica, printed on old-fashioned thick paper, and the new Britannica, "Handy Volume" Issue, printed on genuine India paper, as there is between the stage coach of 1797 and the Philadelphia Express of 1917; between the horse and carriage, traveling eight miles an hour, and the modern motor, traveling 50 miles an hour; between the sailing vessel and the ocean steamship.

If you want the old-fashioned stage coach-horse and carriage-sailing vessel kind of an Encyclopaedia Britannica you need not be in any hurry to buy now. You can get the heavy, bulky, thick paper Britannica at any time.

But if you want the modern "Handy Volume" Encyclopaedia Britannica, printed on genuine India paper, you must order at once.

The sets of the "Handy Volume" Britannica, printed on genuine India paper, now in stock are all that we can get. These are going at the rate of more than 2000 sets a week. The end of this sale is almost here. When the last set is sold no one will be able to buy the Britannica in this, its handiest form, at any price. No more can be printed. We cannot get another set from the publishers, because they positively cannot get any more of the genuine India paper. No more India paper can be made because two necessary raw materials—flax from Belgium, Germany or Ireland and hemp from Russia—because of the war, are now absolutely unobtainable, and no more can be secured for many years.

Note:—This also means that no more of the Cambridge University issue of the Britannica and Century Dictionary can be had on genuine India paper.

We could probably sell many thousands more sets of the "Handy Volume" Issue of The Encyclopaedia Britannica if we could get them. As this sale nears the end we are receiving, daily, thousands of inquiries asking for information about the "Handy Volume" Britannica on this wonderful India paper.

When we announce the last day on which orders can possibly be filled we know that many orders will be sent in that we cannot supply sets for.

TREBILCOCK BROTHERS
Peterboro's Largest Bookstore
417 George Street

Last June, when we had to advance the price of the "Handy Volume" Britannica a few dollars, over 17,000 orders came in after the last day of the low price.

We warn you now—the remaining sets of the "Handy Volume" Britannica, printed on this wonderfully thin, opaque India paper, that makes each volume only 1 inch thick, will be exhausted in less than three weeks.

Tens of thousands of people have written for and received our descriptive book that tells all about the Britannica. They are making up their minds and ordering at the rate of more than 2000 a week.

Now you must order or you. Never can get it

It is too late now—the sale is too nearly over—for you to write for information about this wonderful work. Because—the last procurable set will be sold before you could get our Britannica booklet, read it, make up your mind about buying and get your order back to us.

But—you, too, can learn if the Britannica will be useful and helpful to you and you can be in time to order if you will go TODAY to the store named below, see the complete set, examine the books, see the various bindings, learn the prices and the plan of paying for the books on conveniently small monthly payments. Then, when you know the Britannica is what you want, leave your order at the store.

If you already know that The Encyclopaedia Britannica will prove useful and helpful to you in your business and in your home life, sign and send this "Reserve" Order form at once, and you will be in time to get one of these last sets.

Those who cannot go to this store may use this "Reserve" Order Form, which will be forwarded upon us to reserve one of the few sets on the same terms as if you ordered it in person.

SEARS, ROEBUCK AND CO., Chicago, Illinois

Please reserve me a set of the "Handy Volume" Encyclopaedia Britannica, printed on genuine India paper. I enclose $1.00 as first payment. Send me an order form which I agree to sign and return immediately.

List of Arc Lamps to Be Removed and Replaced By a String of Incandescents

The displaying of arc lamps throughout the city by incandescents, which afford a more efficient and diffused system of street lighting is being gradually extended by the Council.

In addition to the change ordered on Homewood avenue last night, the Utilities were authorized to place the following incandescent lights.

One at the corner of Reid and Victoria Avenue.

Driscoll Terrace, one on the second pole north of Hunter street, west side.

Sherbrooke street, one light on the first pole west of Turner Bros. Card factory; and one on the first pole east of Aylmer street.

Aylmer street, one on the first pole south of Dalhousie and one on a pole half-way between Townsend and Rink streets.

Chamberlain street—Remove the arc light at Scott's store and place ten lights along the length of the street.

Parnell street—Remove the arc light at the west end of the street and place five lights at intervals along the street.

Lafayette Ave, two lights on this street.

Albert street—Take out arc light and replace with eight lights along the street.

Corner of Simcoe and Rubidge streets—Place one light on the pole near the north east corner or junction of these streets.

Corner of Simcoe and Stewart streets—Lower the arc light at this point six to eight feet.

Rogers street—Move the first light (from Hunter street) to a pole further south.

Robinson street—Place a light on the first pole east from Bernham street, south side.

An incandescent lamp was also ordered to be placed at the corner of Dublin and Downie streets, and the arc lamp on Sherbrooke street between Aylmer and George streets is to be replaced by five incandescents.

Ald Langford suggested that the Council should adopt some system in the street lighting changes instead of the present grabbing by Aldermen for lights in their ward without considering the general interests of the whole city.

Peterboro' Boys Tell of the Vimy Battle

other Canadian battalion at the front, came through the Vimy Ridge battle unhurt, he tells his parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. Jolliffe, No. 6 Grand Central Apartments in a letter written on April 13th:

Thought I would write at my first opportunity to let you know that I was safe, without a scratch. You will be anxious at my time of writing, but in future rest assured that unless you receive notice at once, I am safe and sound.

In this last big move by the Canadians they covered themselves with glory, taking a place that the French have tried three times and the Imperials once. Everything went as the papers say. Gee it was a grand sight and a grand offensive to be in. Though near to death and seeing the awful sights one must see, I enjoyed something in it, particularly the wonderful sight of the hundreds of German prisoners passing us on their way back of our lines.

I and another fellow in the beginning volunteered to go out to a post with our signalling officer, the man I told you I almost worshipped. We managed to get there O.K. He left me in charge of a phone and started back with my chum and on the way back was killed. I did not know until twelve hours after when I was relieved, and it came as an awful blow. He was such a brave fellow and I had taken many risky jobs with him. It came hard to lose him.

Am enclosing a letter for Mr. Webb and Mrs. Eastwood, thanking them for the Christmas parcel just received after the big fight, four months late in coming, but still fresh and good."

Walter Miller Was Buried Twice At Vimy Ridge

Writing to his father, Mr. Finch Miller, Walter Miller of Peterborough, who went overseas with the 93rd Battalion, tells of coming through the great attack at Vimy Ridge safely, although he was buried twice. He says, writing on April 16th: "Just a few lines to let you know I am well, so far. We are back having a rest for a while. I guess you will see all about the latest news in the papers. Well, you people cannot realize what it is like. Talk about artillery. Our fellows fire a curtain of shells and we keep on following it up about 50 yards or more behind. We had a pretty tough week (deleted by censor) The Germans who surrendered to us couldn't get over to us fast enough, it seemed. I was buried twice and lost five men of my section. I could have had lots of souvenirs, but I thought I would be tickled to death to get out myself. Dug Loomis is all right. I was with him to-day.

Gunner Dorris in Bradford Hospital Gassed at Vimy

Mr. A. M. Dorris, Lewis street, has received the following letter from his brother, Gunner Ambrose Dorris, who was gassed at Vimy Ridge:

April 18th, 1917.
Ward F 2,
War Hospital,
Bradford, Yorkshire,
England.

My Dear Brother,—I received your letter just the day before our big advance and the capturing of Vimy Ridge. Old Fritz sure does not like the Canadians. Our infantry gave him some beating on Easter Monday. I was in good health up till late on Tuesday and I had to report all in. I was gassed on Monday night, and it got me good on Tuesday and Wednesday. However, I am doing fine and expect to be O.K. once again in a short while. I am certainly pleased to be in such a fine hospital as this. We get everything a patient requires and the very best of attention is paid us by the nurses and doctors. It is sixteen months since I was in England and believe me I am enjoying the rest and good treatment I am having at present.

Your loving brother,
AMBROSE.
Reg. 42167.

In his letter Gunner Dorris speaks of the shock he received in the news of the illness of his mother, father and brother. He said he might receive a short furlough home before returning to duty.

Preliminary Organization Meeting For The Textile Workers Of Peterborough

Textile Workers Hear Addresses by Prominent Labour Workers—What Has Been Accomplished in the Textile Workers' Domain—Meetings Every Two Weeks.

An eight hour day was among the many things promised the textile workers of Peterborough at a meeting that was held last evening in the Labour Hall under the auspices of the United Textile Workers of America. The meeting was for the purpose of organizing the textile workers of the city and with this object in view, membership cards were distributed at the close of the meeting. About thirty or thirty-five workers signed the cards. Meetings will be held every two weeks until the organization is completed.

The Speakers.

Miss Mary J. Kelleher, of Scranton, Pa., General Organizer for the United Textile Workers of America, and Mr. Thomas A. Stevenson, Secretary of the Toronto District Labour Council addressed the meeting at length on the success that had been achieved throughout America by organized labour. Miss Kelleher gave a lucid account of the labour activities in various parts of the country. Shorter hours, more pay and better working conditions were the main points of Miss Kelleher's contentions for an organized effort in Peterborough. She dared any "spies" in the Hall to relate to their employers what had taken place at the meeting and said that organized labour had nothing to hide and the organizers would like to see the employers present at the meeting as well as the employees.

On the Firing Line.

"Twenty-five thousand labour men from Canada are on active service today," said Mr. Stevenson in his opening remarks. Including the British Isles, Canada and Australia, labour has placed in the field something like three million fighting men. Mr. Stevenson compared conditions that existed prior to the inception of organized labour. He said it was the intention of the organization representing the textile workers to continue the campaign in Peterborough until all the textile workers were organized. It was also the intention of the same organization to extend their efforts into many other towns and cities of Ontario. The speaker cited the efforts that had been put forth to organize the textile workers in Toronto. In one case a lockout resulted, which was broken up at the end of three days. Subsequently the employer of this particular factory gave notice that after a certain date he would not continue to employ non-organized labour, as he claimed to get better results from workers who were organized.

The meeting concluded with the distribution of membership cards which were signed by a number of the workers present.

Voice of The People

Correspondence under this heading containing or involving attacks on individuals or violent or extreme statements must to secure insertion, be signed with writer's real name, the owner of which thus assumes the responsibility.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—May I through your paper speak a word for the poor dogs. There seems to be no one to do so, and yet I understand there is a society for the prevention of cruelty to animals here. Certainly every precaution should be taken, but surely if the dogs are muzzled and not allowed on the streets unless in charge of some one, is all that is necessary. There are a lot of women whose husbands or sons are away at the front fighting, and a dog is a good protection for them. There are some men at large who are far worse than any mad dog. There are lots of dog owners who have no back yard for them to run in. Must they get rid of their pets, some of them very likely thought a lot of by absent loved ones away fighting for us all.

Why not compel owners to have their dogs muzzled or chained. It would be far more fair for both owners and dogs.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor.

A LOVER OF DOGS.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—In continuation of the Coal Yard question, in Monday's edition of your paper, Mr. Hicks blossoms out as a Coal Market advocate. The public are not in need of a coal market, whereby prices are manipulated and preference given to certain purchasers. This already exists.

What is required is a Municipal Coal Yard, not managed by dealers, but run on an economic basis, selling coal at the lowest cost to one and all, according to supply.

INQUIRER.

Editor, Examiner:

Unless something is done by our Government to restrain the various combines from cornering the staples of life and inflating prices, the majority of the people will find it difficult to live. Surely some plan can be devised whereby an equitable distribution of breadstuffs can be vouchsafed, and thus stop the hoarding by the greedy manipulators, in which event there would be enough for all.

Only last week bread took a jump of two cents a loaf, and now again this week another two cents is added, the excuse being that flour has gone up. If it has, it is merely forced up temporarily by speculators, but when the price of flour drops, the price of bread does not respond so rapidly.

The fact is, I am told, that the bakers, as a whole, do not suffer by the high price of flour, because they laid in heavy stocks when flour was cheap, and they admit that the big dealers have done so.

There is no reason why there should be such monstrous prices of the necessaries of life under a proper system of governmental supervision, especially during the continuance of the war. A remedy can be found. Will it be employed?—Yours, etc.,

Equality.

PLANTING AND PREACHING

To the Editor of Examiner:

Dear Sir,—Your readers may be interested to know that in a London Pictorial of March 25th is to be seen a picture of "The Rev. W. W. Bickford, Vicar of St. Day, Cornwall, England. He has suspended his Sunday morning services in order that his parishoners may produce food for the population of the country. The Vicar himself is seen planting potatoes i nthe field, believing as he does, in the old adage that "Example is better than precept."

Yours truly,

SAYNETE

FORGIVING.

"The giraffes and the ostriches are the most forgiving animals in the Zoo," remarked the keeper.

"Is that a fact?" said the visitor.

"It most certainly is. Why, dear sir, they overlook everything." — London Statesman.

Municipal Coal Yard Considered

why the dealers won't sell coal to persons who go after it.

Ald. Weir— I thought I made that clear. They can't sell what they have already sold but have not yet delivered.

Ald. Weir stated that not a dealer in Peterborough would oppose a municipal coal yard.

Mayor Duffus believed that the city would find the handling and delivery very expensive.

Ald. Worth advocated a municipal fuel yard as a system of relief.

Using Ald. Weir's figures, Ald. Smith stated that the dealers bought on the long ton basis of 2,240 pounds, which cost $6.10 at Suspension Bridge, plus $1.30 freight here and 50 cents for delivery, a total of $7.90. Deduct 12 p.c. for a short ton, leaving coal worth $7 in Peterborough. The inference was obvious.

"They say"—But why the tale rehearse,
And help to make the matter worse?
No good can possibly accrue
From telling what may be untrue;
And is it not a nobler plan
To speak of all the best you can?

GOVERNMENT DID NOT KNOW

That Judge Spotton was still active in other lines.

OTTAWA, May 8.—The Minister of Justice said in the Commons today that the Government had no knowledge that Judge Spotton of Harriston, Ont., was still actively connected with the manufacturing interests and still taking an active part in Conservative affairs in Wellington County, as intimated in the Wellington County as intimated in the

TRYING TO CATCH BURGESS.

Alleged that Government Agent got away with $125,000.

OTTAWA, May 8—The Acting Premier told Mr. E. B. Devlin, in the Commons, yesterday, that the Government had so far unsuccessfully sought the arrest of an agent named Burgess, who had been in the employ of the government at Fort William terminal elevator, and who had forged an endorsement to cheques for government money. It is alleged that Burgess got away with about $125,000. The Government is taking action to recover the amount from the banks.

TO-DAY'S WAR NEWS

GERMANS WERE THROWN BACK.

LONDON, May 8.—Stewart Lyon, correspondent of the Canadian press with the Canadian troops, says that the Germans penetrated the Canadian line at Fresnoy in the first rush, but did not long retain their advantage. The Canadians organized a counter attack, and after two hours of sharp fighting, the Canadian's line before the attack was re-established, except for a small projecting angle at the extreme east of the position.

MUST FIGHT ON, SAYS HELFERRICH.

COPENHAGEN, May 8.—"We are unable yet to obtain the peace necessary to the German people. We must fight for it," declared Vice-Chancellor Karl Helferrich in a Reichstag report to-day.

Garbage Contractor Asked Council's Aid

Mr. E. K. Graham, garbage contractor, told the Council last night he could not continue the work at the price he contracted for. He had lost three men, and two others threatened to quit unless they received increases they asked for. Mr. Graham had been paying $80 a month, but could not afford to raise the wage unless the Council could help him. Aldermen Worth and Weir remarked that the contractor had accepted the work at his own price, and would be expected to live up to the agreement. No relief was offered by the Council. The work is a week behind in many districts of the city, and Mr. Graham expects that if will be a great deal worse if his men quit.

INSPECTION OF COLLEGIATE CADETS TO-DAY

The Cadets of the Collegiate Institute are having their annual inspection by Lt.-Col. Gillespie at Central Park this afternoon.

THE HOME GARDEN

BUSH AND POLE BEANS.

To get the greatest food value from a limited area of ground there is no crop to be compared with beans. The dry shelled beans have a chemical composition that places them in the same rank with eggs and beefsteak. For either war or peace times the production of beans is the truest economy. Unfortunately the prices this year make seeding rather expensive.

Broadly speaking these are the two classes of beans—the low, bushy sorts and the tall climbers. These are also spoken of as the dwarf and the pole varieties. Under the first class are included all the field varieties that are grown to be used as shelled beans and some snap and string beans. They have stout, erect or slightly running stems. Pole beans include the Lima and kidney types and are not so widely grown.

All beans are quite tender and should not be planted until the soil is warm and all danger of frost is over. They are sown for early use about the time for corn planting which will be about the 15th to 20th of May. For the warm crop planting is done about June 1st.

Bush beans are more easily grown than the pole varieties and they are adapted to various purposes. When grown on a large scale the seed is generally sown with a horse drill or with a hand garden drill in rows three feet apart. It is sometimes best to mark out the land first and then follow with the drill on the marks. The seed may be sown two or three inches deep, where soil is light. On a smaller scale the land may be furrowed out with a spade or hoe and the seed dropped by hand.

If hard rains occur, causing the soil to bake before the seeds have sprouted, the crust should be broken with a rake or hoe. The same tools are to be used frequently after the plants are above ground. The least damage will be done to the plant if weeding is done in the middle of the day.

Beans are rather shallow rooted which is a reason for care in cultivating. Deep cutting with the hoe injures the roots which is always detrimental to the bean plant. Also moisture must be kept in the soil by having a loose mulch on the surface. Rakes with fine narrow teeth are often better adapted to the cultivation of beans than the hoe.

There is a general agreement that beans should never be cultivated when wet from dew and rain.

For use in a green state the pods of some kinds of beans are picked while still tender and fresh; in other cases the beans are not used until after they are large enough to shell from the pods. When harvesting the shelled beans care must be taken to prevent moulding of the pods and damage to the kernels. In a small way dry beans may be threshed out by hand.

For green beans Golden Wax and Bountiful Green Pod are two standard sorts. Field varieties for use as shelled beans are White Marrow, Navy and Snowflake.

A SPLENDID CHARACTER SKETCH OF LLOYD GEORGE

Professor Michael's Lecture in George St. Methodist Church Last Night Gave a Wider Insight Into the Life of the British Premier.

A ROMANTIC CAREER

A wider insight into the life of England's Prime Minister, was given last night at the George Street Methodist Church by Professor Michael, himself a fellow countryman of Lloyd George.

Mr. Michael said that Lloyd George's accession to the premiership placed the corner stone to a romantic career—a career where from the barefooted son of a school teacher, without wealth, birth, or great academic distinctions he had reached the highest position in British politics.

LIFE OF THE PREMIER.

He was born, not in Wales, but in Manchester in 1863. His younger days were a pathetic struggle against poverty, his father having died when he was but a boy. His uncle who gave the Lloyd George family a home started him in his great career by studying with his uncle until he finally became a solicitor at 20 years of age and a politician at 26. When child he showed signs of antagonism to oppression. He is an ardent nationalist and friend to small nations which explains his uncompromising attitude at the time of the South African war.

PERSONAL CHARACTERISTICS

He is a shy man. This may seem hard to believe. Yet he is the most audacious man in England. He has more public enemies, yet fewer private ones, than most great men. He has no swelled head, simplicity is the keynote of his make up. He is a good listener, society bores him and his love of his family is intense. He hates to begin work, yet finds it difficult to give up. His subordinates are amazed at what he can accomplish.

LLOYD GEORGE'S FOUR WEAPONS.

The marvellous success of the Premier is attributed to four causes, courage, oratory, astute use of the press and his supreme smartness. As soon as he became Prime Minister, we had them all exemplified. He has proved himself to be a man of supreme courage and it is that which explains his hold on the English people. His oratory has been proved time and again more especially by his great speech before the largest gathering the world has ever known, in reply to the German peace propositions.

His astute use of the press is exemplified by the fact that the first day he became Prime Minister he bought the Gazette, one of the most important political papers. He is very careful to keep on the right side of the press and sees that his speeches are correctly reported. He showed his supreme smartness by his careful handling of the war cabinet, and the manner in which he won labour over.

THE GREAT WAR ON LIQUOR

We must not expect everything at once. There are those who do and question his standing on the liquor problem. He has restricted the sale of drink to a great extent and shown a decided leading to total prohibition. He tried hard before he became Premier, but his suggestions were overruled. However, we may be confident he will do something more drastic before long.

POPULAR AS PREMIER.

His accession to premiership was hailed with joy everywhere but in Germany. His hold on England is marvellous. England is disposed to go but as the great war went on she wondered why something didn't happen to stop it. She needed a man with a forecasting mind and got him in Lloyd George. The greater question on every allied lip is, "is he going to settle this war?" He is a man who scarcely knows failure. He is trusted by all allied nations and he is the man to see us through. Lloyd George is confident of the issue of the great war but he never speaks of the outcome without reference to heart-rendering sacrifices yet to be made. We trust the great Premier may see us through to peace and prosperity.

VOTE OF THANKS.

A vote of thanks was moved by Mr. Greatrix to Professor Michael and to

LEIGH VALLEY COAL FOR MAY

Professor and Mrs. Renwick for their splendid musical contributions.

A Boston paper propounds the following query respecting the abnormal prices of hard coal:

"Somebody, anybody, who is capable of fathoming the depths of the mystery of the coal trade will render to people who are paying $10 and up per ton for anthracite coal an estimable favour by explaining, if possible, what this announcement of the Lehigh Valley Coal Sales Company means: "The tidewater prices for May will be as follows: Broken and egg, $5.30 per ton; stove, $5.55; chestnut, $5.60." Where and how can the tidewater consumer buy coal at these prices, or at anything bordering on these prices?"

The Donegal Rug in the Government House, Toronto

(By H. F. GADSBY)

OTTAWA. — While the Borden government—with its tongue in its cheek—is preaching thrift, the Hearst Government is practising the wildest kind of extravagance.

Government House, Toronto, is pleasantly situated in a hole on the side of a hill which needs a retaining wall to keep our million dollars' worth of stone and marble from sliding into the valley. Many people have wondered why the site of Government House was changed from the convenient spot on Bloor street, where it would have been handy to the street cars, to the remote fastness in North Rosedale, which it now occupies. The most frequent explanation is that a great friend and confidential adviser of the Ontario Government was loaded up with real estate in that neighborhood and wanted something put there that would give it prestige and a market value. To please him Government House was put in the hole. When Government House puts the Government in the hole, too, as we may expect it to do, the hole ought to be pretty well filled.

Government House, Toronto, cost over a million dollars. It is in the French chateau style, that being the the phase of architecture favored by Dr. Beaume, who was Minister of Public Works at the time this castillated folly was started. Although the palaces of United States millionaires and the baronial halls of Europe were visited to get hints on how to blow in a million dollars, it must be admitted that the architect showed moderation. He did not give us a little bit of everything—the style is pure throughout. It is as chaste and modest as a million dollars can be.

Naturally, it is a great favorite with our Governor-Generals, who find Rideau Hall a poky old place, and far behind the times. Ever since Sir John Hendrie moved in, the Governor-General of the day has been glad to pay Toronto a visit, and put up at a house worth visiting. The furniture and fixings are all that the most exalted taste could wish. The surroundings are so splendid that even royalty feels right at home. It must be a great comfort to the ratepayers of Ontario to feel that their money is thus creating a proper atmosphere for the visiting nobility.

We doubt whether any duke or other potentate has a better atrium than the thirty thousand dollar one belonging to Government House. In an ordinary house you would call it a front hall, but when it costs thirty thousand dollars and is attached to a government house it is an atrium. The atrium is the vestibule. The vestibule is the place where the guests leave their vests in hot weather just as the pantry is the place where they leave their—well, just as a pantry is a pantry. An atrium is simply a vestibule or front hall and calling it an atrium and paying thirty thousand dollars for it does not make it go down any easier with the electors. An atrium that costs as much as six improved farms and buildings is some atrium.

The atrium of Government House represents six one hundred acre farms or ten eight roomed houses with modern conveniences, or one hundred reapers and binders, or twenty thousand bushels of wheat, or four thousand eight hundred pound shrapnel shells, or a year's pension for fifty totally disabled soldiers — well, the comparisons are endless—figure them out for yourselves.

The electrical fixtures cost $15,000, enough to supply thirteen hundred people with light for a year. The garage and coach house cost $14,000. This shows a tender care for the chauffeur and must do a lot to attach him to the home. Public attention has been directed to the Donegal rug in the dining room, which cost $1,380.00. If this rug came from Donegal, and if the Donegal people got the money, then all I can say is that if Donegal only turns out twelve of these rugs a day, Home Rule for Ireland is by way of being well financed by its native industries. So far the Donegal rug has aroused a great deal of Donnybrook criticism from Allan Studholme and others—that is to say, they have done nothing but whack it. Nothing illustrates so well the rugged character of the Hearst Government as this Donegal rug.

The explanation given is that the Donegal rug is the cheapest in the long run, because the best is always the dearest—which is about as lucid as a bowl of gravy. It is also offered in extenuation that the sixty guests, sitting at the people's expense, on the fifteen hundred dollars' worth of dining room chairs, will be put on their honor, so to speak, by the costliness of the Donegal rug, and will not throw their fishbones on it. In a word, they will try to keep it neat.

Another item is seven hundred dollars for one commode. Just here the question arises, what is a commode? Whom or what does it commode, and how? It ought to do a lot of commoding for seven hundred dollars. Why, by the way, does it cost seven hundred dollars? Is it inlaid with ivory? If it is what we think it is, it should be possible to get a fairly good one for twenty-five dollars. Of course if it is a large departmental commode which can be used also as a refrigerator and a coal bin it would cost a little more, but seven hundred dollars looks like a fancy price. For that sum of money one should be able to buy a dozen commodes of fairly ornamental character. Seven hundred dollars is too much for one commode, unless they intend to put it in the drawing room. It's a sure thing that a seven hundred dollar commode incommodes the taxpayers.

Another touch is eight hundred dollars for rose silk curtains for the dining rooms. It gives the banqueters the proper hue, warms the marble brow of the statesman, lends a soft glow to the cheek of beauty, and tones down the red nose of the gourmand. To get all this done for eight hundred dollars would be considered cheap by the art decorators but the taxpayers will not view it in that light.

Government House favors lovely curtains. There are so many curtains that one might almost think Government House had something to conceal. Of course this is not so, because everything has come out in the Public Accounts Committee. The ballroom curtains cost a lot because they occupy a strategic position. As first impressions are everything, it is only proper that the bright-eyed debutante should have pretty ball room curtains to look at when she goes to her first ball. Besides the ball room curtains are, in a manner of speaking, her background. She makes her entrance to society through that archway and the dramatic effect is worth the money.

These expenditures on a superfluous palace are only in line with the general prodigality of the Hearst Government, which has taken out of the people of Ontario six million dollars in war taxes, which have been spent on almost everything but war. No doubt some of the war tax went for the Donegal rug, the commode, and the ball room curtains that we have just been talking about. The Hearst Government is little brother to the Borden Government, which spends a million dollars a day, and wastes perhaps one quarter of it. It preaches thrift and squanders millions on useless Ross rifles and such matters. Save your money so the Tories at Ottawa and elsewhere can throw it to the birds.

Signs are not wanting that the changing of the age limits in the juvenile series of the Ontario Amateur Lacrosse Association will cause considerable activity in the national game this summer. At the largely attended executive meeting in Toronto on Thursday last, special attention was given to the game among the boys.

President Lancaster is endeavouring to arrange for cheaper sticks for the Juveniles and Midgets, and if this can be accomplished it will materially aid the beginners in the game.

An active campaign is going forward to revive the national game wherever enough men can be secured for a team, and many old enthusiasts have shown a willingness to assist, so that prospects are bright for the coming summer in spite of the war-time handicaps.

The initial draft of districts of local interest follows. The final grouping will be made on the 16th inst.

War Ought To Make Canada Free of Fault

But Dr. Thos. Eakin Finds No Change Tells Princess Pats.

TORONTO, May 8.—Canadians who fail to realise there is a war on were warmly condemned by Dr. Eakin in the course of his sermon in New St. Andrew's church, King and Simcoe streets, last evening. Over a score of veterans of the original battalion of the Princess Patricias Canadian Light Infantry were present in the centre pews at the front of the church.

"Apart from a few people who have been immediately affected by relatives falling in action or returning disabled from the field of battle, this war, as far as I can see, has not touched, has not chastened the national spirit of Canada one whit," said Dr. Eakin, "and if we are not chastened now God help us when the day of victory comes. If our life is as shallow now as it was in the days before the war, our condition should give us the gravest concern. Let us prepare for the new day when our armies shall return victorious, for the day pregnant with possibilities, for the day when Christ shall come to establish His Kingdom in this richly dowered land."

Mr. Thos. Noyes Is Retired To The G. T. R. Pensioners

On his seventieth birthday, after fifty-five years spent in railroad work, Mr Charles Noyes G.T.R. gateman at the Charlotte street crossing, retires to-morrow to the pension list. When he was fifteen years old, Mr. Noyes began work on what is now known as the London, Brighton and South Coast railway, and his first rails were laid near Chrystal Palace.

After coming to Canada, Mr. Noyes worked for a time as grader on the new Madoc-Belleville line, and on July 12th, 1875, was taken on temporarily as a section hand when the foreman, who left without assistants, the men having all gone to a celebration of the Battle of the Boyne. This was his (Mr. Noyes') opportunity, and in two years he was a section foreman. He worked for three years on the Madoc line, when he was moved to Peterborough. He was yard foreman here for eighteen years, until the day Ringling Bros.' circus came here in 1901. Superintendent Tiffin was in the city, and noticing the traffic at Charlotte street crossing, remarked that some one would be killed before the day was over. "Get Charlie Noyes to flag at this crossing," he ordered, and Mr. Noyes has guarded the people at that crossing ever since, without a single accident, or loss of life even to cats and dogs, many of which he chased from in front of engines and street cars. It was June 14th, 1901, that the position of gateman was created by the emergency of circus day, but not until September that the house and gates were completed.

Mr. Noyes retires in good health, although he walks with a limp received when struck by an automobile. The severance of his life-long associations with the railways and railway men becomes one of the straits of his life as Mr. Noyes is well able to continue in the service. Few citizens are so widely known as he and certainly few as highly esteemed. He has always been thoughtful and considerate of citizens in their vehicles, of the street car men and of the citizens generally without endangering them by too wide a latitude. He has been faithful to the G.T.R. and to many reporters of the city has been a close friend, assistant and at times, mentor. His brother Harry Noyes succeeds him, it is understood. The passing of Charlie Noyes from the position he practically created will be a distinct loss to those who looked for his cheery salutations, and his unflagging good humour and patience.

"They say"—O! pause and look with in,
See how your heart inclines to sin;
Watch! lest in dark temptation's hour
You, too, should sink beneath its power;
Pity the frail—weep o'er their fall,
But speak of good or not at all.

TO-DAY'S MILITARY NEWS

France, telling her that her husband, Pte. H. Palmer, has come through the Battle of Vimy Ridge safe, but has been admitted to hospital. The letter states that he was exhausted after the battle.

OTTAWA, May 7.—According to a return tabled in the Commons to-day seven per cent. of the men who enlisted in Canada and who were accepted and trained, were afterwards discharged before going overseas at all, as being medically unfit. Out of 407,221 reported as having enlisted up to March 31 last, 29,655 were discharged in Canada as medically unfit, and the number, including those who were discharged after being wounded overseas is given as 49,085. The number of men who returned from overseas and were then discharged in Canada as medically unfit, including those whose disability was due to or aggravated by military service, is 1,478. During 1916 the total number of those offering for enlistment was 245,051, and of these 198,342 recruits were accepted. The percentage accepted for all of Canada was seventy-six per cent., and the percentage of rejections twenty-four per cent.

Mrs. John Morrow, 160 1-2 Simcoe street has received a letter from her husband, Pte. J. Morrow, formerly of the 93rd Battalion who was officially reported suffering from concussion that he has left the base hospital and is getting along nicely in a rest hospital. He will be soon well enough to return to the front, he states in his letter.

BELLEVILLE, May 7.—Orders have been received to recruit the 15th Regiment up to five hundred for drill purposes. This regiment will not be connected with the C.E.F. or the C.D.F., and only entails drilling two or three nights per week. The purpose is to have a body of men trained to adequately protect those they are responsible for. All men between eighteen and sixty are eligible. It is intended to hold a meeting this week in order to organize.

PTE. A. E. FORDE.

Mr. William C. Forde, 419 George street has received the sad news that his only brother, Pte. Arthur E. Forde of the Queen's Royal West Surreys died on April 11th as the result of wounds received in action.

There was a welcome falling off in the list of Peterborough casualties to-day, and the only casualty for the Peterborough district that the Examiner has learned of to-day was that of Pte. C. B. Milligan, a Havelock boy, who is officially reported killed in action.

Mrs. J. S. Millett, wife of Pte. John Millett (No. 198480) formerly of the 93rd Battalion, but subsequently transferred to the 5th C.M.R., recently received official intimation (May 7th) that her husband was on April 9th admitted to the third Canadian General Hospital at Boulogne, France. Pte. Millett was suffering from a gunshot wound in his left leg.

To-day Mrs. Millett has received an official telegram from the officer in charge, to the effect that the wound has proved to be but slight, and that further particulars, as received, shall be forwarded to her.

The Kingston Standard says: It was officially announced at headquarters this morning that the camp at Barriefield would open on May 20th. The prospects are that the camp will be a good one this year, as there are 2,500 troops in the district and they should make a good foundation. Provided that the 252nd and 254th battalions are not sent overseas, the camp will compose of the following units: 252nd batt., Lindsay; 254th battalion, Belleville; No. 3 Special Service Company, A.M.C., detachments from the Army Service Corps and Ordnance Corps, Infantry reinforcements, C.D.F., Can. Engineers, and probably the depot batteries. It is not definitely known yet whether the depot batteries will be sent to Petawawa or will be kept in Barriefield Camp, but it is hoped at headquarters that they will be left here, as their presence would stimulate recruiting. If they are sent to Petawawa, the 72nd (Queen's) battery will be the only one to remain in Kingston, the other batteries going to Lindsay, Belleville, Brockville and Peterborough.

Voice of The People

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—Let Bridges, the British poet laureate, beware. Evidently a literary duel is on this trail, reaching out his hand to close his laurels. In yesterday's Examiner I read a poem—a dialogue between two dogs—containing, in several spasms of metrical limp, internal evidence that, at least, the dogs were mad. I may not be a good judge of poetry, but I submit that the modest local poet, who signs his metrical misdemeanor "Contented Under the Circumstances," is a dangerous rival of the laurelled bard of Britain. When it comes to "doggerel" the home poet measures quite up to Mr. Wm. Bridges' last published poem, and, in one sense, surpasses him, because the home bard gives a double dose of the doggerel element—in subject and style—while the Poet Laureate figures as a single-barrelled exponent of the rabies poetica.

Yours resignedly,
POIEMAPHOBIA.

Don't Spoil Your Hair By Washing It

When you wash your hair, be careful what you use. Don't use prepared shampoos or anything else, that contains too much alkali, for this is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is just plain mulsified cocoanut oil, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap, and beats anything else all to pieces. You can get this at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in, about a teaspoonful is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.

CHEESE BUYERS PASS UP THE BOARD TO-DAY

KINGSTON, May 9.—The uncertainty of the overseas market caused an unusual condition on the local cheese board to-day, when the buyers refused to even register a bid for the cheese boarded. L. W. Murphy, George Smith, Geo. Thompson, and John Gibson were on hand but none of them was ready to bid. Secretary Millar explained that market conditions were so uncertain and unsettled that the buyers were not anxious to buy. He hoped, however, they would express their views. They were unanimous in declining to buy. Four hundred and fifteen cheese.

Council of Business Men Mr. Hoover At Head, To Control Food Distribution

Bill To Be Revised in Committee as Result of Hearing—Agriculture Department Activities To Be Enlarged Along Present Lines—Need to Act Promptly.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 9.—Herbert C. Hoover, chairman of the Food Committee of the Council for National Defence, gave testimony before the House Committee on Agriculture that probably will result in redrafting the legislation conferring upon the President drastic powers for controlling the nation's food production and supply.

Although Mr. Hoover's place in the government food control programme has not been determined finally, there were indications that he would have direction of food exports and later of price fixing measures, if Congress passes the administration food bills.

The Department of Agriculture is fully equipped to enforce domestic relations contained in the legislation, but the problem of apportioning food among the Allies may be left largely to Mr. Hoover, as chairman of the Food Committee of the Council of National Defence. Under the bills the President would be empowered to name an agency to deal with price fixing. This, it is understood, if made necessary, probably would be left to the Defence Council, with Mr. Hoover supervising operation of the act.

FOR INTERNATIONAL COUNCIL

There have been suggestions of an international food commission, sitting in Washington, to handle American and allied food problems. If it is created the American member probably would be Mr. Hoover.

Secretary Houston announced that Canada was awaiting passage of the administration's bills to put into force similar regulations. American and Canadian food interests are so nearly identical, he said, that Canada feels it would be useless to proceed with measures until the United States decides on a definite course. Sir George Foster, Acting Prime Minister of Canada, who has been here for conferences with the British mission and with American officials, has assured Mr. Houston that the Ottawa government awaits word only from this country before going ahead along the same lines. A Canadian officials probably will be placed here permanently to advise his government how this government is meeting the situation.

FIRST OF BILLS REPORTED.

The first of the proposed series of bills was reported to the House by the Committee on Agriculture. This bill does not contain the more drastic powers for controlling prices which it is expected will ultimately be conferred upon the President, but it provides for greatly enlarging the activities of the Department of Agriculture and is the opening wedge for the important legislation which is expected to follow.

Mr. Hoover's testimony before the committee was given behind closed doors, and is to be revised by him before it is made public. Representative Lever, chairman of the committee authorized the publication of certain points made by Mr. Hoover, which indicate that the legislation will be rewritten.

Mr. Hoover strongly recommended the creation of a Board of Food Control to be in the hands of executive heads and employes wholly apart from present government employment and to be drawn from business men. This recommendation is regarded with great favour by many members of the Committee on Agriculture, and its adoption is expected.

Here are some of the things Mr. Hoover told the committee, as authorized by Mr. Lever:—

The bill now pending before the committee, proposing to confer upon the President the power to fix prices and otherwise control production, distribution and sale of food through governmental agencies, ought to be divided into two bills. One bill should provide for having the Department of Agriculture perform the functions now reposing in it, for the stimulation of food production and prevention of waste and the eradication of disease among animals consumed for food, the production and distribution of seed and similar activities. The other should deal with the broad question of controlling the distribution and sale of food and the fixing of prices, if prices are to be fixed.

NEED TO ACT PROMPTLY.

Mr. Hoover specially emphasized the need for taking hold of the food situation promptly. He urged this, not only because of his own belief that the situation here demands it, but also because the experience of European nations proved it. He said the European nations had not acted promptly upon the food situation at the beginning of the war, and that this omission had added greatly to the present serious food situation is practically all of the warring countries.

Mr. Hoover also spoke briefly concerning the use that should be made of cereals and the proportion that should be used in producing alcohol. Mr. Lever was asked if he said anything about absolute prohibition and said that he did not.

An absolutely basic price on non-perishables, such as wheat, corn, barley, rye, oats, pork products and beef products was advocated by Mr. Hoover. He said that in the European experience the fixing of a maximum price had broken down, because in spite of the fixed maximum price producers were able to find consumers and sell their products above the fixed maximum price. Mr. Lever said that Mr. Hoover did not commit himself upon the advisability or inadvisability of a guaranteed minimum price, so far as perishables, such as potatoes and similar vegetables, are concerned.

Yes, Builds You Up in 5 to 10 Days
Iron For the Blood and Phosphorus For the Nerves

Weak, anaemic, run-down, nervous persons will be glad to know that they can be restored back to their youth vigor by the discovery of this new drug called Bonised Phosphorus with Iron.

It is spring time now and every person needs something to build them up. Now you know as well as any doctor will tell you, the curse of spring time is lassitude. It takes many people to their grave, ruins health, makes you weak, runs you down and finally you are a physical wreck.

This new drug is a combination of iron and phosphorus. The iron acts directly on the blood while the phosphorus soothes and strengthens the nerves. You start today and take two or three tablets of Bonised Phosphorus with Iron after meals and in 5 to 10 days you will be 100 per cent stronger.

This drug does not act like other iron tonics you have taken, but instead, it does not blacken the teeth, upset the stomach or make you constipated. This new drug is sold by some druggist in your city. F. C. Weber dispenses it for Peterborough.

DRANK BOTTLE OF FLORIDA WATER

LINDSAY, May 8—A returned soldier, who has been employed on construction work, has been under Dr. White's care at the Ross Hospital suffering from the after effects of an over-indulgence in Florida water. The man, it is said, consumed a bottle of the liquid, and his condition was such that he was removed to the Ross Hospital for treatment. He was able to leave the institution yesterday, none the worse for the dose.

If Stomach Hurts Drink Hot Water

"If dyspepsia, sufferers from gas, wind of flatulence, stomach acidity or sourness, gastric catarrh, heartburn, etc., would take a teaspoonful of pure bisurated magnesia in half a glass of hot water immediately after eating, they would soon forget they were ever afflicted with stomach troubles, and doctors would have to look elsewhere for patients." In explanation of these words a well known New York Physician stated that most forms of stomach trouble are due to stomach acidity and fermentation of the food contents of the stomach combined with an insufficient blood supply to the stomach. Hot water increases the blood supply and bisurated magnesia instantly neutralizes the excessive stomach acid and stops food fermentation, the combination of the two, therefore, being marvelously successful and decidedly preferable to the use of artificial digestants, stimulants, or medicines for indigestion.

MONS ITINERANT CAT BROUGHT £476 AT SALES.

A cat from Mons, which is said to have been in ten war engagements, was sold for £76 5s at a "free gift" sale for the Red Cross at Aberdeen, Scotland, conducted by the Lord Provost.

The cat was rescued from a deserted farmhouse by Private Bradley, Scottish Rifles. It had previously been sold for sums totalling £400 at similar sales.

Was Anaemic FOR OVER A YEAR

Anaemia, or blood turning to water, is caused by the heart becoming deranged, and if the heart becomes weakened it cannot pump the blood as it should. As a result the blood becomes impoverished, and it loses its nourishing qualities. The face becomes pale and thin, and the lips bloodless. There is a weakness, tiredness and loss of weight.

When those suffering from thin or watery blood start taking Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills they can see a change from the outset.

Every dose introduces into the blood those vital elements necessary to make it rich and red. The pale cheeks take on the rosy hue of health, the weight increases, and the whole being thrills with a new life.

Mrs. R. J. Grey, Fredericton, N. B., writes: "When I was a girl working at general house work I overtaxed my strength and became completely run down. For over a year I was very bad with anaemia. A friend told me to try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills so I got a box and when it was done I decided to get six more When I had taken them I gained not only in strength, but in flesh and colour, and best of all was good health."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c. a box; three boxes for $1.25 at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

THE CRISIS

"... in the nation's honour, heed!
Acquit yourselves like men.
As workers on the land, do your duty with all your strength!"
—LLOYD GEORGE.

France, England and Italy in peace times depended, not upon America but on Russia, Roumania and Bulgaria for most of their bread stuffs. With these sources closed the crisis of the hour demands that we see that our soldiers and the Motherland are fed.

Everyone in Great Britain has been put on limited rations, meat is prohibited one day a week and the making of cakes and pastry has been stopped. Further restrictions are anticipated.

Bread has gone to 24c per four-pound loaf in England, for the first time since the Crimean War.

Lord Devonport, British Food Comptroller, purposes taking authority to search the houses of Great Britain to prevent food hoarding.

Forty million men are either killed, wounded or on active service.

Twenty million men and women are supporting them by service in other war activities.

One million tons of food-carrying ships have been torpedoed since February 1st, 1917.

Germany's hope for victory is in the starvation of Britain through the submarine.

Canada's sons will have died in vain if hunger compels the Motherland's surrender.

The land is waiting—the plough is ready—will we make the plough mightier than the sword?

Will we help the acres to save the flag?

World-Hunger Stares Us in the Face

David Lubin, representative of the United States to the International Institute of Agriculture—maintained by forty Governments—reports officially to Washington that the food grains of the world on March 31st, 1917, showed a shortage of [illegible] bushels below the amount necessary to feed the world until August, 1917. He declares it is beyond question that unless a greater acreage is put to crop in 1917 there will be WORLD-HUNGER before the 1918 crop is harvested.

The failure of the grain crop in the Argentine Republic, which is ordinarily a great grain-exporting nation, resulted in an embargo being placed, in March, 1917, upon the export of grains from that country to avert local famine.

The United States Department of Agriculture, in its official report, announces the condition of the fall wheat crop (which is two-thirds of their total wheat crop) on April 1st, 1917, to be the poorest ever recorded and predicts a yield of 244,000,000 bushels below the crop of 1918. The 1916 crop was poor. Even with favourable weather, the wheat crop of the United States is likely to be the smallest in thirty-five years, not more than 64% of the normal crop.

Under date of April the 10th, Ogden Armour, executive head of Armour & Company, one of the world's largest dealers in food products, stated that unless the United States wishes to walk deliberately into a catastrophe, the best brains of the country, under Government supervision, must immediately devise means of increasing and conserving food supplies. Armour urged the cultivation of every available acre. The food shortage, he said, is world-wide. European production is cut in half, the Argentine Republic has suffered droughts. Canada and the United States must wake up!

People are starving to-day in Belgium, in Serbia, in Poland, in Armenia, in many quarters of the globe.

Famine conditions are becoming more wide-spread every day.

On these alarming food conditions becoming known, President Wilson immediately appointed a Food Comptroller for the United States. He selected Herbert C. Hoover, to whom the world is indebted as Chairman of the International Belgium Relief Commission, for his personal direction of the distribution of food among the starving Belgians.

Mr. Hoover is already urging sacrifice and food restrictions, for, as he states, "the war will probably last another year and we shall have all we can do to supply the necessary food to carry our Allies through with their full fighting stamina."

The Problem for Ontario

1. The land under cultivation in Ontario in 1916 was 365,000 acres less than in 1915.
2. Consider how much LESS Ontario produced in 1916 than she raised in 1915:

	Year	Acres	Bushels	1916 DECREASE Acres	Bushels
Fall Wheat	1916	704,567	14,942,050
Fall Wheat	1915	671,185	24,737,011	106,315	9,794,961
Barley and Oats	1916	820,993	12,308,930
Barley and Oats	1915	852,815	19,883,120	24,432	7,564,190
Peas and Beans	1916	96,843	1,948,979
Peas and Beans	1915	126,943	2,048,040	31,406	799,870
Corn	1916	240,372	12,717,972
Corn	1915	309,778	21,760,496	51,445	9,043,424
Potatoes and Carrots	1916	120,528	7,403,467
Potatoes and Carrots	1915	173,984	12,907,023	34,411	5,858,594
Mangel-Wurzels and Turnips.	1916	49,706	9,756,015
Mangel-Wurzels and Turnips.	1915	50,799	25,256,328	8,906	15,500,308

Other crops show as critical a decline.

3. Reports from Ontario on the condition of fall wheat for 1917 are decidedly discouraging.
4. As there is an average of not more than one man on each hundred acres of farm land in Ontario, the prospects indicate even a still smaller acreage under cultivation in 1917 unless extra labour is supplied.

Is It Any Wonder that Food Production is the Greatest Problem the World Faces To-day?

Owing to destruction by submarines, ocean ships are scarce.

It is much easier to protect shipping between Canada and England than on the longer voyages from India or Australia.

One vessel can make twice as many trips from Canada to Britain as from India, and four times as many as from Australia.

Therefore, every ton of food stuffs grown in Canada is worth to the Motherland two tons grown in India or four tons grown in Australia.

Is It Any Wonder That the Call to Canada is So Urgent?

If this country does not raise a big crop this year, not only will the people of Canada suffer but the Motherland and her Allies will suffer and their military power will be weakened if not paralysed. Therefore, the right solution of the present war problem comes back to the farm, as to a foundation upon which our whole national and international structure must be built and maintained.

The farmers know that they are the last reserve, and that the soil in which crops are grown is the strategic ground on which wars are decided. To their care is entrusted the base of supplies.

To enable the farm to do the work two factors are essential. The first is Time. Whatever we are to do must be done at once. Nature waits for no man. The second is Labour. Many farmers cannot plant the acres they would because they cannot get the necessary help. Many are afraid to increase their acreage because they fear they would not be able to cultivate and harvest an unusual crop after they have raised it. If they are to do the work that is essential for them to do, the last can in each city, town and village must be mobilized at once.

Every man not on Active Service can help. In every city, town and village are men who, by their training on the farm, or by their present occupation, can readily adapt themselves to farm work. These can render no greater service to the Empire at the present time than by answering the call of the farm. Capable men and boys willing to learn should not allow their lack of farm experience to stand in the way.

Can the employer render a more signal service in this crisis than by encouraging these men to help the farmer to cultivate every available acre, and by making it easy for them to do?

Ontario's farm lands are waiting—the implements are ready—the equipment is complete—the farmer is willing—all he needs is labour.

So short is the world's food supply that without increased production many in Canada must go hungry, and even with enormously increased production we cannot expect cheap food. The world is waiting for our harvest.

If peace should be declared within a year, the food conditions will be no better, for the accumulated hunger of the Central Empires must be met. This was absorb a large part of the world's supply.

We do not know when this war shall cease. It is and less, its lengthening out has paralyzed the thought and conception of all men who thought about it and its possible time of conclusion. Three months—six months, we said; nine months, a year, we said; and yet two years and eight months have passed their long, dreary and sanguinary length and there is no man who can tell how long this gigantic struggle may yet last.

Lloyd George, in a letter addressed to farmers throughout the Empire, said:

"The line which the British Empire holds against the Germans is held by those who work the land as well as those who fight on land and sea. It if breaks at any point it breaks everywhere. In the face of the enemy the seamen of our Royal naval and mercantile marine and the soldiers gathered from every part of our Empire hold our line firmly. You workers on land must hold your part of our line as strongly. Every full day's labour you do helps to shorten the struggle and bring us nearer victory. Every idle day, all loitering, lengthens the struggle and makes defeat more possible. Therefore, in the nation's honour, heed! Acquit yourselves like men, and as workers on land do your duty with all your strength!"

So, for the honour of Canada's soldiers in France and for the glory of our New-born Nationhood—let it be said of Ontario's citizens that, in the hour of our great need, their response was worthy of their sons.

We owe a great debt to those who are fighting for us.

FOREIGN GUNS FOR AMERICAN FIGHTERS

Army that goes to France will be Equipped with Types used by Allies.

WASHINGTON, May 2.—Secretary of War Baker to-day authorized a formal announcement that he has approved the recommendation of a board of ordnance experts that two foreign types of mobile artillery be purchased for the American army which is to be sent to Northern France.

These field guns [illegible] writers are of a calibre much [illegible] than heretofore used in the United States army. They are the type now so effectively used by the French and British forces against the Hindenburg line.

At the same time Secretary Baker made a formal announcement that the department will purchase large numbers of Enfield rifles, now in use by British infantry and capable of rechambering for American ammunition. Several plants in this country are making these guns for the British Government and could turn out nearly a million a month.

The army will not abandon the new Springfield rifle, which is the standard here. The Rock Island and other arsenals are now turning out 1,200 of these guns every day and their facilities can be increased. There are about [illegible] Springfields and 285,000 modern Krag-Jorgensen rifles on hand for army use.

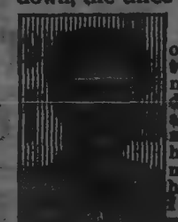
Health for Sick Women

For Forty Years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Has Been Woman's Most Reliable Medicine —Here is More Proof.

To women who are suffering from some form of woman's special ills, and have a constant fear of breaking down, the three following letters ought to bring hope:—

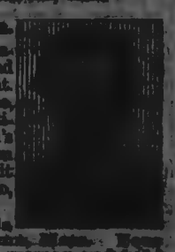


North Crandon, Wis.—"When I was 16 years old I got married and at 18 years I gave birth to twins and it left me with very poor health. I could not walk across the floor without having to sit down to rest and it was hard for me to keep about and do my work. I went to a doctor and he told me I had a displacement and ulcers, and would have to have an operation. This frightened me so much that I did not know what to do. Having heard of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I thought I would give it a trial and it made me as well as ever. I cannot say enough in favor of the Pinkham remedies."—Mrs. MAYME ASBACH, North Crandon, Wis.

Testimony from Oklahoma.

Lawton, Okla.—"When I began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I seemed to be good for nothing. I tired easily and had headaches much of the time and was irregular. I took it again before my little child was born and it did me a wonderful amount of good at that time. I never fail to recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to ailing women because it has done so much for me."—Mrs. A. L. McCLELLAND, 508 Have St., Lawton, Okla.

From a Grateful Massachusetts Woman.



Roxbury, Mass.—"I was suffering from inflammation and was examined by a physician who found that my trouble was caused by a displacement. My symptoms were bearing down pains, backache, and sluggish liver. I tried several kinds of medicine; then I was asked to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It has cured me and I am pleased to be in my usual good health by using it and highly recommend it."—Mrs. B. M. Ouzoon, 1 Haynes Park, Roxbury, Mass.

TO TELL FAMILY SECRETS

Little Gertrude had been very naughty, and had been severely slapped, first by nurse and then by mother with a promise of another dose from father when he came home.

She sat on the floor, her eyes filled with angry tears. Suddenly she rose with a determined look upon her little face and seized her hat.

"Where are you going?" asked the mother.

"Out to tell all the family secrets to the neighbours," said the child firmly.

SOAKS SERMON FIRST IN PRAYER

Sunday's Practice — Evangelist Challenges "Those Who Sneer and Call Me Vul-gaw"

Stamford, Conn., sent a big delegation to Billy Sunday's Tabernacle Thursday afternoon to hear his sermon "Teach Us to Pray." It was only one of many delegations which attended, among them those of the Westminster Presbyterian Church and the Mothers' Association of the Faith Mission. The total attendance was about 5,000.

When Billy started his sermon an intoxicated man on the sixth bench directly in front of the evangelist demanded attention This man persisted in talking with an usher, who tried in vain to quiet him

"Please let me do the talking, brother," said Billy, but the man heeded not, and then Sunday exclaimed:

"Bring him up here and give him a seat if he can't sit still there. I can't be fidgeted about like this."

The disturber, very unsteady on his feet, got up, aided by the usher, and staggered straight for the platform, but suddenly turned and went out.

"Never mind," the preacher finally advised his congregation. "He's just got too much booze. He needs salvation."

"If your prayers are not answered you are not right with God," the evangelist said, in beginning his sermon. "Find out what is the trouble.

"I think lots of churches pray for salvation, because they merely want to build up their own congregations. I don't believe God pays attention to such selfish prayers.

"One reason God doesn't bless some churches is that they are too narrow. Don't spend everything you make on yourself. Give some of it to God. Now, I don't object to seeing fine clothes, if you can afford them. I make no kick against wearing diamonds if you can afford them. I like to see people well-dressed and neat. But don't come to church dressed up in hundreds of dollars worth of clothes and then drop a nickle into the collection plate.

"Here are two things to guard against: Don't get chesty over success, or discouraged over a seeming defeat.

"More people are put out of business because they develop a swelled head than for any other reason.

"The raising of Lazarus from the dead to my mind is the finest example of prayer in the New Testament. If we pray right we would raise more men from sin.

"We haven't had a genuine revival since 1857. That revival started in the old John Street Methodist Church Oh, you Methodists! The Lord help you! You are trying to ape other society churches, and have lost your religion." The Presbyterians have taken your 'Amen.' And God doesn't seem to be able to get to the pocketbooks of your people.

"When you Methodists and Presbyterians are baptised they put the water on your head, and the water doesn't get to your pocketbooks. When you Baptists are baptised, you change your breeches so your pocketbooks are not baptised. I don't know where you women keep your purses. I know where Neil (Mrs. Sunday) keeps hers.

"That revival started with three men on their knees in New York. It spread to Boston and Chicago, and Cincinnati and Pittsburg and St. Louis and San Francisco, and it jumped the ocean to Europe and Australia and millions were converted. We have had little revivals—local revivals—since then, but then, but not a religious landslide.

"Every man who has helped to light up the dark places of the world has been a praying man. I never preach a sermon until I've soaked it in prayer. A man can read his prayers and go to heaven, or he may just say his prayer and go to hell.

"Some pray, 'Thy will be done,' then go out and do something to block God's will and keep His Kingdom from coming.

"A friend told me of meetings in which, when people were asked to name persons for whom they wished prayers made, an old lady always jumped up and asked prayers for 'John.' She was asked why she always was so anxious about him, and she said that all of the other members of her family were saved, and that from the time she first took John in her arms and kissed him she had prayed every day that he might be saved, too. She said she was sure that God would save him some day. She was rewarded when John Morrow, Circuit Court Judge, came down the aisle and accepted Jesus Christ as his personal Saviour.

"Go home and pray for your husband, or wife or sons or daughters, and we shall have a great revival."

Then there was further criticism of the Church and church members. "There has never been a time when men and women outside the Church were so hungry for the Gospel and there has never been a time when the Church was such a third rate amusement bureau," said the revivalist. There were cries of "Yes, yes," from the audience.

"I expect you can't remember the time when you heard your preacher mention hell," said Billy.

Speaking to those who he said may "sneer at me and call me vul-gaw," Mr. Sunday said:—"Bring your Bibles, you people of New York, and I will challenge you to try me by the gospel as it was spoken by the prophets in God's court and then if you can you may condemn me."

Bishop Luther B. Wilson opened the service with prayer. Dr. Lyman Abbott, sat near the stage and appeared to enjoy the sermon greatly. At the close he said he agreed in the main with Mr. Sunday's plea for a militant Christianity and was in hearty sympath with his work.

"We want world champions in the matter of religion as well as golf and tennis," Billy said. Drawing the lesson from the life of Micaiah, Mr. Sunday begged that people in New York first get a conviction and then take a stand for it. "Civilization in the future centres in the cities," he said. "If the lid is off and the cities are rotten that will curse the country."

He named the devils that must be licked, the devil of drink, of social exclusiveness, ease, vanity and dress.

"We want editors who won't shiver when a brewer blows his nose and sends for the advertising manager to see if he shall have an editorial written," Billy said.

"Come on," he shouted breaking off his sermon and praying. "Jesus, we are glad so many would come through this bad weather and we hope they will get the courage to live like you would have them. Who will come up here and take his stand? You Packard crowd, will you come? Oh, you Staten Island crowd! Was it Staten Island, Rhody? Yes, that's it! Come on, you Stater Island folks; come on, and oh, Jesus, stir this old city and help them all to come, so all hell will frown."

One of the first trail hitters had an unsteady walk. "I'm going to stick, Billy," he muttered. "You will come out all right, old man," Billy told him.

French Girl Tells Horrors of Deportation by the Germans.

PARIS, May 4.—Le Journal publishes an interview with a young girl from Lille who, deported a year ago for harvest work, has just been able to return to France.

The girl, who is of a well-to-do family, was summoned at night, taken to the station, where she was entrained with thirty other young women and 500 men in cattle vans. A German lieutenant told one of the girls she should be proud, as she was now attached to the Sixth Army Corps of the Bavarian Crown Prince. The deported workers were provided with papers showing they were attached to this corps. The voyagers had to submit to numerous sanitary visits which the German army doctors rendered obnoxious. During a certain period supplies were seized entirely, the deported persons being obliged to subsist for days on unripe fruit.

Iron discipline was maintained, the workers having to march in military step to and from work. Consequently there were frequent cases of sickness. One young woman, having succumbed to the hard life, the German arranged an elaborate funeral, at which the commanding officer made a touching oration in honour of the victim. The Germans insisted these deported people were paid workers. What these "wages" amounted to can be imagined, in view of the fact that earnings of the young girl in question for six months' labour amounted in all to $1.99.

HUNS' WORK IN ATHENS.

Falkenhausen Practically Has Offices at the Palace.

ATHENS, May 14. — Von Falkenhausen, former German military attache here, has been returning regularly through a neutral zone and as regularly received at the palace. This is too serious an allegation for me to bring without confirmation. The highest French military authorities here confirm it. Others appear from time to time and make mysterious journeys to the coast or the interior, returning later to Athens. One purpose these officers serve is to bring money from the German Empires to maintain the reservists' organization. Fifty thousand pounds sterling has just found its way into the coffers of the Reservists League.

It was distributed by Baghias, their chief. Much grumbling arose among the reservists, who are suspicious that their leaders are keeping too large a share for themselves. The reservists have become active, and are again patrolling the streets of Athens, especially after dark. They have hidden arms and ammunition. The military school was entered yesterday and 76,000 pounds of ammunition found. Rifles are known to be in the houses of the officers.

SAYS WE'LL BECOME CRANKS ON HOT WATER DRINKING

Hopes Every Man and Woman Adopts This Splendid Morning Habit

Why is man and woman, half the time, feeling nervous, despondent, worried; some days headachy, dull and unstrung; some days fully incapacitated, by illness?

If we all would practice inside-bathing, what a gratifying change would take place. Instead of thousands of half-sick, anaemic-looking souls with pasty, muddy complexions we should see crowds of happy, healthy, rosy-cheeked people everywhere. The reason is that the human system does not rid itself each day of all the waste which it accumulates under our present mode of living. For every ounce of food and drink taken into the system nearly an ounce of waste material must be carried out, else it ferments and forms ptomaine-like poisons which are absorbed into the blood.

Just as necessary as it is to clean the ashes from the furnace each day, before the fire will burn bright and hot, so we must each morning clear the inside organs of the previous day's accumulation of indigestible waste and body toxins. Men and women, whether sick or well, are advised to drink each morning, before breakfast, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, as a harmless means of washing out of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels the indigestible material, waste, sour bile and toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

Millions of people who had their turn at constipation, bilious attacks, acid stomach, nervous days and sleepless nights have become real cranks about the morning inside-bath. A quarter pound of limestone phosphate will not cost much at the drug store, but is sufficient to demonstrate to anyone, its cleansing, sweetening and freshening effect upon the system.

THE CANADIANS WIN BACK SOME GROUND

Are Making Big Effort To Regain Fresnoy

Canadians Recapture Part Of Lost Ground Around Fresnoy

Issue at That Point is Not Yet Decided and Although Maple Leaf Troops Were Driven Out by a Tremendous Assault Yesterday They Are Counter-attacking Fiercely--Night Attack Was Successful--French Inflict Staggering Losses on Enemy in Repulsing Counter Attacks.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, May 9. — Some of the ground around Fresnoy which the Canadians were compelled to yield yesterday morning to tremendous German attacks was won back by the Canadians to-day. "Around Fresnoy hostile forces concentrated for an attack to the north were dispersed by our artillery," the British Commander-in-Chief reported. "To the west we improved our position, and a night counter attack regained us a portion of the ground lost yesterday morning.

"At night slightly northeast of Hargicourt we advanced our positions. Northeast of Gavrelle village yesterday evening the enemy attacked but the assault was broken up by our barrage and machine-gun fire, being completely repulsed. East of Armentieres, early this morning, an enemy raiding party was driven off."

AMSTERDAM, May 9.—Speculation as to what Imperial Chancellor Von Bethmann-Hollweg may have to say about Germany's war aims in his forthcoming speech, is resulting in widespread demand for less "secret diplomacy" in Germany's administrations, according to German newspapers received here to-day.

LONDON, May 9.—Battle front despatches to-day indicated the issue at Fresnoy had by no means been decided. The Canadians are endeavouring by violent artillery fire and repeated infantry assaults, to shake the German grip on the village.

LONDON, May 9.—Bullecourt, encircled on three sides by Australian troops, was about to fall to-day to the British battering ram against the so-called German "Oppy line," running from around Oppy to Queant. Penetration of the German positions at Bullecourt, it was believed here, would imperil the German front on the Oppy line and possibly force a retreat for its entire distance. In the belief of military experts it might forecast the abandonment to the north of the coal region around Lens. The Bullecourt operations were held to-day to be of more importance than those around Fresnoy. The recapture of Fresnoy by the Germans, however, is a setback to the British aim at circling the end of the Oppy line.

PARIS (French Official), May 9.—Staggering losses were inflicted on repeated assaulting waves of Germans desperately attempting to retake French positions. All attacks failed. "Around Chemin des Dames," the statement said, "the Germans attacked the French positions repeatedly in force, but without success, sustaining heavy losses. A powerful effort was made against the Plateau Californie, where the assaulting waves succeeded each other continually, although mowed down by machine guns and our curtain of fire. Wherever they gained a footing they were thrown back by gun fire and the bayonet, and they left the field strewn with their dead.

"French forces attacked northeast of Chevreux and took the first line of German trenches over a front of three-quarters of a mile, with 160 prisoners."

HAVE RECOVERED GROUND AT FRESNOY.

LONDON, 5 p.m.—Bulletin—May 9.—At this hour the latest reports from Flanders indicate that by unprecedented bravery Canadian troops have regained from the Germans most of the ground in the neighbourhood of Fresnoy, lost by German gas attacks yesterday. This is despite all German official reports to the contrary. Despatches indicate that Canadians are showing their German antagonists the greatest stamina and fighting of the whole war.

49,000 GERMANS CAPTURED SINCE APRIL 1ST.

LONDON, May 9.—Since April 1, the British forces have captured more than twenty thousand German prisoners and taken 257 guns, 227 trench mortars and 470 machine guns, Chancellor of the Exchequer Bonar Law announced in the House of Commons to-day.

FRENCH HAVE TAKEN 29,000.

A recent announcement by the French War Office asserted that the French drive since April 16 had resulted in the capture of 29,000 Germans. The total since April 1 in the Franco-British offensive therefore has now reached 49,000 men. The only other operations in the war which have resulted in such huge captures of men were those in which Von Hindenburg was engaged in the Masurian swamps early in the war.

CASUALTIES LESS THAN ON THE SOMME.

The Chancellor said the British casualties in Field Marshal Haig's recent offensive had been from 50 to 75 per cent. less than those suffered by British troops along the Somme earlier in the war.

In moving the new war credit for two and a half billion dollars, Bonar Law said that Britain's war expenses were now $34,580,000 daily.

"Our advances to our Allies and to our Dominions now average two million pounds daily." Bonar Law said that America, "with the promptitude for which we cannot be too grateful, is considerably helping us to bear our financial burden."

NEW YORK, May 9. — Flying the Stars and Stripes, the first seized German steamer to be put in United States service sailed from an American port to-day, en route to Europe with supplies for our allies. It was seized with other interned German steamers here when war was declared. The ship was recognized as it steamed and was greeted with scores of sirens.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN THE FIELD, May 9.—Tremendous attacks of massed forces, violent artillery fire on both sides, doggedly stubborn resistance and equally determined attack, marked the fighting all last night and early to-day around Bullecourt and Gavrelle. One such attack was thus repelled by the British forces around the Gavrelle wind-mill last night. It was preceded by a terrific German bombardment of the position. Then came the assaulting lines. To them the British field guns and machine guns poured a typhoon of fire. The Germans wavered and retired. British counter attacks following soon after and directed west of the village strengthened the British line. The fighting front now runs just adjacent to the western limits of Fresnoy. Throughout last night the Germans showed the most intense nervousness, particularly around Bullecourt. Prussian artillery was exceedingly active during the night between the Cojeul River and Monchy, as well as at intervals along the Scarpe River front. At the time this is written the British have just succeeded in taking a trench west of Meinhoff Farm.

PARIS, May 9.—Uncle Sam's first armed force for the front marched through the streets of Paris to-day, acclaimed amid the wildest demonstration the city has witnessed in years. Sixty men clad in khaki armed with rifles and bearing the United States flag were in the contingent. They were the first detachments of the newly created munitions transport branch of the American Ambulance Corps. The police were forced to clear away through the cheering Parisians for the sixty Americans.

COLLEGIATE CADETS MAKE GOOD SHOWING AT THEIR INSPECTION

Are Congratulated by Lt.-Col. Gillespie, Cadet Inspector For No. 3 Military District—Over 275 Former Members Are on Active Service

"A" COMPANY WINS CUP

The cadet corps of the Peterborough Collegiate Institute made a splendid showing in their annual inspection in Central Park yesterday afternoon, when, under the critical eye of Lieut. Colonel Gillespie of Kingston the cadet inspector for No. 3 Military District they drilled for two hours. Lieut.-Col. Walker of the 57th Regiment was with Col Gillespie for the greater part of the inspection.

The Collegiate battalion which has an honour roll of over 275 former members on active service with the Canadian forces turned out 118 strong yesterday afternoon, 46 other members who are doing farm work or employed on munitions were absent on leave. The corps was under the command of Battalion Commander Douglas Caniff and the establishment included a splendid bugle band and an efficient signal section. Their drill was smartly carried out and the march-past was especially well done, the marching of the youngsters being very steady throughout.

At the close of the inspection Lieut. Col. Gillespie congratulated the corps upon their work which had on the whole been very satisfactory and he would be pleased to report to that effect. He was not going to say that the efficiency of the corps was up to the very high standard of other years because on account of the bad weather and the fact that the date of the inspection was earlier than last year, the battalion had not had the same opportunity to make progress. However, he was sure that with ten days more drill they would have done even better than in other years. The bugle band was an excellent one, in fact there was, in his opinion, only one better in the whole district and that was in Kingston. The signal section he found was very efficient and the company commanders had done excellent work, the only criticism being that the platoon commanders were weak in their words of command.

Lieut.-Col. Gillespie congratulated the corps upon having made such a splendid showing in supplying men for the overseas forces. The cadets throughout Canada had done grand work in this respect. In No. 3 Military District out of the seventy cadet battalions, 3,300 men had gone overseas and 700 cadet organizations in the Dominion had supplied 35,000

Although the nature of his wounds is not definitely known it is thought that they are not serious. Sergt. Batterson's home was formerly at 524 Chamberlain street, but his wife now resides in England. He had been at the front for a very long period.

Mr. McCoy, Roger Street, East City has received the following letter from his son, Pte. Joe McCoy.

France, April 15

Dear Father and Mother,—Just a few lines to let you know I received your most kind and welcome letters all O.K., and was very pleased to hear from home again. I got your papers and parcel alright too, and the other one can come as quick as it likes.

I saw the sight of my life last Monday morning up here in the last big scrap. We had sometime, it would make one stop and gaze in wonder it such a beautiful sight and yet so terrible, but the Canadians have made another good name for themselves and I am proud to think I was one of those who took part in it. I can't tell you very much about it here, but watch the paper for the fight the Canadians had on April 9th, and you will see all about it. We made over a mile of an advance on about a twelve mile front and now we cannot find old Frita anywhere for he is going back just as fast as he can go and I don't think he has much notion of stopping either. I guess it will be our last big fight for a while, but I would not take a good deal and miss the experience I had the other morning. Well it will soon be warm weather over here now and it will be alright, but if this keeps up maybe we won't have to stay here to enjoy it. Well I think I will close now so good-bye and God bless you all. Love to all.

Your loving son,

JOE

Mrs. Toms, 508 Chamberlen street, whose husband, Pte. E. Toms, formerly of the 93rd Battalion, was wounded at Vimy Ridge, has received a letter from her son, Gunner W. A. Toms, who enlisted here with the 33rd Battery and has been in France for a long period. Writing on April 14th he says in part:

Mother, I have some news for you, but you will likely hear sooner than my letter. Dad has been wounded. I think it was on the 9th, in the morning. I just happened to see his bunch and when I noticed they were Mat boys I asked for Dad and one of them told me he had been wounded. They said that he walked down the trenches, so let us pray that poor Dad is not serious. In a way, mother, I am glad it won't be on my mind now. I think he has done his bit anyway, mother. I do hope that he won't have to come back to the line again.

Well mother, we are having rather bad weather out here at present. It is snowing fast. They say "Sunny France," but I fail to see it sunny. I guess it won't last much longer and we will be back home next Christmas.

Mrs. Jas. Gray, Wolsley street, has received the following letter from her son, Sergt. Geo. A. Gray, Canadian Artillery, who was recently reported wounded:

Dear Mother,—Just a few lines to let you know I was wounded on the evening of the 18th and am in hospital at the base, but do not worry, mother, for it is not very serious. Am wounded in the thigh with a piece of shell. Have been under the X-ray and a piece is still in so will have to go under an operation. I have not much pain and am getting good care. I saw Fraser just a couple of hours before it happened, but guess he does not know yet. Was on my horse and the shell burst beside me. The horse was also cut up. I am writing this in bed, a real bed, just imagine—seems too good to be true.

Will write again soon and tell you where I am, so do not worry dear, because I sure am lucky I am living. You can tell the girls, as I won't trouble writing to all of them just now.

Your loving son,

GEORGE.

Mrs. S. Mann Lafayette avenue, has received the following letter in regard to the death of her son, Pte. Percy Mann, formerly of the 93rd Battalion:

In the Field, April 13.

Dear Madam,—It is with the deepest regret that I have to inform you of the death of your son, 195166 Pte. P. Mann, who was machine gunner in my section, and whose death took place during the brilliant advance of the Canadians.

Your son, who was greatly popular with all his comrades, was also a fine soldier and always cheery.

I saw him shortly before he was hit by fragments of a shell, which immediately killed him, and I personally saw him buried in a small cemetery which was made at the rear of our trench, where others of his comrades sleep.

At these times nothing I can say can alleviate your grief, but we must remember the words of our Maker: "No greater love hath a man than that he lay down his life for his friend, and we must pray that in the future we shall have a happy re-union with those we love so dear.

Again tendering you my most sincere sympathy.

Yours faithfully,

Lieut. Lawrance F. Webster,
5th C.M.R. Bn Canadians.

MORE VIVID STORIES OF CANADIAN VICTORY

Warsaw Members of the 93rd Battalion Who Formed a Machine Gun Crew With the 5th C. M. R. Tell of the Fighting at Vimy Ridge.

TWO WERE WOUNDED

WARSAW, May 8.—The following letters written since Vimy Ridge will no doubt be of great interest to residents of this neighbourhood, to whom the writers are familiar. The action referred to was that of April 9th, at Vimy Ridge, perhaps the greatest in which Canadians have yet taken part. The local boys, Ptes. Vivian Jackson, Chas. Morrison, Verne Selkirk, and Lance Corp. Clayton Selkirk comprised the crew of a machine gun in the Machine Gun Section of the 5th Canadian Mounted Rifles, all going over with the 93rd Battalion:

Temple Hill Road Hospital,
Birkenhead, Chestershire, Eng.

My Dearest Mother,—I don't know whether you got the news about me being wounded, or not. Frits got one on me this time. He is very generous with his shrapnel and likes everyone to have a piece.

I got two wounds, one in the left arm and another in the right thigh. The latter has been painful and I think there is still shrapnel in the flesh. Well, dear mother, we had some time at Vimy Ridge. I suppose you read about it in the paper. Gee, it was some day to spend a Bank holiday. It rained and snowed to beat the band and you could hardly hear yourself speak for the rattle of the machine guns and our artillery. When we got to the top of Vimy we started to dig ourselves in. Clate Morrison and myself beat it for a shell hole a little piece in front. We were mighty near frozen, having been on the move all night. Well, we stayed in the shell hole for a while, and along came our Sergeant, who said: "Well, boys, how would a wee drop go?". We said "fine"; so he gave us a shot of rum out of his water bottle. It put new life into us. Well, after a short while we moved further over the ridge and came to our final objective—one of Frita's trenches. There we started to dig funk holes in the side for a little cover from shrapnel. We had not been in the trench five minutes when he started to put over some of his blooming stuff. Say, there were casualties in no time. He could drop his shells right in the middle of the trench.

Third Shell Got Him.

Well, dear mother, it was the third shell he put over that got me. I was working away at my funk hole when bang went the shell. Gee, I was dazed for a minute or so. I did not know what was wrong. I stood up and then I began to feel something warm run down my arm and leg. I found my coat sleeve was torn in three places. Morrison was not three feet from me, but he escaped. As for Clate, I don't know where he went to. I inquired from Morrison if he had seen him. Well, I did not stay there very long. I beat it for the stretcher bearers.

TO FORM CLASSES OF INSTRUCTION FOR RETURNED MEN

First Meeting Will Be Held on Thursday Night—Principal Clarke Has Consented to Take Charge of the Classes

NO FEES REQUIRED

It has come about that in the enquiry and effort to find places and positions for men returned from service and partially disabled, especially in cases of those who are prevented from taking up their regular occupations, that certain requirements are needful. For instance in the matter of ability to handle things which may be roughly defined as calling for some education. Not necessarily elaborate but rather fundamental and as covering ordinary requirements.

To endeavour to supply a means whereby men could refresh some knowledge in the plainer forms of education the Board of Education was appealed to, and have assented to forming classes. The first meeting will be held at the old Collegiate building, on Murray street, east of St. Paul's church, on Thursday evening, 10th inst. Mr. Clarke, principal of the King Edward school has consented to take charge of the classes of instruction. Those who wish to take advantage of the opportunity are asked to come on Thursday night, to the preliminary meeting. There the matter will be blocked out and arranged and an idea taken of the best course of study to adopt and the one likely to meet the needs of the situation.

Those who wish to participate are urged to attend. If no interest is shown then the Board will be quite justified in assuming that there is not general, or even particular wish for assistance. The help will be most cheerfully given. No coers. No fees. Only a desire to be helpful. Come on Thursday night.

ALL-ROUND CANADIANS.

Canadians show the way in this war by stern and winning and resourceful fighting. That does not comprise the sum of what Canadians do abroad. Attention is drawn to the fact that the Canadian "eye-witness," Mr. Stewart Lyon, is a real thing, too. He is on the spot doing some good sprinting to keep up with the rapid advance of the Canadians into the fighting zone—so close that there is the smell of burnt powder on his despatches. His news is fresh from the trenches and the fighting scenes, as witness his "scoop" scored over the story of the Canadian capture of Fresnoy. His record of this brilliant achievement was in print in Canada several hours ahead of both the official and all the press agency reports. It is described by the Globe as one of the most notable "beats" in newspaperdom in the war.

Though Stewart Lyon is a representative of the Canadian Press, he is, in the sense of making a newspaper man, a product of the Globe, with which he was long associated, and whose managing editorship he resigned, or intermitted, to undertake the excellent work he is now doing in keeping the cables hot with the story of Canadian valour and success. The Globe as well as Canadians has reason to be proud of Stewart Lyon, and his work in France; and it seems to have the knack of turning out war story "beaters." It was a representative of The Globe in the South African war—Mr. C. F. Hamilton (now Major Hamilton, representing the Toronto News at Ottawa) who got the news of the battle of Paarduberg into the columns of the Globe hours ahead of any other newspaper on this continent or in Britain—giving the news of Canadians winning the conclusive victory of the war.

PRESERVATION AND PRODUCTION.

At the request of Mr. E. P. Heaton, Provincial Fire Marshal, The Examiner prints on this page an article on the prevention of destruction of field products by fire. This appeal is very timely. It synchronises with the insistent appeal that comes to us all to help the empire—in its period of stress—by increased production of food. Virtually, saving is an equivalent of production, so that we produce when we avoid waste of money or food, or any of our resources that can be turned to the advantage of helping win this awful war.

We can all well remember that at the beginning of the year there were numerous barns destroyed by fire, and their valuable contents destroyed. The loss as reported to the Fire Marshal, amounted to more than three million dollars, the money value at the time of three million bushels of wheat. We know in Peterborough what great ravages a fire made last December in the destruction of cereal food and food material, and food production, much, if not the major part, intended for the use of our armies, and those of our allies.

The lesson and the reproach of these losses lie in the fact asserted by the Fire Marshal, that probably one-half of these losses were due to the neglect of precautions, involving only a little care and thought. The popular idea jumped at the conclusion that these fires were caused by enemy incendiaries, but there is said to be evidence that spontaneous combustion, resulting from storing imperfectly cured crops, was a large factor in the large loss.

The appeal of Mr. Heaton is different from the average criticism, in that it suggests a remedy which can be seen by reference to his article on this page.

It is probable that nine-tenths of the accidents, fires, etc., are caused by carelessness and lack of ordinary precautions. This is the time when we should take heed to these things—a duty we not only owe to ourselves, but to our country and empire. How great is the necessity and how great the injury from neglect to produce and avoid waste, is shown by the fact that the British government is preparing an order, providing that food waste of any kind shall be a punishable offence. We don't in comparison know anything about food shortage here, and many of us do not realise the necessity of strict economy in the use of what is produced, as well as the necessity of producing more.

THE BRITISH WAY.

It is understod that the British government has adopted the policy of the state purchase of the liquor trade. For a long time Great Britain has been more or less severely criticised for her failure to deal with the drink evil as darstically as was demanded by the gratuitons dispensers of advice. In spite of the King's example, and in spite of the recognised truth of Lloyd George's declaration that "alcohol is Britain's greatest foe," it was hard to get action taken. John Bull is conservative in his character, and it takes him a long time to see the necessity of change, and sometimes a longer time to make it.

The liquor traffic has had a long hold on the British people, and still has a strong hold upon them. The drink habit is more complicated there than elsewhere. Beer is a national beverage, and millions take it as others take tea as a part of their meals; so that legal interference would involve the objection of the injustice and a good deal of the futility of laws of a sumptuary character.

Public men have deferred to public sentiment and, while hesitating to take the extreme step of committing the enormity of "robbing a poor man of his beer"—have been paving the way to making such a step easy, or easier, by issuing appeals to patriotism, and warnings of the necessity of dealing in some effective way with the evil of the traffic, by assuming control.

Circumstances and conditions in the matter of food supply, have been a schooling for the people as to the unwisdom of permitting so great waste of food as is involved in the manufacture of liquor. And it appears that the time is ripe—public opinion prepared, or, at least resigned—to the taking of advance measures.

Britain is to do this in the British way, which involves British fair play. An immense sum of money has been invested in the traffic, and it legally deserves protection, inasmuch as legislation made the expenditure legitimate—according to law. If the British government proposes to purchase the interests of the liquor traffic, it is acting according to precedent, the precedent of the abolition of slavery. That was not accomplished by autocratic decree but in the British way. Slavery had been, if not legalised, tolerated. Public opinion had been influenced by the Reform Bill of 1832, and the first parliament under it attacked hoary evils, among them slavery, which was abolished forever. The British showed their sincerity in reform—by paying for it. In spite of the fact that in Britain no slaves were held, parliament voted the huge sum (at that time, 1833) of 20 million pounds, 100 million dollars, to compensate owners in the colonies for the loss of their manumitted slaves.

Confiscation was then, as it is now, repugnant to British ideas, and the reputed action of the government in respect of the liquor trade, is logical, and, as it is hoped results will show, wise. No injustice will have been done investors; and the assumption of government control of the trade will permit of regulation in the public interest—in the way of helping the war, by using the products of distilleries for necessary mechanical and munitions purposes, and in preserving the national, physical energy from the deteriorating effects of intemperate use of strong drinks.

We in Canada can't consistently throw stones at the British. We in Canada have not come to the point of conserving the national strength—of our manhood—and utilising our resources by withdrawing them from the waste of conversion into strong drink. It is true we have prohibition "in spots," but the Dominion government has not measured up to the greatness of wiping it out as a whole, even as a war measure. The government doesn't do much in the direction of making available for fighting, the fit members of the Canadian population, but it virtually does all it can do in recruiting the ranks of the unfit, by permitting the operation of the machinery of physical and moral deterioration.

NOICE

The first sitting of the Court of Revision for the Township of OTONABEE will be held at the Town Hall, Keene, on Thursday, May 31st, 1917, at 10 o'clock a.m. All parties having business are requested to attend. Dated at Keene, this fifth day of May, 1917.—J. M. Drummond, Township Clerk. 3dlw

Preservation From Destruction A Form of Increasing Production

The fire waste of the Province of Ontario for the first three months of 1917, as shown by reports to the Fire Marshal, amounts to $3,321,931. In 1916, it amounted in round figures to $12,000,000, and if the waste is not stopped, the year 1917 threatens to be as disastrous as its predecessor.

The unfortunate part of the whole matter is that the waste comes largely from the destruction of field products in barns, elevators and warehouses, or in canning factories, cereal mills, and other places where the raw product is being turned into food for our own needs and for the armies of the Allies.

It is equally true that many fires, probably one-half of them, could be avoided by a little care and thought. Surely as a people we should be ready and willing to take up this Empire call and preserve what we produce.

By way of example, reference is made to barn fires. Last year in Ontario alone, over 600 barns were destroyed, involving a loss of more than one million dollars ($1,000,000), of which six hundred thousand dollars ($600,000), was on produce, implements and live stock. If by a little care we can save one-half this loss, we should be doing the equivalent of that much extra production, and who is there among us who is not prepared to do his "bit" on this line?

Three very simple suggestions are thrown out which if adopted will go a long way to accomplish the result:

1. Install lightning rods on barns and save fires from lightning. The Department of Agriculture, Parliament Buildings, Toronto, will furnish any one with a pamphlet showing how the rods should be made and erected. It is an absolute fact that barns properly rodded and grounded are not liable to be struck by lightning.

2. The crops should not be put in until it is certain they have been properly cured. Evidence is daily accumulating that the heavy clover crops of last year did not receive full and proper care and resulted in the firing of barns from spontaneous combustion. Many doubt this this theory but recognition of the cause is growing very rapidly.

3. Ventilate the barn so that gases caused by the fermentation of imperfectly cured crops will be successfully carried off. In an unventilated barn to keep the doors and windows closed after harvest, and then admit air by the opening of the doors, windows, or other apertures during the warm fall weather, is to invite the fire fiend to get in his work.

Surely if these three simple suggestions will accomplish any saving, the call of the Empire's needs should be incentive enough to giving them a fair trial.

Fire is always the enemy of the human race, but in wartime it is a traitor in camp, a foe in the trenches. Not only is the waste of food by fire an unmitigated calamity, but any fire waste is just that much of a burden at a time when the last straw may break the camel's back.

MEMORIES

By Patrick MacGill, Author of "The Great Push," etc.

We're out't for duration now and do not care a cuss;
There's beer to spare at dinner time and afters now for us;
But if our buttles still were out in Flanders raisin' Cain,
We'd weather through with them we knew on bully-beef again;
The old sweats—
The grub it was skimp with the ole sweats,
But if rashuns was small 'twas the same for us all,
Same for the 'ole of the ole sweats.

(From Soldier Songs).

Eamon Fadagh, my Irish mate, placed his glass on the counter and lit a cigarette.

"Who would think that it was six months ago!" he remarked. "Six months. Time does fly here. It went damned slow out in France — at times."

"God, I'll never forget the night before the charge," Eamon continued. "You mind the champagne in the billet at Rentoul, the singin' and the fun. But we were afraid—a bit—and we did our best to hide our funk. Poor old Kore sittin' on the floor, his fingers strummin' on the boards and his face—God, it was white. I felt sorry for him, for every one of us. I thought of the nights to come when good beer would go the rounds of many a cafe and maybe none of us there to drink it. Anyway, we'll never drink better beer with better men again."

Eamon paused for a second and flicked the ash from his cigarette. I recollected the attack on the High Wood in the Somme when I found Eamon lying in a shell-hole near the German lines with a bullet wound in his lung. That he survived it was a miracle.

"They were such grand boys, thim English mates of ours," said Eamon. "You know I never had any leaning towards them in civil life. They were Sassenach, I was Irish — you know yourself. I was brought up to distrust them. Us Irish people don't make friends quick at all. But when I met thim boys out in France, when I came to know thim, I couldn't do enough for thim. And God! they were all children. If they grew a heavy moustache and smoked pipes it might have been different. Just to think of thim sittin' down in an estaminet drinking beer! A robin could drink more. Babies, that is what they were. And poor Kore! He used to put his uniform on so neat; his puttees with the proper curve, his trousers creased, his tunic brushed. One of the best and he's dead."

Eamon had a blind faith in all his friends, the "old sweats" who fought with him on many a field of death; he extolled them with pride and championed them with angry vehemence. What pride was his when complying with their many childish caprices, what genuine love, what disinterested self-sacrifice!

"I mind the morning of the charge," Eamon continued. "Or was it the night afore? One lost all count of time. . . Kore came down the stairs of the billet and he stood beside me at the door.

"I'm glad you're coming up with us, Eamon," he says. "It's nice to be goin' across with you."

"But I'm going with section 3," I says to him. The Sergeant has detailed me for No. 5."

"You're not coming with us then, Eamon," he says. God! I can hear him now, and there was such a look in his eyes. I could have caught him in my arms at that moment, just as if he'd been a child, and kissed him."

"I saw him again in the trench just before we crossed the top. 'Twas the last time. He was sitting all alone in a corner of the bay, his head in his hands and his elbows on his knees.

"How goes it, Kore?" I asked.

He looked up and his eyes were wet. One could see that he was thinkin'. The shells were bursting all around the sector and the bullets were rippin' the sandbags.

"You must buck up, Kore," I says. "It'll be all right. Are you cold?"

"He shivered and did not answer. I took out my water bottle, drew the cork and put it to his lips.

"Have a good pull," I says.

He had a good pull, and I couldn't help laughin' at him the way he coughed and spluttered. The bottle had rum in it, ot water! He stopped coughin' and a new light came into his eyes.

"You're better now?" I asked.

"Oh, God, yes!" he says. "That was good stuff."

He got quite cheery, lit a cigarette and began talkin and laughin' just the same as if he was at home in England. That was the last I saw of poor Kore. About twenty minutes afterwards I copped my own packet.

"And the Corporal, too," said Eamon, alluding to the N.C.O. who had charge of the section. "His pride in the regiment, in his officers, in his stripes. Every stripe increased the width of his chest. And his songs and recitations always about England and her glory. I never met a man so honest in his beliefs, so full of conviction. I would like to see him again. He was one of the best."

Eamon drained his glass of beer and rose to his feet. The action was strained; he no longer had the easy movements of six months ago. A wound in the lung makes slow recovery.

"It's tellin' on me, matey," he muttered. "I'm not as I used to be. The man who fired at me almost sent me West." I don't feel any malice against the begger. What else could he do? One has got to kill or be killed."

"What would you do if you met the German who fired at you," I asked. Suppose he came in here now."

"He'll not come in here," said Eamon. "The High Wood was pretty well cleaned, and no doubt the man's dead. But if he did come in."

Eamon paused and became thoughtful. "Well, if he did come in," he said after a short silence, "I'd stand him a drink seein' that it had been our pay day to-day."

Will Lecture To The Engineers' Club

Mr. J. A. Shaw, of Montreal, Chief Electrical Engineer of the C.P.R., will deliver a lecture on the Electrification of Steam Railways before the Engineers Club of Peterborough on Friday evening, May 11th, at the Oriental Hotel. This lecture has been delivered by Mr. Shaw before the Canadian Railway Club of Montreal, and on other occasions. It covers a wonderful development in transportation on this continent, showing the great advantages gained by the roads that have adopted electricity. The paper will be illustrated by lantern slides secured from the General Electric Company of Schenectady, N. Y., for the purpose.

The paper should be of great interest to every member of the club. Any non-members desirous of hearing this paper may do so by applying to any member, or to the Acting Secretary, Mr. C. B. Sisson, 453 Gilmour street, so that sufficient accommodation can be arranged. The lecture will be preceded by a dinner at the Oriental at 6.45 p.m. at 50 cents per head.

Booth Memorial Training College

The Booth Memorial Training College for Officers of the Salvation Army for Canada East, has been turned over to the military authorities by the Salvation Army for soldiers who have lost limbs in the war.

It is now being fixed up to suit the purpose. In another building belonging to the Army there will be manufactured artificial limbs for the soldiers on the same property. This will save the authorities considerable expense in this respect.

Miss Florence Whittaker of Chicago, formerly a chorus girl, and now a social missionary, is anxious to establish a home for chorus girls in every city where musical shows have much of a run.

Collegiate Cadets Make Good Showing

In conclusion Lieut.-Col. Gillespie announced that A company had been considered as having made the best showing and was therefore entitled to the Clarton Cup, which he presented to Captain Hugh Austin of the winning company.

Lieut.-Col. Walker congratulated the cadets and Capt. C. E. Jamieson, their instructor, on the showing they had made which had been most creditable throughout. The only fault was, as Lieut.-Col. Gillespie had pointed out, that some of the officers did not give their commands with sufficient loudness and clearness. This, perhaps, was accounted for by the fact that the officers were at an age when they suffered from self-consciousness. In order to make efficient officers they must overcome that feeling.

Lieut.-Col. Walker emphasized the value of drill and of physical culture. It was becoming more and more appreciated that educating the mind without developing a sound body was useless.

Any of the cadets who were old enough and could pass the physical examination would be welcomed in the ranks of the C.D.F., the speaker remarked in conclusion.

After three hearty cheers for the inspecting officer the battalion was dismissed and another annual inspection had passed into history.

Council Decrease Garbage Collections

Mr. E. K. Graham appeared before the committee of the Whole Council last evening in connection with the garbage contract. Mr. Graham claimed he was unable to continue the work under the present contract owing to his inability to secure men. He was willing to continue the collection of garbage for an additional sum of $500.

A motion to grant Mr. Graham the extra amount was lost.

It was moved by Ald. Saunders and seconded by Ald. Smith, that the garbage, ashes and refuse be placed out to the street line and that one collection a week be made in the outlying districts and two collections in the central districts. The districts are to be defined by Sanitary Inspector Stapleton.

A by-law will be prepared to confirm the proposed change provided that Mr. Graham and his bondsmen agree to the changes.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

CONSCRIPTION WILL NOT WORRY GIANTS

Only Ten Men of McGraw's List Are Subject to Be Drafted and Can Be Replaced

WOULD BE BAD FOR YANKS

Eight or Nine Players Might be taken from Donovanites and be a Most Severe Blow.

NEW YORK, May 4.—The shadow of conscription is falling over the expectations of several big league managers, especially those who are busily engaged in extensive team reconstruction. The age at which ball players are developed for fast company is an age that will be the heaviest contributor to the armies of Uncle Sam. Comparatively few of these men are married.

It is estimated that eight or nine of the Yankees will be eligible for draft and among them are a few whose loss would be a severe blow to the welfare of the team. In this respect the Giants are not apt to be hit so hard but there is no telling what McGraw's losses may be when enlistment on a big scale begins.

Assuming that the draft will include able-bodied men between the ages of 21 and 25—it may go higher—the Giants may lose a catcher, a couple of pitchers, and perhaps two outfielders. Approximately ten Giants are within the age limit and at least six of them are rated as regulars.

The great infield will not be broken up unless some of its members volunteer. Hersog, Fletcher, and Zimmerman are above the age limit, and Holke, though only 24, is married and has a little daughter.

Kauff, Robertson and Kelly are the outfielders who may be taken. Kelly is just coming of age, and Kaff is twenty-six. Both are single. Robertson is around twenty-five, and was married on April 6, the day war was declared on Germany.

Of McGraw's four catchers, McCarty and Krueger are under age, but McCarty is a married man. Bill Rariden is twenty-nine and has a family. George Gibson is a Canadian citizen. He is thirty-two years old, married, and has one child.

Six of McGraw's staff of eight pitchers are under twenty-eight, but four of the six are family men. These four are Perritt, Schupp, Tesreau and Middleton. Eligible for conscription are George Smith, Fred Anderson and Babe Benton. This trio would be hard to replace. Smith is just developing into a first-class man, and has years of baseball ahead of him. Anderson and Benton are twenty-seven. The government has not yet issued a call for left-handers, but Benton says he is ready. Harry Sallee is out of it, as he is thirty-two and married.

If it is Uncle Sam's intention to use only single men in the first draft the Giants will not fare so badly. Their list will include Smith, Anderson, Benton, Kauff, Kelly, Anderson, Benton, Kauff, Kelly, Krueger, and Pete Kilduff.

BOWLING

Last night the Printers and C.G.E. met in their last clash of the season, when the Printers took all three games, with a total pinnage of 2,473. The C.G.E. team had hard luck with the pins, and also were without the assistance of their star bowler, A. Fielder. Hard spares were made by Early and Jardine of the C.G.E. Bishop was the only man to go over the 500 mark for the C.G.E.

One of the finest games ever witnessed was the last game, when V. W. Moore rolled the fine total of 266. This is a league record and will certainly draw a prize. The Printers took a dummy score in the last game, Mr. Cairns being unable to remain for that game. Moore had high total for the Printers with 614.

The Printers have won the championship of this League, as well as the last, with the Grocers in second place.

BASEBALL

In a school baseball league game at Nicholls Oval on Monday afternoon the Queen Alexandra team defeated the nine from the King George school by a score of 11 to 0. The batteries were:

King George—Hagerman and Hay
Queen Alexandra—Gilchrist and Jordan.

At a senior baseball game on Tuesday evening on the Central School grounds the Centrals defeated the King Edward by a score of 19 to 3.

The City Will Purchase 3,000 Tons of Coal For Local Distribution

Representatives of the Various Coal Companies and Member of the City Council Meet to Discuss the Coal Situation —Coal Dealers Do Not Object to a Municipal Coal Yard —By-law Will Be Prepared.

The local coal situation formed the subject of a lengthy discussion at a meeting of the committee of the whole Council, held last evening. The following coal dealers were present: Messrs. T. E. Pratt, representing J. E. A. Fitzgerald; A. Low, R. J. Wolstenholme, Robert Hicks, James McDonald, representing W. Scott and Company, and Mr. A. Wedlock, representing the Peterborough Fuel and Transfer Company.

The Result.

The net result of the discussion is embodied in the following resolution, moved by Ald. McIntyre, and seconded by Ald. Dobbin:

That the City Solicitor prepare a by-law to authorize the purchase of 3,000 tons of coal, and to borrow the necessary money for that purpose, and to make any other provision necessary.—Carried.

The necessary authority to adopt the foregoing course is provided for in the Municipal Act. It merely requires the endorsation of the Lieutenant-Governor of the Province.

Co-operation Asked For.

Mayor Duffus stated that after the Council had instructed the Fire, Water and Light Committee to consider the fuel situation, he had concluded that a more direct and immediate action would be preferable. Hence he had interviewed the dealers and learned that the stocks of coal in the city had been contracted for. He realized that it was only through co-operation of the dealers and the Council that a sufficient supply of coal could be secured for the coming winter. Each dealer could take care of a certain number of customers, and the Council provide for the others. The present situation was partly due to panicy efforts to obtain supplies now. Mayor Duffus believed that there would be sufficient coal brought into Ontario, but the Council intended to act now and not wait until it might be too late. The Mayor alluded to the growing maze of detail to which he had to attend, and at the same time the Militia Department had been after him for two months to get into the C.D.F.

The Price Basis.

Mr. Hicks gave the committee a lucid exposition of the price basis of coal, which is fixed at the boundary and not at the mines. He said that the average consumption per head of population was one and a quarter tons. Mr. Hicks looks for an increase in the average consumption of at least a quarter of a ton per head owing to the scarcity of wood. He estimated the consumption in Peterborough at approximately thirty thousand tons. Mr. Hicks looked for a decrease in the supply. He expected to receive about three thousand tons less than last year.

Mr. Pratt, representing J. E. A. Fitzgerald, was of the opinion that this year's supply would be about the same as last year.

Mr. Hicks said he was buying all he could from the regular dealers. "If we could get all the coal we wanted you would not be sitting here to-night, and all the cellars would be full."

"We are in the coal business," said Mr. Hicks, when he was questioned as to the amount of coal he would purchase.

Ald. Weir said he was promised the same tonnage as last year.

A Good Thing.

Mr. Hicks looked on a municipal coal yard as a good thing. He advised the Council to put in coal and take care of the trade which the dealers may not be able to handle.

Ald. Weir spoke of the possibility of a loss to the city.

"What is a five thousand dollar loss to the city if we keep the people from suffering?" said Mr. Hicks. "I expect to lose in my own business," he added.

Ald. Dobbin spoke of a plan to sell coal at cost to the dependents of soldiers. Instead of paying the dependents cash out of the Patriotic Fund they would take the whole or part out in coal.

Mr. Hicks said that there would have to be a systematic distribution of the coal or there would be overlapping.

Would Not Object.

Ald. Weir was of the opinion that no dealer in the city would object to a municipal coal yard, providing it paid its way.

Mr. Hicks said he would be satisfied to have the city go into the scheme even if it did not pay its way. The possibility of a drop in price was so remote as to occasion absolutely no concern. In fact, Mr. Hicks looked for higher prices. He intimated that the city would have to look for its coal to the independent dealers, as the supply of the regular companies was all contracted for.

Ald. Dobbin was of the opinion that the reduced overhead charge, such as the interest on the investment and reasonable profit, would about level the prices up with that charged by the regular companies should the city be compelled to purchase the coal from independent companies, who, it was stated, charged higher prices.

Mr. Wedlock said that one thing that would improve the situation a lot would be the filling of cellars early in the season. He said that they were doing a lot of this class of work now.

Winter Wheat in U.S. Lowest Since Year 1888

BUT CONDITIONS GOOD OTHERWISE.

May Wheat Sells in Chicago at $3, the Highest Price on Record.

WASHINGTON, May 8.—In the face of a threatened world food shortage, the American winter wheat crop shows the lowest condition recorded since 1889, and promises a smaller yield than any other since 1904.

Winter wheat planted last autumn on one of the largest acreages ever sown to that grain, but which met disaster in several important States from severe winter conditions, now promises a harvest of 336,116,000 bushels this year. That quantity was forecast to-day by the Department of Agriculture which based its estimate on the condition of the crop May 1.

A month ago a crop of 430,000,000 bushels was forecast. Production last year was 481,744,000 bushels, and in 1915 it was 673,947,000 bushels.

On May 1 the area of winter wheat to be harvested was about 27,653,000 acres, compared with 40,090,000 acres sown last autumn and 34,829,000 acres harvested last year.

The condition of the crop on May 1 was 73.2 per cent. of a normal, compared with 63.4 on April 1, 82.4 on May last year and 86.6 the average of the last ten years on May 1.

Conditions Good Otherwise.

Agricultural conditions otherwise are good, the department announced, and it recalled that although the winter wheat crop of 1912 showed an equally discouraging outlook, the total production of crops that year was the greatest on record.

Climbed 17 Cents Overnight.

CHICAGO, May 8.—May wheat sold at $3.00 a bushel to-day, the highest on record. It was an overnight climb of 17 cents.

July made an extreme jump of about 8 cents. The close was unsettled, 3 3-4 to 14 cents net higher, with May at $2.97 and July at $2.31 to $2.32 1-4.

City Will Try To Purchase Coal Direct From Mine

MONTREAL, May 4.—Owing to the high cost of coal—only one bid on $10.50 a ton having been received by them for the city's supply for 1917—the Board of Control voted $500 to meet the expenses of a delegation which will be appointed to meet the owners of several Canadian mines and discuss the possibility of their supplying the city direct with its fuel. The city Council will be asked to concur in the report of the Board, and if the mine owners agree to sell their product direct to the corporation, it will probably mean a saving of at least $100,000.

Controller Villeneuve said that the idea of voting the $500 was to have an interview, with the owners of coal mines and endeavour to persuade them to sell coal direct to the corporation.

Controller Ainey expressed the opinion that, in view of the expenditure which would in case have to be met for the city's coal supply, it was well worth attempting to buy the coal direct from the mines.

The bulk of the coal purchased each year by the corporation goes to the various pumping stations.

ASKS COURT TO DECIDE

CHATHAM, May 8.—The City Council last night passed a resolution whereby a court of competent jurisdiction will be asked to pass on the innocence of Aldermen Baxter, Brisco and Coatsworth, who are charged with soliciting a bribe from the Chatham Gas Co. to support the purchase by the city of a part of its business. A judicial investigation was recently held, in which Judge Stanworth sat as a Commissioner, and he brought in a report against the Aldermen in question. The Council suggested that the three resign, but they have refused to do so, and the City Solicitor now advises that the next step is to place the matter in the hands of the Crown. Mayor Kerr and Ald. Laurie are a special committee to do this.

Public sentiment is divided on the question. The judicial investigation lasted two days and was very thorough, and the decision was against the three, but by the nature of the proceeding was not a verdict of guilty.

Writ For Nearly Quarter of Million By The Hydro Com.

OSGOODE HALL, Toronto, May 8—The Ontario Hydro Commission, through the Ontario Government, today issued a writ against the Electrical Development Company, the Mackenzie-Peltatt enterprise for damages amounting to nearly a quarter of a million dollars. This is a sequel to recent charges by Sir Adam Beck that the Electrical Co. was wrongfully appropriating Hydro power at Niagara.

Contractor Says He Can't Continue, Meanwhile City's Garbage Is Piling Up

For two days not a wheel of the garbage collection system has turned. Yesterday the fires at the incinerator died out, and this entire public utility of garbage collection and destruction is apparently tied up indefinitely.

In the meantime garbage and ashes have been accumulating throughout the city. The outside districts, Ashburnham, the south and north wards haven't seen a garbage waggon for ten days, since Monday, April 31st, and when the system does resume operations the immediate renewal is likely to be of augean proportions.
